MONTREAL (CP) — Bill Longhurst, a leading test pilot, likes to make it clear that his profession isn't full of he-men and heroes.

The chief of air operations with Canadair Limited says emphatically that the most hazardous operation of his average day is "taking my son skating."

Bill, an aeronautical engineer who has been flying all types of aircraft since 1935, says test pilots today regard their jobs as "long term ones" and like to keep it that way.

"The way I look on test flying is that I wouldn't mind my nine-year-old son taking it up as his career. He would just have to realize that flying is a business, not a sport. Then he would be safer flying than driving an automobile."

Bill quotes the fact that insurance companies regard test pilots a safer risk than Montreal taxi-drivers, to prove his point.

TESTS SABRES

Bill works with an eight-man staff of pilots testing Sabre jets as they roll off the assembly line at Canadair. But he insists there is more to the modern test flier's job than just breaking the sound barrier.

"A test pilot nowadays spends only one-tenth of his working day flying," he said. The remainder of the time places emphasis on such things as books, blue prints and ground checks. Test pilots work closely with designers and engineers as the plane is planned and assembled.

When he finally gets in the air, Bill says he is too busy to "go looking for thrills." He takes notes of the aircraft's performance and discusses the flight with specialists on the ground. Even smashing the sound barrier now is routine.

"The only way you can tell you are through it is to check your air indicator," Bill says. "Then you're surprised to find how fast you're travelling."

After Bill or his assistants have tested a Sabre for two hours in the air the aircraft is handed over to the RCAF and Bill goes back to his office—to bone up on technical journals.

Bill says sticky situations can occur sometimes, but "the aim is to go over before hand every situation that might happen. Then if something out of the ordinary does happen, you know what to do and its no longer 'sticky.'"

Only Half Civic Patients Residents Of Peterborough

Only a little over half of the 5,779 adults and children (excluding new-born infants) discharged from the Peterborough Civic Hospital in 1953 were residents of Peterborough, superintendent John Hornal told the annual meeting of the board Thursday night. There were 3,023 such patients, numbering 52.3 per cent of the total.

The county of Peterborough provided 1,337 patients at $1 a day higher rates. Other organized municipalities in Ontario supplied another 1,326 with 93 coming from other provinces, the United States and unorganized territories in Ontario.

Hospital costs per patient per day are up about seven cents said Mr. Hornal. This puts the cost at $16.38. Average ward revenues in private and semi-private wards run to $10.00 even with public revenues too flexible to be gauged with complete accuracy.

STAY LONGER

Perhaps patients are getting sicker, but in any case the average patient stay in hospital has been steadily rising since 1949. Average patient stay is now 10.39 days with 195.8 patients—a new high—the average daily complement of the ill.

During the year 6,769 patients were treated, including 754 live births. Deaths and stillbirths numbered 186 and 16 respectively. There were 1,031 major operations, 1,188 minor ones, 579 eye, ear, nose and throat operations and 726 casts made for a total of 3,524. In addition to this, there were 1,223 blood transfusions and 7,191 outpatient treatments.

There were 442 on the hospital staff at the end of the year, including physiotherapy and interns but not including the medical staff.

Closely tied in both with the medical staff and Mr. Hornal's administrative staff is the pharmacy department headed by Miss Ethel Smedmor. This group handles all the various sulfa drugs, antibiotics, and products such as cortisone and ACTH. It also keeps a detailed file of all narcotics on hand, since the RCMP requires an accurate perpetual inventory.

Generally the hospital has enjoyed a good year, re-elected board charman M. H. Swanston declared. Seven per cent more patient days service was given in 1953 over 1952 and "hospital accommodation is continually at a premium."

One of the most progressive steps taken by the hospital board in 1953, said Mr. Swanston was the organization of Regional Hospital District No. 8 This embraces Oshawa, Bowmanville, Port Hope, Cobourg, Port Perry, Lindsay and Peterborough. The group was organized last May and held a meeting here in September.

On the home front the hospital set up a mental health clinic under Dr. J. S. Pratten, set up a special committee to study the hospital's possibilities as a polio treatment centre, investigated the possibility of using the old Queen Mary hospital as a site for chronically ill patients and gave more financial support to the Community Nursing Registry.

Financially the situation in 1953 was "quite encouraging" said treasurer T. T. Rodger. Expenditures exceeded net revenues by $1,092,547.35 to $713,280.87 but a $225,600.04 grant from the city gave the hospital a surplus of $6,223.48 for the year. There is also a debenture debit of $1,712,500 but this is not an obligation of the hospital but of the city of Peterborough.

Accounts receivable at $135,289.90 are up more than $23,000 from 1952 but only 56.8 per cent of these are considered secured accounts. The reservation for uncollected accounts is now over $65,000.

Mr. Rodger presented these figures at the last meeting of the board and was merely summarizing for the benefit of those who might have missed them then. As for the budget for 1954, "we're just beginning to dig into it."

Civic Women's Auxiliary Praised For Help To Patients

Everybody loves the Civic Hospital Women's Auxiliary, said board of governors chairman, M. J. Swanston, "because they are always giving us something for nothing." At Thursday night's annual meeting some of these gratuitous services were outlined.

Library carts patrol hospital wards twice a week loaded with the newest magazines and best-sellers. Mrs. C. H. Huffman of the Women's Auxiliary told the meeting Thursday night that this service was tremendously popular with patients and was perhaps the best antidote to boredom among convalescent patients. To illustrate her point she trundled out a library cart bearing books ranging from James Thurber to Lloyd C. Douglas, all well thumbworn.

For patients' more mundane needs, the auxiliary also provides a twice-a-week cart loaded with various confectionaries not likely to be found on the hospital menu. This is the only service of the group which more or less pays for itself, because patients buy their grub. The "more-or-less" qualification is needed because many patients are moneyless, and the women don't worry too much about delinquent debtors.

RELIEVE BOREDOM

One of the major problems of the auxiliary, said Mrs. Huffman, is relieving the tedium in the lives of children and the permanently sick. Until the hospital hired an occupational therapist last year, the auxiliary was active in providing handicraft work for young patients. Now most of the auxiliary's recreational work is done with older, incurable folk. It is a "soul-satisfying experience," says Mrs. Huffman, to relieve their monotony by providing such things as drives in the country.

The official report of the Women's Auxiliary was presented by Mrs. L. Zacks, together with a treasurer's report from Mrs. Gladys M. Upper. The auxiliary bought wheelchairs, distributed fruit, raised money for a variety of causes, and even provided escorts for a nurses' square dance.

The patients' lot was also made more happy by the hospital's housekeeping department, Margaret E. McIntyre reported. Miss McIntyre's crew is responsible for the general cleanliness of rooms, carrying meal trays, arranging flowers, mending all linen and taking care of a lost and found department. This last is a headache all in itself, says Miss McIntyre, since patients have been known to lose everything from bloomers to billfolds.

Reports on the "practical" aspects of hospital life were also heard from the dietetics department (considered separately), Harold Hynes of the laundry department, Ruth Muldoon, whose staff handles the hospital's elaborate cross-indexed file of medical records, William Morrison for the power and maintenance crew, and from the accounting staff.

If Korean Armistice Broken May Bomb China—Weyland

Note: In this third and final exclusive interview, the United States air commander in Korea tells what might happen if fighting breaks out again.

By ROBERT EUNSON

TOKYO (AP) — If the Korean armistice is scrapped and fighting breaks out again, United States bombers may range far north of the Yalu river and hammer Chinese factories in Manchuria—possibly with atom bombs.

Gen. O. P. Weyland, U. S. Far East Air Force commander, won't say they will. He did say in an interview, however: "It is my understanding that the Yalu river might no longer be the boundary, if the war is resumed in Korea, and we might strike the enemy wherever we could hurt him the most and with whatever would do the most damage."

China proper could also come into its share of bombing, it would be assumed.

"The Far East air forces would be reinforced," Weyland said, "the strategic air command is prepared to operate anywhere in the world and could extend its range to this theatre."

FIVE PLANE TYPES

Bombers of the strategic command specialize in atom warfare.

There are at least five plane types in the U.S. Air Force which can carry the atom bomb and bases in Weyland's command can accommodate all of them. The five types are B-29, F-84, B-47, B-50 and B-36.

B-29s, B-50s and F-84s already are based in the Far East.

B-36s were in the Far East last summer when the United States sent 22 of these giants to Japan. At that time, only the fact that three were here was made public.

The 22 made the trip from the mainland non-stop, landed all over the Far East and conducted many simulated missions.

"We could get the B-47 jet bombers here, too, in 12 hours if we needed them," Weyland said.

CHAIN OF BASES

"In case of attack from the Soviets, we are in a flanking position to strike advancing Communist air forces. Notice our positions on the map and you will see that we are just off shore from all Communist territory in the Far East—China, North Korea, Manchuria and Russian Siberia.

"We could strike to the north, east or southeast from our positions in Japan, Okinawa, Korea and the Philippines."

The air force is keeping up a secondary chain of bases just in case they are needed. Although there are few planes on them now, the fields are in good shape and long enough to land anything that will fly.

"We would have to fight hard again to get back the initiative," Weyland says. "But it can be done if hostilities are renewed."

Daring Pilot Does It Again

FORT WILLIAM (CP)—Helicopter pilot Jack Godsby and his "windmill" have done it again.

Godsby recently accomplished a unique salvage operation in picking up a crashed light plane from frozen Onion lake and flying it suspended from his machine 25 miles to the Lakehead. He was called in again Tuesday after other efforts to repair aviation obstruction lights on nearby Mount McKay had failed.

When the lights failed, Lakehead airport manager Hugh S. Round couldn't get a maintenance crew up to make repairs.

Godsby agreed to use the helicopter. A crew was picked up and dropped on top of the mountain. Then Armand Paradis was lowered down the mountain face to the lights in a hydraulically-operated bosun's chair.

Rotary Wives Guests At Turkey Dinner

STIRLING (ENS) — About 30 member of Stirling Rotary Club and their ladies enjoyed a turkey dinner and social evening at the community hall.

The program consisted of musical numbers, recitations and slides, shown by senior officer of the Salvation Army showing the highlights of his trip to England last summer.

Following the program the guests played cards and danced.

French Fight Violent Rebel Battle

VIENTIANE, Indo-China (Reuters)—French forces have fought a series of violent battles with the Vietminh Communists in an effort to halt the rebels' advance on the Laotian royal capital of Luangprabang, it was announced here today.

The announcement from this administrative capitals 105 miles southeast of Luangprabang said the battles raged Thursday about 50 to 60 miles north and northwest of the royal capital. It did not disclose the outcome beyond listing Communist casualty figures.

It said the rebels left 85 dead on the battlefield after a clash near Muong La, 60 miles north of Luangprabang, and that air attacks put a further 60 rebels out of action.

MUONG SAI FALLS

The announcement said Vietminh troops Thursday night harrassed "our positions of Muong Sai," 50 miles north of Luangprabang, with mortar bombs and machine-gun fire. Authoritative sources in Saigon Thursday said Muong Sai was already in Vietminh hands.

The advance guard of rebel troops crossed the northern frontier of Laos state last week-end to advance through the jungle-clad mountains towards beautiful Luangprabang with its banana palms, stately villas and ornate Buddhist pagodas.

Britain In Poor Position To Finance Development

By SUSAN STRANGE

LONDON (OFNS) — Some calculations made this week by the chairman of one of Britain's leading joint-stock banks suggest forcibly that this country may prove even less capable of financing substantial economic development in the Commonwealth than many people—including the Commonwealth finance ministers—suppose.

Only last week, at their Sydney conference, the ministers resolved to press forward at full speed with their plans for economic development. They received strong encouragement from R. A. Butler, the British chancellor of the exchequer, who told the conference that the British government in future would relax the restrictions on the type of loans floated by the dominions in the London market.

Now, Lord Balfour of Burleigh in his annual statement to the shareholders of Lloyds Bank, has suggested that Britain today is tending to rest on its economic oars, and is making far too little provision for the future of its own industrial economy, let alone for agricultural and industrial development overseas.

This complaint has, of course, been heard before. And when made by bank chairmen, who traditionally begin in January the mounting chorus of appeals from the city and industry to every British chancellor considering his next budget to lighten the burden of taxation and give the investor a break, it has a familiar ring.

But this time, Lord Balfour has backed his appeal with some startling comparisons between Britain, as a source of investment capital, and some other West European countries. In recent years, British governments have tended to take a slightly-holier-than-thou attitude towards some of their West European neighbors whom they considered were following economic policies less austere or careful than themselves. But in the years 1948-52 it appears that it was not they, but the British who have been playing the improvident grasshopper. While in these five years devoted on the average one-eighth of its national income to saving—the formation of capital in all forms— six West European countries devoted, on average, a quarter. The lowest comparable figure in any one of these coutries was one-fifth.

Even if the comparison is made in terms of net capital formation—that is, the amount of new investment as distinct from the mere replacement of obsolete or outworn plant— this has been more than half as large again in the continental countries as in Britain.

Moreover, although Lord Balfour did not press the point, it is well-known that in Britain in these same years, the great bulk of new investment has been—apart from the housing program— in the nationalized basic industries. Real domestic investment in Britain in 1952, for instance, was as great in the nationalised one-tenth of British industry as in the nine-tenths of industry still in the hands of privately-owned companies. This tendency has so far remained unchecked, and the marign left over for investment overseas is correspondingly limited.

Savings in Britain have, it is true, been rising over the past year or so. But not nearly fast enough to equal the investment records of the European countries quoted by Lord Balfour. And these extra savings are already mortgaged, as it were by the government's plan for expensive modernisation programs for Britain's inadequate and overcrowded roads and her out-dated railways. To produce a surplus large enough to take care of these demands, of new demands from business here, and expanded development in the commonwealth, the rate of saving in Britain would have to increase very fast indeed.

This year the demand for new capital for British industry may well be a good deal more clamorous than it has been. Total investment in new plant and machinery here dropped in 1952 from 1951, and is not believed to have risen last year. At this particular moment, therefore, the choice for Britain is especially acute. If the productivity of industry here is to be raised— as all are agreed it must be— then the slackening of investment in industry in recent years must soon be made good. But if this is done, less will be left for investment in the Commonwealth.

Dulles Stalls Reply On Talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — State Secretary Dulles in Berlin has stalled an American reply to Chinese and Korean Communist demands for renewal of preliminary peace talks at Panmunjom.

Dulles is reported waiting to sound out Russia's Foreign Minister Molotov, as well as the British and French ministers.

The state department last Saturday cabled to Dulles the draft of a note to serve as the United States reply, it was learned. Thus far the department has received no word on whether he approves the suggested text.

The foreign diplomats who approved a proposed draft at a state department meeting 12 days ago expected the note would go out last week-end in time to reply to Red demands that the Korean talks be resumed Feb. 1.

State department spokesmen, who last week said the note would be out within a few days, now try to duck all comment on the matter.

Police Hunt Ax Attackers

SIMCOE, Ont. (CP)—Provincial police today continued a province-wide search for clues in a vicious ax attack that took the life of a 67-year-old service station operator and left his wife in critical condition in hospital.

Bruce Beatty and his wife were found Wednesday morning in their ransacked service station at Renton, four miles east of here. Police believe they were attacked about 10 p. m. the night before.

Inspector D. V. Whiteley of the provincial criminal investigation branch said numerous leads are being followed up. He is looking for two men seen walking along the highway near the station.

Four autos were being sought. One was believed to contain two men and two women who stayed in tourist cabins behind the Beatty station during the week-end.

Girl Shot In Leg At Montreal Club

MONTREAL (CP) — A 19-year-old girl was shot in the leg by a .22 calibre rifle bullet in an east-end night club early today and police took a 36-year-old man into custody for questioning.

Det. Sgt. Alfred O'Reilly said the girl, Claudette Seers, was not seriously injured when the gun discharged during a struggle near her table at the Ritz cabaret.

He said the man, whom he did not name, waved the rifle menacingly and it fired when another patron tried to take it.

Engineers Hold Exhibition To Display 65 Paintings

TORONTO (CP)—Engineers who like to forget professional problems in their spare time and relax with palette and brush are holding their first public exhibition here.

Some 42 members of the Association of Professional Engineers of Ontario contributed the 65 pictures in the show organized in connection with their recent annual meeting.

The pictures are largely oils of outdoors, a few portraits, some watercolors and a few abstractions in pencil.

Most entries are from Toronto, but the city's engineers went far afield for subjects. D. R. Perry has an oil of "South Nahanni River 1945", H. H. Leeming one of "Mount Edith Cavell, Alberta", while N. K. Mackenzie's covered bridge is in New Hampshire.

BETRAY TRAINING

Caption precision perhaps betrays the mathematically trained mind of the engineer. For instance, an interesting watercolor by A. G. W. Lamont, Toronto, is titled "Ottawa from Room 705, Lord Elgin Hotel." In contrast to the general selection of subject, A. V. Grundmanis of Niagara Falls took a busman's holiday and painted "The Powerhouse — Windsor Generating Station."

"National War Memorial" by E. C. Little of Fonthill, is a study in soft tones of the Ottawa shrine. Other entries are from Sudbury, Guelph, Little Current and Strathroy.

R. C. Poulter, of Toronto, chairman of the show, hopes a country-wide competition between engineering, medical, legal, and architectural professions will be organized.

Commonwealth Finace Co. Has Project

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON (CP)—The Commonwealth Development Finance Company has undertaken its first overseas investment project and negotiations on two others have reached an advanced stage, it was learned today.

The first venture takes the form of investing the rupee equivalent of about £1,000,000 in a natural gas development in Pakistan. The new enterprise will be managed by a subsidiary of the Burmah Oil Company, which is putting up some capital. Total cost is estimated at £9,000,000.

The finance company was set up, with some fanfare, at the time of the Commonwealth conference of November and December, 1952, which placed so much emphasis on Commonwealth development. The preliminary work in getting the company started was done by the 62-year-old Canadian banker, Sir Edward Peacock, who remains one of its directors.

SHOW IMPATIENCE

Some financial circles have indicated disappointment and impatience with the CDFC, saying it is on too small a scale. But Sir Edward stressed in a Canadian Press interview that it was never the intention to plunge into large-scale investment. The purpose was rather to supply a portion of the capital needed for reputable development projects in conjunction with private British firms already in the field.

Thus, for a thoroughly "vetted" development, CFC might well help take some of the strain of an individual company which found its resources strained in one particular overseas enterprise.

The two other projects which CDFC has in mind have not been disclosed.

Education Of Students Basis For Good Nurses

Sound educational practice on the school of nursing is the cornerstone of a nurse's effectiveness, Miss Evelyn M. Robson, director of nursing at the Peterborough Civic Hospital and principal of the school of nursing, told the annual meeting of the hospital board Thursday night.

One reason why there is a shortage of nurses, said Miss Robson, is because standards must be high. More research and experimentation on the part of progressive schools and hospitals is necessary to combine the maximum of efficiency with a full complement of nurses for Canada's hospitals.

At present the enrolment in the nursing school at the Civic is 101 student nurses, working on a three-year course. There are 28 seniors, 33 intermediates and 40 pre-clinical students. Last June 30 nurses received diplomas, bringing the total alumnae of the school to 551 graduates.

44-HOUR WEEK

One major reform launched in 1943 was the institution of a 44-hour week for nurses. This, says Miss Robson, gives students more time for more study and more extra-curricular activities. In the past nurses often had to sandwich their studying between endless tours of duty in the wards.

Studying is essential because "the first responsibility of the nurse is to give adequate care to the patients." The better educated a nurse is, not only in her field but generally, the better able she will be to maintain nursing's high standards.

Each student receives more than 1,000 lecture hours per year in addition to 104 hours of clinical teaching. This is supplemented by courses in remedial reading, special studies of psychoneuroses, exchange visits with other hospitals and directed use of the nursing school's library.

Classroom equipment has been improved with the addition of two microscopes, several charts, a new plastic anatomy torso, 35 new textbooks and a projector, the latter a gift of the School of Nursing Alumnae.

Students who graduate and stay withthe Civic become nurses in one of the finest of hospitals, says Miss Robson. Last year some were detailed to the new psychiatric clinic, and a post-anaesthetic recovery room set up in November. There are 89 fulltime and 23 parttime nurses, augmented by the 101 students and Auxiliary staff of 50 aides and orderlies.

There are two reasons why additions in staff are "imperative." One is the 44-hour week, the other the increase in patient load. The greater load is caused by both improvements in services to patients and a greater volume of patients through the hospital. In addition each June sees the nursing staff depleted from the previous September total because of marriage, change of residence or further graduate study by the nurses.

But however short may be the supply of nurses, certain admission standards must be adhered to, said Miss Mary Nesbitt, nursing arts instructress in the school of nursing. As a minimum, a prospective nurse needs the three-option Secondary School Graduation Dilpoma or its equivalent with honors in physics and chemistry. Preference is given to students with the most education.

The Civic's School of Nursing stands "high among the approved schools of the province," said Dr. G. Stewart Cameron, presenting a report on behalf of the School of Nursing committee. He paid particular tribute to the "high intelligence of the students and the fine quality of the instruction."

Early History Of Otonabee Outlined To WI

KEENE (ENS)—The February meeting of the Women's Institute was held in the Club Room on Wednesday evening, with thirty-six members and visitors present. The President, Mrs. M. Maloney, was in the chair.

A letter was read requesting that a representative attend a meeting to be held in the Agriculture Rooms, Peterborough on February 16th, to arrange for the Exhibition exhibit and other business; also a meeting on the same day in the council chambers at the Court House to discuss the oratorical contest. Mrs. E. Doris, district director, (or Mrs. E. Adamson, as an alternative) and Mrs. J. McFarlane, a member of the exhibition committee, agreed to attend.

Letters were read asking that representatives be sent to the leadership forum meeting to be held at the department of agriculture's board room, on February 11th, and several ladies who also belong to farm forum, said they would attend. A letter was read regarding a Conference for Branch Presidents to be held at the O.A.C., Guelph, May 6th and 7th next. It was agreed to enter the branch president's name as a possible representative to this conference. Each lady, who has not already done so, was asked to compile the history of the home in which she is living, to be used in a proposed Tweedsmuir history. The loan library was discussed and the secretary instructed to write for information.

The topic for the evening, Historical Research, was presented by Mrs. Dave McIntyre and Mrs. Chas Mather. Mrs. Mather's research consisted of the history of Otonabee township. The first survey of the township was in 1819 and the name 'Otonabee' came from the Indian translation 'Flashing Waters Running Fast'.

The first settler, George Kent, came to live on the farm where Clifford Coward now lives. The first Mathers settled on the farm now owned by Mr. Elmer Adamson.

The first trading post was near Hiawatha, with goods and supplies being brought across the lake. Among the first settlers were John Fife and George Eason—Mr. Fred Eason's great-grandfather.

Thomas Carr acquired the land where Keene now stands and his property consisted of the land here Mac and Harry Short now live and extended down to the corners in Keene. In 1860 he took his own life and is buried on the farm owned by Mac Short.

In 1829 Dr. Gilchrist started the mill and store. Mr. Thos. Short, for some time MPP, came to the township in 1830. The first log school house was built in 1829 and in 1832 the first school opened in Keene with twenty pupils.

Mrs. McIntyre's research concerned the churches. It was 130 years ago that a Methodist minister baptized Chief Paudash at Hiawatha. In 1875 the church was built, which was sold to the Masons at the time of Church Union.

In 1833 the first Persbyterian Church was organized and in 1845 a church was erected where the manse now stands. In 1851 the session suggested the formation of a female association in connection with the church. The present church was built in 1884. The Parish of St. John's settled in 1825. The first Priest attended Keene in 1845. In 1856 a frame building was erected on the site of the present church. In 1883 the frame church was veneered with brick.

The first baby christened in the church was John Barnett. In 1927 Knox Presbyterian Church was opened. In 1921 the memorial was unveiled.

Mrs. McIntyre also read several articles from the 'Keene Leader' which was published for a short time in the early 1920's. The Peterborough Examiner dated March 1st, 1861, mentioned a curling match between Keene and Peterborough.

Refreshments were served by the committee, Mrs. H. McFarlane, Mrs. P. Mather, Mrs. M. Richardson and Mrs. L. Wismer.

TV Cuts Down U.K. Movie Attendance

By RON EVANS

LONDON (CP)—Most of Britain's 4,500 movie theatre owners recognized the symptoms but the diagnosis came as a shock: Television is "eating" the audience and the condition will probably get worse.

The board of trade breaks the bitter news in a report that alternately wallops the cinema owners with hard facts and revives them with small draughts of faint hope. The examination, first in 20 years, was made by two board statisticians.

Movie attendance, says the report, has been declining steadily since 1949 but the drop has been most marked since 1952. The report suggests that television is at least 75 per cent responsible.

Take the town of Sutton Coldfield, a residential district of Birmingham. Television hit the community late in 1950 and movie attendance among the 40,000 residents promptly slipped eight per cent.

In the rare regions where television is still only a threat, the level of theatre admissions has remained virtually unchanged in the last several years.

Then comes the haymaker:

"As television coverage is extended, and possibly its hours of transmission increased, it is natural to expect that cinema admissions will continue to decline.

"But," the report adds, perhaps with an ear cocked for the tinkle of shattered spirits, "it is as yet too soon to be sure that cinema business will not recover as the novelty of television wears off."

Television is 14 years old in Britain and still shows no signs of "wearing off."

There is hope, however, as the report offers the assurance that Britain is still "the land of cinema." More people go "to the flicks" here than in any other country.

CANADIANS FOURTH

The average Briton attends the movies 28 times a year while his United States counterpart goes only 23 times.

Canadians rank fourth, attending only 17 movies a year.

The report warns that three-dimensional movies "throw a gigantic shadow over film affairs."

"Although we cannot yet tell which particular device will be generally adopted, it is practically certain that large capital outlays will be needed to adapt cinemas."

"Further, there are many cinemas which are already obsolescent and the new conditions may well drive some of them into decay."

DOROTHY DIX

Wife Falls For Married Man While Mate Was In Korea

DEAR MISS DIX: Two years ago I married a boy I had known for three years. He was in service and I moved near his camp so we could be together. Even then, I wasn't sure whether I had married him for love or sympathy. Shortly after I became pregnant, he went to Korea, and I returned to my folks. While my husband was away, I fell in love with another man, also married and with one child. We can't stay away from each other, though we don't want to break up our homes. I know definitely that I don't love my husband; but is it a mistake for me to stay in our home for the sake of our baby? I know that in any circumstances I shall continue to see the man I love. Won't you please make a sugegstion? MRS. O. E.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Just what sort of suggestion do you want? You're now doing quite a job of double cheating. Of course, there's only one right thing for you to do; in fact, it's not only the right thing, but also that which is wise, sensible and expedient. Continuing on your present course will cause you heartbreak, disillusionment, the loss of your husband's love, and of your own self-respect—and perhaps the loss of your child. What have you to balance these possibilities? A brief spell of stolen love, if it can be called love. As you see it in cold print, does it seem worthwhile?

TRY BEING A GOOD WIFE

You have, by your own admission, a good husband. Why not at least give him the break of trying to be a good wife? Give yourself, say, six months to act the role of a conscientious wife and mother. Drop the melodramatic part of a lovesick heroine for at least that length of time. By the time your self-probation is over, I bet you'll have decided home, husband and baby are enough to fill your life.

You certainly have no guarantee your friend will break up his home, even if you abandon yours, and I'm sure it takes little imagination to foresee your future in that case. Minus husband and lover; you'll face a hostile world alone. Isn't it better to settle for the certainties of the present, even though they may not be as alluring as you'd like? The realities you have are certainly enough for most women.

DEAR MISS DIX: I'm a girl of 17 and have had quite a few dates, but suddenly my mother doesn't seem to trust me. She appears to have a fear that something will happen to me. I try not to cause her to worry. Now, she won't trust me to be alone in the house with my boy friend, who is a very polite, considerate young man. FLORRIE.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Your mother is right in not wishing you to be alone in the house with a boy. The situation, for one thing, could easily arouse ugly gossip. Mom's anxiety is quite usual for 'teen-agers' parents. Looking back we can see how needless most of the worry was, but watching our youngsters grow up, and realizing the many pitfalls into which they may fall, is bound to make us concerned. Continue to show that you are trustworthy, and Mom will get over her worrying.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: My husband is a fine, considerate person when sober, but when he has been drinking, of which he is guilty occasionally, he tells me he doesn't love me and wants a younger woman. Should I leave him so he can have what he wants? B.L.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Since these spells occur but seldom, you'd do better to stay. You wouldn't be happy at all if you left your man. I don't hold with the proverb, "In vino veritas." I think an over-indulgence in alcohol is much more likely to produce false statements.

THE MOVIE COLUMN:

Tallulah Wants Steady Job, No Travelling

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Tallulah Bankhead is looking for a steady job.

To the layman, it would seem that the magnolia blossom from Alabama is busy enough. In the last year, she made her night club debut, appeared on everything in TV from Ed Murrow's "Person to Person" to "Hedda Gabler" to the Jimmy Durante show, wrote an autobiography that led non-fiction books for five months, and acted in a movie, "Main Street to Broadway."

But all this is not enough for Taloo. She told me her troubles in her hotel suite, where she was battling "the actor's nightmare," laryngitis. She explained that she isn't supposed to smoke and proceeded to light a cigarette every two minutes.

'DAHLING' NOT HEARD

"I'm not supposed to talk, either," she added. "But you know how impossible that would be for me, baby." She then poured forth thousands of words in an endless stream. She seemed to have given up "dahling." Everyone was "Baby."

"I can't go on doing work in bits and pieces, really I can't, baby," she remarked. "I've got to have some steady line of work to keep the wolf from that door. Years ago, I bought a perfectly tremendous place in the country with a huge swimming pool and everything. I thought I would retire there and enjoy the country life.

"But I have to keep working my fool head off to afford the place! People in our business should never acquire big possessions. You become a slave to them.

FINDS TRAVEL BORING

"I wouldn't mind going back to the theatah, except for one thing: the road. I suppose if the show were a hit, I would have to travel all over the country with it. The thought of it bores me. It's all right for some stage-struck child, but I've been through all that.

"I wasn't happy with the revues I did last season. It was like being shot out of a cannon."

Miss Bankhead was sipping tea. She explained that she was still recovering from the celebration of her 51st birthday.

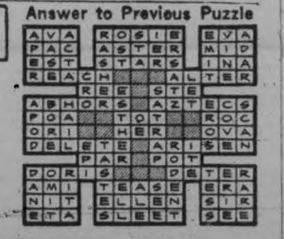
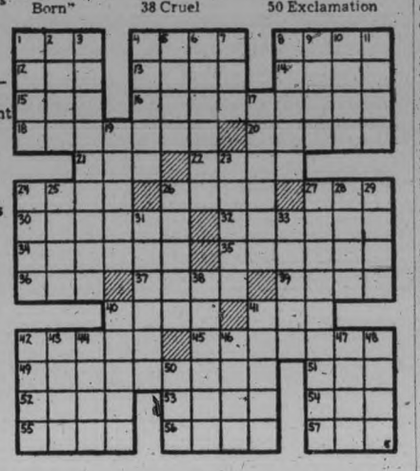
Answer to Previous Puzzle





Readers' Friday Column Conducted By Mary Moore

QUESTION: . . . for the past 2 years I have been bothered with a very bad problem. I have often considered asking your advice . . . my mother is a very good cook except for one serious drawback . . . during the summer months and early fall the potatoes she boils are very tasty and delicious. But during the winter and spring her boiled potatoes are inedible as far as I am concerned. They are cooked in an aluminum dish of some sort. The potatoes turn black, very fluffy or floury, fall apart, are very dry — but they turn black. These potatoes have got me down. Why the variation in the cooked product in the spring and winter? I have asked her to use various methods to remedy the situation namely peeling the potatoes 12 hours before cooking, using different pans, using plenty of water, using different types of potatoes, all to no avail. However the potatoes don't turn black if she uses Holland Marsh potatoes, but these are too expensive. Could you direct my mother through the medium of your helpful column to prepare potatoes that are nice, firm, white, moist as you usually receive in restaurants? . . . please do not consider this letter as a joke, as I am truly sincere. Also have you any new suggestions for factory worker lunch boxes? Starved.

ANSWER: (This young man gave his full name but requested that it not be printed). It isn't your mother's fault, Starved. There are two major factors which cause potatoes to darken. One is conditions under which they are stored. The other is lack or proper nutrients in the soil in which they were grown. Our own Dominion Department of Horticulture is working on this problem for Canadian potato growers. Holland Marsh potatoes are grown in an area where the soil is ideal for raising potatoes that do not darken. Your letter comes from an area where some of the soil must be enriched. Cooking potatoes in aluminum has no bearing on your problem. I am told that if potatoes are stored at low temperatures (however above freezing) and then reconditioned by being stored at higher temperatures (above 50 deg. F.) for 10 or 14 days, the danger of darkening when cooked is lessened. To sum up if storing conditions are not ideal, and if potatoes are not grown in properly enriched soil, no amount of clever cooking can prevent darkening. I will write an article on lunch boxes for factory workers shortly so please watch for it. I did not think your letter was a joke. Far from it.

QUESTION: I wonder if you can come to my rescue again . . . this is my first year on a farm and we are about to kill a pig . . . now pig to me is nicely shaped roasts, chops, etc, that are on display in the butcher store, but a whole pig! ! My brave spouse says put it in brine . . . okay what proportions? Then the fat. Folks say "Oh render it out and use it in baking." I ask about proportions and they say "use a little more than shortening." . . . punching a typewriter is more in my line, as you can see . . . I made a mess of your Peanoat cookies, they tasted fine but would not roll or cut . . . Mrs. E. Y.

ANSWER: I loved receiving again one of your cheery letters. I have written to you about rendering lard — directions appeared here January 29.

SALT CURED PORK

This is the meat packers' formula for 100 pounds.

Eight lbs. salt, 2½ lbs. brown sugar, 3 oz. saltpeter, 4 oz. black pepper. Reduce saltpeter to powder and mix all ingredients together. Rub one-third into the meat and pack it in stone jars or clean barrel or box. Let it stand 3 days, then unpack and rub another one-third of mixture on. Pack again, let it stand for 4 days, then in order to reach all parts especially joints and thick parts, unpack again and rub in remainder of mixture. Pack tightly having heavy hams on bottom. In six days add enough brine to cover meat that is strong enough with salt to float an egg. Weight it down so meat is covered at all times with brine, cover and let cure for 5 weeks for smaller pieces, 6 weeks for hams.

Dynamic Career Woman, 81, Hamilton Widow's Goal

HAMILTON (CP)—How to be a career woman at 81 is easily demonstrated by Mrs. Maud Tobey diminutive widow who works a full-time job in a city real estate office.

Mrs. Tobey, who stands five-feet one and weighs 80 pounds, can compete with any young modern. She works a regular 9 to 5 day, doing clerical chores, answering the phone and running errands.

She laughs at the thought of quitting. "Not unless it is necessary," she said. "I wouldn't know what to do with myself." The only concession she makes to her age is that she admits feeling "a little tired" after a busy day.

KEEN MEMORY

Mrs. Tobey greets many of the people in the office block by name, and visitors to the office rarely have to repeat their name after their first trip.

She was born in Sarnia in 1872 and first went to business in Chatham when she was 20. She over-rode the objections of her parents, who wanted her to continue her education, and managed a music store for a year.

Music has always been her absorbing interest. She was a church organist in Chatham, and until recently was active in groups here.

She married Roy Tobey in 1899 and they moved to Hamilton, where he opened a men's clothing store. As the business grew, she helped her husband. After his death in 1946 she managed the business for several years.

TRIED NEW FIELDS

After selling out, she tried new fields, working in a law office and later in a real estate office.

"She's wonderful," her former employer, Miss Ethel Fagan, a local lawyer, recalled.

"I even left her in charge of the office for two weeks on one occasion. She drew up several wills for people who were in a hurry and she did an excellent job. She was a very conscientious worker, very alert."

Outside her work, Mrs. Tobey has few interests. She retires every night at 7:30 p.m. and rises at 7:30 a.m.

"I have been blessed," is Mrs. Tobey's explanation of her unusual health and activity.

Says Road Bridge Installed Backwards

TORONTO (CP) — Farquhar, Oliver, Ontario Liberal House leader, charged Thursday night that department of highways inspectors had approved a bridge in western Ontario which he said was installed "backwards" so that the water undermined its foundations.

Speaking at the inaugural meeting of the York East Liberal Club, the opposition leader did not give the location of the bridge but said he will be revisiting it soon.

The opposition leader also criticized the administration for "being so stupid as to let contracts so low they are obviously economically unsound."

Neighbors Want Keep Fugitive

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Alex R. Bryant, 48, was listed as one of the FBI's 10 most wanted fugitives before his recent capture. But now nearly 100 neighbors and business associates want him.

They want him to stay here with his wife and baby in the suburban cottage on Mount Washington, where his lawyer says Bryant has led an exemplary life for nearly two years.

The wife, Mrs. Gladys Lawson, says the 100 friends and neighbors have signed two petitions to governor Goodwin J. Knight, asking him to deny a request for extradition to Michigan.

HAVE DAUGHTER

Mrs. Lawson married Bryant 18 months ago under his assumed name, Edward Lawson. She still insists on using the name Lawson. They have a daughter, five months old.

Bryant escaped from Michigan state prison in January 1952, after serving 22 years of a life sentence for a series of robberies committed in 1929, when he was 24. Prior to that he had served a reformatory term on a rape charge.

Judge S. A. Hutchison Dies In Ontario

VICTORIA HARBOR, Ont. (CP) Samuel A. Hutcheson, 83, a judge at Shaunavon, Sask., from about 1930 to 1944, died today in this Georgian bay village.

He was graduated from Osgoode Hall in Toronto as a lawyer in 1901, practised in Huntsville and Swift Current, Sask., and was appointed a judge in the late 1920s.

He retired in 1944. A daughter and two sisters survive.

ADOPTION REPORT—Film comedian Charlie Chaplin "has taken steps" to adopt the children of executed atom spies Julius and Ethel Roseberg, according to an unconfirmed story printed in the Hungarian Communist newspaper "Noek Lapja." Until now the two boys, Michael (left) and Robbie, have been under the guardianship of the late attorney Emanuel Bloch, defence counsel for the spies.

Danger Of Outside Influence Stressed At Editor's Meet

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — In a crusading address which sparked the opening here today of the 8th annual Canadian Managing Editors Conference, Norman E. Isaacs, of the Louisville, Ky., Times, warned Canadians in the top executive posts of papers from coast to coast, that outside influence is a constant threat to their existence as good newspapermen.

"Wherever men run newspapers," he said, "there are other men who attempt to influence what is printed—for good purpose, or for not so good. It is a never-ending process.

"There are politicians who would influence us. There are businessmen. There are labor leaders. There are civic-minded persons who want us to campaign for fine and decent things. And there are always press agents, who represent their clients and whose job it is to get their clients' points of view presented in the most favorable circumstances. Most people, I think, approach newspaper men with good taste. But the object is always the same: to influence what is being printed," he said.

LAPSES SOMETIMES OCCUR

"We in this hemisphere . . . take some pride in our calling. I think we put out the best—in terms of quantity and in sense of responsibility—newspapers in the world . . . nevertheless I am deeply concerned about some of our lapses. If newspapering is to go ahead, it must face its challenges with candor and courage. And one of these challenges, in my humble opinion, is our ethical concept of our work.

"Your newspapers in Canada, like ours in the States, carry the greatest burden in society. We are expected at once to be public carriers of information, educational agent, defender of the rights of free men—accurate, faithful, dependable—wise men and incorruptible.

"I have made the point with my colleagues that while the doctor treats with men's bodies and the minister with their salvation, we deal with the most precious part of man—his mind.

"He cannot be a free man; he cannot exercise his best judgment; he cannot even be a passably good citizen unless the well of his information is a pure one."

OPPOSES ALL FAVORS

Admitting that newspapers often make mistakes in their haste to get the news into print, Mr. Isaacs said whatever mistakes are made should never be the result of outside pressures.

"Our judgments, even if wrong, should be our own honest judgments as editors; not influenced by favors of any kind."

The Louisville editor explained that when he fights for ethics in his homeland, some of his friends chide him by pointing out that the editors he attacks are "sufficiently mature and strong - minded to mingle with press agents bearing dry martinis and escape unsullied."

A free drink or a free ticket to some event never hurt anyone, his friends tell him, yet he insists that outside influence of any sort, when it reaches the stage of influencing what is written, is damaging both to the man and the paper for whom he works and to the whole field of journalism.

Mr. Isaacs condemned the practice of sports writers who appear on television programs sponsored by racetrack owners, photographers who make a business of taking wedding pictures on the side and reporters who are on private or public payrolls. He cited instances in New York state and in Texas and California to back up his arguments.

Thieves Steal Safe During Thick Smog

TIMMINS (CP) — Under the cover of a concealing, early-morning smog, thieves today made off with a 225-pound safe containing $350 in cash and several hundred dollars in cheques, from the Carr Timber and Feed office.

Police said they had questioned one suspect, but no arrests have been made. The safe has not been recovered.

The thieves gained entry by smashing a window in the front door. Heavy smog concealed their activities.

$750,000 Fire Sweeps Detroit Roofing Plant

DETROIT (AP) — Fire gutted the block-long Lloyd A. Fry Roofing Co. in southwestern industrial Detroit Thursday night. For a time the blaze threatened nearby gasoline storage tanks. Damage was unofficially estimated at $750,000.

No one was hurt at the fire but three firemen were injured when their fire truck, speeding to the blaze, collided with a big semi-trailer truck.

Air France Orders 3 Jet Airliners

LONDON (Reuters) — The de Havilland Company today announced that Air France has placed a new order for three Comet jet airliners.

This is in addition to three similar planes ordered last August for delivery in 1955. The six planes are all Series II Comets, an advanced version capable of carrying 44 passengers 2,000 miles non-stop.

The French airline has three earlier - type Comet jetliners in service.

KITCHENER (CP) — Kitchener collected $65,242 more in taxes during 1953 than it had expected. Civic officials credited a building boom.

R. V. Alles, tax collector, said the occupancy tax netted $100,581.39 instead of the $50,000 expected, the poll tax $23,810 instead of $22,000. Other revenues also showed gains.

Public Library Membership Almost Doubled In 10 Years

Are people becoming more literate or is it that book jackets have become more appealing?

At any rate, membership at the Public Library has almost doubled in the past 10 years; 6,389 registered in 1943 to 11,100 in 1953. The swing is definitely toward la book.

In the past 10 years population has increased 35 per cent, while library membership has increased 75 per cent and circulation 80 per cent, which all goes to show that people are reading more in Peterborough than they did a decade ago.

But just what type of books are they reading?

According to the 1953 annual report, children's tales, out of fiction by non-fiction, is being closely pressed by adult fiction for first place. Whereas adult non-fiction, althought a full two laps behind, is slowly closing the gap.

During the 10-year period children's tales has jumped in circulation from 60,615 to 112,197; adult fiction from 66,610 to 112,081; and adult non-fiction from 20,729 to 44,109.

Last year the total book circulation increased by 12,282 to a record high of 268,287. This included 4,563 new books placed on the shelves during 1953. Useful and fine arts editions led the field in popularity followed by literature, biography, travel and history in that order.

An oddity raises its statistical head in the children's department. Of the 112,197 books circulated in this department, only 4,688 children are registered on the borrowing list. This means an average of 25 books read by one child throughout the year. At present there are 12,733 children 16-year-old and under in the city.

This means that 8,045 children are doing one of three things: (1) reading on a more mature level (2) persuing Superman and sundry and other sad sacks of the colored page, or (3) reading nothing at all.

Generally, however, people are becoming more curious. They want to be informed—and learned. Reference and art books, pamphlets, maps, magazines, local historical material, government documents, newspaper clippings and trade directories are all being used by the public to a greater degree.

During 1953 all local newspapers possessed by the library were microfilmed to assure permanent preservation. These papers date from 1845 and include the Peterborough Review from 1854 to 1920 and the Peterborough Examiner from 1911 to the present. A further extension of microfilmed Examiners back to 1858 is planned for this year.

To meet the present demand, the library board has proposed a $100,000 extension of the building to city council. Sketch plans of this renovation have been officially accepted, but the necessary municipal grant has not been sanctioned as yet in view of the fact that further building may be necessary in a few years.

The 1954 Public Library board is composed of chairman, H. I. Bradburn, Walter Dinesen, F. J. Hickey, Donald A. Loucks, Mrs. R. M. Matthews, J. E. R. Munro, J. C. Rutherford, P. D. Windrem, Mayor Norman Graham, and William Graff.

Property committee: chairman, J. C. Rutherford, F. J. Hickey, W. Dinesen, J. E. R. Munro; library committee: chairman, Mrs. Matthews, D. Loucks, P. Windrem, J. C. Rutherford; finance committee: chairman, P. D. Windrem, J. E. R. Munro, D. Loucks and F. J. Hickey.

Boy Suffering From Shock

WAUKEGAN, Ill. (AP) — A 13-year-old boy suffering from shock was confined to a hospital overnight after what deputy sheriffs described as a hazing by six schoolmates who decided to "teach him a lesson."

The boy, Ira Kephart, was carried home by a neighbor who said he found him lying in a roadside ditch unconscious Thursday night.

Although a doctor said the boy suffered no physical injury, deputy sheriffs Herbert Larsen and Edmund van Dien said he screamed when revived and could not supply details of his experience.

Larsen and van Dien said two of Ira's schoolmates told them they and four other youths decided to "teach him a lesson" because they resented what they said was Ira's practice of "picking on" younger children.

The deputies said the boys told of tying a rope around Ira's waist and dragging him onto the ice of Grass lake. They released Ira when he cried, the deputies said the boys related, and "he seemed all right when he walked away."

Last Son Of Settler T. McIndoo Turns 88

On his 88th birthday, Tuesday, Thomas McIndoo of Fairmount, on the 12 concession, Cavan, received many letters of remembrance and good wishes from friends.

Mr. McIndoo is the last surviving members of his father's family of 11 sons and daughters, and with the passing of the years has become a widely respected elder of his community and township. The family was represented among the pioneer settlers of the township, and have been farmers at Fairmount, one mile west of Scott's Corner, for 134 years, arriving from Ireland in 1820.

From his home today, Mr. McIndoo told the Examiner he was deeply grateful for all the kind expressions which came to him on his birthday. Today he was indisposed with a cold, but otherwise has been in good health. He was for many years a director of Peterborough Exhibition.

The McIndoo association with agriculture in the township is being continued by Fred McIndoo, a poultry specialist.

U.K. Has Variety In Millionaires

By ALEX VALENTINE

LONDON (Reuters) — The depleted ranks of Britain's millionaires range from a publicity-shy shipping magnate who dissects rats as a hobby to a publicity-conscious auto-maker who uses a gold-plated limousine to spur sales.

The first is 42-year-old Sir John Ellerman, who says he avoids the limelight because "The less you appear in public the more time you have for working—and that's how money is made."

The second is Sir Bernard Docker, a tubby automobile manufacturer whose fancy car, yacht and exploits at Monte Carlo fit the average Briton's concept of the rich industrialist.

Rounding out the picture of modern British men of wealth are William (Bill) Lyons, who made the world's fastest production car grow out of a motorcycle side-car business, and chain-store king Isaac Wolfson who now is considering opening branch stores in the United States and Canada.

RICHEST MAN

Ellerman is probably Britain's richest business man, but few Britons would recognize him if they saw him. He ducks in and out of his office in London's bomb-scarred financial district by way of the fire escape to dodge photographers.

The basis of his fortune comes from his father, the first Sir John Ellerman, one of the greatest money-makers of his day, who when he died in 1933 left his son $187,000,000 and an annual income of $5,000,000.

Inheritance taxes took more than half the total, but the stock market was low at that time and the young Ellerman, assisted by a few advisers, watched the balance sheets of companies and when business conditions improved rode the prosperity tide upward.

MONEY IN SHIPPING

Most of his money comes from the 120-ship Ellerman Freight and Passenger Line, but he also has interests in breweries, newspapers and real estate in London's fashionable west end.

He and his wife are rarely seen in the public parts of the hotel in Park Lane where they live in a small suite during the week. For the week-ends they retire to a suburban house which is more modest than most in a modest neighborhood.

There, while his wife paints, Ellerman amuses himself either dissecting dead rats or adding another chapter to his three-volume book on British rodents.

In direct contrast with Ellerman is Sir Bernard Docker.

Docker, who makes the Daimler car, once told a friend "The publicity that my gold-plated car has got all over the world has been worth half a million pounds ($1,400,000) to me—and it cost me only ten thousands ($28,000)."

HARD WORKER

Docker works hard at his business and social life. "A business man is never off duty," he once said, "social life is just an extension of business hours."

The Dockers were barred from Monte Carlo after Lady Docker allegedly slapped a waiter there, but they were readmitted when new management took over the casino.

Lady Docker was one of Britain's richest widows when Docker married her in 1949. Her previous husband was salt king Sir William Collins.

Bill Lyons is an auto-maker of a different cut. Making motorcycle sidecars in 1922 when he was only 20, he branched out and began churning out fast S.S. sports cars until Hitler gave the initials S.S. a bad taste. Lyons changed his firm's name to Jaguar and business surged ahead.

"MR. BIG"

Pudgy, 55-year-old Issac Wolfson, the "Mr. Big" of British chain stores, sells one-quarter of all Britain's furniture and his goods go into one-third of the nation's 12,000,000 homes.

His 120 companies and 700 chain stores do $5,600,000 worth of business every week.

Wolfson is the father of instalment buying in Britain — the "never-never" system, the British call it.

Now Wolfson wants to break into the North American market. On a recent trip he looked for 20 stores in Canada and 10 in the United States.

"In the next 15 years," he said, "we will be doing a bigger business in Canada and the United States than at home."

NEW CRACKDOWN IN EAST GERMANY

Question 3 In Car In Slaying

Hope Woman Regains Consciousness To Aid Police In Search

SIMCOE (CP) — Provincial police Friday night picked up three men in an auto with Michigan licence plates for questioning in connection with a brutal axe attack on a 67-year-old service station operator and his wife Tuesday night.

Names of the men picked up were not released.

Bruce Beatty and his wife were found Wednesday morning in their service station at Reston, four miles east of here, unconscious and bleeding from ax wounds. Mr. Beatty died Thursday night and Mrs. Beatty is in critical condition in hospital in London.

HOPE FOR DESCRIPTION

Police are hoping she will regain consciousness and be able to describe her assailants.

Inspector Verne Whitely of the Ontario criminal investigation branch and other officers questioned the men.

It was learned that Beatty complained to police Monday that a man had given him a bad cheque. Investigators are following the possibility that it may have some bearing on the attack.

When the elderly couple was found cash boxes in the station had been emptied and the building ransacked. A blood-stained ax was found on a couch.

PETERBOROUGH TRADES AND LABOR Council Labor School is holding a two-day session of courses today and Sunday. Sixteen Peterborough labor unions are represented in the total of 83 members enrolled. Red Gestapo Agents Put In Factories

Germans Demanding Free Elections, Clapped In Jail

BERLIN (AP)—Jittery Red Gestapo agents moved into major industrial plants in the Russian zone today with orders to grab any German who demands free elections and clap him into jail.

Chief Ernst Wollweber issued the decree to his secret police to smash a wave of unrest that started as soon as Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov stalled the Big Four parley on German unification.

Fearful of another June 17, the East German Communist regime girded its forces to avoid the embarrassment of an outbreak at this critical time.

FALSE RUMORS FLY

Rumors sped thick and fast that the Soviet army, which shattered last June's workers' uprising, had moved again as a precautionary measure. Thorough checking by Western agencies in position to make such checks indicated the rumors were false.

The impression was given that the Russians trust the 250,000 East German Communist regular police, militarized police, and security agents to handle any ruckus for the moment. Molotov told the Big Four Friday measures had been taken to prevent another June 17, which he blamed on "outside powers"—a reference to charges that American and other Western agents had steamed up the rebellion.

SHOUT DOWN RED RALLY

The Wollweber order came after disturbances were reported in factories at Gera, Dresden, Chemnitz, the Leuna chemical works at Merseburg and the coal mines at Oelsnitz. Only Friday, German informants said, a Communist rally at Leuna was shouted down by workers who stamped, whistled and shouted:

"Freie wahlen" (free elections).

Reliable German informants said Eastern secret police swooped into the big radio transmitter area of Koenigswusterhausen outside Berlin and jailed scores of persons who had turned Communist rallies into wrangles by assailing Molotov's blockade of free German unification.

Together with the previous arrests in Dresden, Chemnitz, Oelsnitz and Gera, the total number jailed is estimated now at 200.

West Offers To Drop Principle Of 4-Power Supervision Of All-German Elections

BERLIN (CP)—The Western Big Three, still trying to achieve German unity at the Berlin conference, offered today to drop the principle of four-power supervision of all-German elections. Britain's Anthony Eden offered at today's meeting of the Big Four to extend the Anglo-Soviet treaty beyond its present 20-year life "if Mr. Molotov feels that this would give added security to the Soviet Union." Eden added: "If there are any other ways in which we could help to resolve the Soviet Union's anxiety about its security . . . we should be glad to consider them."

State Secretary Dulles has decided to ask Molotov to use his influence with the Chinese Communists in an effort to break the Panmunjom deadlock on a Korean peace conference.

The American will make his move in closed-door Big Four talks here Monday.

At that time the question of Korea is to be brought up among the foreign ministers in connection with a Soviet proposal for a Big Five conference, including Communist China.

WOULD MAKE DEAL

The United States position, diplomatic informants said, is that the U.S. government will categorically reject any five-power conference which is of such a character as to recognize the Chinese Communist regime as one of the great powers. But it is willing to deal with Red China on specific and limited issues which can only be handled in that way.

PARLEY AT STANDSTILL

The Molotov plan, pegged to the idea of forming a provisional government in which the Communists would have an equal voice with the West Germans, has brought the Big Four parley to a near-standstill.

The three Western ministers have declared that unless the Russian foreign minister is ready to negotiate instead of lecture and denounce, there will be little value in talking further at this meeting about uniting Germany.

The Western ministers have said clearly that they have had enough of it, but Molotov, in his concluding word at Friday night's session, demanded further discussion of Germany's future.

RESTRICTED SESSION

At today's final session of the second week of the conference was given over to the problem.

There was little else on the day's program. By agreement, the four ministers, each with three advisers, will go into restricted session Monday.

There, if concessions are made by either side, they can be made on a give-and-take basis with the results announced afterward.

Already up for discussion in the restricted session are Molotov's proposal for a five-power meeting with Red China and a disarmament conference.

QUEEN'S LIFE THREATENED—Queen Elizabeth II, closely followed by her husband, the Duke of Edinburgh, steps ashore at Sydney, Australia and receives a salute from Field Marshall Sir William Slim, Governor General of Australia. Police reported they are investigating "very seriously" a letter threatening the life of the visiting Queen.

Prime Minister Plans Talks With Officials In Paris

PARIS (AP) — A conference at the French foreign ministry and a meeting with permanent representatives at headquarters of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization will be highlights of the official two-day visit to Paris of Prime Minister St. Laurent of Canada.

The Canadian leader and his party of 10 aides arrive here Sunday afternoon from London They will be greeted at Orly airfield by Premier Joseph Laniel, Maurice Schumann, secretary of state for foreign affairs, and Louis Chistiaens, secretary of state for air.

The prime minister's conference at the Quai d'Orsay will be with Schumann and other ministry officials directing the ministry in the absence of Foreign Minister Bidault, who is attending the Big Four conference in Berlin.

COVER FIELD

Ministry spokesmen said the conversations are expected to cover the whole field of Canadian-French relations, with emphasis on their association in the NATO alliance.

The prime minister will stay at the Canadian embassy here and his official program will begin Monday morning, when he is to place a wreath at the Arc de Triomphe, tomb of the French unknown Soldier.

After calls on the presidents of the national assembly and senate, he will lunch with President Rene Coty at the Elysee Palace and, in the afternoon, make a radio speech to the French people.

He will be the dinner guest Monday night of Dana Wilgress, Canada's NATO representative. Other guests will be the 13 other permanent representatives of the NATO members. A theatre party will follow.

LUNCH WITH LANIEL

After the foreign ministry conference Tuesday, the prime minister will visit a special exhibit of documents relating to Canadian history at the French national archives. He will lunch with Laniel and dine at the embassy.

Ambassador Jean Desy will be host at a reception following the dinner Tuesday night.

The party leaves Wednesday morning for Bonn, next stop on the world tour.

A foreign office spokesman said France awaits the visit "with the greatest satisfaction," and added that France and Canada, "a country where 30 per cent of the population is of French origin," are linked by tight and cordial bonds.

SIGNS VISITORS BOOK

In London today, St. Laurent fulfilled the first official engagement of his round-the-world tour by calling at Clarence house and signing the visitors' book.

This is a usual courtesy gesture. Princess Margaret and the Queen Mother Elizabeth are not in residence, being at Sandringham, Norfolk.

The prime minister later lunched with Prime Minister Churchill at the British premier's official residence, 10 Downing Street. Three cabinet ministers, R. A. Butler, chancellor of the exchequer, Labor Minister Sir Walter Monckton and Viscount Swinton, secretary of state for Commonwealth relations, were other guests.

WELCOMED PRIME MINISTER

Lord Swinton, who plans to visit Canada this fall, welcomed the Canadian prime minister on behalf of the British government when he arrived at London airport Friday night on the first leg of his six-week tour.

Later today the prime minister was scheduled to take tea with Princess Alice, Countess of Athlone, at Kensington palace. The Athlones, who celebrate their golden wedding anniversary Wednesday, planned to hold a reception next week with 200 guests but it was cancelled because of the illness of the 80-year-old Earl of Athlone, wartime governor-general of Canada, who is recovering from influenza.

Labor Federation Lashes At Graft Reaffirms Support of CCF

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—The Ontario Federation of Labor Friday took its first step in its political campaign for the next provincial election, which it considers may possibly come this year. The 200,000-member labor group, largest affiliate of the Canadian Congress of Labor, decided in a vigorous debate at its annual convention to call a special convention following the announcement of the election date.

The special conference will map details for the federation to follow in support of candidates for the CCF party, which it reaffirmed as its political arm. The federation will concentrate all its energies in the political field when the election is called.

The debate and an address earlier in the day by Ontario CCF leader Donald C. MacDonald emphasized the importance the alleged irregularities in the province's highways branch at Fort William may play as a campaign issue.

"ELECTION BRIBE"

Mr. MacDonald charged the provincial government has set up a $53,000,000 highway reserve fund as a "granddaddy of all pre-election bribes."

"There is no doubt about it that this nest-egg of $53,000,000, in addition to normal highway expenditures of $100,000,000, is being salted away for a pre-election display of government generosity," he said.

Bert Gargrave, Toronto steel union representative, said labor must focus "the political searchlight on graft and corruption that's been going on." He claimed "political contractors have taken millions of dollars out of the pockets of the people of Ontario."

The 400 delegates also discussed the proposed changes in the Ontario election act. They voiced opposition to changes providing for the permanent appointment of returning officers and the posting of a $200 deposit from candidates for provincial office.

They were described as a departure from democratic practice and an attempt to limit the candidature of working people. Mr. MacDonald in his address also opposed both measures.

HOUSING PROGRAM

The federal government's new housing legislation was also critized by the federation. The increase in interest rates and provisions for insurance costs in the housing bill were described as "class legislation" of a sinister kind."

The federation, charging that the housing scheme was a faint shadow of what was needed, outlined a four-point program of its own.

33 Flee Fire, Termed Arson

TORONTO (CP) — Fire authorities today termed "definitely arson" a fire which began in a vacant Jarvis street house early today and forced 33 persons — including 24 children — to flee from an adjoining rooming house.

At least one family of six were led to safety by police from the smoke-filled third floor. Constables Stan Raike and George Bloomer said they found the family on the floor, holding handkerchiefs over their faces.

"Another few moments and they would have been gone," police said.

Platoon chief Percy Taylor, terming the fire "definitely arson" said many residents of the rooming house escaped death by asphyxiation only because of the quick action of an unidentified passerby who turned in an alarm.

Police, believing the fire was started by transients in an adjoining house ordered vacant a week ago, opened an investigation.

5 Men Remanded In Highway Inquiry

FORT WILLIAM (CP) — Five suspended Ontario department of highways employees charged with irregularities in operation of the department's Fort William division today were remanded to March 19 for preliminary hearing.

Bail of $1,000 each was continued.

The five are A. M. Mills, 60, of Port Arthur, former division engineer in Fort William, charged with "authorizing payment for work not done" and of misrepresenting the amount of work actually performed under highway contracts; and Douglas T. Cutting, 41, Fort William, Donald T. Gandier, 30, Fort William; Thomas L. Ayres, 58, of Guelph, and Graham W. Turner, 29, of Cochrane, Ont.

The latter four are charged with conspiring together and with one another to defraud the government.

1953 Election Cost Canada $5,600,000

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's 1953 general election cost a record $5,600,000.

The figure was contained in annual government estimates tabled Friday in the Commons. It compares with $4,250,000 for the 1949 general election.

Up to the end of 1953, $5,270,188 had been spent on the election. Other bills to be cleaned up by the end of the fiscal year March 31 were calculated at $329,812.

Main reason for the higher cost was an increase of 500,000 in the size of the electorate between contests. Also, Parliament had provided higher pay for the army of election officials running the 55,000 polls.

Doctor Says Pope Weaker

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Pius shows symptoms of "a very slight improvement" but "the state of general weakness persists," his physician reported today.

Prof. Riccardo Galeazzi-Lisi said the Pope passed "a moderately fair" night.

Later this morning the Vatican press office issued a statement saying the Pope had passed a "tranquil" night. It added that improvement noted late Friday night in his condition was "maintained also this morning."

The 77-year-old spiritual leader of the world's Roman Catholics lay pale and wan in his simple wooden bed in the apostolic palace, his light fever and symptoms of gastritis that developed Jan. 25 still an unsolved problem to Galeazzi-Lisi and two other physicians.

The others, called in Friday, are Dr. Paul Niehans, a Swiss specialist in endoctrinology and urinalysis, and Dr. Cesare Frugoni, a noted Italian general practitioner.

Galeazzi-Lisi, who issued a bulletin Friday on the Pope's situation, went to bed for the night after telling reporters at 10 p.m. he had nothing to add to it. He made the later comment after a visit today.

Mexican 'Quake Wrecks Four Towns, Many Killed

MEXICO CITY (AP)—A strong earthquake wrecked four towns in the tropical, coffee-growing Mexican state of Chiapas Friday, killed many persons and spread damage and terror over an area 50 miles in diameter, a dispatch from Tuxla Guitierrez said today. Mercy planes were reported flying doctors, nurses, medicines and other supplies to the stricken zone, in the rugged jungle country centre 70 miles northeast of Tuxla Guitierrez, the capital, and about 100 miles west of the Guatemalan frontier.

Communications were disrupted. First word to reach Mexico City came in a delayed telegram from a newspaper correspondent in the state capital. He offered no estimate of casualties or damage, but said the towns of Yajalon, Tita, Petalcingo and Chilon were hard hit by the quake and hillsides crumbled.

Seismographs in New York, Boston, Cleveland, Pasadena and elsewhere in the United States had recorded a tremor at about 10:24 a.m. EST Friday.

Plane In Bay, 13 Men Rescued

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—A big United States Air Force C-121 "flying radar station" crashed in fogbound San Francisco bay Friday night and a radar-guided crash boat rescued all 13 aboard.

Two of the men were reported injured, one severely.

The rescue boat, unable to return to nearby Hamilton air force base because of heavy fog, landed at Fort Baker near the northern end of the Golden Gate bridge.

The four-engined Super-Constellation, flying out of McClellan field near Sacramento, plunged into the bay about two miles from the end of the Hamilton runway as it attempted a radar landing.

The plane had been on a training mission off the Pacific Coast and dense fog prevented its return to McClellan field. It was diverted to Hamilton because of better blind landing facilities.

The crash boat, groping in the bay for survivors, was led to the plane wreckage by ground radar facilities from Hamilton.

Churches Offer Prayer For Pope

TORONTO (CP) — The Roman Catholic churches throughout Canada will offer special prayers at all masses Sunday for the recovery of Pope Pius, an official of the archbishop's palace here said today.

Such prayers will be requested in Canada's 60 Roman Catholic dioceses.

British churches will say prayers also, it was announced today in London.

Has Nothing To Say

Hvasta Arrives In U.S. After 5 Years Red Prisoner

NEW YORK (AP)—John Hvasta came home to his family today after five years as a prisoner and fugitive in Communist Czechoslovakia.

His family and Hillside, N. J., dignitaries met the Czech-born American at New York's Idlewild airport and whisked him to Union, New Jersey for a family breakfast at a restaurant.

But first John went to his modest two-family home in Hillside with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Hvasta, and his brother, Stephen, to change clothes.

FLEES FROM PRESS

The 26-year-old navy veteran ducked a formal press conference at the airport and called tensely to his brother, "Let's go home. Let's get away. Where's the exit?"

His mother tearfully hugged and kissed her son while other members of his family and officials from his home town crowded around to welcome the young man.

Hvasta, wearing a loose blue suit, appeared pale.

To reporters, he said:

"I'm glad to be home. Anybody that's been in the situation I have been in really knows what it feels like to be home."

But he declined to give any details of his imprisonment on espionage charges while studying in Czechoslovakia and his subsequent escape, his game of hide and seek with the police and his refuge in the American embassy.

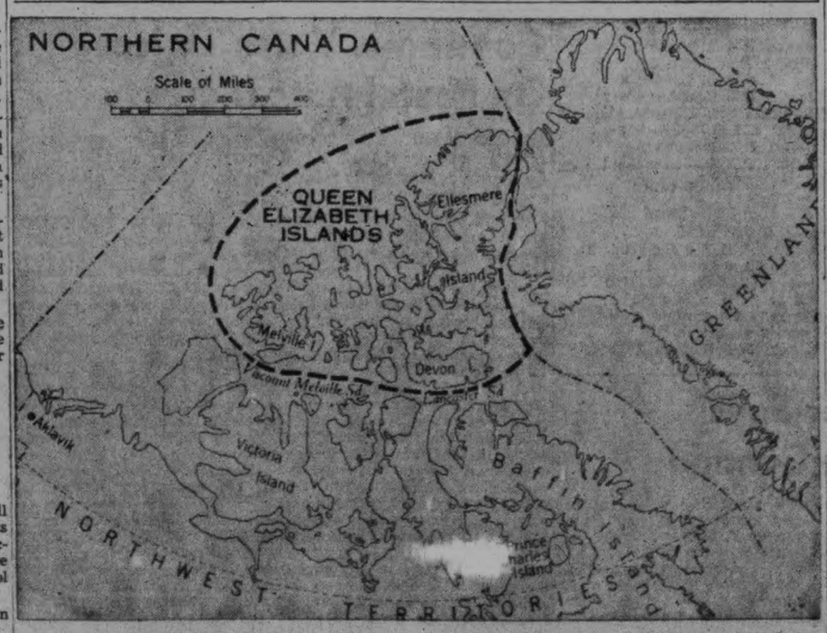
Have A-Pilot Plants Within Five Years

EDMONTON (CP)—Canada will have atomic pilot power plants within five years, Dr. C. J. Mackenzie of Ottawa, chairman of the Dominion's atomic energy control board, said Friday.

Initial operations would be on a small scale.

Dr. Mackenzie, in an interview, predicted the first atomic power plant would be in Ontario, which was "running out of hydro power."

Even with the St. Lawrence power project Ontario would have no power surplus, he said.



NAMED FOR QUEEN—The northernmost group of Arctic islands in Canada, shown in the dotted circle, has been named the Queen Elizabeth islands. Northern Affairs Minister Lesage announced in the Commons that the Queen has allowed her name to be given to the northern half of the Canadian Arctic archipelago. The islands include some 160,000 square miles of territory inhabited by fewer than 200 persons scattered among seven tiny communities.

Flip Of A Coin Decides Election

STIRLING — This village elected R. E. Fox public school trustee with the flip of a coin. A recount of ballots cast in the village's recent election held before Judge J. C. Anderson of Belleville, confirmed the official count on election night giving Dr. E. A. Carleton and R. E. Fox 354 votes each.

Following the recount, village clerk, Fred Mallory, decided to flip a coin to decide the winner. He chose a spot on the main street for the coin tossing and with several hundred villagers looking on, tossed with heads for Dr. Carleton and tails for Mr. Fox. When tails turned up, the returning officer cast the tie breaking vote in Mr. Fox's favor.

Quebec Income Tax Likely 12 Per Cent

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Duplessis Friday night fixed the amount of a proposed provincial income tax at "11 or 12 per cent" of the federal levy and said details of the bill probably would be made known next Tuesday.

The figure was slightly lower than the original estimate of 15 per cent. At the same time, however, he announced lowering of the exemption granted for each child from $400 to $150.

Hillary To Receive Gift From Canada

OTTAWA (CP) — Sir Edmund Hillary, who scaled Mount Everest last year, will receive a memento of that famous climb when he visits Ottawa Monday.

A Canadian-made sleeping bag, the same kind used on the Mount Everest expedition, will be presented by the Canadian government to the New Zealand climber.

Don't Expect Taxes To Change Much In Coming Year

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's federal spending is headed for a peacetime high, possibly an all-time record, but taxes are not likely to change much. The country won't know about tax changes until Finance Minister Abbott's budget comes down, likely in March, but it got a clue Friday to the general tax level. The indication was that the general tax scale won't be hoisted, to any great extent, though individual taxes might be juggled to give the government the $4,491,751,000 it expects now to spend in the 1954-55 fiscal year.

This figure was just 1.3 per cent, or $58,000,000, more than the estimated total for the 1953-54 year to date.

The 1953-54 amount to date, which likely will be swelled by supplementary estimates at the March 31 end of the current fiscal year, is $4,333,466,000.

Non-budget expenses of the federal government that are not included in the estimates would boost government disbursements to $4,895,000,000. These are spendings for old age security, loans and investments by the government.

COULD GO HIGHER

With these and any substantial supplementary estimates, which customarily come in through the fiscal year, the total easily could go beyond $5,000,000,000 and the peak of $5,322,000,000 in the wartime year of 1943-44.

The estimates indicate a slowdown in defence expenditures because the governments feels assigned requirements have been met.

Direct military expenditures are being slashed by $92,000,000. Federal outlays on defence production also are being reduced. There is a small cut, too, in civil defence spending. The total of reductions in defence spending in various departments is $126,000,000.

Trenton Council Fires Assessor

TRENTON—Town assessor Charles Rogerson has been dismissed by order of council here after a majority of councillors decided he was incompetent, and that his services were no longer required.

This is the latest development in a conflict over assessment methods which has split the town into two camps

Last year's council decided to reassess the municipality, using the Provincial Government's manual as a 'guide' After the assessment notices had been sent out, the court of revision was swamped by appeals. The manual became an election issue and, when the 1954 council took over, members voted in favor of discarding the manual and reverting to an amended version of the 1952 assessment roll

Mr. Rogerson was the man responsible for interpreting and applying the manual during last year's reassessment. Most councillors felt that he had erred in a large number of cases, and that, as a result, an industry which was to have located here, went elsewhere

Even council was undecided on the issue, however, with Councillors, James MacDonald and Robert Smithrim, who were in office when the manual was adopted last year, defending the new assessment

The remaining four councillors, however, alleged that the system was out of touch with reality.

'Loafing Barn' Interests Farm Visitors

OTTAWA (CP) — Thirty-seven farmers from Oxford county returned to their homes Friday night after a whirlwind flying junket here to see modern farming methods in eastern Ontario.

The farmers arrived in Ottawa early Friday, visited a number of district farms, the central experimental farm and had dinner in the parliamentary restaurant as guest of Wallace Nesbitt, Progressive Conservative member of Parliament for Oxford, before returning by air to their homes.

Main purpose of the visit was to view the modern "loafing barn" system of cattle management.

HANDLE MORE CATTLE

This system allows one man to look after twice as many cattle as under the convention stanchion arrangement. It consists of an open shed where the cattle sleep, an exercise yard, a feeding yard where cattle work their way into a hay mow, and the milking parlor where the cattle are machine milked in a relay system, from three to five at a time.

This type of cattle housing, in addition to saving labor, can be erected at about half the cost of the old tie-up system.

Agricultural officials say the system has increased production, reduced disease to the vanishing point, and resulted in better milk.

Willard MacKay, president of the Oxford Crop Improvement Association, headed the group of visitors. He said Carleton county farmers are ahead of his county in adopting the new method.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG (CP)—Rye displayed the firmest tone as grain prices again held to a narrow range in quiet trading Friday on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange.

Highlight at the exchange, however, was trade reports of fairly good export business, with Japan taking barley, wheat and flax, and the United Kingdom buying parcel lots of wheat. In the pit, best activity was in oats, where American interests and domestic shippers made purchases. Prices for Class 2 wheat durums dropped three cents. All other top grades of Class 2, IWA and domestic wheat declined one-eighth.

Big Freeze Spoils U.K. Sport Program

LONDON (AP)—The big freeze cut down Britain's big Saturday sports program today.

The Doncaster race meeting, including the great Yorkshire Handicap steeplechase, was cancelled because of frozen ground. So were other meetings scheduled for Hurst Park and Sedgefield.

Six soccer games were called off. Practically all Rugby League and Rugby Union fixtures were postponed.

Fighting Yale Men

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP)—A city court judge who remarked that he was a Yale man himself rejected Friday a plea for leniency for eight of 10 Yale students arrested Jan. 18 when police broke up a snow ball battle on one of New Haven's principal streets. He fined each of them $20 for breach of the peace. One student was acquitted and the case of another, who did not appear, was put off until Feb. 11.

Negative Policy Said Mistake

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—Davis Lewis, vice-chairman of the CCF party, said Friday night the Western world is "disastrously wrong pursuing a negative international policy devoted exclusively to anti-communism."

Mr. Lewis, told a dinner meeting of the Ontario Federation of Labor at its annual convention that the "Western world's negative policy has made heroes of the McCarthys, the Duplessis and other scum of the democratic brew."

He emphasized it would be a terrible mistake for anyone to equate Communism's ruthless tyranny with the worst in the capitalist system of the United States.

But he warned that a negative policy in international affairs would fail, and asserted that the battle against the evil of communism must be fought on the economic front as well as on the front of military preparedness."

CORRESPONDENT'S ACCOUNT

The correspondent's account gave this picture:

Yajalon suffered most. Markets and other buildings in that town of 2,000 were levelled.

Petalcingo, population 1,500, was extensively damaged. Many were killed and hundreds injured.

In Chilon, population 600, 24 houses were destroyed and 90 per cent of the rest were badly damaged. The villagers, fearful that other quakes would follow, fled.

The town of Tila, population 1,615, was reported "virtually destroyed."

Stores were either wrecked or abandoned in all four towns, indicating that in some cases food will be required among the relief supplies.

SMALL MARKET

Fowl and eggs were the two major items for sale at a very small farmer's market today. Chickens and ducks were selling at 50 cents a pound and eggs ranged in price from 45 cents to 55 cents a dozen depending on size. One display of potted flowers added color to an otherwise quiet scene.

Thief Scoops Up $600 In Store

STRATFORD (CP) — A thief walked into a hardware store here Friday and, while the clerk was filling an order, scooped up $600 in cash from a safe and walked out.

Police have a good description of the man.

Store owner A. Waldie told police that the man entered the store, asked for a piece of glass which had to be cut to size and while the order was being filled, calmly took the cash out of a wall safe and left.

Post Mortem May Give Clue

LITTLE CURRENT, Ont. (CP)—Ontario provincial police at Sudbury headquarters are today awaiting the results of a post mortem that may give a clue to the mysterious death of a pulp cutter found lying in a pool of his own blood in his cabin near here Friday.

John H. Debassigi, 50, was found by his camp mate, a cut on the left cheek and blood around the mouth and nose, hinting at internal hemorrhage.

A trail of blood led for a half-mile from a bush road into the camp.

Alex Chabini, who bunked with the middle - aged bachelor, told police he returned home from a Thursday night party and found his partner on the floor.

Little Current is on Manitoulin island.

Family Burned Out Send Plea For Help

SUDBURY (CP) — A plea for help from Sultan, on the main line of the Canadian Pacific Railway south of Chapleau brought prompt aid for a family made destitute by a fire which destroyed their home Friday.

The Red Cross and Children's Aid societies have shipped large cartons of clothing, bedding and other articles to Mrs. Patrick Goulet and her four sons who range in age from one year to six.

Job Slump In U.S. Levels Off

Predict Recovery In Production During Spring

WASHINGTON (AP) — Evidence gathered by the congressional economic committee suggests that the slump in jobs and production in the United States "has begun to level off" and will turn into a recovery this spring.

The committee, weighing the anti-depression program President Eisenhower presented to Congress in his economic report last month, took testimony from the heads of nine government economic and statistical agencies this week.

Their findings, Representative Jesse P. Wolcott (Rep. Mich.), committee chairman, said in an interview, point to a seasonal upturn in hiring and business activity in the early spring, followed by a possibly substantial economic revival in the fall.

Eisenhower advised Americans Friday night to ignore "prophets of gloom" and promised them a "big brother partner in the federal government."

ADDRESSES DINNER

Addressing a cheering throng of more than 6,500 at a Washington Republican dinner, Eisenhower sailed into Democratic predictions of hard times, saying "the United States doesn't need to fall."

He criticized former president Truman, who said the country now is in a recession.

Addressing a meeting of Americans for Democratic Action in New York, Truman said "the recession that started on the farms last spring has already spread to the city streets—and a depression would do likewise." He scoffed at the "miracles" he said were promised by the Republican party.

"I have been watching and waiting for those miracles to happen that we were promised back in 1952. But there is something wrong somewhere. There seems to be a slight delay in the miracle business."

IT'S MAGIC — A clever photographer thought it was unfair for the rest of the country to shiver while residents of Florida were enjoying the sunshine, so he did something about it. He brought "snow" to Miami Beach by using infra-red film, which makes it look like a winter scene despite the people in swimsuits.

Use Boiled Mouse To Flavor Meals At Survival School

CAMBRIDGE BAY, N.W.T. (CP) The meals sometimes consist of concentrated meat bar and boiled mouse, flavored with reindeer moss and pussy-willow freshly gathered from the stomach of a newly-killed caribou.

But if the food is hot, men enjoy it when they are 150 miles north of the arctic circle and it's 50 below zero outside the igloo. That's the blizzard-blown spot five miles from here—about 1,200 miles north of Edmonton — where the RCAF Survival Training School holds its courses.

The camps, lasting about a week for each group, teach airmen how to survive if they are forced down on a flight over the frozen wastes. The school finds the best way to do this is to "crash-land" a group into the snowy wilderness and let them get first-hand experience.

MINIMUM AIDS

All equipment is kept to a minimum. Food supplies comprise scientifically - devised rations, including concentrated meat bars about the size of a candy stick and vitamin pills. Plenty of warmth-producing sugars and fats are supplied, together with a few other items. To enlarge their larder the men must hunt and fish.

A dainty morsel for chilled appetites is boiled lemming, a tailless rodent resembling the field-mouse, which is hunted by hand. Parts of the ptarmigan bird go well, too.

A caribou is a fine prize for it can provide the whole main course of a meal, both meat and "vegetables."

The caribou is a vegetarian and can sniff out patches of green edibles bared from their snowy mantle by the winds. All the men have to do is cut open the animal's abdomen, extract the contents, put them in a boiling pot and soon steaming delicacies of moss, lichens, pussy-willow and berries are served.

EAGER FISH

Fish will snap at anything bright on the end of a line. Only trouble is there's six feet or more of ice to chisel through before water level is reached. Nets can also be set under the ice.

The fliers' task at the camp, however, is not just to gather food. They build their own igloos and other types of shelter. Living in a crashed plane would be much colder than in a snow shelter.

Digging trenches in the snow keeps trainees warm as well as teaching them the art of attracting a search-plane. The trenches cast shadows across the white "desert" and with the shovelled snow shaped into a cross nearby, can be seen for many miles.

A heliograph — flashing mirror signal—is also used. Another way for crashed airmen to make their presence known is to tint their igloos with orange flares.

WARM CLOTHING

The men's outer garb is a nylon synthetic "caribou skin" developed by Sqdn.-Ldr. Scott Alexander, the survival school's commanding officer. Warm woollen clothing is worn underneath.

As a matter of routine, prevention and cure of frost-bite is taught. There have been occasional cases of frost-bite but no serious mishaps.

Equipment includes a portable primus stove, a saw and an axe. Cooking is done outside, because inside it would freeze the igloos' "warm" snow walls to ice.

RCAF officials say chief purpose of the courses is to overcome fear of cold. First of the 16 weekly courses planned by the school this winter and spring started Feb. 1 with a planeload of 35 RCAF and five USAAF men as pupils.

Five instructors — including two Eskimos—are in charge. The school's motto is "survival or sudden death."

Commons Votes Twice On Postal Rate Increase

Ottawa (CP)—The government's plan to increase postal rates by one cent April 1 has cleared another hurdle. The Commons Friday night voted twice on the bill, once to defeat a CCF attempt to kill it and a second time to defeat a combined opposition attempt to prevent it receiving approval in principle.

For both votes, the Progressive Conservative, CCF and Social Credit members joined against the government but were defeated by 76 to 59 and 76 to 58.

The Commons begins detailed study of the bill Monday, it must then receive third reading before being sent to the Senate.

The increase would bring the cost of a one-ounce letter to five cents from four for mailings between postal districts and to four cents from three for mailings within a postal district. Extra ounces would cost another cent each.

When these rates go into effect, the government also proposes to eliminate the seven-cent domestic airmail rate and carry all first-class mail by air where that speeds service.

The postal debate was resumed after Finance Minister Abbott tabled his estimates of expenditure for 1954-55 calling for record peacetime spending of $4,491,751,000.

The two votes Friday night were the latest in a series since the government first announced its postal plans last December. Thursday, a CCF attempt to have the bill withdrawn and a parliamentary committee established to investigate the department was defeated.

In proposing his motion to kill the bill, CCF leader Coldwell again suggested formation of a parliamentary committee to make a "thorough" inquiry into the department.

Postmaster-General Cote, closing the debate, said that putting an end to free postal service for government departments as a means to meet the expected $13,500,000 deficit this year would not change the picture. That was taking money from one pocket and putting it into another.

He doubted whether closing postal savings accounts would save the $377,000 cost of operating them. The $37,000,000 on deposit was available to the government which might otherwise have to float bank loans costing in turn almost as much as operation of the postal savings accounts.

Prime Minister Says 2 Farewells To Canada

GOOSE BAY (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent said two farewells to Canada when he set out Thursday on his world tour.

His first au revoir was at Rockcliffe airport where a crowd of government officials, members of Parliament, senators and tour party relatives waved the prime minister's big C-5 away.

The second farewell was at the great remote air base at Goose Bay, the home of 500 Canadian service men and their families.

Group Capt. Frank Ball of St. Thomas and Mrs. Ball were the prime minister's host and hostess during his overnight stay at the international base.

Prime Minister St. Laurent and members of his party were dined at Goose Bay's RCAF mess whose personnel put on a six-course dinner Montreal's best restaurant would have been proud of.

The prime minister's farewell to the Canadians at Goose Bay station followed a brief address of welcome and goodbye by Group Capt. Ball who is responsible for the Canadian half of the base shared with the United States.

Ohio, Mississippi River Trips On Comfortable Steamer Recall Mark Twain Days

One of the loveliest river trips in the United States, not too well known to Canadians, is the charming voyage by the SS Delta Queen down the Ohio, Mississippi and Tennessee rivers with constantly changing landscape. While equipped with every comfort, the steamship still retains the outward appearance of an old river steamer, so popular in bygone days.

From early April until late October there is a 20-day cruise from Cincinnati, Ohio to New Orleans, La. Or from the latter part of June to September there is a 7-day cruise through the Kentucky lake area.

Travellers can put themselves in the shoes of Tom Sawyer and Huck Finn when they stop to visit the quiet river towns. They can thrill at the sight of Cave-in-Rock where the pirates used to hold their rendezvous. It is the same place where Mark Twain used to draw inspiration for his Mississippi tales.

What romantic stories these rivers could tell of Evangeline's tragic search for her lover; of the growth and crowning of King Cotton; great balls at Natchez and magnolia blossoms in the shadow of great white-pillared homes.

The ship passes old cotton plantations and passengers can wave to the inhabitants of the shanty boats who make the river their home. There are picturesque settlements of Creoles and Acadians between Baton Rouge and New Orleans.

Some of the interesting things included in the 20-day cruise are visits to Louisville, Ky.; Memphis, Tenn.; stop at Natchez with a tour of the Southern Mansions; cruise through the Lower Mississippi known as the Acadian Coast from Longfellow's poem "Evangeline"; stop at Oak Allee plantation; three days in New Orleans at which point the ship is the passenger's hotel; on to Baton Rouge, etc. On the return trip the ship glides past Clifty Falls State Park and through an area known as the "Switzerland of America."

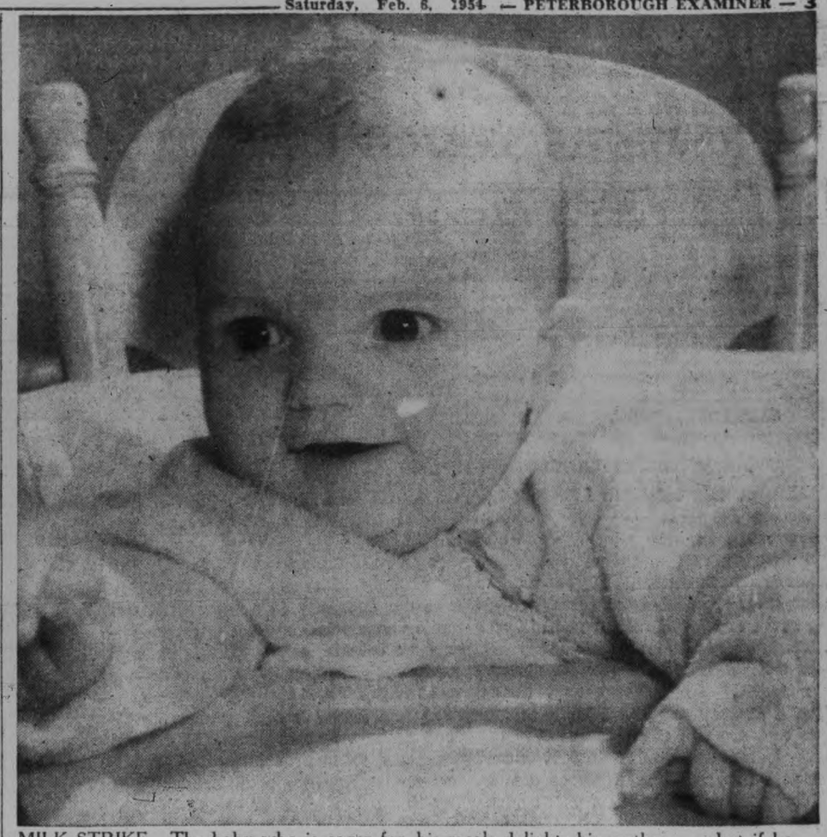
The seven-day Kentucky lake cruises take the tourist down the Ohio and up the Tennessee rivers. Kentucky lake is the largest man-made lake in the world with 2,000 miles of shoreline. The boat leaving Cincinnati visits Louisville, Ky.; Evansville, Ind.; passes Cave-in-Rock. To reach the Kentucky lake, the ship goes through the gigantic Kentucky lock and dam. On the return it too passes through the "Switzerland of America."

STEAMER AIR CONDITIONED

The steamer is air conditioned or heated as the weather demands and features delicious southern cooking. There is a cocktail lounge and dress is informal. There is a ship's orchestra for all cruises to play for the passengers' entertainment and for dancing each evening in the main dining room. Many traditional dances reminiscent of yesterday's river flatboats and floating palaces, also are enjoyed.

Prices for the 20-day cruise range from $275 for cabin deck room without bath to $450 for a deluxe bedroom. These fares have an additional 15% federal tax. The Kentucky lake cruises range from $95 for a room without bath to $150 for deluxe bedrooms.

For a leisurely, luxurious visit to the friendly, traditional southland, the river cruises offer travellers something very different from the ordinary vacation trip.



MILK STRIKE—The baby who is eager for his meals delights his mother . . . but if he goes on a "milk strike," what can she do?

For Parents Only

Refusing To Drink Milk Can Be Perplexing Problem

By NANCY CLEAVER

"Grandma was immediately relieved when the milk strike was over . . . I'm glad she doesn't know Junior balks about drinking up his milk! She would be worried if she saw how often his milk consumption falls short of a quart a day . . . But the more I coax, scold or threaten, the more stubborn he becomes! What will I do with him?" Mrs. Jones asked wearily.

Refusing to drink milk can be a very perplexing problem. How should a mother cope with it? She should try to discover why Johnny does not want to drink his milk and in the future avoid this cause, if possible. Perhaps mother has been too insistent on his drinking milk and here is one place Johnny can defy her successfully.

Johnny may be feeling a bit neglected because Mother has been busy with other duties. He has discovered that refusing milk is a sure way to focus Mother's attention on him. Perhaps Mother has been expecting Johnny to drink more milk than he can naturally desire after a hearty meal. Johnny may not be feeling very well and his appetite is affected. Or he may have heard father or some other adult expressing a dislike for milk.

ALL INEFFECTIVE

Johnny's mother has discovered that coaxing, scolding and threatening are equally ineffective. The right way for Mrs. Jones to handle this situation is to ignore it. At the same time she can include as much milk as possible in the foods she is preparing. Gradually Johnny will likely forget he is on strike.

The best teaching is by example. Mother and Johnny can enjoy milk together, perhaps disguised in an egg-nog, a milk shake, a chocolate drink or cocoa. Thus Johnny will have his daily milk quota, and in time will likely want plain milk too.

Mothers sometimes make the mistake of thinking of milk only as a drink, and not as a food. They forget that part of a child's "quart a day" should be used in other ways than as a fluid—in his cereal, in soup, with vegetables such as mashed potatoes, in custards, puddings, junket and ice cream. Evaporated, dried and condensed milk may be used in cooking and baking.

Because milk is precious, not a drop should be wasted. If it has turned sour, there are many recipes for muffins, pancakes, etc., which use it. Mother can follow her cook book's directions and produce cottage cheese.

Milk must have good home care because it is among the most perishable of foods. Pasteurized milk should be purchased from a reliable dairy. The bottle should be washed off and wiped dry before opening. Never leave milk standing on the doorstep (especially if the sun falls there) or open in a room. The place for milk is in the coldest place in the refrigerator, ice box or cooler. Mothers in rural areas and families on vacation, may find it necessary to carry out the home pasteurizing method of boiling milk for three minutes, chilling quickly and keeping it cold and covered.

Milk should be sipped slowly. It should never be gulped down quickly to quench thirst on a hot day. When this happens, the gastric juice of the stomach is apt to form milk curds which are tough. These are difficult to digest. Children love drinking through a straw. Mother can make a little game of taking small sips and pausing between them. A child likes his own special mug.

As a parent you are likely convinced that milk is essential for good health—the proteins build bone and muscle and repair the body's wear and tear, the fats and sugar give heat and energy, the calcium, phosphorus, lime and other mineral salts help make bones and teeth, blood and tissue. The water is used by the body to carry off waste.

But in your very enthusiasm for milk, "the perfect food," don't force a child to drink a certain quantity with every meal. The more pressure the child feels, the more likely he is to oppose you. By using milk in preparing food, by example and by employing tact and imagination, avoid that "Milk Strike"!

Business Women Hold Annual International Night

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS)—The Business and Professional Women's Club of Campbellford were hosts Thursday night to club members from Cobourg, Belleville and Peterborough for the annual observance of International Night.

Eve Spencer, president of the Campbellford club, presided for the meeting. Following a short business period, Miss Norma Arkles of Bellevile, regional advisor of District No. 5, with the assistance of Mrs. Spencer and Mrs. Simone McFadden, editor of the club paper, "The Ontario Messenger", conducted a candle-light ceremony.

Originated by Lena Phillips, founder-president of the International Federation, Miss Arkles commented, it is now the custom of B & P women to meet together each February as members of the International Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, of which the Campbellford club is a member.

All Canadian clubs, as well as clubs in other lands, meet to commorate International Week, when the members bring to mind their colleagues throughout the world who, as members of their own Federation, are working to achieve their common aims. Since the organization of the federation, women in many countries meet in convention as sisters in a common world. The federation has more than a quarter million members in 20 countries.

Following the candle-light ceremony, Miss Arkles showed a number of slides of the United Nations and points of interest in the United States and Canada.

Mrs. Margaret Davey won a gift that was raffled off during the evening.

At the close of the evening, Miss Jean Morrison thanked Miss Arkles, and presented her with a gift from the Campbellford club.

Couple Get $1,750 In Son's Auto Death

COBOURG (ENS) — Judgment for the plaintiffs for $1,750 and costs has been handed down by Judge M. A. Miller here in the action brought by Mr. and Mrs. John Lavis, of Cobourg, against Keith G. Geeza, of Trenton.

The plaintiffs sued as a result of the death of their son in November, 1952, when struck by defendant's truck on Highway 2 between Port Hope and Cobourg.

The deceased, Joseph Lavis, was a taxi driver and at seven p.m. on November 14, 1952, he was crossing the highway to where he had parked his car when he was struck by the Geeza vehicle. He was carried 126 feet and died from a fractured skull. Plaintiffs sued for $25,000.

Judge Miller, in his decision, pointed out that the driver of a vehicle following behind Geeza saw Lavis crossing the highway while Geeza didn't see the taxi driver until he was only about eight feet from him. He found that he was travelling at the very limit of his ability to stop within the range of his vision. Judge Miller also found that the defendant was negligent in that he drove on low beam when there was no necessity for him to do so.

Toronto Man Receives Year For Stealing

COBOURG (ENS)—Wilfred S. Wood, of Toronto, was sentenced to concurrent terms totalling 12 months' determinate and six indeterminate on several charges of theft in Darlington township on Friday. The sentence dates back to December 29 of last year.

Several remands had been granted as Wood wished to get his medical file from the army, from which he had been discharged, but final word from the Department of veterans' affairs was that the file could not be released and there was nothing that could be rendered of assistance to him. Wood was released some time ago from Kingston penitentiary.

Old Stunt Still Works Cobourg Men Fleeced

COBOURG (ENS) — A dairy and a grocery store were fleeced out of about $40 this week by a man garbed in overalls and carrying some carpentry tools. Routine followed was to go into the store with a cheque for an amount under $25 in each instance, the cheque signed with the name of a local doctor. In both cases the businessmen thought that the cheque was genuine, in view of the fact that the man said he had just finished some carpentry work for the doctor. It was an old stunt dressed up a little differently and it worked.

Campbellford PUC May Meet With HEPC

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS) — The Campbellford Public Utilities Commission met Thursday night when plans were discussed for a meeting with officials of the HEPC.

A meeting with Hydro will be held February 10, when the group will discuss a possible contract, under which the town might purchase power from the HEPC.

Campbellford's overtaxed power house cannot keep up with the demand and is often unable to carry the peak loads during the early evening. What arrangements will be made is still a question.

Mode of Living Deadly Vagrant Goes To Jail

COBOURG (ENS) — Garnet Stillman of Brighton township, who has been spending the winter nights in a barn, was sent to jail for three months when he appeared on a vagrancy charge Friday. Stillman, who is in his sixties, couldn't make up his mind whether to go to the Countie's home or the jail.

"Take your pick," said Magistrate R. B. Baxter. "Certainly you can't go back to the life you have been living. It is not sanitary and besides you are apt to freeze to death some night."

Stillman pondered and then asked if he could work out at the Counties home and the magistrate replied that he could work on the Counties home farm. However Stillman apparently had in mind the prospect of working and making extra money. He pondered some more while the court waited.

"If I go up there (Counties Home) how long do I have to stay?" was his next question. The magistrate replied that he would likely have to stay there the rest of his life. Stillman frowned his disapproval.

"I guess if you can't make up you own mind, I'll have to do it for you. Three months in jail," decided the magistrate.

Appetite For Cars

All over this continent new automobiles are on parade—at exhibitions, in showrooms, in the press. Wonderful things they are, and they should be, after half a century of competitive designing, of engineering research kept up at an expensive annual pace, of new materials and the industry's sharp eyes and ears to adapt them to contemporary tastes. An industry that during half a century has had billions of dollars and some of the best business and technical brains poured into it should be able to produce a thing of beauty, of superlative efficiency and of pleasurable utility.

* * *

The public responds with enthusiasm to the unveiling of new models each year. Its appetite for new cars is whetted by advertising and the gleam of chromium but it is sharpened also by the status the car has assumed in North American society. It is considered in many quarters not only a necessity to life but also the criterion of the standard of living. A new car enhances the prestige of its owner; it shows he is a man who can afford one—or has the courage to go into debt for it. Neither is a mean display, considering the investment a car represents today. The materialism of North America has its widest expression in the automobile, but, such is the North American genius, so has the aesthetic sm of this continent.

* * *

The public appetite for cars is not restricted to this side of the Atlantic. It took an individual form in Naples recently. A 21-year-old Sicilian entered hospital complaining of a stomach ache. Doctors operated on him and removed from his stomach 28 penknives, eight metals keys, three silver spoons, half-a-dozen metal coins and bits of glass. Why this strange appetite? The patient said he had been "training" to win a bet. The bet was that he could eat an automobile—windshield, tires and all.

Does The Twentieth Century Belong To Brazil?

"A country greater than the United States, more populous than France, Belgium and Switzerland together, at the heart of a continent whose possibilities are still not entirely known; a population seven times more numerous than it was a hundred years ago; an economy more and more diversified; a growing national income, in the aggregate as well as per capita; rich in achievements, but still with much to do; such are the most striking facts which spring from Brazilian statistics" (Introduction to a booklet published in French by the Brazilian Ministry of External Affairs: "Bresil, Aspects d'Interet General")

Here in Canada, preoccupied with our own country's growth and wealth, and spouting that the "Twentieth Century belongs to Canada", Canadians may hardly be aware that there is another American country of equally spectacular growth, great potential riches, and magnificent opportunities, a country as large as Canada, but with nearly four times as many people. This is Brazil today.

A picture magazine published in Paris, Noir et Blanc, has devoted an entire issue to Brazil. In it are illustrated the fabulous harbour and setting of Rio de Janeiro (the capital), the spectacular, at times stridently modern apartment buildings, commercial skyscrapers, new public buildings; the industrial complex which is Sao Paulo; the marvel of highway engineering which links Sao Paulo to its port of Santos; the lush tropical and semi-tropical vegetation; the varieties of life and peoples, from plutocratic cafe society to Amazonian aborigines. Our small text book, referred to above, tells us that "it is well known that equality of races in Brazil is not only a theoretic principle but a reality". (One remarks in passing that the equality is not clearly visible in a photograph of naked women working primitively along interior river banks.)

In agricultural and industrial output, in the humming life of the fifty-five million people (half of whom are under the age of fifteen years), and in the rich and varied geographic scene in which these people are building a great republic, there is evidence of growth, achievement and a fabulous future for this largest Latin American country in the world. We are fully prepared to believe that the booklet and the Paris magazine can, as the former says, transmit only a feeble idea of the dynamism which characterizes Brazil today, "where all is volatile, in the process of revision, of transformation, of evolution, as much in material aspects as in the intellectual domain". The life of the mind and spirit is not being forgotten in the great material development: Brazil's painting is remarkable; her architecture is creative, (consider, for instance, the skyscraper apartments, and the church of Pampulha); her music is lively, and her literature is forming.

It is pleasant to think of this buoyant and confident new Brazil, especially at this season when the country is enjoying its high summer and Sao Paulo, city of more than two million people, is this year celebrating its centenary. Brazil itself has a long modern history, from its discovery in 1500 by adventurous Portuguese mariners through its colonial and imperial phases to its present republican status. It has long had a strong feeling for independence, and set up its own Emperor in 1822. The Federal Republic was not established until 1889.

It behoves Canadians not to think of Brazil only in terms of the Brazilian Traction Company (a great utility, Canadian enterprise) and of retarded economy or colonial exploitation. Foreign enterprise's leading days are over—for great national utilities are being established, and Brazil is firmly being developed for and by Brazilians. It may be necessary to qualify Laurier's famous statement: the northern hemisphere's Twentieth Century may belong to Canada, but there is another growing American giant, Brazil, which in the southern hemisphere may claim with equal validity that the Twentieth Century belongs to it.

Anniversary Of Standard Time

Our feature page is devoted today to Sir Sandford Fleming and his achievements, the most universally-important being his invention of Standard Time. Seventy-five years ago Monday, Fleming's paper on time reckoning was read to the Canadian Institute, Toronto. His proposition was subsequently given wide circulation and adopted by most of the civilized countries of the world.

Fleming was a railway engineer and surveyor (he surveyed the town of Peterborough and drew the town plan of 1846), who realized the need in a country as wide as Canada, and in a world whose communications were becoming shorter, for a systematic method of zoning the world by time belts; in other words, of having standards of time, and not being dependent entirely on the sun's progress from degree to degree. Thus it was that Greenwich Observatory was chosen as the starting point (on the Prime Meridian) and time belts calculated in hourly bands west of it (Eastern Standard Time being one of the zones).

The story, as set down for the Examiner by Richard F. Choate of Toronto and Warsaw, reveals what a man of many-sided enterprises Sandford Fleming was. His knighthood was a recognition of his achievements and his eminence in the industrial and engineering world. One of his projects was the designing of Canada's first stamps; the famous three-penny beaver stamp was his.

Fleming had an intimate connection with Peterborough, through his marriage and the survey work he did in Peterborough in the middle of the last century. Fleming was born in Scotland in 1827 and began to study engineering and surveying there. He emigrated to this country in 1845, coming first to visit Peterborough, where a relative Dr. Hutcheson, was the town's doctor. He died full of years and honours in 1915. He was in the thirty-sixth year of his Chancellorship of Queen's University and the eighty-ninth year of his life.

The Old, Stale Excuse

Mayor Harrison of Victoria, B.C., now says that he was misquoted about burning Communist books in the public library of that city. Two reporters, from two reputable newspapers, heard what he said, and agreed in their reports of it, but Mayor Harrison nevertheless insists that he was misquoted. It is an old, stale, and ineffective trick for a man to cast doubt on reporters when he has been caught in a bit of stupid, self-indulgent speaking.

One of the reasons for the existence of the press is to provide a check on just such loose talkers as Mayor Harrison. Before the day when reports of the speeches of public men were made public in newspapers, they enjoyed a remarkable and undesirable freedom, and there is ample evidence that they abused it. Nowadays, the best that they can do is to say that they were misquoted; when more than one trained listener hears a man say a thing, it seems unlikely that he has been misquoted, and the stale disclaimer makes him look sillier than before.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Accountants have traced their profession back to 14th century Italy. Yes, but bills have been discovered in the earliest ruins known to mankind.

Contrafy to a widespread belief, nepotism isn't all fun. As the Kingston Whig says: 'If the Government can get any work out of kinfolk, we're for it; nobody else can'.

"TRIPE BATH"

Paris Medicine In New School

By ALBERT MOUSSET

THE OPENING in December of the new Faculty of Medicine—some departments of which have been open for the past month already—will give French science a model institution where there thousand students will work in the best of conditions. This Faculty is original in that it is both a teaching centre and an institute of scientific research. Each floor is arranged in the same way—on one side, rooms for students' practical work, on the other, experimental laboratories for the teaching staff.

On the ground floor a sound-proof amphitheatre equipped with film and television apparatus holds a thousand students. Five other amphitheatres, with room for three hundred, are open on higher floors for lectures in physics, chemistry, histology and physiology, while the top of the building contains fourteen anatomy rooms.

✧ ✧ ✧

A RESTAURANT seating three hundred and a common room complete the picture. Heating and air conditioning have been carried out with the latest methods. The artistic side has not been overlooked. This is to be seen outside even, with great carved panels evoking names, figures and symbols connected with the art of healing: the Greeks with Herophylus, the founder of anatomy, and Galen, the commentator of Hippocrates; the Arabs with Rhazes and Avicenna; Cleopatra's son Ptolemy Philadelphis, who made the first zoological garden, Paracelsus, who exploited the curative qualities of mercury French surgery, the humanists, Da Vinci and ond opium; Ambroise Pare, the founder of Rabelais; the talismans, miraculous springs, haruspex, exprcisms, presages and music.

THE BUILDING itself, designed by the architect Louis Madeline, is an imposing mass cut by firm vertical lines which emphasize the height enhanced by the smallness of neighbouring buildings, the scale of which is given by the famous spire of Saint-Germain-des-Pres. The choice of this site, moreover, aroused heated discussion culminating in the victory of doctors over town planners, or modernism over tradition.

A curious revenge of Time is to be noted. The Rue de l'Universite, near the new Faculty, had lost its original significance ever since the days of Francis I, when the University of Paris parted with land it possessed in the district. It is now coming back to its first site.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE FACULTY has demolished the Hospital of Charity built at the beginning of the nineteenth century by the Friars of Saint-Jean-de- Diey or de la Charite; hence its name. In its day, the hospital was a model of comfort, for was not a bed set apart for every patient, whereas until then several had been crowded into one bed? Its annexes included a botanical garden, which provided all the Friars' establishments with "simples". One of these monks' specialties was the "tripe bath". The poes Scarron, whose wife Francoise d'Aubigne later married Louis XIV, was paralyzed in both legs. He submitted to this strange treatment, which of course brought him no relief and to which he devoted these disillusioned lines:

Tripotage appeler je puis
Le bain auquel destine suis
Puisqu'il est compose de tripes.

('Tripe I may call the bath to which I am bound, since it is made of tripe.')

✧ ✧ ✧

BESIDE their hospital the Friars had a chapel which was deconsecrated at the time of the Revolution and used as a nursing home by Corvisart, Napoleon I's favorite doctor. The lower part of the chapel, which has survived all changes in the district, now houses the Ukrainian Church of St. Vladimir the Great.

A CENTURY AGO the Charity Hospital rented a ground floor of the Faculty of Medicine for the modest sum of five thousand francs a year. The Public Assistance, who needed the premises, obliged them to leave the building in 1867. But administration moves slowly, and it was not until 1881 that the Faculty thought of moving. In 1927 it had its own back, causing the hospital to leave so as to build a large edifice on the site to contain all departments.

The plans gave rise to much discussion, war broke out, with the result that seventen years passed before the new Faculty was opened to students; the foundation stone was laid in 1936. Dean Gustave Roussy said at the time, "Planning big is never planning big enough". Only the future can tell whether the present building will meet the requirements of a student body that is assuming impressive proportions. In the whole of the Paris Faculties, the number of students has doubled since 1914 and trebled since 1938, so great is the prestige of the university teaching.

A FEW steps away from Saint-Germain-des-Pres, stronghold of existentialism and nocturnal meeting ground for artists and poets, the Faculty towers, its architecture symbolic of its austere purpose. Contrasts such as these create the splendour of the capital.

New Day, New Drill.

(Ottawa Journal)

Ottawa by being a capital has become a critical observer of guards of honor and, when guests are welcomed before the Peace Tower, there will be informed comment on the performance of the servicemen who present arms and go through the other soldierly manoeuvres of such occasions.

On these happy occasions nothing is so satisfactory as the crash of rifle butts striking the tarmac at the same moment as evidence of good timing when the "Order Arms!" is given. The Lee-Enfield, the standard rife of Canada for half a century, could endure the enthusiastic slamming of endless display of this nature. Not so, we suspect, the new FN-2 automatic rifle it is proposed to make in Canada if the tests of 2,000 being brought from Belgium are satisfactory.

Automatic rifles doubtless have to be employed to keep pace with the demands of modern warfare, but we shall see the old sturdy bolt-action weapon go with regret for a veteran who has served so well in so many tight corners. And the guards of honor, cuddling delicate automatic rifles and doing through some new form of ceremonial drill, will never be the same again.

D'Ye Ken John Graves?

(LONDON TIMES)

WHEN John Woodcock Graves prophesied that the song he had written for his old friend John Peel would be sung "when we've both run to earth," he could not have known how exactly he was speaking the truth. Now, in the centenary year of Peel's death, there comes from Tasmania a far-away and rather sad echo of the writer who went to earth in a Hobart cemetery and is now, inevitably, to be disturbed. Headstones are being removed to make way for a scenic park and arrangements made for reinterment. But Hobart is to keep green the memory of this immigrant on the site of his grave. He is said to have hunted kangaroo, as a solace for exile from his native lakes, and to have been thought to be crying murder when he was cheering on hounds.

Fame, largely anonymous, came to him on that evening at Caldbeck where he turned off the first version of the song impromptu, as he and Peel were discussing their next hunt. Unlike other singers of great sportsmen, Graves has been forgotten in favor of his hero. Pindar lives as the athletes he celebrated do not, but Graves has gone away as completely as has Metcalfe, who set the words to the music of old border rants. Peel himself has had some awkward passages. The ignorant have believed him to be as mythical as Old King Cole (whose love of the bowl he shared) or as fictional as Mr. Jorrocks. There was a terrible moment when the late Lord Lonsdale said he was a shepherd of the Lowther family who was never a huntsman and only rode a fat pony. That his hounds, to whom some of the present Blencathra pack are claimed to trace their pedigree back, had to be followed on foot, needs no explaining to anyone who has been out among the crags in the grand, mountainous North country. But that Peel hunted for many years as a neighbor of Wordsworh is beyond dispute.

No greater proof of the triumph of Graves in immortalizing this old Cumberland "statesman" could be found than in the fury with which variant readings of the verses have been rent. The coat, sometimes praised as "so gay," has been traced in all its "gray" glory to a little local factory handling coarse, homely, waterproof, Herdwick wool. The heresy that one of his hounds was called "True" has been scotched and the authentic couplet vindicated:

Yes, I ken John Peel, and Ruby, too,
Ranter and Royal and Bellman as true.

Graves may rest at ease wherever he lies, for his song is still running as merrily on earth as a pack in full cry. The soupd of the horns blowing off, for the last time "to finish the season" is never likely to be heard.

If Lincoln Had Been On TV

(Goodman Ace in the Saturday Review)

THE date is Thursday, Nov. 19, 1863. Video men, audio men, directors, advisers huddle around Cemetery hill, shouting at the 15,000 who have come to witness the telecast, to keep off the cables and stand back from the cameras. The cameramen are setting up their shots for the speakers. The director comes briskly forward.

"Mr. President, you'll open up on Camera two, that's this one. We're picking up Mr. Everett on camera one. When the red light comes on on camera two you can start your speech. Then we'll cut to a profile after we set up camera one—the red light will light on this one. You'll stand about here. Oh, I'll take the shawl, Mr. President."

"Well, there's a chill in the air and I—"

"But you're not going to do the show in that shawl, are you?"

"Yes, I am."

"Well I wish we'd have known—we could have had costume send one over. I'm afraid the lights are going to pick up all that fuzz around it. Oh, by the way, I'll get a makeup girl. We ought to trim that beard a little. It's kinda straggly and it might—"

"Oh, this is quite all right."

"But, Mr. President, this is television. At least we can touch up that right cheek. That mole is going to look like—"

"No, no, young man. It will be all right."

"But, Mr. President, you know you're following Mr. Everett. He's going to look quite distinguished with that white hair and that—oh, before I forget—your speech."

"My speech?"

"Yes, I'll have the boys run it off the teleprompter. You can look right into the camera and read it, and it'll look like you're talking to the folks at home."

"No. I'll manage with this."

"With that! You're not going to read it off that envelope, are you?"

"Well, I had planned—"

"Okay, Mr. President. But Mr. Everett will steal the show. They'll come away talking about him. They'll little note nor long remember anybody else."

Unconsidered Trifles

"I'm certain she said she was twenty-two."

"Nonsense, my dear — she must have thought you asked her the number of her flat."

A young and pretty governess to a wealthy family suddenly resigned. Applying for a new job, she was asked, "How did you come to leave your previous employment?"

"Backward child — forward father!" she replied.

"Why don't you wear that coat?" he asked

"It's last winter's," she replied.

"But it's just as cold now as it was last winter," he protested.

"That's true," she said, bitterly, "but when I see all my friends with new coats I feel hot enough without one."

Letter To The Editor

WHY THE REGISTRY?

Sir: What is all the fuss this year about a grant to Community Nursing Registry? Councils in the past have recognized that the taxpayer's money should not be spent on such a grant.

Most of the nurses do not need it nor want it. Many of the Doctors do not need it, and have withdrawn their support. A few Doctors are apparently receiving a special benefit from it; let them pay for it. Why spend taxpayer's money to have a nurse, (who could otherwise be nursing) answer a phone, to say "I am sorry, we have not a nurse available".

What we need is more nurses. If some of our new aldermen are pressing this issue, maybe we should scrutinize what their real reason is.

All should be reminded of our Mayor's pledge to lower the tax rate by at least a few mills.

75th Anniversary Of Standard Time

Clocks Ticking In Unison Remind World Of Debt To Sir Sandford Fleming

By RICHARD F. CHOATE

"All people that on earth do dwell" might with good reason "down tools" on this Monday and go in with one accord for the observance of an anniversary — the birthday of the system of Standard Time which for 75 years has shaped or profoundly influenced the doings and destines of all people.

It was 75 years ago, on February 8, 1879, that Sandford Arnot Fleming's first paper on his project for a Standard Time common to All Nations was read before the SIR SANDFORD FLEMING, from oil painting in the Royal Canadian Institute, College St., Toronto.

Canadian (later Royal Canadian) Institute in its building in Richmond Street East, Toronto, which is now the Sons of England Hall. It was not long afterward (in 1883-84) that his proposals were adopted at a conference in Washington, by most of the important civilized nations, and in course of time accepted by virtually all.

On this 75th anniversary we may well be reminded of the unity rather than of the diversity of Sir Sandford Fleming's aims and accomplishments. If we provide a Red Letter illumination marking each of his great achievements our calendars would take on a mottled or rash-like appearance which would tend only to bewilderment and not to clarity of thought. But a little reflection must convince us that in his diversified projects —as, for instance, those of Standard Time, of large-scale railway-building and of pan-British communication systems—there was a singular homogeneity, or perhaps logical coherence. Were not these and many other varied projects really only different facets manifest in an indivisible overall intelligence?

We can list here only in part Sanford Fleming's achievements:

Designing and lithographing of the first comprehensive plan of Peterborough (1846); and later of a plan of Toronto.

A system of Standard Time Common to All Nations (1879-84).

Designing of Canada's first postage stamps (1851).

Prime mover in founding of the Canadian (now Royal Canadian) Institute (1851).

Chief Engineer (1855-63) of the Northern Railway (Ontario, Simcoe and Huron).

Presentation of memorial to Canadian and Imperial Governments on behalf of the Red River Colony (1863).

Chief Engineer and surveyor of the Intercolonial Railway (1863-1876).

Chief Engineer of Canadian Pacific Railway transcontinental line (1871-1880).

Ocean to ocean trip with party which included Rev. Dr. George M. Grant (later Principal Grant of Queen's University).

Initiation and carrying through of the project for a state-owned Pacific cable from Canada to New Zealand and Australia.

Long and tireless advocacy of an all-British Intelligence Service.

Chancellor of Queen's University, Kingston, 1880-1915.

Sandford Flemming, born in 1827, came to Canada from Kirkcaldy, in 1845, on the sailing ship Brilliant, with his two brothers, Henry, 32, and David, 24. On a lake boat, he and David arrived at Cobourg, proceeding thence in the wagon of a Peterborough farmer who was returning to his home from "the Front". He was welcomed by a kinsman, Dr. Hutcheson, a pioneer of Peterborough, then of some 2,000 population.

After a few weeks, the youth went on to Toronto, where David found employment. Sandford, who at 14 had been a pupil of a John Sang, Scottish engineer and surveyor, came back to Peterborough, where he was engaged as a draughtsman by Richard Birdsall, surveyor of large areas in the County.

Almost at once Fleming's keen eye perceived in Canada a plethora of problems that were pressing for solution. He lost no time in taking off his coat and going to work upon them. Then, as throughout his later life, his motto might well have been "I'll find a way or make it".

PETERBOROUGH CONNECTION

In 1846, he made a survey of Peterborough and designed his plan which took in the area east to the Douro-Otonabee line; north to Smith Street; west to Park Street; and south to the Little Lake. To obtain a stone suitable for lithography he had to go to Toronto. There, according to some accounts, he had to have recourse to a tombstone manufacturer. The completed drawing, in any event, was published by Scobie & Balfour, Toronto lithographers. In a lower corner is a drawing of the Courthouse.

Sandford Fleming's early contact with Peterborough were days of budding romance. Among the younger people who added to his enjoyment of life there was Ann Jean Hall, daughter of Sherriff James Hall. The romance blossomed and on January 3, 1855, Miss Hall become the wife of the young surveyor-engineer.

The bride's father, appointed in 1856, was the first of three generations of the Hall family to fill the Sheriff's office. Following him was his son, the late James Albro Hall. Next in the shrievalty succession was Mr. Fred. J. A. Hall. The Flemings had six children, all of whom accompanied them on a trip to the British Isles in 1876. The name of Sandford Fleming is perpetuated in Peterborough by "Fleming Place", where the grandson of the first Sheriff Hall, Mr. Basil D. Hall, Peterborough lawyer, lives. In Kingston, "Fleming Hall" at Queen's University is a lasting memorial.

IN TORONTO

Going to Toronto in 1849, Sandford Fleming occupied an office at 112 Yonge Street (formerly No. 67), the site of which is now marked by a tablet in his honor. It was here that he designed Canada's first postage stamps. The government had announced a competition for stamp designs. Fleming responded and was awarded a prize of £100. The most famous of the stamps was the "3d. Beaver". Others produced were the 6d. bearing a portrait of Prince Albert; and the one shilling, also with the Beaver emblem. Because of the use in those days of the Spanish dollar a question of discounts arose and it was decided to change the one shilling stamp to 12d.

Foreseeing the desirability of obtaining a commission as a provincial land surveyor, Fleming became articled to Stoughton Dennis, of Weston, and received his certificate. Proceeding in 1849 to Montreal he passed the examination conducted there by the Commissioner of Lands, obtaining his commission on the day of the violent rioting over the Rebellion Losses Bill and the burning by a mob of the Legislative Building. How he salvaged from the fire the famous portrait of the young Queen Victoria is told in another column.

CANADIAN INSTITUTE

The story of the early days of the Canadian Institute is one of many trials and of Fleming's unflagging tenacity of purpose. After the original meeting in 1849, interest of most members dwindled until in February, 1850, only two, Fleming and F. F. Passmore attended the scheduled meeting. It was decided by the indomitable pair that the meeting should proceed, one to act as chairman, the other as secretary, without call for a quorum. Resolutions were passed and recorded; and later printed for distribution. The consequence was the inauguration of the weekly meetings, which have continued ever since, the Society having become the Royal Canadian Institute. Free lectures on Saturday evenings from October to May in Convocation Hall, by distinguished speakers, have been of incalculable value in the development of the Arts and Sciences and in acquainting the public with the best thought of its time.

TIME SYSTEM

Sandford Fleming's work as prime mover in the establishment of the world-wide Standard Time system is looked upon by many as the central crux of his endeavors. But a glance back beyond 1879 indicates how closely it was integrated with other of his activities, notably that of railway-building. His deep interest in the subject seems to have been generated or intensified when he missed a train while on a visit to Ireland, by reason of the confusing multiplicity of "local times". In Canada, too, where he was for years a foremost figure in the construction of communication lines on the largest scale, he quickly perceived the need for an orderly mode of time reckonings. Between Halifax and Toronto five time systems were in operation.

At one time Fleming was Chief Engineer of both the Intercolonial railway and of the Canadian Pacific's transcontinental extension across the prairies, through the Rockies, to the Pacific coast. Here, truly, was an almost inconceivably heavy burden. Boldly he tackled the problem of formulating a mode of time measurement which would girdle the globe and bring into temporal order communication systems of all kinds. Here he and other men of understanding mind ran into a welter of ignorance, stupidity and prejudice—much of it in high places.

On two occasions, at least, the young engineer had to combat and put to rout snobbery and thick-headedness in the ranks of British officialdom. These were in the arrogant refusal of the British Association for the Advancement of Science to entertain his Standard Time proposals although he had crossed the ocean at his own expense to present his paper, according to a formal arrangement.

Again, in connection with his State-owned Pacific cable project, invincible ignorance in both British and United States' political circles deprived the cable-projectors of the use of Necker Island, a mid-Pacific atoll which was desired as a landing-place for the cable. Sandford Fleming, on this occasion, sent to Honolulu at his own expense a retired British naval officer to act as his agent in hoisting the Union Jack on Necker, thus claiming the unoccupied spot for the Empire. Fleming's daring and logical plan of action was nullified by diplomatic boggling. But, as usual, in both these matters, as indeed, in most cases of the kind in which Fleming was involved, he enjoyed the last laugh.

RAILWAY ENGINEER

By his work as enigneer of three railways, Sandford Fleming earned lasting distinction among the Makers of Canada. It is not strange that his vision of well-ordered transportation in the earliest days of railways should have stimulated him in his efforts as initiator and chief agent in the movement for reform of Time Reckoning. He devised watches and clocks of ingenious patterns to demonstrate the practicability of his proposals. Some of these were face to face, others back to back; some used both numerals and letters to mark the hours. He wrote pamphlet after pamphlet on the subject. His unit of measure-

TIME AND PLACE OF WORLD TIME'S ARRIVAL—Above: Excerpt from minutes of old Canadian Institute meeting held February 8, 1879, in its original building (Right, Above) on Richmond Street East, Toronto. The minutes record the presentation of Sandford Fleming's first paper setting forth his project of a Prime Meridian of World Time (Greenwich was chosen later as its base). Presiding at the Institute's meeting February 8, was Daniel Wilson (later Sir Daniel, President of the University of Toronto). The history-making paragraphs in the minutes follow: "Dr. Wilson then, after expressing his regret that Mr. Sandford Fleming was unable to be present personally, read an abstract of that gentleman's Paper on 'Absolute Time.' And exhibited a watch designed by him to show the true time at any Meridian. The President then announced that at the next meeting Mr. Sandford Fleming would read another paper on the selection of a Prime Meridian common to all nations; and Lt.-Colonel Gzowski would read his second paper on the International Bridge, treating of the Masonry, Iron Superstructure and the Force of Ice".

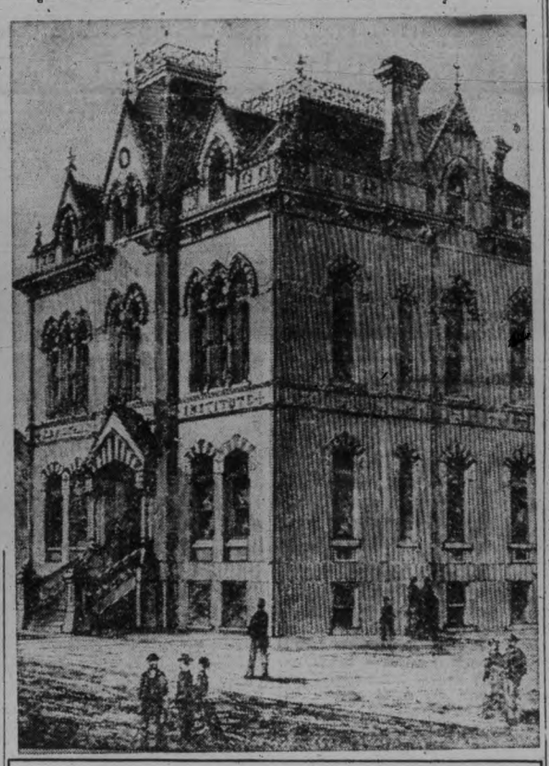
How Sir Sandford Saved Queen's Portrait From Fire

The portrait in oils of the Young Queen Victoria shown in the photograph herewith hangs in the City Council Chamber, Toronto. It is a copy of the original painting in the Senate Chamber, Ottawa, which was preserved from fire in Montreal through the quick wit and courage of Sanford Fleming.

Travelling by stage from Peterborough to Kingston and thence to Montreal by boat, Fleming who had been articled to Stoughton Dennis of Weston, passed his examination for Provincial land surveyor in 1849. On the day he received his commission from Lord Elgin, the Governor General, the destructive riot over the Rebellion Losses Bill broke out. An angry mob hooted the Governor, smeared his carriage with rotten eggs, and after hearing inflammatory harangues set fire to the Parliament building.

Fleming, watching the mounting flames, gained entry, determined to save anything of value that he could. Seeing the Queen's picture he tried in vain to detach its heavy gilt frame, which was bolted to the wall. Three other men joined him and together they loosened it, removing the canvas and carrying it out of the building while flames roared just overhead. A Montreal newspaper, unaware of the facts, reported a few days later that the Queen's picture was carried off by "four scoundrels".

The portrait had been obtained for the Legislative Building on motion of Sir Allan MacNab giving directions to "John Patridge, Esq., portrait painter to Her Majesty", asking him to forward the likeness "painted for this House". The Toronto copy was by the artist Berthon. The head and shoulders of this portrait served as the model for Canada's first 12 d. stamp, designed by Sandford Fleming.



THE BIRTHPLACE OF STANDARD TIME

On this site, in February, 1879, an address was given on Time Reckoning. The Marquis of Lorne, then Governor General of Canada, sent out printed copies of the address to all governments. The Czar of Russia called an International Time Conference, which met at Rome, Italy, in 1882. This meeting was adjourned and met again at Washington, D.C. There Standard Time was adopted by most countries. The author of Standard Time was Knighted by Her Majesty, Queen Victoria and has since been known to his fellow Canadians as Above inscription is on Richmond Street E. building, Toronto, which in 1879 was the home of the Canadian (later Royal Canadian) Institute.

Transit Pillar Tells Story Of Early Time Experiment

On the ground (or in the ground) in front of the Physics Building, University of Toronto, stands this inscribed stone pillar which tells an interesting story of an early narrow-range Standard Time project in Canada.

The stone shaft marks the site of the old Magnetic Observatory which "dispensed" time computed by astronomical observations. This attempt at time-ordering has been described as "spasmodic." It began as far back as 1842, or some years before the arrival in Canada of Sandford Fleming, who worked out the Prime Meridian plan based on the unit measure of the artificial day known as the "mean solar day," divided into 24 equal parts, and these into minutes and seconds, by a hypothetical chronometer at the centre of the earth. The common zero of time longitude thus became Greenwich.

The stone piller depicted above is said to have been sunk some 80 feet into the ground to nullify the effect of surface vibration. On the smooth top of the pillar rested the Magnetic Observatory's transit instrument used in recording the movement of celestial bodies. With the coming of the telegraph and cable, signalling was effected between Toronto and Greenwich; and other distant points.

Thus the site of the transit pillar became, as stated in its inscription, the only point in its part of the world in which latitude, longitude and elevation were precisely determined. Thus the observatory became in its day the focal point of a time distribution service within its narrow range in Canada, designed to lessen the confusion caused by many local times in Ontario. With the coming of the Dominion Meteorological office, now Bloor street, Toronto, the old Magnetic Observatory disappeared, leaving only the transit pillar to mark its site.

On the plates seen on the pillar is the following inscription reproduced herewith:

THIS WAS THE TRANSIT PILLAR IN ONE OF THE BUILDINGS WHICH FORMERLY STOOD ON THIS SPOT.
IT WAS PLACED IN POSITION IN THE YEAR 1854 AND FROM THAT DATE UNTL 1908 IT SERVED AS THE SUPPORT FOR THE TRANSIT

ITS LONGTITUDE WAS DETERMINED TELEGRAPHICALLY IN 1883 AND IT IS THE ONLY POINT IN THE NEIGHBOURHOOD OF TORONTO,
THE POSITION OF WHICH HAS BEEN THUS DETERMINED DOWN TO THE PRESENT TIME.

Fleming Humor

At a Sunday afternoon tea in Toronto in the early eighties, a gushing young woman asked Fleming, the guest of honour, "How could you possibly have found your way through those terrible passes in the Rockies without getting lost?" Sir Sandford replied: "The buffalo bulls, I was sure, knew better than I did how to travel through a mountain pass".

Boulder In Historic Hall

An interesting bit of history (or legend) attaches to the Sons of England Hall, Richmond St. East, Toronto, which formerly was the home of the Canadian Institute. Here Sandford Fleming's first paper on Standard Time was read February 8, 1879.

According to the story, which has long since become traditional, a large boulder was sent to Toronto by members of the Masonic Order in Nova Scotia. The stone had been found on the seashore. It had one flat face on which was carved or deeply scratched a copy of the Masonic Emblem, the square and compasses and the date 1678. Different theories of its origin have been advanced, one being that it had belonged to Masonic members who had been shipwrecked there. In any event, it seems to have been sent to Toronto and to have been on exhibition in the Museum of the Mechanics' Institute (the old Public Library on Church St.), which was torn down a few years ago.

When the Canadian Institute building, which faces south on Richmond St. East, at Berti St., was erected, the stone is said to have been incorporated in the masonry of the Northeast corner, references to the fact having been made at the time in the local press. Examination of the masonry is precluded now by the fact that the wall of the Orange Hall was built against it. And alas, there is a limit to the fact-finding powers of X-rays and geiger counters.

But more clearly defined and confirmed is the record of another stone from the Maritimes which enters the Sandford Fleming story directly. This was found on a wall of the old French fort at Annapolis Royal, N.S., by a retired British officer, Lieut. Robinson, the inscription being dated 1606. It was given to Thomas Chandler Haliburton, author of "Sam Slick, the Clockmaker." From the latter's son R. G. Haliburton, Fleming obtained the relic bringing it up to the Canadian Institute.

But whatever its aura of legend or romance, the old Canadian Institute building still bears a tag of hard concrete fact. Site and building sold in 1878 for $9,780.

A·F·I·E·L·D with NICK NICKELS

NaKO-ALO-2SiO
2 3 2

There has been a lot of district interest lately in the future of mining at Blue Mountain. We have heard of a proposed railway that will soon serve the property and how said mine will grow as the result of this service.

Everyone is aware by now that the mine product is nepheline syenite ore but if you asked anyone on the street what it was, they could not tell you.

It is an ingredient in the manufacture of thousands of everyday things around us; the chinaware we eat from; the hardness of the false teeth we eat with; the windows we look from in our homes; in the TV tubes that entertain us. The list of products of glass and pottery that contain nepheline syenite ore is endless.

Nepheline is a mineral and syenite is a rock and the combined product, nepheline syenite, contains about 25 per cent nepheline; the balance is composed of feldspar minerals. In the language of scientists the ore is named NaKO-AL2O3-2SiO2. The American Nepheline Mines, realizing that none but those with bulging foreheads could ever make head or tail of this symbol, contrived a ceramic coltish trade mark called, simply, "NEPHSY" and registered it.

FOLLOWING THE PATTERN of all mineral deposits, when such are located in the ground, experts must determine whether there is enough of it, of good grade, to mine it profitably. And there are no harder business men than the mining crowd.

The Blue Mountain ore was sitting there on a solid mountain range in billions of tons. Its grade was good and consistent, so good in fact that assays are of the same grade today as those of the original samples assayed prior to 1908. However, it is not pure ore; it contains an impurity, magnetite, a mere two per cent, which, if not extracted, would make the ore of little value to the ceramic and pottery trades. The impure magnetite is extracted at the Blue Mountain mill at the rate of about eight tons daily.

The ore is mined by quarrying, milled by a series of grinding operations, purified by the extraction of impurities and when it leaves the mill it is as pure as science can make it.

GRINDING IS THE THING. The largest size for the glass trade is like granulated sugar. Flour grade for pottery is just that consistency and if you can imagine anything finer than that, and they make it, is the micron size used for an extender in paint pigments.

Now that we have mined, milled, purified and ground the ore ready for market

Are You Still With Us . . . . ?

The basic formula of glass—sand, soda and limestone— has remained unchanged since Biblical times, until nepheline syenite ore came into the picture. Its addition to the formula helps melt glass batches at lower temperatures and adds a certain desirable alumina content to the product. Lower firing temperatures, therefore, result in lower production costs, or production may be stepped up; (you can't have both but nepheline syenite makes a saving one way or the other).

Production costs in the pottery trades are reduced in the same manner when nepheline syenite "flour" is added to clays before they are fired in kilns; it acts as a binder.

In layman's language—or as lay as we can make it—that is something about the ore at Blue Mountain and its importance in the economic field of Canada. It has always had mining men guessing.

In the late 90's English mining interests thought the mica outcroppings would produce precious stones and put down a shallow shaft or two to explore. A scoundrel bookkeeper ran off with a payroll and put an end to their dream. The country roundabout reverted to its original claim to fame, the production of fine blueberries.

Blue Mountain is still great berryin' country with the richest deposit of nepheline syenite in the free world as its seed bed.

Marquis Aided Fleming' Fight Against Snobbery

In 1878, Sandford Fleming called the attention of the British Association for the Advancement of Science, to his Standard Time project. His offer to submit a paper was accepted formally and he went to Dublin where the Association was meeting that year. But day after day he was put off and finally he was told arrogantly that his paper was of little importance and would not be heard. An appeal to the President brought no response.

Fleming later recalled how the managers of 100,000 miles of railway, on which 50,000,000 pople travelled in the United States and Canada were pressing for a world system of time reckoning, which the British Association had "officially and offensively refused to entertain." But the greater breadth and intelligence were displayed by other societies on both sides of the Atlantic.

The Marquis of Lorne (husband of Princess Louise, daughter of Queen Victoria) who was then Governor-General, learning of the situation, published the Fleming letter for distribution to all world governments. In due course, Fleming was knighted by Queen Victoria, and it may seem strange to people of today that the Government of the Russian Czar was one of the first to lend its support to the Fleming proposals, M. Otto Struve, famed Astronomer Royal of Russia, wrote: "It is through Mr. Fleming's indefatigable personal labors and writings that influential individuals and scientific Societies and Institutes in America and Europe have been won over to the cause."

Petes Again In First Place With 8-5 Victory Over Kingston Goodyears

By DON GRANT

Eddie Redmond's Petes are once again in first place in the senior "B" league. They broke a two-way tie for first with Oshawa Friday night with a three-goal rally in the third period to hand the third-place Kingston Goodyears an 8-5 setback. This is the second time this season that the Petes have led the grouping, climbing from fourth place a month ago to first place a week ago, only to have Oshawa climb even during the week's play.

Playing before only 1,200 home fans the Petes overcame an early 2-0 Kingston lead to take a 3-2 margin in the first period. After Kingston tied the score in the second the Petes jumped ahead 5-3 going into the third. Once again Kingston tied the score, five-all, but Coach Redmond, Doc Prentice and Bert Hill scored in the final eight minutes to give the Petes the win and first place.

GOALIES STAR

From all angles it was the best game played in the Civic arena this season. Despite the fairly high score both goalies, John Donlevy of the Petes and Ken Johnston of the Goodyears, played stellar goal, receiving help from their heavy rearguards and backchecking forwards

Offensively both teams never quit skating, passing and shooting until the final whistle, keeping the crowd until the last minute.

There was very little distinction in the forward lines of either team. The Petes were paced by Bert-Hill-Bill Crowley-Ted Collins line which scored two goals. At the same time the other lines, Gus Leonard-Chum Fryia-Toodie Greenlaw and Denny Peterson-Doc Prentice-Ron Belisle kept the Goodyears' defence and goalie Johnston busy with their fast rushes.

The return of Walt Gerow made the line of Gerow-Joe Catlin-Jack White outstanding for the Goodyears. White with help from Catlin and Gerow was the payoff man, scoring twice.

Don Murray bothered the Petes throughout the game, starting the Goodyears off with a picture-play goal and beginning the third-period rally which tied the score. His linemates, Clint Tinkess and Jim McKewon, gave the Petes double line trouble.

DEFENCEMEN START OUT

Probably most outstanding for the Petes were the three defencemen, Jim Munro, Bill McMaster and Redmond. They gave goalie Donlevy ample protection and at the same time started rushes up the ice. McMaster and Redmond both scored on long blue line shots.

Ted Nicholson set Murray up for the first goal with a pass to the Kingston centre standing alone in front of Donlevy. Murray feinted several times finally flipping the puck into the net. Catlin followed up by putting Jack White into the clear for Kingston's second goal a minute later.

From the faceoff the Petes rushed in and Doc Prentice tipped in a Ron Belisle pass. Johnston charged after referee Larry Heffering of Whitby, claiming the puck hadn't crossed the crease. Although the goal judge hadn't blinked the light, Heffering ruled the puck gone in.

HILL TIES SCORE

Hill tied the score later when he slapped the puck in from an end faceoff while the Petes were short Bill McMaster. Then just before the period ended Collins batted in a loose puck which had rolled off Johnson's arm to give the Petes a 3-2 edge.

Catlin again set White into scoring position early in the second and White backhanded an angle shot catching the opposite corner. But while Bob Londry was off for a holding penalty, Fryia ended a three-man rush to put the Petes again 4-3.

The Petes kept pressing and finally near the end of the period Peterson flipped a pass back to McMaster at the blue line. McMaster golfed the puck through a maze of players into the net.

PETES TAKE WIN

Murray started the Goodyears' rally midway through the third, sinking a loose puck after Tinkress had passed out from the corner. Thirty-three seconds later Tinkress tied the score again from a scramble.

Redmond scored the winning goal three minutes later when Crowley passed back, duplicating Peterson's earlier play, and Redmond slapped in a long screen shot. Prentice and Hill then scored the Petes' assurance goals.

The lineups:

Kingston—Goal, Johnston; defence, Nicholson, Londry; centre, Partis; wings, J. McKeown, McGregor; alternates, Goodfellow, Olinski, Murray, J. McKeown, Tinkess, Stewart, Catlin, Gerow, White.

Orioles, Sox Make 4-Man Baseball Trade

NEW YORK (AP)—Baltimore Orioles and Chicago White Sox pulled a four-man baseball trade Friday. At the same time, St. Louis Cardinals picked up three young prospects and seven players signed their 1954 contracts.

In the trade, Baltimore gave up centrefielder Johnny Groth and utility infielder Johnny Lipon to the White Sox for infielder Neal Berry and outfielder Sam Mele.

General manager Art Ehlers of the Orioles said it was a straight swap with no cash involved. General manager Frank Lane of Chicago said it gives the Sox the "fastest outfield in the American League."

The day's major signings were Andy Pafko, Milwaukee outfielder who went to the Braves from Brooklyn last year, and Billy Cox, flashy Brooklyn third baseman.

Pittsburgh came to terms with three players—pitcher Max Surkont, catcher Pete Nation and first baseman Dale Coogan. Baltimore signed 23-year-old Vachel Perkins, a pitcher up from the San Antonio farm club. Philadelphia Athletics announced the signing of lefthanded pitcher Morris Martin.

Montreal Rink Takes Lead

SEIGNIORY CLUB, Que. (CP) Mrs. L. B. Unwin's Royal Montreal rink took over the lead at the end of the second round of the Sewell Trophy ladies' curling bonspiel.

Mrs. Unwin's team Friday picked up the maximum 10 points allowed by the rules in any one match by downing Mrs. R. J. Mitchell of Toronto Ladies' Club, 15-5. Coupled with her 15-7 victory over Mrs. D. Racey of Sherbrooke, Que., the win gave Mrs. Unwin, the 1950 champion, a total of 18 points.

The four teams which build up the greatest winning margin in three matches will play off for the trophy Sunday.

Mrs. L. E. Wooley of Toronto Granite and Mrs. F. E. Robinson of Toronto High Park each had 16 points.

FOUR GOOD REASONS why the Petes rest today in first place in the senior "B" league are Chum Fryia, John Donlevy, Bert Hill and Bill McMaster (left to right, top). They were the Petes' standouts Friday night when the Petes trimmed Kingston 8-5 to climb into first place. Snow Conditions Very Poor On Mt. Norquay

By PHIL ADLER

BANFF, Alta. (CP) — Skiers from two Canadian universities and seven colleges from the United States Pacific northwest faced typical snow conditions today as the eighth annual international intercollegiate ski meet opened on nearby Mount Norquay.

Sugar snow, caused by warm afternoons and, freezing nights, threatened to make the giant slalom, initial event, a tiresome experience.

Members of the nine teams tramped the 27-gate course Friday to improve its condition. The five-mile cross-country course for the relay race, scheduled for the afternoon, was marred by recent chinooks which melted much of the snow and turned sections into water.

TEMPERATURES IN 40S

Today's weather was expected to be clear with temperatures in the 40s. The outlook was the same for Sunday for the down hill and jumping events.

Several European skiers were expected to provide keen competition for Canadians and Americans. They include two Norwegian boys, Peder Pytte and Ragnar Bakken, both members of the Wenatchee junior college team from Wenatchee, Wash. Pytte holds the Wenatchee junior jumping championship.

Washington State College, holder of the team championship for the last two years, is considered the team to beat again.

The two Canadian teams are from the University of British Columbia and University of Alberta. U.B.C. has won the team championship once, in 1948, while the Alberta group, originators and sponsors of the meets, have yet to win over-all honors.

Curling News

Two rinks from the ladies' club are going to Oshawa Monday to play in the ladies' open bonspiel. They begin around nine a.m.

The rinks are:

Mrs. H. Northrop, Mrs. L. Bearne, Mrs. H. Baptie, Mrs. M. McCartney, skip.

Mrs. B. R. Smythe, Mrs. I. MacGillivray, Mrs. R. Morgan, Mrs. O. M. Steer, skip.

There are a couple of good yarns going around the rink. It seems that one of our lady curlers before she plays in a bonspiel, has her shoes shined by a certain young man, and so far it has worked wonders. Last week her rink came home with the trophy. Maybe it will do the same for her in Oshawa next Monday.

And then they tell about one of our prominent curlers who felt so excited by winning a game by the extra end route, that he went home, only to discover he had left his wife at the rink.

That's all for this week.

GRANT'S SPORT CORNER

By DON GRANT

Today we'll try to relieve pressure on the memo hook.

Starting from the top is a note with a clipping from the Los Angeles Times. Who sent the note is a mystery but apparently it's an Orfuns friend for all that's on the note is "Apparently these jokers have never seen the Orfuns turn it on! Eh Don?"

Naturally the note refers to the clipping, Frank Finch's Scouting the Pros, from the LA Times.

His refernce to Finch as a joker results from a few words in Finch's column on Canadian football. Apparently joker has never been out of the United States long enough to see a good football game.

Saying his information was from "one of Canada's most famous football players, a former NFL star who has hit the jackpot in the ffozen north", Finch sums up Canadian football as "strictly a passing game as you get only three downs to make a first down." Baloney must be pretty cheap across the line ! ! !

Still referring to Canada pro ball, Finch says the pay is good for the American imports but the Canadian players get peanuts. That's probably quite true, only too true.

Murder He Says

But he's back off the beam again with "inasmuch as each club is limited to eight Americans, the weakest team in the NFL would murder the best team in Canada playing in Canada under Canadian Rules."

Boy! we're glad all Americans aren't like him.

Our thanks to our friend staying at the Olympic Hotel, a block from beautiful Westlake Park.

Here's a verbal memo. "How about sticking something in your column about me?" Okay, George Ludgate, here it is.

Here's another which briefly states "Remember to call Doc Aitken".

With the call through we find out that the Orfuns' football situation for 1954 is still pretty hazy. The senior plans are discarded for another year and possibly the intermediate plans at the same time.

Still in the red some $3,000 the Orfuns hope to see black before May by raffling off a TV set (not to see American football games either, Mr. Finch). If they're past the red line or reasonably close, the Orfuns will operate again this fall, in intermediate.

The senior plans haven't been forgotten, but held over until 1955 when more spadework can be done.

The executive hopes to keep the team together this season, thereby having a good foundation for next year. But they need money. They don't want to start another year off deeply in debt.

If the necessary funds aren't raised, there is a very strong possibility that even the intermediate team will be dropped for this season.

Memo to Grant . . . Call Gord Smith on Park St.

In the Old Days

Although we hate to recall dates too far back during ou hockey-playing days, Gord's name rang a bell. It brought back visions of the juvenile league that operated in the old Lakefield rink in '46, '47 and '48.

A formr Peterborough chappie, Gord has been in the big town, Toronto, for the past couple of years, spending some time training and fighting around the Diamond club. But he's back in town again with things on his mind.

Gord wants to see boxing again in Peterborough. His call revealed that he wants to start a club to teach the youngsters the manly art of self defence.

We referred Gord to Alex Cross who's working hard to develop hidden talent. Working out first in his house at Fowler's Corners, now at Louis Billiards, Alex has a number of boys who with some proper conditioning may go a long way in the boxing world.

Gord may tie in with Alex or possibly start a rival club. He already has some heavy bags and gloves and is looking for a place to rent for a clubhouse.

It's good to see attempts to revive boxing in this lift lock city.

There's also a note from Bus Manbeck, an old school chum and friend, who asks for a plug for his girls' basketball team.

Start Hunting

For a while this season it appeared that Peterborough would not be represented in the Ontario Ladies' basketball playdowns. But recently the city league chose Bus and his Collis quintette to start hunting for the Ontario intermediate title.

Playing in the city league, Collis have developed a fairly strong team. The girls romped through the Trenton RCAF Jets this week in easy fashion and apparently can be considered when viewing the Ontario scene.

The backbones of the quintette, as far as scoring is concerned, are two veteran players, Pauline Stewart (sister of Bill, playing for Hamilton's junior "A" Cubs) and Joan Dunk. They'll work well with M. McIlvena, Mooch Owens, N. Rose, Dot Jackson, Rita Naylor, Wilma Floyd, J. LaPointe and Sue DeWarga.

They'll be entering the Ontario playdowns in the near future.

Another important memo is from Pansy Forbes reminding us to remind you to see the interview and display of the Peterborough Ornamental Swimming Club tonight at 11 on TV from Toronto.

Nine Skaters Flying To Norway

By WALTER GRAY

TORONTO (CP) — Nine young skaters left by air Friday night on the first leg of their journey that will end at the world figure-skating championships and a possible pairs title in Oslo Feb. 15-19.

The Canadian team flies from New York to Copenhagen today and then on to Norway.

A few hours before they left Frances Dafoe and Norris Bowden, both of Toronto, judged pre-championship favorites to take the pairs title, held a final practice.

"We've got the best routine we've ever had since skating together," the 27-year-old Bowden, an insurance agent, said in an interview. "I just hope the judges share my feelings."

Sheldon Galbraith, who is coaching six team members, all from the Toronto Skating Club, said the couple's chances of winning are "excellent."

CAN'T BE WORSE

"The wind was strong today and the ice conditions were bad. But Norris and Frances were good. The conditions can't be any worse in Oslo than they were here today."

Frances, a 24-year-old costume designer, was happy with their routine "and we can only try our hardest to win."

Miss Dafoe and Bowden, Canadian and North American pairs champions, placed second in last year's championships at Davos, Switzerland, missing out by .09 points. The couple has been skating together for five years.

PLACED FIFTH

They placed fifth in the 1952 Olympics and fourth in the world championships at Paris the same year.

Four Canadians will compete in the women's singles — Barbara Gratton and Ann Johnston of Toronto, Sonja Currie of Calgary and Carole Jane Pachl of Montreal.

Competing in the men's singles are Peter Dunfield and Charles Snelling of Toronto and Douglas Court of St. Catharines.

Canadian men's junior champion last year, 20-year-old Court placed third in the Canadian junior men's in 1950.

Abraham Rolls 403

D. Abraham smashed out a 403 single and G. Laplante an 880 triple this week in the men's City Bowling League as Novelty led teams with 1338 and pinnage of 3726. The 6-0 wins went to Cookie's, Novelty, Primeau over McBride & Anderson, Stopawhile and Family Credit; the 4-2 victories were taken by Edward's Sunocos, Royals, Parkhill and McDonald against Payne's, Monumental, Golfers, Ferguson and McGillis.

Good triples: M. Akers 849, B. McCarrell 709, R. Greenly 768, F. McCormick 715, J. Barnes 714, R. Lewis 767, C. Nichols 767, J. Latchford 725, D. Crary 771, J. Goodson 726, P. Pryde 884, J. Saints Enter OCC Finals Defeat St. Jerome's 41-39

Kenner, PCVS Record Wins

Hilly Yudin's St. Peter's High senior Saints advanced into the semi-finals of the Ontario Catholic Conference annual basketball tournament in Toronto Friday night with a close 41-39 victory over St. Jerome's College of Kitchener. In Lindsay Kenner Collegiate bantams turned back Lindsay Collegiate bantams 64-15 while th juniors won 35-25 from LCI. PCVS also won two games, the bantams decisively defeating Cobourg High 49-12 and the juniors crushing Cobourg juniors 55-27.

Doug Galvin out of a sick bed helped lead the St. Peter's High Saints to victory in Toronto. Along with Abbie Ryan, Galvin paced the Saints to their slim victory over St. Jerome's. Ryan topped the scoring though with 17 points while Galvin had 13.

In the other senior tournament game the De LaSalle Oaklands, coached by Nobby Wirkowski, thrilled the basketball fans crowding St. Michael's College gym with the night's second close game, defeating Notre Dame 48-47.

Today the Saints meet De LaSalle in the semi-final round, the winner meeting St. Michael's College who drew two byes into the final game.

PCVS WIN

Bev Goulding's PCVS bantams had little trouble disposing of Cobourg High bantams. The Garnet and Grey romped to a 16-0 first quarter and then settled for a 22-5 half-time score. They surged ahead 35-10 in the third quarter and then outscored Cobourg 12-2 in the final quarter.

Jerry Vincent once again easily led the PCVS scoring with 16 points, followed by Dobbin with 12.

Art Currie's PCVS juniors in scoring their second win over Cobourg High juniors also had little opposition as they steamrollered to their 55-27 victory. They jumped ahead 19-5 in the first quarter, then 25-11 at the half, 38-17 at three-quarters and then outscored Cobourg 17-10 in the last quarter.

Davis and Balleny each scored 16 points for the Garnet and Grey while Dubay and Bell scored eight each.

In Lindsay the Kenner Collegiate bantams and juniors had just as easy a time.

The undefeated bantam Rams were again much too powerful for their opposition. Paced by record-holder Bill Hendry the Rams easily took a 28-9 half-time score and then go on to outscore Lindsay 36-6 in the final half. Hendry easily topped the scoring again with 16 points.

The junior Rams, also coached by Ken Wass, had more difficulty. They were led by Peter Ballantyne as they took a fair half-time lead and then settled down in the last half for the victory.

Pranteau Wins Race For 3rd Straight Time

THE PAS, Man. (CP) — The other teams were slogging an hour or more in the rear Friday as Steve Pranteau and his huskies crossed the finish line to win the Canadian open dog sled championship for the third straight time.

Distance of the four-lap race from The Pas to Flin Flon and return is 200 miles, and the rangy, 41-year-old Indian fisherman from Grand Rapids, Man., made the trip in an elapsed time of 24 hours and 25 minutes.

Junior Track Meet Planned For Windsor

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — The Canadian championship track meet for junior, juvenile and midget contenders will be held in Windsor July 2 and 3.

The event will be jointly sponsored by the Windsor Police Association and Windsor Track and Field Club. It is expected about 400 competitors will compete in 43 events.

CGE And Collis Take Wins In Close Frays

CGE pulled out a 40-37 victory over Black's, while Collis grabbed a 28-25 decision against Lindsay Neill's in two keen Girls' City Basketball League encounters at the YWCA last evening. The games were as close as the score indicates, with the issue in both cases very much in doubt till the final whistles. The second half of the schedule winds up next Friday night with Black's playing Collis, as Nurses mix it with Lindsay.

Black's built up a 23-20 lead at the half in their encounter Friday, but CGE finished a little stronger for a one-point margin in the third quarter and they outscored their rivals 11-6 in a driving fourth frame. Each side lost two players through personal fouls as the checking was close all the way. C. Gibson led Black's scorers with 12 points, R. Naylor having nine, R. Butcher seven, C. Bosnell five and M. Middleton four. Leading CGE was M. Jones with 11 points, nine each being counted by Barb Luther and D. Jackson, four by H. Millter, three by J. Pearson and two each by Mary Hodson and J. Brunt. Teams:

Black's: C. Gibson, R. Butcher, C. Bosnell, M. Middleton, E. McIlhagga, H. McConnell, R. Naylor.

CGE: B. Luther, M. Hodson, K. Calladine, J. Brunt, M. Jones, H. Miller, J. Pearson, D. Jackson.

TEID AT HALF

Lindsay and Collis were tied 15-all at the intermission of the nightcap, but a little more push near the hoop gave Collis a three-point bulge in the third quarter and that lead held up through a hot fourth chukker. The winners, playing with but five players, lost two in the dying seconds of the tilt through personals. Joan Dunk was outstanding for the victors with an 18 point effort, while P. Stewart clicked for five, M. McIlvena and S. Dewarga two each, and N. Rose one. Tops for Lindsay was M. Owen with a dozen points, H. Robertson being good for four, V. Vanstone five and S. Algar and D. Copp, two each. Teams:

Lindsay: M. Owen, D. Copp, M. Vanstone, S. Algar, H. Robertson, J. Humphries.

Collis: P. Stewart, J. Dunk, N. Rose, M. McIlvena, S. Dewarga.

Whip-Montana In Title Match Against Duseks

Whipper Watson and Hombre Montana will put their Canadian Open Tag Team Title on the line again next Wednesday at the Brock Arena. This time it will be against the famous Dusek brothers, Ernie and Emil.

The Duseks are two of the roughest grapplers in the game and the Watson-Montana combination will have to be at their best to retain their title. Not only are the Duseks clever matmen but they are wily, stopping at nothing to gain a verdict. However, with Whipper's experience and speed, plus the tremendous strength of Hombre, they should be able to stand the rough going the Duseks are bound to hand out.

The main event for the tag team title is the best match presented at the Brock in quite a spell. In fact the entire star-studded card is.

The semi-final will feature Fred Atkins and Ilio DiPaolo in what should be a sizzling battle. This has been proven by the terrific action and ruggedness shown by this pair in previous team bouts.

In the opener a newcomer, Ray Cernandos and Jack Bence will clash. This boy Bence is building up a big following here with his fine work shown in his last two matches. He's well worth seeing as is the entire card.

Chicago Hawks Could Break Record For Most Losses In One NHL Season

By JIM BASTABLE, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Chicago Black Hawks are heading for one of hockey's all-time records. Nobody wants it. Unless the Hawks win nine of their remaining 18 games, they will supplant the Chicago team of three years ago as the club that got the worst kicking around in the big time. It's an unenviable situation and the percentages say the Hawks are certain to end up in it. So far this year, they have won only nine games in 52 National Hockey League starts. Any fewer than nine wins before the 70-game schedule finishes next month will give Chicago more than the lowest record of 47 defeats.

The Hawks have little consolation in the team they run up against this week-end. They meet the second-place Toronto Maple Leafs in a home-and-home series and the Leafs have been showing late-season strength.

WEEKEND GAMES

There are four other week-end games. On Saturday the fifth-place New York Rangers clash with the third-place Canadiens at Montreal and the league-leading Detroit Red Wings meet the fourth-place Boston Bruins at Boston. Sunday it's Montreal at New York and Detroit at Boston, besides the Toronto-Chicago return match.

The Hawks have done just about everything to check their defeats. Nothing has worked.

General manager Bill Tobin negotiated with several NHL clubs but his money didn't talk. The Hawks ended up buying or calling up such youngsters as Ike Hildebrand of the Western League Vancouver Canucks and Jack McIntyre of the American League Hershey Bears. They still couldn't break even on wins and losses.

Hildebrand and McIntyre will make their Toronto debut tonight. McIntyre, a tall, 185-pounder from Regina, was sold to Chicago by the Bruins nearly three weeks ago. He has produced two goals in six games. Hildebrand, a 26-year-old rightwinger from Winnipeg, was bought outright from the Canucks.

Leonard Tied For Lead In Phoenix Open

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—It was the south against the Commonwealth as play swung into the third round of the $10,000 Phoenix open golf tournament.

Leading the way were Stan Leonard of Vancouver, Peter Thomson of Australia, and Cary Middlecoff from Memphis, Tenn., tied at 133 for the 36 holes.

Just one stroke back was an exhuberant young man from Tulsa, Okla., Bob Inman, who broke in as a caddy on this tournament site, the Phoenix Country Club, in 1942.

Thomson, 24-year-old 1952 Australian open champion and regarded as one of the finest young prospects in the world, followed his first-round 64 with a respectable 69. Middlecoff's 65 ushered him immediately to the front rank.

DRAWS GALLERY

But it was the competitive course-tying 63 fired by Leonard, the 38-year-old Canadian, and the spectacular putting luck of 26-year-old Inman which drew the gallery applause and earned the 138-pound lightweight a 65.

Two strokes off the pace starting out today were Jack Harden of El Paso, Tex., the co-leader with Thomson in the first round, and Johnny Weitzel of Hershey, Pa., a frequent but non-winning pro on the winter tournament circuit. Harden had a 71 and Weitzel a 69 for 135.

Ready to strike if the leaders falter were Freddie Haas Jr., of New Orleans, with two 68s, and Jim Ferrier, another Australian, who lives in San Francisco. Ferrier's 65 was virtually overlooked in the light of the leaders' exploits.

Among Friday's qualifiers was Gerry Kesselring of Kitchener, who put together a 39-36—75 to Thursday's 69 for a respectable 144 total. He and Leonard are the only Canadians left in the tournament.

PAFKO SIGNS BRAVE PACT

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Veteran Andy Pafko signed with Milwaukee Braves Friday for an estimated $30,000, believed to be a substantial increase over 1953.

The outfielder, obtained by the Braves from Brooklyn last winter rounded out 10 years of major league playing last summer when he hit .297 and drove in 72 runs in 140 games.

Giardello TKO's WalterCartier

NEW YORK (AP)—Joey Giardello, never known as a great puncher, dropped Walter Cartier three times in the first round Friday night to win an automatic technical knockout in 2:48 of their middleweight bout at Madison Square Garden. Giardello weighed 157¼, Cartier 161 pounds.

Referee Harry Kessler stopped the fight after the third knockdown in the round. Under New York state rules he had no choice.

Giardello dumped the 29-year-old New York veteran with a solid right hand shortly after the first minute of the fight. Cartier wobbled up at five but took the automatic eight-count.

The Philadelphia youngster, trying for a quick ending, bombed Cartier with another right shortly after they resumed fighting. Once more Cartier went down but he bounced up at two again, referee Kessler tolled off the automatic eight.

Phillipes Foursome Wins In Playoffs

TORONTO (CP) — A Toronto Granite rink, skipped by Alfie Phillipes, Friday won the right to represent the Toronto district in the Ontario curling championships.

The Phillipes' foursome downed Dr. J. Malcolmson's Toronto rink, 10-7, for their fourth straight win in the round robin playoffs. They clinched the honors when Tom Beattie's Toronto rink downed Andy Grant's Royal Canadians quartet 12-11 in an extra round.

Every other rink in the playoff lost at least two games.

Shore Suspends 7 Players Refusing To Make Switch

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP)—Owner Eddie Shore Friday transferred three of his best players from the Syracuse American League hockey team to Springfield in the Quebec League and suspended seven others who refused to make the switch.

Shore announced that Bronco Horvath, Vern Kaiser and Walter Atanas had been sent to Springfield.

He suspended Capt. Keith Allen, goalie Gordon Bell, Gordon Tottle, Dan Summers, Bill Gooden, Harry Pidhirny and Kelly Burnett.

Shore claimed that the seven had failed to live up to their contracts, which he said contained clauses stating that they must agree to be sent any place at any time.

At the same time, he announced that gaps in the Warriors' line-up would be filled by eight players from Springfield and two from Johnstown, Pa., with which Syracuse has a working agreement.

BOLSTER SPRINGFIELD

Syracuse hockey fans interpreted the move as an attempt to bolster the Springfield farm club, which is in last place in the Quebec League, at the expense of Syracuse, which stands fifth in the American League.

Attendance at Springfield has been reported larger than that at Syracuse this season.

Shore said he planned to test some farm club players in Syracuse during the balance of the season to find out who "could make the grade" in American League competition. He said then that he was planning for next season because Syracuse was not a strong contender for a playoff spot this year.

Called up from Springfield were Sheldon Bloomer, Ron Belford, Hal Tarallo, Ted Power, Ken Schenkle, Hartley MacLeod and goalie John Henderson, and Vern Paschal.

From the International League club in Johnstown, Shore called John Horvath, a centre and brother of Bronco Horvath, and Ross Kelly.

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Montreal Canadiens set an NHL record for longest undefeated streak at home, 18 consecutive games, by beating Chicago 6-1 at the Forum 10 years ago today. Canadiens went on to establish the existing record of 28 consecutive undefeated games at home, which ended Nov. 2, 1944, when they lost 4-1 to Toronto Maple Leafs.

Lyndhursts Down Switzerland 4-2 Before Crowd Of 15,000

BASEL, Switzerland (CP)—Toronto Lyndhursts, Canada's entry in the forthcoming world hockey championships at Stockholm, Friday night defeated Switzerland 4-2 before a crowd of 15,000.

The Canadians played a faster and harder game than the Swiss but nevertheless went into the third period with the score tied 1-1.

The Toronto team then scored three goals in 10 minutes to pull ahead and win.

John Petro scored twice for the Lyndhursts, and Donald Couch and William Sluce each scored once.

The Swiss, playing without two of their stalwarts—brothers Ueli and Gebi Poltera—produced some fine teamwork in the first period to lead Lyndhursts 1-0 on a shot by centre Schlaepfer.

Petro came back for Canada to tie the score at the third minute of the second period. Despite attempts by the Lyndhursts to force the pace, the Swiss revealed a well co-ordinated defence.

Petro put the Canadians ahead at the six-minute mark of the third. Schlaepfer tied the score for Switzerland four minutes later. Neither team could make much headway for the next few minutes but a sudden gap in the Swiss defence allowed Couch to roll the puck into the goal to put Canada in the lead.

Sluce scored for Canada a minute later and from then on the Swiss concentrated on staving off the attacking Canadians.

Gaudaur Refuses Any Comment On Fleck Deal

HAMILTON (CP) — Jake Gaudaur, president of Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Big Four Football Union, Friday night refused to confirm or deny a recent published report that the Tiger-Cats have signed tackle Bob Fleck of Syracuse University and end Ed Meadows of Duke University.

Fleck was Green Bay Packers' second choice in the recent National Football League draft and Meadows was Chicago Bears' third choice.

The report said Bob Snyder, fired coach of Calgary Stampeders of the Western Interprovincial Football Union, had submitted a list of 36 United States college football players sought by Canadian professional clubs to Bert Bell, NFL commissioner.

4 HAVE SIGNED

Of the 36 Snyder is reported to have told Bell that four, including Fleck and Meadows, have signed contracts with Canadian teams. The other two are quarterback Jackie Parker of Mississippi State, New York Giants 17th draft choice, and end Tom Miner of the University of Tulsa, Pittsburgh Steelers third draft selection. Both Parker and Miner were reported to have signed with Calgary.

Calgary recently announced they had signed Miner but it has made no announcement in connection with Parker. Calgary officials weren't immediately available for comment.

Maroons Drop 3-2 Game To Stratford Indians

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The jinx that usually shadows most players after they are honored in pre-game ceremonies didn't find Ed Didone Friday night.

Didone, a 23-year-old native of Timmins, and teammate Al Plouffe, also of Timmins, were showered with gifts in Chatham last night when 2,500 fans turned out to pay tribute to the only remaining members of the original Maroons since their re-organization in 1949-50.

The night wasn't a total success because the Maroons dropped a 3-2 verdict to Stratford Indians in a regular Ontario Hockey Association Senior "A" series game but Didone didn't let the fans down.

The five-foot, 10-inch forward was in on both Chatham goals, scoring the first and assisting on the second.

SUPREME VICTORY

In the only other league game Niagara Falls Cataracts surprised the third-place Hamilton Tigers with a 7-3 victory in Niagara Falls.

Sudbury Wolves took an 8-1, home-ice victory from Sault Ste. Marie (Mich.) Indians during the only game in the Northern Ontario Hockey Association Senior A southern group.

Stratford struck twice in the first period and once in the third to down the falling Maroons. Dinny Flanagan, Mickey Roth and Fred Pletsch registered goals for the Indians.

Ernie Dick followed up Didone's second-period goal with the game's final marker in the third.

8 POINTS AHEAD

The loss left the Maroons eight points in front of the Cataracts who are improving with every game.

A policeman was summoned in the third period when a fight threatened to break out between Hamilton's Hub Anslow and a Niagara Falls spectator.

Defenceman Tom Buck and rightwinger Ed Plata led the scoring parade, each with three goals. Gord Harley scored once.

Bud Kemp, Murray Comfort and Anslow shared the Hamilton total.

Sudbury's victory moved them to within eight points of the league-leading Sault Ste. Marie (Ont.) Greyhounds in the NOHA.

Ed Harrison led the Wolves with two goals and newcomer Pete Horeck made a successful debut by notching a single. Ed Joss scored the only goal for the Indians.

North Bay Trappers are at Greyhounds and Sudbury plays the Lumber Kings at Pembroke in the NOHA tonight. Sunday the Trappers meet the Indians at Sault Ste. Marie, Mich.

Windsor Bulldogs travel to Owen Sound for a game with the Mercurys, Stratford is at Kitchener to play the league-leading Dutchmen and Niagara Falls goes to Hamilton in the OHA tonight.

Provincial Police Beat Bancroft, 6-4

Peterborough Provincial Police puckists racked up their tenth straight victory—without a defeat so far—of the season last night when they yanked out a 6-4 win over the strong Bancroft team, previously undefeated this winter. A crowd of 832 paying fans in the northern village were surprised at the strength of the limbs of the law on ice, as the team, coached by Bob Lamb and managed by Russ Pollard, came up with a classy showing.

Don Lacombe led the victors with three goals, while Don Bark scored two and John Bark one. Other forwards who aided plenty were Jim Healey, John McNeil, Stewart and McFadden. Fine goaltending by Roy Feeley kept Bancroft down to four goals, and he was assisted by a strong defence of Gord Gray, George Louth, Elwood Palmateer and Archie Eadie.

The OPP team, awaiting word on their police playdowns, have a benefit game soon with Warkworth, while Bancroft is asking for a return match.

Task To Go Home

NURNBERG, Germany (CP)—An unarmed Czech air force plane landed about 15 miles from the Czech border Friday night and two officers aboard requested to be returned to their homeland immediately. The men said they had been forced to land because of engine trouble and a low fuel supply. A local farmer summoned police who turned the two Czechs over to United States military police.

Movie Villain Dies

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—Enrique Roldan, Argentina movie star, was killed late Friday on his 53rd birthday when he slipped while trying to catch a train and fell beneath the wheels. Roldan, in private life Jose Andres Garcia, was a veteran of the Argentine stage and screen. He usually portrayed villains.

NEARLY — A tense moment in a recent hockey clash between Canadiens and Leafs is caught by the cameraman in this action. Big Jean Beliveau is trying to blast the portals of Harry Lumley's Toronto cage. But the latter got the best of this rush act. That's Bert Olmstead rebound hunting in the background. Toronto moved into second place in the league standings by way of a 4-2 win over the Habs.

Brookside Victors

The Brookside Flyers edged Assumption Aces 9-8 in the Otonabee Rural League, Thursday night in Keene.

In the first period Brookside rolled to a 5-0 lead with B. Cowie scoring four goals and L. Selby getting one. R. Thomas of Brookside got the first penalty.

In the second period B. Cowie of Brookside scored another goal to make it read 6-0. Assumption finally broke into the scoring with M. Gooley getting the first goal and one goal each was scored by M. O'Brien, V. O'Brien and F. Clancy. Then L. Selby of Brookside scored two more goals to give Brookside the commanding lead of 8-4. B. Cowie and G. Cowie of Brookside got penalties.

In the third period Assumption worked hard and M. Gooley scored twice and D. Crowley and F. Clancy scored one each. B. Cowie scored for Brookside making the scoreboard read 9-8 for Brookside. G. Cowie received a penalty for Brookside.

Brookside: J. O'Brien, B. Cowie, L. Selby, G. Cowie, W. Cowie, R. Thomas, R. Howson, B. Clancy, C. Howson, J. Burns, B. Fontain, Sage.

Assumption: E. Fitzgerald, D. Musgrave, M. O'Brien, C. Cary, B. Humphries, V. O'Brien, S. Cary, D. Crowley, M. Gooley.

Barb Moorbey High

Barb Moorbey had high single of 340 and top three of 756 at the Wednesday afternoon lasses' bowling circuit, one of her other games being a 248 effort. Olive Downer rolled 213 and 233 in her 628 total. Rockets led teams with 891 single and 2473 total. Three points each were taken by Happy Gang, Rockets, Whizz Bangs, Dinkies, Tornadoes and Terrors over Bombers, Cisco Kids, Eager Beavers, Playfairs, Wild Cats and Ramblers.

Good singles: K. Kokesh 238, E. Ranesbottom 235 and 200, J. Casey 230 and 211, O. Watson 230, A. Lucas 228, T. Hamblin 221, M. Kennedy 217, P. Jackman 202, M. Young 201; better triples: J. Trial Delayed For 6 Months

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — The separate maintenance suit against James Roosevelt, in which his wife accuses him of adultery with 12 women, won't go to trial for six or eight months.

A crowded calendar will delay the case, said superior judge Kurtz Kauffman, who recessed a pre-trial hearing Friday after a lawyer tried to question Roosevelt about one of the women.

Kauffman ruled such questions will be proper only when Mrs. Romelle Schneider Roosevelt's suit for $3,500 monthly support actually is tried.

Details of Roosevelt's complex financial affairs and his family's standard of life were recited in the day-long court session. Opposing counsel will delve further into these matters when the temporary support hearing is resumed Feb. 15.

Mrs. Roosevelt's complaint names three women as co-respondents and incorporates a letter, signed by Roosevelt, in which he admits infidelities with nine other women. Since her suit was filed, Roosevelt has denied misconduct with any of the 12.

The day-long hearing, during which Roosevelt glared at his wife and she on occasion burst into tears, brought testimony ranging from the price of her dresses to Roosevelt's assertion that he built up a deficit of $120,000 in 4½ years.

Mrs. Roosevelt said her husband sold for one dollar his one-fourth share in business interests worth $4,000,000. The sale, she said, took place one week after he asked her for a divorce.

Roosevelt, an insurance man, referred to the business interests sold for a dollar as "worthless."

Introduced in evidence was a statement showing Roosevelt's receipts from Jan. 1, 1948, to July 31, 1952, were $217,034.6, while his expenditures were $338,684.36.

Mrs. Roosevelt said her estimate of monthly needs was based on "the manner in which we have lived for the past 12 years." In that period, she said, her dresses cost $300 apiece, she and Roosevelt often dined out at $20 for the two of them, they occupied $80-a-day hotel suites when they travelled. Household expenses, she said included $465 monthly for servants and $350 for food.

OTTAWA (CP) — The government is spending $200,000 to help finance the British Empire and Commonwealth Games in Vancouver this summer.

Finance Minister Abbott's 1954-55 estimates tabled in the Commons Friday provide for a second vote of $100,000 to the British Empire and Commonwealth Games (1954) Society to help defray the organization's anticipated deficit. The first grant of $100,000 was made to the society in the 1953-54 estimates.

A finance department official said it is expected that the $200,000 will be the maximum amount the government will appropriate for the games.

Frontenacs Drop 2-0 Decision to Kitchener

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Give or take a few games, the interlocking hockey schedule between Ontario and Quebec junior teams works out pretty even. The Ontario teams lose in Quebec and the Quebec teams are defeated on Ontario ice.

Friday night ran true to form. Three touring Quebec Amateur Hockey Association Junior clubs were all defeated, two by shutouts.

Quebec Frontenacs dropped a 2-0 decision to Kitchener-Waterloo Greenshirts and Montreal Royals were downed 5-0 by Hamilton Cubs. The other visiting team, Jonquiere Marquis, were walloped 10-3 by Guelph Biltmores, whose victory moved them out of last place in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A standings.

In an all-Ontario contest, St. Catharines TeePees increased their hold on first place in the standings to four points by defeating the Flyers 6-4 in Barrie.

EARLY MARGIN

In Kitchener 1,500 fans saw the Greenshirts score two first-period goals that carried them to the victory. Leftwinger Gary Collins fired both.

The Biltmores took over seventh place by defeating the Marquis in Guelph. Galt Black Hawks, who were idle, dropped to the cellar.

Guelph marksmen registered seven times before the Marquis could beat Biltmore netminder late in the second period.

Birley Dimma and Hillary Mensard, with two goals each, were the only players who could manage extra goals. John Gillis, Wally Para, Bill Pirie, Ike Scott, Bob Forhan and Ron Howell notched singles.

Claude Labrosse, Roger Landry and John Rouseau tallied for Jonquiere.

MAKES FIRST APPEARANCE

Denny Riggin, making his first appearance since injuring his shoulder two weeks ago, gained his fourth shutout of the season by blanking the Royals in Hamilton.

Bob Robinson scored two goals. Real Larouche, Cummy Burton and Ed Louttit fired singles.

Barrie's loss to St. Catharines prolonged the Flyers' slump to five consecutive defeats. Four have been suffered on home ice.

Barrie pressed in the third and were within one goal of the TeePees lead but Don McLean, with his second goal of the night, clinched it 48 seconds before the final buzzer. Barry Cullen also scored twice for St. Catharines with singles going to Hugh Barlow and Wimpy Roberts.

George Raneiri, Jim Robertson, Danny Roliziani and John Martan were the Barrie snipers.

GOALIE INJURED

Barrie netminder Jack Spencer was badly cut by a flying puck late in the game and was removed to hospital for X-rays. John Christie, a juvenile netminder, finished the game.

Hamilton goes to Galt, Guelph travels to St. Catharines, Barrie is at Toronto Marlboros and Kitchener at Toronto St. Michael's College Majors tonight.

Quebec Frontenacs play St. Michael's and Montreal Royals clash with Marlboros in a Toronto doubleheader Sunday.

Choir Clears $900 For Church Operetta

MILLBROOK (ENS) — The annual meeting of St. Andrew's United church choir was held on Thursday evening at the home of Miss Jean Burnham, the president. The Rev. A. M. Butler presided for the election of officers, and expressed appreciation of the "fine service" rendered by the choir through the year and especially at the re-opening and re-dedication of the church the previous Sunday.

Those elected were: president, Miss Jean Burnham; vice-president, Miss Yvonne Richards; secretary - treasurer, Donald Spicer; librarians, Miss Anne Dawson, Edith Clarke, Jessie Lunn and Betty North; music committee, Mrs. G. A. Spicer; choir director, Miss Evtella Hetherington; organist, the Rev. A. M. Butler, Fraser Carr, Gordon Might, Miss Diann Hogabaum and Mrs. Lawrence Winslow; gown committee, Mrs. Aubrey Powell; attendance officer, Miss Frances Dawson.

Members were requested to phone the choir director, organist or president on any occasion when they found they would be unable to attend either practice or a service.

Donald Spicer reported that after outfitting the junior choir, buying music and new collars for the senior choir, and building a new primary room for the Sunday school and furnishing it, the choir was once again short of funds. Nine hundred dollars had been cleared from performances of the operetta "The Belle of Barcelona" and two benefit performances had been given in the past year.

It was decided to hold an entertainment in the newly-renovated church hall the last week in March.

Refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by other choir members.

New Brunswick Town Makes Claim To Biggest Canadian Stamp Business

ST. STEPHEN, N.B. (CP)—This town on the New Brunswick-Maine border claims the biggest stamp business in Canada. Only two or three comparable firms in the United States have greater volume.

The company here which mails stamps by the millions to collectors was founded 23 years ago by Ralph O. Garcelon, now 45, who started with a mediocre collection. The company seldom deals in rare stamps, but ships its offerings in huge quantities.

"We conduct a mail order business," Garcelon explained in an interview. "We send out the greater part of our volume on approval to stamp collectors. Apparently there is a high degree of honesty among collectors. Our losses, under the approval system, are relatively light."

TRANS-BORDER TRADE

The huge volume has been instrumental in raising the classification of a post office in another country. Many of the stamps fan out through the United States from nearby Calais, Me., where the acting postmaster says business from the Canadian stamp company has been a major factor in promoting his office from a second- to a first-class rating, based on gross receipts.

Last winter five tons of one grouping alone were mailed. More recently, rows of girls at neat desks assembled 100,000 packets of Czechoslovakian issues, 40 to a packet, for a total of 4,000,000 stamps in the single offering. In another period the quick-fingered girls slipped 5,000,000 Yugoslav stamps into 100,000 envelopes.

The company employs 60 or more workers in winter, its busiest time.

Mr. Garcelon became a stamp collector at the age of 10. Although his collection never passed what he calls the "beginner's stage," he sold it six years later and ventured into the retail end of the hobby. After a year he was able to quit his bookkeeping job and, in the third year, hire one helper.

POPULAR HOBBY

Asked why stamps fascinate so many people, he said:

"It's the attraction of something from foreign countries and the scenes of different ways of life. And there's the satisfaction that comes with completion of a project, getting in an album a complete set. The beauty of many stamps is another main attraction. Some are very fine, with the engravings real works of art."

Mr. Garcelon is not impressed with Canadian issues in the last few years.

"In my opinion, Canadian stamps were among the most attractive issued anywhere up until about 1950. Since then Canada has put out quite a number which are far from attractive."

He considers British colonials, designed and printed in Britain, tops in stamps from an aesthetc standpoint.

Military Stockpiling Helps, Appropriations Reduced

OTTAWA (CP) — Defence appropriations are cut about five per cent in the estimates for the 1954-55 fiscal year tabled today in the Commons.

Finance Minister Abbott is asking Parliament to vote $1,908,000,000 for national defence compared to $2,000,795,000 in the year ending March 31, 1954.

The $92,795,000 cut reflects the fact that stockpiling of such things as clothing and ammunition and construction of works such as airfields and barracks are over the hump.

The appropriations among the services are roughly the same, though the navy and defence research board come out slightly on top in the carve-up of the defence dollar.

The senior service estimates is $337,281,000 compared to $332,356,050 in the current fiscal year. Though the navy requirements for ammunition, armament, clothing and construction are all less, there is a whacking increase for aircraft and aircraft engines. The $23,538,000 compared to the former $1,538,000 will represent partial payment for the new Banshee jet fighters and Grumman anti-submarine hunters now on order.

The army appropriation is cut from $533,007,000 to $506,595,000.

Increased emphasis apparently will be placed on heavy armor and mobility. Appropriation for tanks and other armored vehicles is placed at $26,064,000 compared to $17,810,000 in the current fiscal year.

The RCAF still gets more than the other two services combined, though its appropriation is down slightly from $1,018,019,100 to $989,500,000. Gas and oil, upkeep and repairs to aircraft and ammunition will cost more but aircraft and engines will cost less—$395,301,000 compared to $429,410,700.

Appropriation for the defence research board is $50,400,000 compared to $42,000,000 the previous year. Mutual aid to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, as announced previously by Defence Minister Claxton, will come to $300,000,000, down $24,000,000.

Pay and allowances are increased in all services, reflecting the recently announced pay boosts and a probable increase in number of personnel. This bill will be $318,467,665 compared to $280,480,440 in the current fiscal year. Pay for civilians employed by the services will be $126,398,103, an increase of about $25,000,000. The civil service also received pay boosts late last year.

Construction costs for all three services will be down from $224,381,950 to $184,221,850 and equipment costs down from $779,774,613 to $723,648,460.

The appropriation for civil defence is $6,498,253, a slight decrease from the current fiscal year.

Mr. Abbott said in a statement that the over-all decrease for defence reflects a tapering-off in the capital assistance plan for defence industry and the "more stable character of the defence department's equipment procurement program."

Though the government appropriated $2,000,795,000 for defence in the current fiscal year, it estimates it will have actually spent about $100,000,000 less than this by March 1.

In the 1952-53 fiscal year, the government appropriated $2,001,725,000 for defence but spent around $115,000,000 less.

Suter Praises Drama Support

TRAIL, B.C. (CP)—Adjudicator Graham Suter had a message for the rest of Canada Friday night as he gave his adjudication of the Trail Little Theatre's presentation in the British Columbia regional drama festival.

Noting that this was the third time the comedy "For Love or Money" had been performed by the group in Trail, Mr. Suter said smaller centres across the country seem to give theatre groups "darn sight better support than the big cities."

An almost capacity house of 700 persons saw the performance of the F. Hugh Herbert comedy. Mr. Suter described it as an "absolutely first rate" performance.

The adjudicator said the Trail choice was ambitious. It was a challenge which, through the direction of Janie Stevenson, was ably met.

He said the sets were some of the best he had seen in Canada.

The one fault Mr. Suter found was the length of time spent in scene changes.

The topic was given by Mrs. V. M. Gilbert, on her recent trip to Los Angeles, California.

Lunch was served by the hostess and committee in charge, after which all repeated the Mizpah benediction.

Committee To Study Overcrowding At Hospital

A committee to study overcrowding at the Peterborough Civic Hospital has been formed among the medical staff, president Dr. J. R. E. Morgan told the annual meeting of the board of governors Thursday night.

The function of the new committee is to survey present hospital bed accommodation to help citizens whose admittance is delayed because of shortages and inadequacies. The committee will also discuss the problem of chronically ill patients, perhaps with a view to removing them from the Civic.

A medical social service worker may also be appointed, Dr. Morgan said. Such a worker could correlate the various community services and help patients move from hospital back to private accommodation.

Dr. Morgan's report, which gave a general summary of the activities of the medical staff in 1953, made particular mention of the psychiatric service established at the hospital last year. Dr. J. S. Pratten is in charge of this service.

MENTAL HEALTH

The mental health clinic is "not all it could be" said Dr. J. S. Pratten in his report, because of a shortage of funds and space. He expressed the hope that the community would come through with more funds in 1954 to make the clinic more self-sufficient.

Though hampered by these "inadequacies," the psychiatric service handled 135 cases referred by other doctors last year, Dr. Pratten reported. There were 573 interviews, mostly an hour long, "because this type of treatment can't be done in a few minutes."

In December, the first month of operation of the physcial therapy treatment room, 44 electro-shock treatments were given to mentally ill persons.

One of the busiest hospital services is that of radiology, according to a report by Dr. W. M. McCutcheon. The number of diagnostic examinations has increased from 2,500 in 1946 to over 7,000 last year, not including various outside chest X-ray programs. The radiological staff reviewed more than 19,000 films in 1953.

There is more examination of outpatients than of those in hospital, said Dr. McCutcheon. Much of this, handled by a staff of five, is chest X-ray service on behalf of the clinics, for workers joining factories, for insurance policies and other services. In addition, chest X-rays are taken of all patients admitted to hospital. An average of twelve such patients per month are referred back to their doctors for further examinations through the radiological service.

LOTS OF BABIES

There continues to be a steady demand for the services of obstetricians, Dr. G. R. Scott reported. Ten pairs of twins were included among the 769 mothers delivered in 1953. Thirty-three pregnancies aborted in hospital. There were 497 gynaecological operations, up 62 from 1952.

The pediatrics service, closely related to the obstetric, also reported a busy year under Drs. D. R. Clark, R. M. Mathews and A. K. Moffatt. Biggest advances during the year were the tubercular testing of all pediatric admissions, including new-born, bathing new babies with a new antiseptic detergent and sterilization of all infant feedings. Four croupettes are now available, and there is a new infant bronchoscope. There was a total of 662 pediatric discharges during the year.

The hospital was averaging 60 surgical beds filled per day in 1953, Dr. L. J. Calvert reported for the Service of Surgery. Total number of cases was up to 2,459 from 2,268 with especially significant increases in neurology and gynaecology operations. Biggest development is the establishment of the post-operative recovery room in the orthopaedic theatre.

Last year saw a small decrease in the total number of cases diagnosed through the Service of Medicine, said Dr. D. B. Kelly. There was, however, a jump from 25 to 74 in communicable diseases, due mainly to 47 polio cases and a small epidemic of jaundice. There was also a large increase in the number of dermatological cases treated.

There are 90 doctors associated with the hospital, including honorary members of the medical staff and those listed as probationary members.

Dispute Flares Between Unions In Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — A dispute between two entertainers' unions flared up in two spots here Friday — the CBC's variety television show, The Big Revue, and Canadian International Hobby and Homecraft Show.

In each case members of the American Guild of Variety Artists (TLC) had to cancel scheduled performances because artists belonging to the Toronto Musicians' Protective Association (TLC) refused to play in the same show. Managers had to cancel the AGVA acts or do without music entirely.

In the case of the CBC, the act affected is the Revue Dancers, four young Canadians.

PUPPETEER BANNED

At the hobby show puppeteer Ernest Corley agreed to cancel his part after Auguste Bolte, general manager of the show, received a telegram from Walter Murdoch, musicians' union president. Murdoch said organist Horace Lapp, billed for the same show, could not appear if Corley did.

"If we permitted him to go on," said Mr. Bolte, "we faced the possibility that the Kate Aitken Theatre and opening ceremonies would be cancelled."

The musicians' union offered "auxiliary" membership to AGVA artists and some accepted, presumably temporarily. AGVA headquarters in New York said, however, they were not prepared to sit back and watch their local here absorbed — even temporarily.

The Revue Dancers were uncertain about their future, but puppeteer Corley said he would not be intimidated by the musicians' union.

Recall Clash With Mr. King

LONDON (CP) — In a sidelight on Prime Minister St. Laurent's world tour, a British newspaper today recalled what it described as a "disagreeable clash" between him and former prime minister Mackenzie King.

The Daily Telegraph said Clement Attlee, then British prime minister, sent a telegram to Ottawa in 1947 announcing the grant of independence to India. The prime minister was away, and his successor, then a cabinet minister, signed a reply welcoming British policy.

"When Mr. King returned he lashed out at St. Laurent and added that he was horrified at the thought of an Asiatic majority dominating the Commonwealth," the paper said.

The Telegraph did not give the source of its reminiscence. It was recalling the reported incident in connection with the Far East phase of the Canadian premier's tour, which has Asian goodwill and friendship as primary objectives.

Many Children Give Up TV For Radio

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—The charm of old things never disappears.

Many children growing up in the television era now are discovering and enjoying an antique, old-fashioned form of home entertainment their parents have appreciated for some years. It is called radio.

"The kids are going back to radio," said Johnny Sinn. "There are some programs they like better on radio because they can imagine the scenes better than if they are shown on a screen."

One of his own children, for example, prefers hearing the horse opera, "Cisco Kid," on radio to watching it on television. The "Cisco Kid," happens to be one of many characters who walk, talk or gallop for Johnny on either radio, television or both.

You probably never heard of John L. Sinn. But at 38 he is one of the bigger figures in the world of entertainment, and one of the least known to the public. He and his partner, Fred. W. Ziv, produce—at the moment—23 weekly radio and 12 television shows. They have 500 employees, their own Hollywood studio.

Some of the programs Johnny Sinn never has to worry about getting tickets to are "Boston Blackie," "District Attorney" and "The Hour Stars." They are his.

DID EVERYTHING

Only 18 years ago Sinn quit college to take a $25-a-week job in radio station WLW in Cincinnati.

How did he leap from $25 a week to a partnership in a $20,000,000-a-year firm? It began with a gimmick or, as they say in the advertising field, an idea.

Johnny thought up a program for a local bakery firm called "The Freshest Thing in Town" that caught on well. He and Fred Ziv, owner of an advertising agency, decided to try to get other bakeries in other towns to buy it. The idea worked.

"We just went on from there," Sinn recalled. "As we brought in more money, we created more programs, hired bigger stars, sold our shows to more stations."

Compromise Methods Pay Off For U.S. President

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)— President Eisenhower is like a man who needs the help of his neighbors at harvest time and has to be careful he doesn't make them mad when they get a notion to trample his flower bed.

He could run them off with a shotgun when they come trooping into his front yard, heading for the flowers. But then they might not come when he called them to get the crops in.

Or he could stand his ground, saying pleasantly but firmly: "Please, don't." They couldn't get mad at that. They might even get into an argument about their whole expedition and walk off without bending a daisy.

Eisenhower has seldom relied on a shotgun. A good example is his handling of the Bricker amendment.

It was clear when Eisenhower took over last year that in a Congress as evenly divided between Democrats and Republicans as this one he'd need all the help he could get from both sides to put his program over.

From what is publicly known about his relations with the lawmakers he has never given any of them reason to be mad at him on personal grounds, as former president Truman sometimes did.

It remains to be seen whether this studied consideration for people's feelings can rally to him all the support he will need on legislation he most wants passed.

He started off the year well. The Senate approved United States co-operation with Canada on the St. Lawrence seaway, a project which for 20 years never got to first base in the Senate.

There was unusual support—63 senators at one time—behind the proposal of Senator Bricker to amend the constitution in a way that would:

Restrict the extent of treaties made by the president with the Senate's consent and provide for congressional regulation of executive agreements made by the president himself with other countries.

Several times last year Eisenhower said he was against the particular amendment the Ohio Republican was suggesting.

Eisenhower said the proposal would tie his hands in foreign affairs. Some Bricker critics thought Eisenhower should have pulled a shotgun right there by refusing to make any concessions.

He chose a more moderate course. He said he'd compromise, that if the senators really thought some kind of amendment was needed he wouldn't object to one that said no treaty could override the constitution.

This stand tumbled a bunch of Bricker's supporters off his bandwagon and practically killed his amendment.

Modernizing Old Country Home Warrants Careful Consideration

With spring only a few weeks away, many readers will soon be stricken with the annual bug of remodelling an old country home and leaving the noise and confusion of the city forever. We won't go into the merits of country versus city living — but to those readers who are seriously considering the plunge, we offer some suggestions concerning modernizing that warrant careful consideration.

In the majority of remodelling ventures, the new owners have been well pleased with the results . . . but there are also a few who wish they had never thought of the idea. These are the unfortunates who didn't give the matter sufficient preliminary check-up before rushing into a purchase agreement.

Somewhere in the life of every building comes a point where the cost of remodelling becomes out of all proportion to the increase in livability that results. Modernization is most successful when the house is most suitable for it. This may sound a bit obvious, but it is nevertheless a basic fact.

CHECK TREND IN DISTRICT

Let's start in first by checking the desirability of the neighborhood in which your proposed remodelling venture is located. It's poor business to do any considerable amount of modernizing in a district that is running downhill. There's not much point in spending $3,000 to add 40 years more life to a home if the surroundings are going to be undesirable in a few years' time.

Old houses vary considerably in their adaptability to remodelling. Many fine old homes of simple design require very little exterior work to bring them right up to the best of 1954 design. On the other hand, there are also a great number of awkward old monstrosities (complete with turrets) that practically defy being remodelled into attractive homes.

A good idea is to take one or two photos of the house you have in mind and have several enlargements made. You won't have to be an artist to block out the particularly bad features and paint in suggested improvements. You may want to paint in an attached garage, a whole new wing or possibly just shutters. Landscaping is also easily blocked in. While you certainly won't consider this painting worthy of hanging over the mantel, it will give you a good idea of what can be done . . . a lot clearer than if you try to picture the possibilities only in your mind.

Exterior appearance is, of course, no more important than the plan and structural condition of the house. Each will have to be studied carefully.

FOUNDATIONS MOST IMPORTANT

You should check carefully on the conditions of the foundations to see that they are not settling. A good proportion of homes, even well-built ones, settle to some degree. Foundations often settle somewhat during the first few years into their permanent position, after which settling will stop . . . but don't take it for granted that just because a house is old tha no further cracks will develop. Big new cracks in the plaster . . . new since the last decorating job was done . mean settlement or structural weakness not yet stopped or corrected. Serious settling in old houses will often show up in sticking doors and sagging door frames . . . . sometimes in sloping floors.

Take a look in the basement for cracked foundations. And while you're there, see if there is any excessive moisture in the basement. Should either of these conditions exist, it's a good precaution to find out from a local contractor or architect just how expensive a job this will be to remedy . . . . better to get the bad news now rather than take a jolt after you've made the purchase. Don't under-rate the seriousness of a damp basement.

WAS IT WELL BUILT?

The basement is also a good place to examine the house for indications of type of construction . . . whether it is flimsily or soundly built.

Light joists with a tendency to curve is a bad indication. Good nailing, always important, can also be checked. Is the bridging all in place and well nailed? If construction details in the basement show good workmanship and materials you can usually rely on the whole house being equally well built.

Sills (wood plates along the top of the foundation) are also worth a check. Try them with a strong jack-knife to see if they have "dry-rot." Check them also for signs of moisture. Excessive moisture is serious . . . wood construction will last a long time if dry and well nailed, but dampness seriously shortens its life.

CHANGING ROOM LAYOUT

When we examine the plan of an old house, the weaknesses that first meet our eyes often include (a) a very small living room, (b) poorly designed kitchens and bathrooms, and (c) a lack of closet space, particularly in bedrooms. To bring the plan into line with 1954 living requirements, major plan changes are often deemed advisable.

Before starting in to replan the interior of a home you'll need to know which of the partitions can be removed and which are "bearing" walls. If you can't determine this yourself, your builder or architect will quickly know, and can tell you which walls may be removed. Bearing walls can be removed of course, but it gets rather expensive, involving steel beams to support the load above. Part of a bearing wall may sometimes be removed, leaving a wide doorway or arched opening, with the structure above carried on solid posts at either side.

Planning such changes calls for a little bit of ingenuity. Many old houses have been purchased cheaply because no other prospective purchasers have seen further than the fact that they had undesirable plans.

PLUMBING, WIRING, HEATING

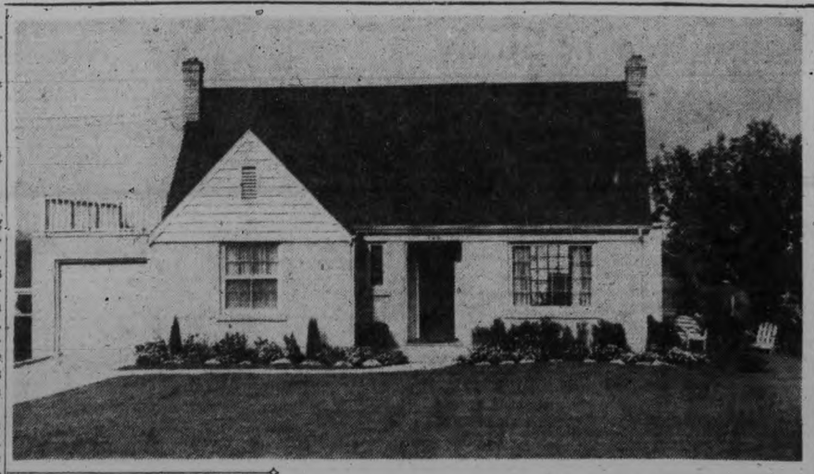
Such items as wiring (usually hopelessly inadequate in older houses) should be carefully considered when making plans. Before replastering a wall you'll want to think of wiring changes (insulation, heating pipes and plumbing, too) while the wall is still open. Particularly when you are planning a progressive modernization job over a number of years, you'll want to have planned well ahead for the most efficient mechanical connections.

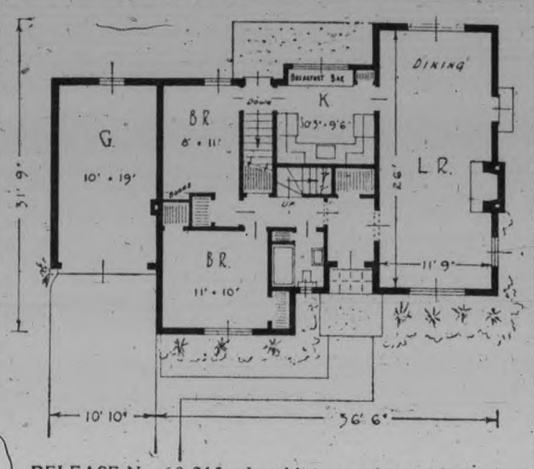
No mater how many alterations you make on the exterior of a house, there's bound to be certain features in its appearance you will want to minimize. Particularly where you plan to leave certain improvements until a later date, paint can do wonders in camouflaging. For example . . . should the lines of the roof be awkward, you can paint its stronger lines in with the house itself . . . thus making it as inconspicuous as possible. Also you can take the eye away from the roof by emphasizing architectural details at a lower level . . . perhaps painting the shutters a fairly dominating color.

A bright red door may sound rather startling, but it will certainly distract the eye from bad roof lines above.

ARCHITECT'S STYLE

Palladian architecture was named after Andrea Palladio, 1518-1580, who helped build St. Peter's, Rome.





RELEASE No. 63-215—In addition to the two bedrooms and bath on the ground floor, a third finished bedroom—with space provision for yet another—is provided upstairs. Living and dining area are combined to form one big 26' room—an increasingly popular feature with many Canadian home builders. While some readers may not look with too much favor on the necessity of walking through the living-room to reach the kitchen—you must agree that this plan offers just about every other planning convenience. Notice the happy location of the bathroom—the most conveniently planned kitchen with breakfast bar overlooking the rear garden—the abundant amount of closet space—the sheltered entrance, etc. The home of F. H. Wetmore in Oshawa, this design contains about 26,700 cubic feet. For working drawings, write Home Building In Canada, 2842 Bloor St. W., Toronto.

Re-elected Manager For 28th Year

ROSENEATH (ENS)—Herbert J. McCracken was re-elected manager of Alnwick Rural Telephone Company for the 28th time at the annual meeting Wednesday.

Under his management the telephone house and office were built miles of telephone lines built in the township and modern equipment purchased.

Other officers re-elected were: President, Earl Braithwaite; secretary-treasurer, Rupert B. Nichol; manager, Herbert J. McCracken; directors, Dawson Timlin, Leo Timlin.

The financial statement presented by the secretary-treasurer showed total receipts for the year at $8,590.25 with a balance on hand of $1,363.09. The expenditures included wages for switchboard operator, Mrs. Eldon George, $1,500.

Included in the assets were lines and equipment value at $6,460.53; telephone house and office, value $2,500 and uncollected accounts for 1953 of $1,918.22.

Flying Doctors

Your Garden:

No All-Purpose Plant Dust But 5,000 Makes Available

By HENRY PREE

Did you know that there is no all-purpose dust for trees, shrubs or flowers?

We now have over five thousand spray formulations to choose from, some are multipurpose, while others serve only one purpose; none are all-purpose.

Double check on the troublesome insects and disease before spraying. It is always best to know exactly what the spray is expected to control. Too often spraying is done in the home garden merely because some one else has done it, or it is "about time" the plants were attended to.

To be truly effective, the application must be timed correctly.

The American gardener is, as a rule, a most gullible person and will fall for any ad which says that "anyone can grow this plant." Mrs. McGillicuddy fell for the orchid ad and because the temperature in her home, like most others, was maintained at 75 degrees and more, the orchid withered and died.

Orchids offer a challenge to the home gardener. They require high light intensity (about 80 per cent of outdoor light intensity), high humidity (between 60 to 80 per cent), and a year-round temperature of 60 to 70 degrees. Unless the indoor gardener can closely approximate these greenhouse conditions she had better stick to African violets and sansevieria.

AND THE OUTDOORS

For the outdoor gardener who desires to grow sweet peas despite repeated failure, the old gardener suggests trying a new giant heat-resistant sweet pea. This new variety produced long stemmed flowers in profusion last summer, despite high temperatures and drought.

It comes in light blue, dark blue, orange, scarlet, salmon-pink, white or mixed colors.

Another heat-resistant sweet pea worth a trial is Cuthbertson Floribunda. It produces five or more fragrant flowers to a stem. Colors offered are white, blue, light lavender, mauve and salmon-pink.

Anyone who plans to keep a poinsettia that has served its purpose should water it two or three times more then store it in a dry cool place in the basement.

There it can be forgotten until next May when it should be cut back to within six or eight inches from the base, repotted or top-dressed with rich soil and put out in the garden for the summer. Brought indoors in mid-September, it might bloom again.

In attracting birds, food is the most important part, for without food no matter how fancy or attractive the feeding device, the birds will not come.

Birds have a high body temperature, as high as 108 degrees, and need a great deal of food, particularly fatty foods, to maintain that temperature. That is why so many birds perish, often overnight, after a severe winter storm which covers their meager food supply at that time of year.

Therefore, when you are considering feeding birds or are feeding them be sure to have a good supply of fatty foods like suet.

There are many sprays on the market, so before you use any read the directions and find out their purpose.

Gardening Questions

Q—Pansy and Sweet William seed, sown in the garden late in May, failed to produce blooming plants. Since all conditions seemed favorable, we wonder what went wrong?

A—These plants are known as biennials and do not flower until the second year and then pass on to their reward.

Q—Which roses are most in demand by home gardeners?

A—Peace, winner of the All-American Rose award in 1946, and Fashion, selected in 1950, have been the most popular roses in the United States since their introduction.

Q—Is it too late to treat my gladiolus bulbs to guard them against thrip infestation?

A—If you have not yet dusted your gladiolus bulbs do so at once. A 5 or 10 per cent DDT dust is best. Each bulb must have a light film of dust on it in order to come in contact with the tiny insects.

Q—How soon can forsythia branches be brought indoors for forcing in bloom?

A—Anytime now.

Do-It-Yourself On Homemade Workbench

By MR. FIX

If you have followed the pattern set by others since the "do-it-yourself" boom got into full swing, then you've purchased tools as they were needed, or got them for Christmas. Now you have a number of handy tools and no very handy place to keep them.

Besides, you're tired of cutting and pounding out those original creations on Grandma's old kitchen table, or on plank on a pair of saw horses. In other words, you are about ready for a workbench—one with drawers in which to store at least some of the tools.

You can construct a simple, yet sturdy, bench, using only a few basic woodworking tools—crosscut saw, chisel, brace and bit, screw driver, hammer and crescent wrench. The bench has three tool drawers that are easily built, requiring none of the fancy rabbeting that can only be done well on a power saw.

All the materials needed for a basic bench, without drawers, are about 42 feet of 2 x 4 lumber, 18 square feet of ¾-inch plywood, 10 square feet of ½-inch plywood, 6 feet of ¾ x 1-inch strip, 32 ⅜ x 4-inch carriage bolts, 46 1¼-inch screws, and 50 2½-inch screws, No. 10.

For drawers, add 18 feet of 1 x 8-inch pine, 10 square feet of ¾-inch plywood, 22 feet of ¾ x 2⅝-inch pine, 6 square feet of ¼-inch tempered hardboard, 36 1½-inch screws and 150 1¼-inch screws.

Study closely the illustration with this column before starting work on the bench. Note the bench top has a two-inch overhang at the front and on one end, and a 10-inch overhang for a woodworker's vise at the opposite end. The top is made of two pieces of ¾-inch plywood, the upper piece being four inches narrower than the lower one. This is to allow for a trough at the rear which is framed in with ¾ x 1-inch strips.

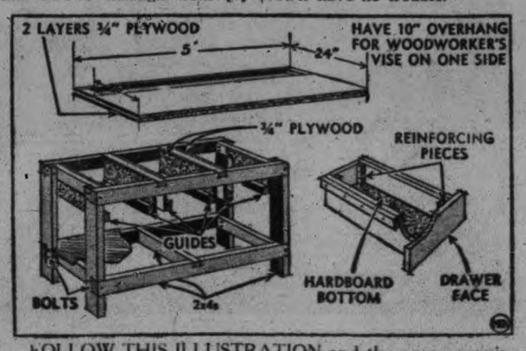
It is best to cut all frame members before starting assembly. Each leg is notched in two places to receive the four-foot upper and lower frame members. In addition, the bottom frame members are notched in the middle for a half-lap joint with a cross brace. Similar treatment is given the top members which are each notched in two places. Cross braces are notched for the joints, as well.

Where two members are to be fastened together with carriage bolts, it is a good idea to clamp them together while drilling ⅜-inch holes for bolts. A woodworker's C-clamp will do.

When frame is assembled, the top is fastened down with 2½-inch screws through both plywood sheets into the frame. Space screws seen to eight inches apart. Notch lower ½-inch plywood shelf for corners and fasten with 1¼-inch screws.

Drawers are made of 1 x 8-inch lumber butt-joined at the corners. Corners are reinforced inside with 1¼-inch screws driven through scrap ¾ x ¾-inch wood. Hardboard drawer bottoms are reinforced underneath in much the same way. Slides of ¾ x 2⅝-inch pine are screwed to drawer sides.

Cut drawer supports 9½ x 22 inches out of ¾-inch plywood and fasten to upper cross braces of the frame with 1½-inch screws. Distance between cross braces determines the width of the drawers. Drawer guides of ¾ x 2⅝-inch strips 21 inches long are screwed to the plywood supports. Drawer slides ride on these rails. Just follow the illustration and you'll have no trouble.



FOLLOW THIS ILLUSTRATION and the accompanying column to build a sturdy workbench with drawers in which tools can be stored.

Children's Parties At Kremlin Featured New Year Season

By BILL BOSS

MOSCOW (CP) — Children's parties at the Kremlin were a feature of the New Year season in Moscow this year.

Parties for the boys and girls, in the Hall of the Trade Unions, Tschaikowsky Concert Hall, palaces of culture, schools and factories, are customary during the first two weeks of the year, but this year, for the first time, the Kremlin, too, was opened to the youngsters.

There, for eight days, 4,000 children a day laughed and chattered in the halls of the czars, danced, applauded acts from Moscow's major theatres and peeled oranges on brocaded benches used for centuries by the aristocracy of Imperial Russia.

They paid five rubles ($1.25) each for this privilege.

TOP ENTERTAINMENT

Ballerinas from the Bolshoi and Stanislovski theatres, tumblers, jugglers and clowns from the circus, entertained the kids who also were led in dances, periodic deep-breathing and running exercises to keep them from getting bored.

Those attending the Kremlin parties were told to make the most of the opportunity, to walk around and take in its sights. Guides in each of the main rooms pointed out the main features and told the children about them.

To a Canadian it seemed strange that so much should be made of opening up the "parliament buildings" to the people. The Parliament buildings in Ottawa or any provincial capital can be visited any day, by anyone.

There was music everywhere, from two or three accordionists in the banquet room of the Granavite Palace to small orchestras in other rooms.

SPECIAL SONG

A new song was introduced, too, called "In the Kremlin Palace." Composed by the Pokras brothers, popular Russian song writers, with lyrics by the poet Dolmatovsky, a translation runs:

"Greetings our great Kremlin, on this best of all best days,
Red-starred and golden-towered, receive your children.
Let the fir tree blossom in lights, as our dear land blossomed,
The people gave us this job, the Party gave us this joy.
The bells of the Spaski Tower chime, the whole palace is open to us.
This hour can but be compared with the most wonderful fairy tale.
We will never forget the festive fir tree in the Kremlin,
And will never forget the struggle for world peace."

Some Kremlin parties were held in St. George's Hall, whose marble walls are inscribed with the names of individuals, army battalions and navy ships honored with the highest service decoration of czarist Russia. Still over the stage is a great bas-relief of England's patron saint slaying the dragon.

Clocks Ticking In Unison

ment was the conceptual mean solar day, divided into 24 equal parts and these again into minutes and seconds. The hypothetical chronometer was at the centre of the earth. Chief difficulty at the beginning was the persuading of the civilized nations to adopt a single Prime Meridian for all nations, replacing the multiplicity of initial meridians, and ending the confusion caused by innumerable "local times". For a time, but happily not for long, national jealousies seemed to stand in the way of the adoption of a universal meridian as zero for the determination of the global time zones.

In 1880, the American Metrological Society concurred in Fleming's proposal to establish an International Committee on Standard Time. Both societies sent representatives to the International Geographical Congress in Vienna in 1881, Fleming representing Canada. In 1883, the International Geodetic Association met in Rome and the culmination came with the holding of the International Prime Meridian Conference in Washington, in October, 1884, with Fleming again Canada's representative. Out of all these conferences came the decision by the leading nations to adopt as the initial meridian of longitude that passing through the transit instrument at Greenwich Observatory. From this zero line, longitude was counted in two directions, up to 180 degrees, east being plus and west minus. On January 1, 1885, the 24-hour day was adopted at Greenwich, though the railways of Canada and the United States had put it into force in 1883.

RECOGNITION

The Canadian Institute paid this tribute to Sandford Fleming: "To his own continued earnest and honorable labors in the cause Mr. Fleming has made no reference. This omission the Institute is constrained to notice in justice to Mr. Fleming and in justice to themselves. They may say what he has left unsaid, that his efforts have contributed in no small degree to the adoption of an initial meridian common to all nations and that he has unquestionably been the initiator and principal agent in the movement for reform in Time-Reckoning and in the establishment of the Universal Day."

In 1880, Sir Sandford was installed as Chancellor of Queen's University, Kingston. Another name proposed was that of Samuel Hume Blake but the selection of Fleming was greeted with high satisfation by his old friend Principal George M. Grant, who had written the story "Ocean to Ocean" describing the transcontinental tour in 1872 of a party which included both men. Dr. Grant since his appointment in 1877 had been working assiduously to build up the fortunes of Queen's which had suffered set-backs for many years. He had established an endowment fund. To this Fleming had contributed $5,000 and had persuaded Allan Gilmour to do likewise.

KNIGHTHOOD

Through all his remaining years Sandford Fleming, who had not himself attended a University, took a keen interest in the affairs of Queen's, and records of his scholarly addresses in which he outlined his broad and tolerant views, especially on education, remain as cherished documents. In 1908, his services were recognized in the conferring upon him of the LL.D. degree. He had been similarly honored by St. Andrew's and Columbia universities. In 1897, he became Sir Sandford, with the conferring of K.C.M.G. in recognition of his public services. He was a valued member of many scientific and historical societies.

From his earliest days in Peterborough, Sandford Fleming had struggled unremittingly for his ideal "Build Up Canada". His aims always were toward the realizing of the Higher Values of Mind and Spirit. His work at times, as in the case of Standard Time, was mathematical and abstract—on other occasions, as in his railway-building, he was concerned more immediately with the physical and concrete.

But over-arching all these diversities of phase was an abiding Oneness of moral perception. Rightly or wrongly, he directed his efforts constantly toward a British unity which he believed to be an inevitable precursor of international peace and of greater sympathy and understanding among the world's peoples.

Summing up more simply, we may conclude that Sandford Fleming gave the world an object lesson in orderly thinking as a requisite of ethical living. He demonstrated to his fellow-men that they might, as William James once suggested, "do something with time except waste it".

Taylor Becomes "King" At MGM Studio

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—With Clark Gable checking out as "king" of MGM, the crown falls on the unwilling head of Robert Taylor.

"None of that 'king' business for me," laughs Taylor, who made it clear that he'll just keep on doing his job without any regard for royalty. A 20-year man in films, he still has 2½ years to go on his MGM contract.

Taylor is appearing in another epic, "Valley of the Kings," the story of finding a fabulous Egyptian tomb. He says he likes to do pictures in which the dramatics are not so overpowered by massive production values. But he probably won't get his wish. The Taylor-made epics are too successful at the box office.

It was the birthday season on the scenes of "Betrayed." Vic Mature celebrated his 38th while working last Friday, Gable his 53rd Monday of this week. Lana Turner will be 34 next Monday.

Another birthday celebrant this week was pretty Suzan Ball, who isn't letting her leg amputation slow her down. She has been hobbling around on crutches and says she's doing fine, "although it's a little hard to balance." She goes for long drives in the afternoon and glowed about seeing her studio again. "I drove past it and nothing ever looked so beautiful to me," she remarked.

Capsule review: "Hell and High Water" supplies enough movement and heroics to please even the most avid action fans. It's a fanciful tale of a group of peace-lovers who volunteer on a submarine mission to investigate an Arctic A-bomb installation. There is violence galore and another hard-bitten performance by Richard Widmark. With a defter touch, the film might have reached the peak of Hitchcock thrillers. Bella Darvi makes a notable debut.

Firm Fined For Substitute

TORONTO (CP)—The Topping Company, Ltd., and its manager, E. J. Newell, were fined $50 each in police court Friday on charges under the Edible Oil Products Act of 1952.

The act prohibits the manufacture or sale of edible oil products other than oleomargarine in the province.

The company, Magistrate S. T. Bigelow found, had manufactured and sold a product called "toppit" which was described as a "vanilla-flavored topping" for pies and cakes and the like.

The magistrate said that "whether or not toppit is an imitation of whipping cream, it is undoubtedly used in its place . . ."

The conviction was the first against a Toronto firm under the act. Previously a Whitby man was convicted under the act at Oshawa but this case is being appealed to test the validity of the legislation.

Ex-Liberal President L. McDonell Dies

KINGSTON (CP) — Lorne McDonell, 58, president of the Central Ontario Liberal Association, died in hospital Friday.

Born in Gananoque, Mr. McDonell spent most of his life in Kingston. He was a past president of the Kingston Liberal Association.

During the Second World War he was with department of labor.

FIRST BALL FOR THE PRINCESS — Looking very charming in her evening dress, Princess Margaretha of Sweden recently attended her first ball. The occasion was the annual ball at the military college school at Warlberg, near Stockholm. The Princess is seen dancing with the school chief, Lt.-Col. Bengt Hjelm.—(Federal Newsphotos).

Discuss Infestation Of Spruce Budworm

TORONTO (CP) — The spruce budworm infestation in the Sioux Lookout-Kenora area of Ontario was discussed Friday at a meeting sponsored by the Ontario Forest Products Association. Representatives of the province's woods industry, Ontario department of lands and forests and federal forest biology division took part.

While New Brunswick reported successful and economical spraying programs, it was suggested that since balsam and spruce constitute only a small percentage of the blight area in Ontario, it was not economically feasible to consider a control program of DDT spraying over the whole area at this time.

Dr. M. L. Prebble, chief of the federal forest biology division, suggested private woods companies in Ontario discuss mutual problems of forest preservation with his department.

CBC To Receive $23,644,450

OTTAWA (CP) — The publicly-owned CBC will receive $23,644,450 from Parliament during 1954-55 to finance radio and television operations.

The estimates tabled Friday in the Commons make the first provision for turning over to the CBC excise tax receipts on radio and television sets and equipment. An estimated $15,000,000 will be derived from this source, forming the largest single item of revenue from Parliament for the CBC.

The CBC also will receive its annual $6,250,000 for operation of its radio broadcasting service. This will make the revenue from Parliament for BC domestic television and radio service $21,250,000 compared with $6,250,000 in the present fiscal year.

Parliament will be asked to vote $2,199,150 for maintenance and operation of the CBC's international service broadcasts to foreign countries. This is an increase of $171,950 from the $2,027,200 voted for the 1953-54 fiscal year.

Find Boy's Body In Bridge Girders

TORONTO (CP) — The partly frozen body of Peter Mucci, a 14-year-old boy who disappeared from home Thursday, was found Friday among the girders of a west Toronto bridge.

Possibility of foul play was ruled out by doctors who said death was caused by pneumonia, aggravated by exposure.

Peter first disappeared from his own home Thursday but his father found him and took him to his grandmother's, police learned. He disappeared later from his grandmother's house through a basement window.

Col. Mahoney VC Being Sent To Washington

OTTAWA (CP)—Late in 1950, Jack Mahony, VC, stood on a sunlit pier in Seattle, Wash., and watched Canada's advance army guard sail for Korea.

He looked miserable and there was a tear in his eye. He was going to miss another war, another battle.

Ever since Lt.-Col. John K. Mahony, 42, of New Westminster, B.C., won the Victoria Cross in Italy in May, 1944, he's been trying to get back to the infantry.

There's an old army rule that says: No more fighting for VC winners. But Jack badgered his superiors until in 1951 he was made a battalion commander in the 27th Infantry Brigade which was to see service in Germany.

He worked so hard getting his outfit into shape that his health broke down. He became assistant adjutant and quartermaster-general in western Ontario command at London.

GOES TO WASHINGTON

After his epic stand on the Melfa river which won him the VC, Mahony was made a liaison officer. He detested the job, tried to sneak back to the front.

Army headquarters announced Friday that the quiet Irishman—he doesn't smoke, drink or swear—will assume a new appointment in April: Canadian Army liaison officer to the United States department of the army in Washington.

He will succeed Lt.-Col. R. J. Carson of Halifax and Ottawa, whose new appointment will be announced later.

Col. Mahony will be succeeded at London by another British Columbian, Lt.-Col. W. G. McGuire, 38, of Salmon Arm, now executive assistant to the chairman, Canadian joint staff in Washington. He was company commander of the Seaforth Highlanders of Canada in the Italian campaign until he was wounded and sent home.

Old Three-Penny Beaver Stamp And Its Birthplace

Canada's First Postage Stamp

The first postage stamp issued in Canada was designed by Sir Sandford Fleming in 1851 at the request of the Hon. James Morris, first Postmaster General of the United Canadas. Young Fleming's first design, that of the 3d. beaver, was accepted immediately, and Canada's first postage stamp was issued for public sale on April 23, 1851.

On the 12d. issue Sir Sandford showed the head and shoulders of Queen Victoria, using as his model a copy of Chalon's famous portrait of the young Queen in her coronation robes. He had rescued this painting from the burning Parliament Buildings in Montreal during the Elgin riots. This is now the rare and valuable 12d. black that is the goal of all serious Canadian philatelists.

ON LEFT ABOVE: Reproduction from a souvenir sheet issued at the time of International Stamp Exhibition in Toronto, September 21-29, 1951. On right is a line drawing of Sandford Fleming's draughting and surveying office at 110-112 Yonge Street, Toronto, in which he designed the celebrated first stamp. On the site are now the Toronto offices of The Huron & Erie Mortgage Corporation and The Canada Trust Company. A commemorative plaque designed by Lyman B. Jackes to honor Sir Sandford's memory was unveiled, September 26, 1951. On the second floor, above the Bentley Drug Store, appeared the sign: Sandford Fleming (left); and W. B. Leather (right) "Draughtsmen and Land Surveyors, etc." The reference in the souvenir sheet reproduced above to "Chalon's" famous portrait of the young Queen Victoria which was saved from fire by Sanford Fleming is clearly to the painting specified in a motion by Sir Allan MacNab in the Montreal Legislative Assembly, March 23, 1848, as follows: "Ordered that the Clerk of this House be directed to write to John Partridge, Esq., portrait painter to Her Majesty the Queen, requesting him to forward the likeness of Her Majesty painted for this House". After the fire the copy of the portrait now in the Toronto City Hall, was painted by the artist Berthon. (See Page 5).

New Interest In Spiritualism

By REV A. C. FORREST

They say that a revival of interest in spiritualism comes in the wake of every war. Sir Oliver Lodge, pioneer in electricty and wireless and one of the most prominent believers in spiritualism, wrote a book on the subject entitled "Raymond" after his son Raymond died in the first world war. In it he tells of the certainty that his son lived still in the spirit world, and was in frequent contact with him.

Whether the war is responsible or not, I do not know. There is a new interest in spiritualism, and in recent years it has become much more respectable. A short time ago the conservative "Church Management" magazine published a long article on the subject. The editor felt it wise to explain in a lead editorial, why he was breaking the taboo against such articles which the religious press has placed on itself.

Among other things the editor said: "We have heard dozens of ministers proclaim the persistence of personality beyond the grave. Then these same ministers have assured their flocks that the very thought of communication with the dead is evil. We think that orthodoxy breaks down at this point. How can we believe that individual personality lives on, and yet deny the possibility of communication with that personality?"

NEVER MET A MEDIUM

Now I'm a poor one to write about spiritualism. I've never met a medium, nor had the opportunity to attend a seance. I've never been inside a spiritualist church, nor do I know anyone who considers himself a spiritualist. I've read Conan Doyle, but like most other people I read his Sherlock Holmes and ignored his many works on this subject. While I'm afraid I would be suspicious of a medium and a little bit irreverent at a seance, I have to admit I was rather impressed by the interest our late Prime Minister, the Honorable William L. MacKenzie King, took in the subject. And I would have to confess that I would be strangely comforted if I could establish some realistic contact with a loved one who had passed into the beyond. I have spoken quietly to a number of rather conservative ministers about the subject, and I have discovered that they are not particularly prejudiced against a little reverent exploring in the field. The prejudice of the orthodox seems to be on practical rather than theological grounds. They feel it is a dangerous topic for the credulous, and a field where charlatans might play too freely.

But I noticed recently that Dr. Leslie Weatherhead, in writing a series of newspaper articles on the after-life, made some favorable references to the findings of spiritualists. And Rev. Dr. Norman Vincent Peale in an interview for "The Christian Advocate," recounted some personal experiences in which he felt the spirit of his mother being with him.

About six or seven years ago I attended a missionary conference at McMaster University. There were a number of rather prominent lecturers, including Dr. Sherwood Eddy. one morning, Dr. Eddy. One morning Dr. Eddy was speaking about the state of Christianity in some of the distant mission fields, when he made a digression into the subject of the after-life. I believe that he was emphasizing the importance of ministers and missionaries sounding this note. He gave some of the more conventional reasons why he personally believed in immortality, and then he said he had another reason which for him was absolutely convincing. Then he stopped and said that he felt that he should not use the time assigned to him for his lecture to deal with the subject, but that if any of us were interested he would be glad to meet with us at five o'clock when the day's classes were over.

SELF CONSCIOUS LOT

So we went around, and everybody was there. We were a rather self-conscious lot as we listened to Dr. Eddy tell of his own experiences with a medium in Europe, another in America, and so on, making contact with his relatives and friends, including his own father. There was no discussion afterwards, and we scarcely knew what to say, for it was something new for most of us, and we all had the most profound respect for Dr. Eddy's ability and sincerity. I noticed that recently he has brought out a book in which he tells his own story. The book is entitled "You will survive after death."

Until recently, I had the opinion rather vaguely held, that spiritualists were organized into some sort of sect. But Rev. Arthur Ford, who is quoted at length by the Church Management writer, and is spoken of us as "the leading spokesman of spiritualism today" says that "it is unfortunate that spiritualism has been identified with a specific group as if it were another sect. Actually, spiritualism is a fellowship of people who believe in survival after death and communication between the two worlds through mediumship."

Weatherhead closed his recent series with the words:

"It may well be—I think it is— that the sun of material science is setting. When the sun sets we can see the stars. There are many parts of the universe which we hardly recognize as real or even existent.

"I pay willing tribute to all that materialistic science has accomplished in the last 50 years, but I hazard the prophecy that shortly the road of man's thinking and enquiry will take a sharp turn across the country vaguely called psychic research.

" Not all those who have tried to explore it are cranks and fools and many things are to be discovered there which will be of far greater service and comfort to mankind, than the discovery of nuclear fission and the atomic bomb."

Builders of Peterborough

TWENTY-SIX YEARS AGO the Outboard Marine and Manufacturing Co. came to Peterborough and took over the old Henry Hope factory on Monaghan Rd. Since that day many additions have been made until the company is the city's second largest industry.—(Parks Studio Photo)

Johnson Co. Hi-Jacked From Toronto

Industry Developed By Hugh Campbell And Clarence Neal

Outboard Marine & Manufacturing Company at Monaghan Road and Romaine St., the factory the late Rollie Dennie hi-jacked from Toronto, is today employing 950 people, an increase of about 50 since the middle of January.

Probably that would have been their payroll, if 25 years ago they had signed a lease of the building they had examined and were about to rent in Toronto. That is just a speculative thought.

The bright fact is that the company's development has been one of the industrial achievements of this community during the first half of this century. A review of Outboard Marine's progress could begin for gripping effect on the company's most dramatic hour, the night a message came from Ottawa at the outset of the Second World War that their manufacture of outboard motors was suspended for its duration.

That drastic and peremptory order, however, was interpreted overnight by Outboard Marine's management as a challenge to put their plant and their skills into the service of their country. With hardly a perceptible halt after the first shock to managerial routine and thinking, the factory was swiftly switched to the production of materials of war.

That episode can still be told, but as this series of industrial sketches tends to recall personalities, an earlier chapter in the story of the company recommends it as an introduction to reminiscence.

Mayor Denne and S. R. Armstrong, city clerk and industrial commissioner, had heard that Johnston Outboard Motor Co. of Waukegan, Ill., were thinking of locating a branch plant in Ontario. Preliminary enquiries were not encouraging, and finally it was learned that representatives of the company were in Toronto.

HAD IDLE FACTORY

Peterborough had a vacant factory on its hands, the former Henry Hope Company building on Monaghan Road. It had been erected by British capital for the manufacture of steel window frames and sashes, had operated for some years, and finally shut down. During the First World War it was put to shell-making use, only temporarily active until the war ended in 1918.

That was the state of affairs and hopes the winter morning in 1928 when Mr. Denne and Mr. Armstrong took off to Toronto in a last but not planless effort to divert Johnson Motors people to Peterborough. Incidentally, the mayor's friend, Senator Frank O'Connor, founder of Laura Secord Company, had a suite in the King Edward Hotel, and Mr. Denne had the use of it, whenever he wished, on his trips to Toronto.

It wasn't long until Hugh Campbell arrived from Waukegan to organize a staff, set up plant, and get Johnson Motors in production north of the border. He engaged Hy Wood to take charge of manufacturing operations, and eventually became president and general manager of Outboard Marine & Manufacturing Co. of Canada after a fusion of several companies.

That story was told in profuse detail by the Examiner at the time of the company's twenty-fifth anniversary last year. Mr. Campbell retired in 1949, and Mr. Wood in 1953.

In succession to Mr. Campbell, promotion came to Clarence B. Neal as president and general manager. He has been with the company in Peterborough continuously since April 1929, moving up through the financial and accountancy department. At that time Johnson Motors had only 35 employees.

The staff had grown in number during the first ten years from that 35 to about 150. Then Hitler took the German people into war.

ALUMINUM PRE-EMPTED

On Sept. 3, 1939, the management of Outboard Marine and Manufacturing Co., were virtually told from Ottawa that they were out of peace-time business indefinitely.

The government of Canada had requisitioned for war purposes all supplies of aluminum.

Aluminum was essential in the manufacture of outboards. Without it, the company had no alternative to shutting off their ordinary operations.

THESE TWO MEN have been behind the growth of the Outboard Marine in Peterborough. Hugh Campbell (left) brought the plant to Peterborough and was for many years its president and general manager. He also took a keen interest in sports, backing many of the city's teams. Clarence B. Neal, who followed Mr. Campbell to Peterborough by a few months, was secretary-treasurer of the company and on Mr. Campbell's retirement was named president and general manager. Mr. Neal's efforts on behalf of the Memorial Centre are known to everyone.

In the message from Ottawa was the succinct explanation: "We have got to help to keep planes in the air over Britain."

First reaction at Outboard Marine was: "What can we do to help?" They had the plant, men skilled in turning out gasoline generators of electricity.

They went to Ottawa with the question: "What do you need? Maybe there are some things we can supply." And there were.

Eventually, L. L. Tremblay, then sales manager and now vice-president, was assigned to Ottawa to keep in touch with the new Department of Munitions and Supply. He was virtually a consultant and liaison representative of Outboard Marine, and the resulting flow of orders kept him in the capital until the war ended.

"Our company was in the fortunate position of being able to make hundreds of thousands of unit products," Mr. Neal recalled.

PARTIAL LIST OF PRODUCTS

Outboard Marine turned out battery charging plants for the Allied forces under lend lease. They made computing instruments for the 3.7 anti-aircraft guns (mechanism that seemed almost human, Mr. Neal said), receiver bearing and receiver elevating instruments.

Large type generators and control panels for Army field use and workshop lorries; hydraulic controls for Harvard training planes; wing flap controls, landing gear and jacks.

Air pumps for some types of Army vehicles, enabling operators to pump and inflate their own vehicles in the fields by power take-off from the vehicles.

The battery charging plants, which had been manufactured for domestic use, at summer cattages and farm homes, comprised the biggest orders Outboard Marine filled for the government. They had many war uses, for various kinds of field equipment operating from batteries.

STAFF AROUND 1,000

"We had about 150 employees when the war broke out, and up to 1,000 before we finished our wartime job. In that heavy volume of work we were occupying five different plants in Peterborough," Mr. Neal said.

There was almost no hitch in changing over from peace to wartime output.

"In taking on nearly ten times the number of employees we started with, we hired men from farms and villages, from stores and other occupations. We had a training crew that did a good job.

Steals Auto, Thief Cut In Accident

Stolen Car Crashes, Causes $400 Damage Driver Still At Large

An unknown car thief took a short but eventful journey in the city Friday night before making good his escape. Taking a car from the rear of the Empress Hotel, he drove south along Water St., smashed into two parked cars, skidded the stolen vehicle across the sidewalk and into the brick wall of the Brewery office.

The wall suffered some damage and police estimated damage to the three cars at about $400.

The stolen car, owned by Mrs. Jean Seabrooke, 670 Little St., had been left at the rear entrance to the hotel by her husband, Clarence. Mr. Seabrooke, who works at the hotel, had forgotten to remove the ignition keys on leaving the car.

The two cars hit by the runaway driver were owned by Hugh Stewart, 47 Denniston Ave., and George W. Smith, Bank St., Millbrook.

HIT TWO OTHERS

Constable Cecil Bowyer said Friday night, that the stolen car had collided with a car on the east side of Water St., then swerved across to the opposite side, crashing into the second parked car. The momentum had forced both cars against the wall. By the time police arrived at the crash scene, the driver had escaped, but it appeared he had been injured, judging by blood found on the stolen vehicle.

The Examiner discovered a local taxi had picked up a man near the C.P.R. station later in the evening. The man, who appeared to have been running, had a bleeding cut on his face. He was taken to an address on Lake St., where he got out of the cab, walked across the street and disappeared. At that time the cab driver did not know of the stolen car episode.

Police had not found the thief by midday today.

Car Damage Light In City Accidents

There were three car collisions in the city Friday night. Damage to vehicles was not serious and no injuries were reported.

On George St., Maurice Carl, RR 7, Fraserville, and Bruce Aitkins, RR 11, Peterborough, were driving cars which collided. John Cartwright, 755 Romaine St. and Thomas Nimmo, 604 Ludgate St., were driving cars which collided at Simcoe and Aylmer streets. On King St. a collision occurred between cars driven by Mrs. Jean Carter, 112 Aylmer St. and Benjamin Smith, 440 Cameron St.

ADJOURN BEST CASE

The claim of Marjorie Best against the city for her house at 531 Water St., the city expropriated has been postponed until final arrangements have been submitted. The claimant's argument is to be filed by February 20. T. J. Carley acting for the city, will then have until March 5 to prepare his reply. Alex Elliott is acting for the claimant. It is unlikely that any judgment will be made before mid-April. Monday, county court resumes the case of Klondike Gold Brown, whose land on the west side of Highway 28 in Smith township the city expropriated for development of the filtration plant.

A Bill Is Passed

In answer to an inquiry directed to Gordon K. Fraser, MP, about the procedure of reading a Private Bill through the Senate and Commons — in this case for the CPR line from Havelock to Nephton — we received the following information: "After the Bill passes the Senate it must then be given approval by the Commons, following its notice being posted in Votes and Proceedings listings. When the Bill comes to the Commons it will get its first reading, second reading, and then goes to the Railway committee. When it passes that committee it then comes back to the House of Commons Committee of the whole for its final reading."

Expect To Raise $43,500 Among Workers

The groundwork has been laid in James G. Wharry's industrial section of the Peterborough Red Cross and Community Fund campaign. Already representatives have been named from 37 firms to raise $43,500 from 9,640 Peterborough industrial workers.

Today a letter went out from Mr. Wharry to each of the 37 firms, thanking them for getting to work so early and hoping that industrial support for the community chests would be even better than in former years. Actually canvassing will not begin, in most cases, until the campaign officially gets under way March 5.

All but five of the participating firms will adopt a scheme of year-round payroll deductions to finance community chest givings. Industrial workers, as well as all contributing, will be able to earmark contributions for the agency of their choice if they desire.

AVERAGE $4.52

If each industrial worker on the community chest's rolls contributed as little as $4.52, the industrial section would go over the top, says Mr. Wharry. But this, says publicity chairman Russell E. Baer is a bit misleading: "Obviously every worker won't contribute and if $4.52 is considered the norm, we will fall short of our objective."

Each of the 10 agencies participating in the community chest drive has named representatives to co-ordinate work on behalf of their individual groups. The representatives are:

Canadian Red Cross Society, Mrs. W. R. Blackwell; St. Vincent's Orphanage, E. J. Wolff; YMCA, Alex L. Elliott; Children's Aid Society, Mrs. J. G. Wharry; Salvation Army, Ernest C. Braund; Canadian National Institute for the Blind, Charles J. Ray; Victorian Order of Nurses, R. H. Carley; Peterborough Humane Society, Mrs. Anna B. Hamilton; St. John Ambulance, Canon Walter J. Gilling; YWCA, Mrs. T. J. Carley.

Lakefield C. Of C. Starts Industry Drive

LAKEFIELD (ENS) — With Lakefield's major industry doomed by the proposed railway line between Nephton and Havelock, the village's businessmen have been spurred into action on the ever-popular project, industrial development.

There has never been a concentrated, organized drive to attract industries to Lakefield before.

As the first step forward the village's development industrially, the Chamber of Commerce has invited D. E. Holland from the provincial department of planning and development, to speak in the village.

He is scheduled to address an open meeting Tuesday night at eight o'clock at the Lakefield hotel.

Airways Awarded $7,358 For Crash After Hitting Wires

Rockland Airways, whose floatplane was wrecked in July, 1951, when it struck some hydro wires over Stony lake, on Friday were awarded $7,358 damages and costs by Supreme Court Justice J. L. McLennan. The case—believed the first of its kind in Canada—was heard last May in a three-day trial in Peterborough. Mr. Justice McLennan handed down his written judgement Friday. Plaintiffs in the case were the co-partners of Rockland Airways—Tom Mathias of Peterborough, veteran RCAF and commercial pilot, and George A. Stephens, retired Anstruther township lumberman. They sued Oscar B. MacMillan and his wife, Iva, for $7,902 and costs to recover damages for loss of their Fairchild float-plane.

Mr. and Mrs. MacMillan own Lindsay island, a small island some 350 feet from the south shore of Stony lake and a mile west of McCracken's landing. In the spring of 1950 they installed a hydro power line across the narrow channel from the mainland to the island. The wires were less than 30 feet above the water.

Alex Elliott, QC, counsel for Rockland Airways, brought out evidence that the MacMillans had not asked permission of the department of transport before erecting the wires; so air authorities knew nothing about them and they weren't marked on maps.

REQUIRE PERMISSION

Under the Navigable Waters Act permission must be granted before any obstruction can be placed under, over or on navigable waters.

Rockland Airways contended that the 350-foot channel between Lindsay island and the mainland of Dummer township, was in fact, a navigable body of water. They also contended that the hydro wires were a public nuisance.

Legal history was made because it was the first time that an airplane was involved in a legal argument over the rights of "vessels" in navigable waters. The air transport board of the department of transport were also interested in Mr. Justice McLennan's decision.

T. J. Carley, QC, and Robert Carley, counsel for the MacMillans, contended that the channel is full of rock shoals, stumps and shallow patches that make any marine navigation difficult. And sailboats, large cruisers, tugs and similar craft cannot use the channel.

The MacMillans also claimed that Mathias, when rescued, admitted that he "forgot" the wires were there. However one of the witnesses, Russell Carveth, had changed his evidence from what he had given at a previous trial. At that time he quoted Mathias as saying he "didn't see the wires."

Carveth said he was confused at the previous trial and Mathias actually did say "forget".

The accident occurred on the afternoon of July 30, 1951, as Mathias was preparing to land on the water, preparatory to taxing into McCracken's Landing to pick up some sightseeing passengers. The aircraft hit the wires, nosed over and crashed into the channel on a sloping shelf of rock.

Mathias was thrown out of the aircraft into the water and swam back to assist his two passengers, Ken Wyatt and Orville Braden, who were both slightly injured.

I nhis judgment, Mr. Justice McLennan said an aircraft in flight and about to land on water is not in the same category as a boat. However he found that Mathias was on his landing run, was doing what he was permitted to do by air regulations and was engaged in lawful flying at the time of the impact.

One woman giving evidence for the MacMillans had not the capacity to make accurate observations, Mr. Justice McLennan stated. He said flatly that he didn't believe another defence witness, and he said that workmen called by the defendants showed resentment towards the operation of aircraft.

Offices Move Work To Start On Examiner

Construction will start next week to initiate The Examiner's $50,000 renovation program. By the time alterations are completed, the conventional type building will have been transformed into one of the most modern structures in the city.

During this process, The Examiner will continue to be printed in the building at the corner of Water and Hunter. The program will, however, necessitate the moving of the classified advertising, business office and general manager's office to a new location.

OPEN MONDAY

The move, this afternoon, will take these offices to the premises recently occupied by Soden's book store, between Water and George Sts. on Hunter St. Business will resume there Monday morning.

Entrance to the display advertising department will be gained through the Water St. door; and to the editorial, circulation and mechanical departments through the Hunter St. door as formerly.

Basis of the alterations will be the complete removal of the present brick walls on the street sides of the building. These will be replaced by structural steel girders fronted by a wall of masonry-backed Macotta panels of porcelain enamel on steel, and horizontal lines of clear glass.

Taxpayers Watching

What Will Be The City's Tax Rate for 1954

The treasury, they say, is the graveyard of cabinet ministers. Once a man is given the task of telling the people how much their government is going to cost them, he can forget about further ambition.

They've been saying it about the Hon. Douglas Abbott for years. His predecessor, the Hon. J. L. Ilseley, never got to be prime minister. He now sits on the bench, removed from politics.

But there have been notable exceptions. Sir Winston Churchill was once chancellor of the exchequer and Premier Leslie Frost was provincial treasurer before stepping up—and still is.

Possibly it would be truer to say that the treasury post is the test of the politician who attains it—it either makes or breaks him.

If this can be applied to municipal politicians, Ald. Pat Anglesey is facing his supreme test this year in his first term as chairman of city council's finance committee.

Experienced observers of the local political scene, second-guessing the upsets in last December's election, seem to agree that the chief issue in the voters' minds was the re-assessment. Even though this item was removed from the control of elected officials by provincial legislation, it kept popping up persistently during the campaign.

It appeared that when property-owners received their assessment notices just before nominations and saw their assessments had been raised, they immediately came to the conclusion that their taxes would be up in 1954.

Drawn willy-nilly into discussion of the re-assessment, city fathers who were up for re-election explained, with limited success, that the total assessment was 40½ per cent higher than it had been. The assessment on an individual property would have to be increased 40½ per cent before taxes on the property went up.

It was pointed out that if the city spent the same amount of money in 1954 as they did last year, the new tax rate would be 47 mills this year instead of the 64.5 mills of 1953.

The fat was in the fire.

"How do we know you're not going to spend more money?" was the stock question.

It was like asking a man if he had stopped beating his wife. But the die had been cast.

Now the spectre of 47 mills is haunting the corridors of city hall. And the person on whom the phantom's evil eye is fixed is Ald. Pat Anglesey.

In the first place, even if the city didn't improve the quality of its services one iota this year, it would still have to spend more money than it did in 1953. Annual salary increments and potential negotiated wage increases will ensure that. There would have to be some pretty drastic economies to offset these.

HAD SURPLUS

Last year, the city had a budget surplus of $29,315.03 after spending a total of $3,360,956.84. At the first of the year, council had provided for a budget surplus of only $259.42 in their estimates.

Part of the larger budget surplus would appear to have come from the miscellaneous fund, which is designed to provide for unforeseen items, such as wage increases which are negotiated after the mill rate is set. Last year, $69,576.55 was provided in the estimates for these items; but only $50,730.74 was spent.

The moral to be drawn from that example would seem to be to tighten up on the estimates and keep the mill rate down. It isn't quite that simple.

Suggest Field House In Bell's Memory

SARNIA (CP) — The Sarnia board of parks management Friday night recommended the planning of a one-storey field house in Athletic Park in memory of John Bell, Imperial football star who was fatally injured in 1951.

A $19,000 Bell Fund would be used. It was set up through donations of local sportsmen, industrial executives and football fans across Ontario shortly after Bell's death in hospital from an injury suffered in a Ontario Rugby Football Union senior game at Athletic Park.

The board also decided to ask the city for a $15,000 grant for the forestry section.

Two-Headed Boy Dies In Germany

WUERZBURG, Germany (AP)—A two-headed boy born to a German workman's wife three months ago died in the children's clinic of Wuerzburg university Thursday, doctors disclosed today.

The child was born with two heads, a joint abdomen and legs, but had two hearts and four arms. Physicians said it was a case of "unfinished Siamese twins."

TELEVISION IN RUSSIA—Ivan and his family can sit at home nowadays and watch their favorite shows on the State-controlled television service. New Cold Wave Grips Continent

LONDON (Reuters)—Europeans fortified themselves today against their third bitter weekend in a row as the worst cold spell in seven years continued in Britain and on the Continent.

Rising temperatures brought heavy snowfalls to southwest France.

The sea froze at Knokke, Belgian coastal resort, for the first time ever recorded, throwing up ice floes along the seawalls.

Two transport planes flew from Rome to drop more than four tons of food and medical supplies to 100 snowbound villages in mountainous central Italy. Helicopters ferried the ill to hospitals and Alpine troops started cutting a route through to the affected area.

A thin, raw fog settled over London, combining with smoke from millions of chimneys as the temperature again dropped below freezing after a slight thaw Friday.

Churchill Squelches Rumors Of Stroke

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill today squelched with an impish grin a new flurry of rumors that he had suffered a slight stroke.

Churchill lunched with Prime Minister St. Laurent at 10 Downing street—on schedule—and then came to the door to pose for photographers.

Churchill laughed off the biting cold and let the photographers take their time as he posed hatless and coatless.

The Manchester Guardian this morning made a mention of rumors that Churchill suffered a stroke but dismissed them.

Security Check Made On Plane Fuel

SAIGON, Indo-China (Reuters)—An Air France Constellation flying Marc Jacquet, French secretary of state for Indo-China, back to Paris, was temporarily delayed here today for a security check on its fuel.

The pilot noted an unusual coloring in the gasoline and refused to take off until the check was made. A laboratory analysis disclosed the gas was all right, although there had been an abnormal mixture of the coloring element.

Industry Has Learned Value Of Press Co-operation

WINDSOR (CP) — A Montreal business executive said today that management has come to know the power and responsibility of the press and how to co-operate with it.

It hadn't always been that way, J. Stuart Richardson said in an address prepared for delivery to a conference of managing editors here.

In the early days of the industrial era the relations between the press and great men such as Bell, Whitney, Carnegie, Rockefeller, Ford and others, had been "none too cordial," said the executive of the Northern Electric Company, Montreal, who is also a member of the education committee of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association.

Some of these men of the early industrial era had a peremptory attitude toward reporters, an attitude that was summed up in the famous remark of one of them: "The public be damned."

But press relations had been improved until today "modern management is aware of the power and responsibility of the press and the attitude of the majority is one of co-operation."

He believed there was more need than ever now for good relations between management and the press, for two reasons. One was that industry had so many interesting stories to tell and "because we know from experience that the public is interested in the story of growth and progress."

Find February As Dreary For Business As Weather

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP) — February often is as dreary for business as it is for the weather man. Inconstant, profitless, and unpredictable.

More often than not stock prices have dropped during February—although this doesn't mean a repeat performance this year.

Commodity prices' most spectacular break since the Second World War was in February, 1948. Its groundhog-like shadow later took shape as the 1948-49 recession. Most Februarys find prices shaky.

You often find less money in your pockets in February—if government statistics are to be believed. Official charts show that this time of year the amount of money in circulation usually dips.

Even buying-on-the-cuff appears to be less popular during the bleak days.

Merchants often find February a dull spell between the January clearance sales and the Easter trade promotions.

GAS PRICES WEAKEN

Industrial production more often than not dips a little.

Gasoline stocks fill the storage tanks to the brim in February as motorists stick to their firesides. So gas prices weaken and refiners fret.

Construction often slumps too, when the weather is bad.

For tenants, February is the month they pay the landlord just as much as ever, but get two or three days less use of their homes for it.

First Supper Served Since Hall Renovation

MILLBROOK (ENS)—The first supper to be served in St. Andrew's United church hall since its renovation was held on Tuesday evening. Miss Josie Sutton, new president of the Women's Association, was in charge.

At the head table were the Rev. and Mrs. A. M. Butler, of St. Andrew's, the Rev. Walter Patterson and Mrs. Patterson, the Rev. and Mrs. W. H. Heustin, of Grace Presbyterian, the Rev. and Mrs. L. R. Pocock, of St. Thomas' Anglican, Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Spicer, Miss Ellen Kent, H. V. Kent and Mr. and Mrs. D. R. Fowler.

Excise Taxes Termed Unfair

WINDSOR (CP) — The president and general manager of Chrysler Corporation of Canada today said the Canadian excise taxes as applied to motor vehicles are unfair and discriminatory.

In a speech prepared for delivery at a luncheon meeting of the Canadian Managing Editors' Conference, E. C. Row said his company paid $5,000,000 more in sales and excise taxes last year than the aggregate of its payrolls.

He said excise taxes are giving all automobile manufacturers concern and Chrysler was $29,000,000 out of pocket last year.

"In a country of Canada's vast spaces, the automobile . . . can no longer be considered a luxury," said Mr. Row. "Yet for taxation purposes, the motor car is regarded as a luxury."

He warned that excessive taxation of necessities can shrink the tax source and create unemployment.

New Law Aids Shoppers In Britain

LONDON (Reuters)— Shopping has become easier in Britain as a result of a new law tightening controls on misleading advertisements.

Passed by Parliament last year, it insists that business men must not stretch the truth in their zeal to make people buy.

For instance, many "waterproof" raincoats have disappeared from clothing stores and have been replaced by "shower-proof" coats.

A housewife who last year prided herself on getting a bargain in a "down pillow" now finds the same pillow displayed in the store as "filled with the best soft feathering." Of course if it was really a down pillow, it still is called that.

Many newlyweds who proudly bought "fine mahogany" bedroom suits last year will, if they go shopping today, find these items displayed under the title, "a bedroom suite with a hardwood frame and mahogany panelling."

The Merchandise Marks Act also prevents newspaper and magazine ads from spoofing the public, and it has kept department stores busy for several weeks rewriting their catalogues. Here are typical changes: Many "all-silk" ties are "silk mixture" ties; many "wool" blankets are now "wool and cotton," and certain pieces of "china" now bear the title of "earthenware."

Urge Redistribution Of Sudbury Riding

SUDBURY (CP) — Early redistribution of the provincial riding of Sudbury, possibly into city and district ridings, is being urged by Sudbury and district Chamber of Commerce directors.

Chamber of Commerce president Sam Rothchild said that there are now 118,000 people in the Sudbury riding represented by the Hon. Welland S. Gemmell, lands and forests minister.

It was suggested that any redistribution of the provincial riding follow as closely as possible the present boundaries of the two federal ridings of Sudbury and Nickel Belt.

Can Carry Bulk Milk In Paper Bag Latest Red Scientific Claim

By RICHARD KASISCHKE

MOSCOW (AP)—The Russians have come up with a waterproofing system they call "hydrofobization." It's so good, they say, it'll even keep tissue paper dry in a rainstorm and permit you to carry a quart of loose milk home in a paper bag.

The discoveries reported in the newspaper Leningrad Pravda. Scientists at Leningrad University are credited with developing the process.

No details are given except to say the Chemicals used are of a silicious organic character which are cheap and can be produced in large quantities."

The paper claims this is an entirely new waterproofing method. It says that where rubber "mechanically keeps water out, hydrofobization prevents the molecular ties between water and fabric and treated fabric therefore repels water."

This means you could throw your raincoat and rubbers away if you had a suit and shoes treated with the stuff. Paper cups no longer will have to be waxed, water colors can be washed after treatment, and "even the cheapest cottons will repel water as if they were made of rubber," the newspaper says.

The article goes on to say that treated and untreated fabrics are indistinguishable in appearance. The chemical cannot be removed from the fabric either by boiling or chemical detergents.

Building materials, ceramics and glass all can be treated—even auto windshields which, when hydrofobized, do not get wet, the paper claims.

Leningrad University researchers, the article concluded, now are looking for a way to hydrofobize metals.

Bush Pilots On Way Out—Prediction

MONTREAL (CP)—F. H. (Tom) Wheeler celebrated his 33rd year as head of the world's oldest bush airline recently but there was a tinge of sorrow to the occasion.

The tough pioneer flyer believes the days of the bush pilot—one of the most colorful of Canada's pioneer breed—are numbered.

The amiable airline president who started in 1921 with one aircraft and today has a fleet of 16 planes equipped for flying over Canada's northland, says the main drawback against a continuation of the bush flyer tradition is the fact that young pilots are not taking to the work.

Young Canadians, he says, prefer to fly with the large scheduled airlines, with regular routes and good salaries. Result is a definite shortage of pilots willing, and possessing sufficient ability, to tackle bush flying.

NEED MANY SKILLS

Mr. Wheeler said the modern bush pilot, "must be navigator, radio operator and engineer as well as a pilot." He must also possess enough know-how to survive the adverse conditions of the scrubland in the event of trouble.

"This combination of air and woods skills is not easy to find," says Tom, who comes from Ste. Jovite, Que. "So there is no doubt about it. The bush pilot as we know him, is disappearing from the scene."

Mr. Wheeler said regular points of call for bush pilots stretch from centres such as Montreal to the shores of Ungava bay, Labrador, and new settlements such as Knob Lake and Sept Isles in northeastern Quebec.

Usually pilots do not fly to a set plan but follow rivers, lakes and flat snow expanses, which with the aid of ski and pontoon equipment make the best landing spots.

Its all in the tradition of great names like Wop May, Punch Dickins and others, but Tom Wheeler was looking prophetic when he said it may soon be "just a colorful memory."

Aerial Photographs Aid Prairie Conservation Work

By SAM DAWSON

REGINA (CP)—Through its new air survey and engineering-geology division the Prairie Farm Rehabilitation Administration is using interpretation of aerial photos to aid irrigation and conservation work on the Prairies.

By study of aerial photographs the organization will be able to save time and money on ground surveys and geological explorations.

The PFRA has accumulated a library of about 250,000 aerial pictures of the three Prairie provinces. Studies have been made to aid in the delimitation and assessment of potentially irrigable lands in the South Saskatchewan river drainage basin.

ALL IN VIEW

The PFRA even goes looking for rocks with air pictures, and contour maps are drawn from photos. Soil studies and drainage studies have been made for the Bow river irrigation project in Alberta.

Land reclamation studies have been made on the Swift Current irrigation project in order to locate pumping station sites and map natural drainage situated around and above land-locked basins.

In charge of air survey interpretation work at the PFRA Regina headquarters is Dr. John Mollard, a graduate of Purdue University with a master's degree in air photo work.

Born in Watrous, Sask., Dr. Mollard is also a graduate of the University of Saskatchewan in civil engineering.

Predict Oil Dispute Solution Near

By DONALD B. SCHWIND

ABADAN, Iran (AP)—The mammoth Abadan refinery has been largely idle since 1952. Today there is hope that a solution to the Iranian oil dispute is near—but even with a settlement it will take a year or two to get Abadan back into full production.

The refinery, operated by the Anglo-Iranian Oil Co., was taken over by the regime of former premier Mohamed Mossadegh.

Fearing a possible attempt to fire the giant refinery as a desperate protest against the return of foreign participation, the Abadan military governor, Soor Esrafil, recently redoubled his force of secret agents in and around key installations.

According to officials of the National Iranian Oil Co., Esrafil's first act after taking over Abadan two months ago was to crush the area's Communist Tudeh party. About a dozen known party leaders have been sent to Khargh prison island.

DORMANT LIKING SHOWS

Reports of the coming oil negotiations have brought to the surface what seems to have been a dormant liking for the British, despite the abuse heaped on Britain and all its works during the Mossadegh regime. Company officials—pleading not to be quoted—smiled with satisfaction as they expressed the hope of meeting one or another of the Britons who worked with or over them before oil nationalization.

The plant formerly employed 50,000. At nationalization the Iranian government was committed to keeping employees, regardless of whether they were needed.

Thus, with production slashed to perhaps five per cent, the refinery has been shouldering the full payroll, plus maintenance costs—to the tune of $1,500,000 a month. Most of the production staff is idle.

The catalytic cracker has been untouched by the Iranians since it shut down. One tower has a section torn away. Valves and fittings are rust-caked.

Beginning Work On 120 Engines On Indian Order

MONTREAL (CP)—Robert H. Morse Jr., president of Canadian Locomotive Co., Ltd., said Friday work will begin immediately on a $20,000,000 order for 120 steam locomotives for India.

The order was first announced at Ottawa Jan. 5, and Mr. Morse gave details to the company's board of directors at a meeting. He said a "firm commitment" had been received from the Canadian Commercial Corporation, crown agency of the trade department.

The company will aim to make initial deliveries in 12 months and complete the order by the end of 1955, Mr. Morse said.

DO AT KINGSTON

The order could be readily carried out at the firm's Kingston, plant without interfering with the completion of a Canadian Pacific Railway order for diesel locomotives, he added. The company could also continue to accept new orders for diesels.

Mr. Morse said it is possible to produce steam engines in a diesel plant, but not vice-versa. Some steam engine manufacturing equipment was retained in the diesel conversion at Kingston.

The crown company placed the order as agent for the government, which is financing the job out of India's 1954 and 1955 allocation of credits from Canada's $25,000,000 a year contribution to the Colombo Plan.

House Votes To Cut Private Members Time

OTTAWA (CP)—The Commons voted Friday to cut off 3½ hours a week from the time given to consideration of private members' legislation, starting Wednesday, Feb. 17.

The House adopted a government resolution to give precedence to government business on Wednesdays. Up to now, the abbreviated afternoon sitting on Wednesday has been taken up with proposals of non-cabinet members.

The private members after Feb. 17 will be left with two hours a week, between 5 p.m. and 6 p.m. on Tuesdays and Fridays.

The resolution passed without dissent or debate. It was originally proposed to take effect last Wednesday, but the government withdrew it then after protests from all opposition parties.

HERE'S LOOKING AT YOU—An unnamed seal pokes his head through a hole in the ice on a pond at Vincennes zoo in Paris, providing this mirth-provoking scene. The seal has been on a hunger strike for the 10 days after his arrival from Kerguelen Islands. Sub-zero weather coated the pond with ice, which the seal could melt by pressing his nose against it. The cold snap, more to his liking, ended his hunger strike and he now eats 12 pounds of fish daily.

Says Papers Make Fortunes Out of 2nd-Class Mail Rates

OTTAWA (CP)—A CCF member of Parliament charges that second-class mail rates partly have been responsible for "immense fortunes" being made in the newspaper field in Canada.

A. M. Nicholson (CCF—Mackenzie) made the accusation in the Commons Friday night as he opposed government legislation to increase first-class postal rates by one cent an ounce.

Mr. Nicholson said that first-class mail is being operated at a profit of $20,700,000 a year according to figures he said were issued a year ago. However, second-class mail was losing 13½ cents out of every dollar or a total of $16,000,000 a year.

NOT BEING FAIR

He added:

"When one considers that that subsidy has been a factor in building up some of the immense fortunes made in the newspaper field I believe the government is not really being fair with the Canadian people in leaving the rates on that class of mail unchanged.

"In this connection and to demonstrate my point I need only mention the Thomson paper syndicate which operates not only in Canada but which recently bought The Scotsman in Edinburgh (Scotland) for $5,000,000 last year; the Southam group; the Toronto Star; the Toronto Globe and Mail; the Sifton group, and the honorable member of the Senate (W. H. Dennis of Halifax) who died recently. I do not know how much of that was made in the newspaper business but he certainly did not lose anything in that field.

"When these large fortunes have been made partly from the advantage accruing from the very low cost second-class mail I think the government has no right to place this tax on the Canadian people by increasing the letter rate by one cent."

Jesuit Priest At Guelph 100 Years Old

GUELPH (CP)—Rev. Joseph R. Richard, oldest Jesuit priest in the world who served for almost 65 years as a missionary to Indians and whites in the upper Great Lakes regions of Ontario, celebrates his 100th birthday today.

Father Richard consecrated his life to "my Indians" and only in 1948, at 94, did he retire from active work among them. Even then he stayed on with the school for Indian boys at Spanish, about 70 miles west of Sudbury, teaching the children their own Indian language and recounting the history of Roman Catholic missions.

Father Richard, oldest Roman Catholic priest in Canada, at various times was missionary at almost all the Indian settlements from Christian island in southeast Georgian bay to the east shore of Lake Superior.

TAUGHT PRIESTS

He taught many younger priests the languages of the Ojibways and other tribes and aimed to preserve languages unspoiled as he had heard them in the early days.

Born in Montreal, Father Richard began work with the Indian missions after being ordained a priest in his home city in 1886. He worked with the Indians from then until 1953, except for a year away for study.

He was transferred to the Jesuit novitate at Guelph last year when his health began to fail.

No Higher Pay Allowed In Estimates

OTTAWA (CP)—The government tossed a $4,491,751,000 spending program for 1954 - 55 before the Commons Friday, but Parliament members could look in vain for any indication of higher pay for them.

The pay issue has been under controversy in the Commons for several days. The government is proposing increases for commoners and senators that would cost about $1,500,000 a year.

Reason for the omission of the pay increases from Finance Minister Abbott's estimates:

Expenditures such as these are not included in the spending forecasts until the approving statute has been passed. When passed, the cost will be taken up in supplementary estimates.

Soviet Says Spies Active In Russia

LONDON (AP) — A Moscow radio commentator said Friday night spies and saboteurs are at work in the Soviet Union.

Professor P. S. Cheremnykh said that despite the classless Soviet system a "class struggle" still goes on, and added:

"Imperialist states are sending into our country spies, diversionists, saboteurs and murders. Inside our country foreign intelligence services are trying to enrol agents among the decayed and morally and politically unstable elements."

Circulation Up

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—The London Free Press announced Friday that the combined circulation of its morning and evening editions reached a daily average of 90,845 during January. The announcement said the Free Press now is "the largest daily newspaper in Ontario, outside of Toronto." It estimated a readership of more than 300,000 persons a day. In 1945 the average daily circulation was slightly more than 50,000.

Slayer's Son To Inherit $6,800,000

NEW YORK (AP)—The 11-year-old son of Wayne Lonergan, cafe society figure and airman who killed his wealthy wife in 1943 and now is serving 35 years to life in Sing Sing prison, will inherit $6,800,000, less taxes.

This was disclosed Friday with the filing of the will of his maternal great-grandmother, Mrs. Stella S. Housman in surrogate court. Mrs. Housman, 86, died Jan. 25 in Palm Beach.

The boy, whose name has been changed to William Anthony Burton, fell heir to the fortune as beneficiary of a trust fund set up for Mrs. Housman by her late husband, Max Bernheimer, a brewer.

FOUND BODY

The body of Lonergan's wife, the former Patricia Burton, was found lying nude in bed in her New York apartment Oct. 23, 1943.

Police learned later that Lonergan, then an RCAF cadet, had been in New York that week-end. He was arrested in Toronto and confessed the slaying after being brought back to New York.

Police said he admitted hitting her with a candlestick and choking her because she climaxed an argument by telling him she never was going to let him see their son again.

Future Brighter For Man, Elk

By DAVE STOCKAND

WINNIPEG (CP)—The mighty-antlered elk in Riding Mountain National Park in Manitoba find no safety in numbers, treading as they must the narrow gap between hunger and hunters' guns.

For this reason the latest estimate on the herd's strength is all to the good from an elk's-eye view. The herd count is down three-quarters from the 1946 figure, which was a tragedy of numbers.

Most likely the 3,000 animals remaining will be able to keep their stomachs full through the winter without venturing from their 1,148-square mile redoubt where hunting is not permitted.

SAFE IN PARK

As long as the elk do not spill over the park boundaries, there is no sense in the Manitoba government declaring an open season. G. W. Malaher, director of the provincial game and fisheries branch, says "there is no word of any exodus."

This is different from the picture in southern Alberta, where severe cold and deep snowdrifts recently drove elk herds from the foothills of the Rockies to farms and ranches in search of food. With the advent of milder weather the Alberta elk retired to the foothills, leaving behind more than a score of animals slain by a few hunters who had been given special permits to shoot elk since ranchers had reported "substantial" losses of hay.

In times past the elk was as much at home on the plains as the buffalo, but has been cramped for quarters since the plow began putting the scars of civilization on the face of western Canada.

Except for a few zoo-and-paddock specimens, the buffalo remains in Manitoba only as the provincial emblem. The elk was luckier, though not by much.

DISASTROUS INCREASE

In 1914 the Riding mountain herd numbered 500 but began a steady increase under rigid protection. Too well, as it turned out. By 1946 the herd had swelled to an estimated 12,000, and there wasn't that much forage in the parklands.

Many starved. Hunger forced others down from the hilly, heavy-timbered plateau that is Riding mountain. They moved out of the wilderness into farmlands.

And the farmers didn't take lightly to herds of hungry elk clopping through their pastures and grain fields.

The mines and resources department opened elk seasons in an attempt to reduce the population where they would no longer leave the park, 170 miles northwest of Winnipeg. It is believed that the herd now has reached that level.

Since 1947 hunting has been allowed every year except 1949. There was a season in 1944 but hunting was closed in 1945 and '46.

For four winters in a row hunters have had a chance at bagging a trophy bull or a cow for meat. In the last three years 7,960 licences were taken out; 3,673 animals slain.

DIFFERENT TYPES

The elk can be divided into plains and mountain types. Those found in Riding mountain are a distinct sub-species of the wapiti, although the difference from their mountain brothers would be noticeable only to a zoologist.

They carry the name cervus canadensis manitobensis and once were common from the Lake of the Woods country of Ontario through Manitoba and on into Saskatchewan.

Besides the Riding mountain herd there is a smaller herd in Manitoba in the Duck mountain area and a few playing hide-and-seek with Indian hunters in the inter-lake region of the north-central part of the province. A number of "manitobensis" also survive in Saskatchewan.

UNDER FIVE FLAGS—In honor of the Big Four Foreign Ministers Conference in Berlin, designer Ursula Schewe has created a good-will ensemble. Her strapless gown of white satin is topped by a stole that combines flags of the U.S., Britain, France, Russia and her native Germany, all worked in colored silks.

Credit Stratford Festival In Theatre Activity Increase

Deeper appreciation of the tremendous success of the Shakespearian Festival at Stratford last summer among members of Peterborough Women's Art Association resulted when the originator of this theatre addressed their studio meeting Friday afternoon.

Mr. Tom Patterson of Stratford, outlined what it had done for the Canadian actor, what had been the effect on the audiences, the effect on the people of Stratford and also what the festival had done for Canada.

The Canadian actor was accepted for the first time by his own people, and in addition he found himself being acclaimed by the critics of New York, London, etc., and was astounded at this, Mr. Patterson remarked. Because of the company he was in (Guiness, Guthrie), the Canadian actor developed a sense of humility as well as of pride, that the speaker felt was very important to his success.

A direct result had been the increased theatre activity in Toronto this winter and also a more energetic season in Ottawa, it was pointed out.

CAME FROM AFAR

The audience at Stratford last summer included people from every province of Canada, every State of the Union, South America, England, even Greenland, Mr. Patterson listed. "They came for a variety of reasons the first night, but they came back again to see Shakespeare and this was the thing which made the festival a true success."

People of Stratford became so theatre-conscious that from a bridge club of four ladies three developed study groups of 30 or so each, taking in up to 150 persons, and nine-week courses with homework and examinations were organized. A group of Stratford High School students asked to take a course in Shakespeare and are probably the first class to ever ask for it, he commented.

"It was not an arty crowd that attended the theatre," said Mr. Patterson. "I think Shakespeare would have been pleased to see the workers, school children and teen-agers mingling there with the people whom one is accustomed to think of as patrons of the arts."

Wider reaction to the festival was just as surprising to most people. Mr. Patterson quoted a comment: "It has done more than any other single event since the war to cement Anglo-Canadian relations," and said: "I would like to say the same regarding the United States."

SEEMED AWED

He seemed to be still a bit awed by the tremendous reaction of the press from all over the world—"concentrated on one event in Canada, and that a cultural event" he pointed out. "This advertised us (Canadians) in such a way that we took on a certain maturity we had never had before."

Perhaps as important as anything was the fact that the festival kept Canadians in Canada, and it brought Canadian actors back to Canada. It gave this country a potential export, and the company has been repeatedly approached to take the festival to the United States. "But we are keeping it in Canada—this must be a Canadian development," declared Mr. Patterson.

"I believe we have the talent to keep it up. The idea must grow and become closer to the Edinburgh festival type of thing. Canada can now insure an international audience for any Canadian art."

FEATHER IN CAP

Another feather in Mr. Patterson's cap is the fact that the University of London, England, has included the Stratford Festival in its study of development of the theatre.

This year it is planned to have exhibits of Canadian art and sculpture and also a railway town. The festival is to run from June 28 to August 21, and arrangements have been made to accommodate about 1,900 people a night. An air-changing system is being installed in the tent and should give relief from the heat experienced last year.

Though the festival was operated at a loss of $4,000, Mr. Patterson and his company were exceedingly pleased, because no theatre has ever done so well before. He feels that no better choice of a director than Tyrone Guthrie could have been made, and expects to have him there perhaps four or five years, the while training a Canadian to take over. Similarly with Alex. Guinness, he explained their good fortune in securing him, and told that he had figured the actor's personal profit from the season was $150. Even manufacturers of costume needs had taken more than a straight commercial interest in the project and become a part of the festival, he said.

Chi Rho Club See Two Films

All Saints' Chi Rho club met Friday night in the parish hall with a large number present.

Colorful Snow Ball Chooses Merilyn White As Queen

Despite the absence of snow outside, the Annual Snow Ball of St. Peter's Sodality, in the Kawartha Room of the Empress Hotel Friday night, was one of the highlights of the winter social season. Held amid a gay and carnival-like atmosphere, the Snow Ball attracted some 130 dancers who enjoyed themselves in a Kawartha Room handsomely bedecked with all manner and shapes of balloons, suspended from the ceiling. Shortly after 11 p.m., Merilyn White, chosen by her fellow Sodality members for outstanding contribution and devotion to duty, was crowned the Snow Queen of 1954. Fashionably gowned in white net semi-formal evening dress, the newly crowned queen was attended by Miss Mary Sullivan, the Prefect of the Sodality and Miss Leila McGrath, vice-president. Placing the crown on the head of the 1954 queen was last year's choice, Mrs. Carl Heath.

Father L. M. Dubbery, Spiritual Director of the Sodality, addressed the gathering briefly and complimented the Sodality on their excellent performance throughout the year. He outlined the aims and objectives of the Sodality and mentioned that the social committee had done itself proud in arranging such an attractive and colorful dance.

Offer Design Contest For Housewives

OTTAWA (CP)—Want to make a little money? Look around the house. Think the stove can be improved? How about the refrigerator? Any new ideas for a lamp? A chair?

The Canadian Association of Consumers is paying money for ideas, $500 in all, in a contest open to its 20,000 members in a national campaign to make Canadian housewives more design-conscious.

Design is one of Canada's trade problems. The experts believe Canada may be able to sell more goods if she can beat out her world competitors in the field of eye-catching design.

And, of course, good design helps raise living standards, by providing a more comfortable and sturdier product.

The National Industrial Design Council, composed of manufacturers, distributors, consumers and government officers, has attempted to build up Canadian design by annual design contests. The council's latest idea is to get the housewife to help.

CASH FOR AWARDS

The consumers association is supplying the contestants; the council provides the cash for the awards. Letters to association members are being sent out, inviting them to write down, in 300 words or less, ideas for improving the design of household furniture, lamps, electrical and kitchen equipment.

The contest closes March 31. To the best of the winning entries will go $100. There also will be awards of $50, $35 and $15 in each of four categories: Design ideas for lamps; household and kitchen equipment; furniture; kitchen utensils and non-electrical kitchen equipment.

Out of the winning entries, the council hopes to cull new ideas which can be turned over to manufacturers for possible use.

Formal Elegance Feature Hartnell Spring Gowns

By MURIEL NARRAWAY

LONDON (CP) — The world's fashion critics and buyers settled in gilt chairs in a dove grey salon to see the spring styles decreed by Norman Hartnell, Britain's best-known designer.

Perhaps the Queen's visit "Down Under" was responsible for the biggest Hartnell collection in several seasons. With time off from royal commitments, the designer showed about 100 models, including simple town suits, elegant day dresses, short evening styles and court gowns lavishly trimmed with mother of pearl.

The severe plainness of the first design was typical of Hartnell shows. It was a beige tweed dress and long loose coat that some elegant woman might soon wear for a three-figure fee. The simplicity of its tailored styling was broken only by stitched braces running down the back of the dress to a matching belt.

FORMAL ELEGANCE

Sophisticated afternoon and cocktail dresses followed, interspersed with town and country tweeds, summer silks and bird-of-paradise ball gowns styled and embroidered for a queen and her court.

Hartnell was out to prove to the women who pay upwards of £200 for an embroidered gown that nothing can challenge the floor-length gown for grand occasions.

He relegated even the most elegant short evening dresses to middle place—although some of London's "top 12" showed no long gowns. "Perfect medium dresses for perfectly medium occasions," was Hartnell's summing up.

The designer's spring styles remain at mid-calf, avoid extreme lines and favor slim-skirted suits with decorous scooped necklines exposing the throat, a style favored by the Queen on her present tour.

SIMPLE DAY DRESSES

Day dresses are simple, mostly collarless, with straight skirts softened by loops of hip draping and side panels. There are unpressed pleats coming from the hips, wide flares, accordion and barrel pleating for soft wools and silks. Much lace is used for garden party and Ascot outfits.

In common with most of the "top 12" Hartnell uses the moulded or "long-legged look." This means an unbroken line and natural waist from bust to hips. Intricacies of design come above and below this girdle middle.

Amusement rippled through the audience as names such as "same old sweetheart" heralded a net dress embroidered from neck to hem in floral emblems. "Cherie" was a guipure lace embroidered ball gown, its 1920 V-neckline and sleeveless armholes embroidered with ruby-red jewelled motifs. A white satin evening dress glittered with jewelled sprays of peacock feathers.

The tall ruddy-faced designer, whose coronation gowns now are world renowned, is still too shy to appear at his own dress shows. One must brave the background labyrinth of cubicle-sized dressing rooms, scurrying models and big workrooms to run him to earth. He is, however, easy to see—even by a mannequin seeking work.

WOOL, THAT SOFT, light-weight, year-round fabric, is used with great elegance by top designers for spring fashions. Camel-toned coat (left) by Adele Simpson has surah print lining. Cut is loose but not full, with no button closing. Shoulder line is arched. Philip Mangone's full-length coat (centre) is in light-weight brown and white wool tweed scattered over with sequin touches. It's trimmed with suede-finished beige wool at turn-back collar to hemline closing. Coachman's coat in gray and white checks (right) is worn over slim dress of yarn-dyed sheer wool in asphalt gray.

Every Weight, Style Of Wool In Spring Fashions

BY GAILE DUGAS, NEA

NEW YORK—(NEA)—Wool in spring fashions is offered in every possible weight, from sheer, feather-light dress fabrics to the thick and bubbly fleeces used for coats. There are thin, 7½-ounce worsteds, wool lace tailored into town costumes and checks in flat, lightweight woollens.

Wool is a surprising combination when paired with chiffon. It's equally eye-catching in a coat of green felt or one in orange with spongy texture. Such coats are often seen over plain, straight sheath dresses in silk.

There are lots of the highly acceptable silk-wool blends for coats of green elegance, many of these with attractive clear red or black-and-white print linings.

Tweed, usually considered a fall fabric, has become increasingly popular for spring wear in lightweights during recent seasons. This year, it appears in soft colors and a very light weight. Such colors as minosa, heather, blue with violet undertones, burnt sugar and a new chili-red define these tweeds as belonging especially to spring.

Generally, spring woolens have a soft look whether in dresses, suits or coats. They take on the character of this spring's very feminine-looking clothes.

The party coat, that made its bow last spring, is back again this year in light colored woolens. These are trimmed with embroidery or fur for a look of real luxury.

DOROTHY DIX

Youth And Two Girls In Teen-Age Triangle

DEAR MISS DIX: A boy I had been dating for three months went home on leave soon after we began going together. While there he broke off with his girl friend, whom his parents were set on having him marry. We went together for a while, then he broke off with me, went back home, and I heard he was planning to marry the other girl. When he returned here, he said he liked me but was marrying the other girl because she was going to have his baby. I'm sure this marriage will lead only to unhappiness. He's 18, the other girl is 17 and I'm 19. Kay.

HE MUST NOT SHIRK

ANSWER: What you are intimating is that the boy should shirk his responsibility to the mother of his child, and come back, carefree as a butterfly, to you. If it's in his character to behave that way, stop to think what a wretched husband he'd make. A man who would desert one girl is quite likely to do the same again. There's no doubt but that both boy and girl are very young for marriage, yet they have placed themselves in a position where it's the only honorable and decent answer.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I am married to a man with a good job, making a fine salary, yet he is so stingy with his money that I have to work to buy food, clothes, furniture and everything else for the house. I've been doing it for 10 years. I wouldn't mind so much, but he does nothing to help around the house. I know he'd be mad if I gave up my job. We have no children, since he never wanted any. He gives nice things to his family, but I'm only allowed to buy the cheapest things for my family. He was very angry because I gove my father an electric razor for Christmas, yet he gave his mother a TV set. I am wondering if he loves me, and if I'll always have to work without appreciation. Disappointed.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Your husband probably does love you in his own peculiar way, but his real love is for the money you bring home each week. Very rarely can one expect love or appreciation from a miser. The niggard usually lives to his trait even in his so-called affection.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: Last week, on my nineteenth birthday, John gave me a diamond ring. Now, though I love him, I don't want to become engaged as yet, so I wear the ring on my right hand. My friends say I'm wrong. Patsy.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Since a diamond is the traditional symbol of betrothal it would be best to return the ring until you are ready to wear it as such.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: My mother recently married a very nice man. My brother and I both like him very much. I've been telling him I'm in the eighth grade, since I'm ashamed of being in the seventh grade twice. Should I tell him the truth? B. E.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: It's your mother's place to straighten out any misunderstandings between you and your step-father, since you are really too young to handle difficult situations with the necessary tact. Ask her to straighten out this small matter for you.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: For the past few months I've been seeing a young man who is an out-of-towner attending our university here. I usually see him at church or at the homes of other students. He's never asked for a date, and I'm afraid the reason is that I'm not particularly attractive. I know he doesn't like flirtatious girls or those who won't go on a date unless the man spends generously. Priscilla.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Since the boy shows some interest in you, don't give up hope. However, don't overlook the possibility that he may have left a steady girl friend back home.

THE SLIM-LINE DRESSES that are popular this season make perfect basics. A girl who has a way with scarves could, if necessary, build a week's wardrobe around one. This girl sparkles Monday-morning efficiency (upper left) above a crisp white grosgrain silk tie that's appliqued with gay daisies. For a Tuesday evening social engagement (upper centre), she wraps an oblong ribbed sheer scarf fichu-fashion around her neck, fastening it at the waist to emphasize the Empire waistline. Wednesday coffee hour finds her (lower left) with another new look. This time she has combined two 24-inch squares to create a distinguished jabot. In a romantic mood one day, she wears a rose-garden 36-inch square (lower centre) as a bloused bolero. And for dramatic effect on another occasion (right), she has draped a 36-inch square from neck to finger tips, catching it at the waistline with the dress belt. In this arrangement and in most others, effectiveness depends on careful smoothing and fluffing of the material.

Scarves Used With Care Can Extend Your Wardrobe

European couturiers have often acclaimed the ingenuity of the American woman: She can build a week's wardrobe around a basic dress and several misps of material.

But some American women think that the girl who has such ingenuity is the exception; they say they could never think of any clever arrangements for scarves.

One girl we know who has been extending her wardrobe with scarves for years says that just isn't so. She claims just about anyone can think of ways of draping scarves to capitalize on the versatility of a basic dress.

Her advice to the girl who is just starting out is to study the way scarves are worn in fashion photographs and to take the hints offered in the advertisements of scarf companies.

In no time, she says, you will find that you are creating your own scarf arrangements. In other words, one can develop a knack for accessorizing with scarves as well as learn costume colors or make-up.

There are four basic ways of folding a square scarf: As an envelope, triangle, unequal triangle and a flat band.

The first is done by drawing together two of the diagonally opposed corners, overlapping them slightly; the second, by folding the scarf diagonally in half; the third, by folding it diagonally but not quite in half, and the fourth, by folding it in half so that it forms a rectangle, and then folding it the same way again.

If she selects her patterns and colors carefully, a girl can have a good scarf wardrobe with two or three 36-inch, 24-inch and 18-inch squares and a couple of oblong shapes.

Perfect for achieving a dramatic effect with the popular slim-lined silhouette is a zebra-striped scarf that is starring in the spring collection of a famed scarf firm.

It can be worn with one end drawn around the neck and hidden under the folds of the material, with the other falling in folds to the knee from under the dress belt. To fasten the scarf at the neckline, one can use a pretty pin or a safety pin hidden under the folds.

Many of the most interesting scarf arrangements are achieved as simply as this one. As in this case, the effectiveness of the arrangement usually depends on careful draping and fluffing of the material.

Another 36-inch sqare, featured in the spring collection of the same scarf firm, is one that will help a girl to become an authority on rose culture. Twenty famous roses are shown and named in the design, which lends itself to draping as a bloused bolero.

Creating a bolero with a scarf is done simply by arranging the scarf across the shoulders and knotting the ends high above the arm pits.

With simplicity as the keynote, a striking effect can be achieved with two 24-inch scarves of geometric design. Arrange one as a narrow band around the neck, tying it in the back. Fold the other in the three-pointed manner of handkerchief and tuck it under the neckband to create a jabot look. A pin will secure the arrangement.

Among the oblong-shaped scarves offered for spring by this firm is one in an imported ribbed sheet that's centred with several bold stripes. When folded around the neck and pinned at the waist, it does a superb job of emphasizing the high-waisted dress.

Readers' Saturday Column Conducted By Mary Moore

QUESTION. . . . a club which my husband belongs to intend serving an oyster supper. Could you give me any idea how many oysters he would have to buy, also the quantity of milk to serve 150 people. I would suppose each person would want 2 servings of soup. According to my husband this is strictly an oyster supper with the soup being the main item. Along with this they are just going to have rolls, soda biscuits, pie, cake and coffee . . . Rose C

ANSWER: In making oyster stew to be served as the main course for four people, one pine of oyster is used. This does not allow for second hedpings but is quite adequate for four medium helpings. Using that as a basis for one helping for each of 150 people, you would require 5 gallons of oysters and 5 gallons (20 quarts) whole milk. Double those if you are figuring on two servings each. Be generous with the butter and salt and pepper, and sparing with the finely rolled cracker crumbs.

✧ ✧ ✧

QUESTION: . . . would you explain how to make tulips from radishes. I tried to but was a failure . . . I think I hadn't them long enough in water or perhaps they were not cut right . . . E.M.

RADISH ROSES OR TULIPS

Medium-large uniform longish radish are best to work with. Cut off root end leaving a white little slice here ¼-inch in diameter. With your sharpest small knife with a narrow blade cut very thin petals from root end to stem end. If you work with care you can make 5—sometimes 6. Place in ice water in refrigerator to "blossom". If desired for more realistic effect you may leave on a bit of stem and tiny leaf.

QUESTION: . . . thank you for your column (please give more information about wheat germ) . . . Can the average person purchase powdered egg white? . . . or is it limited to commercial users? . . . I wonder if you have a holiday steamed pudding recipe that was in your pre-Christmas column four years ago—I think! It was quite simple and delicious and contained some suet, 2 eggs, flour, fruit, spices, etc . . . your cooking school, where? . . . I love them and wish I could have attended . . . Florence LaB.

ANSWER: In your city one of the large chain groceterias carries wheat germ as what they call "a compulsory item". I have given you their name in my letter to you. I think you will have to ask your baker or go to a bakery supply house for the powdered egg white. If you are unsuccessful in getting any write to me again. I have some. The cooking school was at Kitchener and I would have liked to meet you too. Thanks for pamphlet.

HOLIDAY STEAMED PUDDING

One-half cup very finely chopped suet or soft shortening, ½ cup firmly packed brown sugar, ½ cup molasses, 2 beaten eggs, 2 cups sifted cake flour, 1 teaspoon baking soda, ¼ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon cloves OR ½ teaspoon each cloves and cinnamon, ½ cup cut-up dates, ½ cup raisins, ½ cup milk. Work the suet or shortening into the brown sugar until fluffy and light. Add the molasses and eggs, and beat with a spoon until thoroughly mixed. Sift together the dry ingredients, add the fruits to them then add all to the egg mixture alternately with the milk. Pour into greased mould which has a cover and steam 2 hours.

NOTE: If desired the fruits may be changed. You may use figs and cut mixed peel in same proportions.

LETTEH: (This note is from a man who lives on Homewood Ave. It is the ingredients for his recipe for waffles.) 2 cups flour, 4 teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt, 6 tablespoons shortening, 1½ cups milk, 2 eggs. Thank you Mr. F. F. Let us help you sometime.

Plaque Stolen From Bridge

ORILLIA (CP) — A bronze plaque commemorating Samuel de Champlain's stop at the Narrows in 1615 to do a little fishing has occupied an honored place on the swing bridge over the narrows for more than 25 years.

Recently it was decided to move the plaque to a spot near the bridge where it could be more readily seen by summer visitors to the area.

However when members of Chamber of Commerce and Historical Society visited the bridge to transfer the plaque they discovered it had already been removed.

A search of local scrap yards and other spots has failed to find any trace of the plaque.

Friendship Advice Given By WA Member

BETHANY (ENS)—Mrs. Bruce Ryley entertained members of the United church Women's Association for their meeting Tuesday. In the absence of the president, Mrs. Herb Coppins led the devotional period. Mrs. Wellington Fallis read the scripture lesson and Miss Elsie Richardson gave the lesson thoughts and led in prayer.

Minutes of the previous meeting and correspondence were read by Mrs. Walter Rowland. Twenty-eight members answered roll call with "Thought on Friendship". A greeting card containing wishes for a speedy recovery was signed by all members to be sent to Mrs. George Waddell who is ill in hospital.

Miss Elsie Richardson took charge of the program. Hymns relating to friendship were sung. Mrs. E. Stacey gave a reading "Sympathy". Mrs. T. Jennings read "Put yourself in an Immigran''s shoes."

Mrs. Clarence Rowan gave a talk on "Friendliness". "Acquiring new friends and keeping the old can be the greatest adventure of life. We must act with understanding in making friends and be ready to overlook any of their failings," she said. "Perhaps the greatest stumbling block in making friends is inconvenience . . . we just don't take the time to do the little acts of kindness that we should cultivate as part of our daily living, if we are to make friends and keep friends. Above all, we must have the capacity for forgiveness in order to keep friends."

Mrs. Henry Jakeman closed the meeting with prayer.

Lunch was served by the hostess assisted by Mrs. T. Jennings, Mrs. W. Fallis, Mrs. Earl Weatherilt and Mrs. James McKinnon.

Mrs. Lloyd Kennedy voiced the thanks of the ladies to Mrs. Ryley for the use of her home and to all those who had assisted in the meeting.

Haven't Grounds For Blacklisting

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Broadcasting Corporation said today the Association of Canadian Radio and Television Artists (AFL-TLC) has not "sufficient grounds" for its blacklisting of CBC television producer Don Hudson.

In a prepared statement, the CBC said Mr. Hudson will continue his duties as supervisor of light entertainment for CBC television in Toronto "with the continued support of the corporation."

The union Tuesday accused Mr. Hudson of "unprofessional behavior," and ordered a blacklisting of Hudson shows.

The CBC said the union cited "clashes of temperament and differences of opinion."

"The CBC believes that these reasons did not represent sufficient grounds . . . The corporation regrets that normal channels for the handling of matters of this kind were not followed in accordance with the existing working agreement."

Johnson Co. Hi-Jacked

"We are happy to recall that when it was all done, and the war was won, Outboard Marine had a most successful record in wartime production. We were told that we were tops with the Munitions Board. We kept deliveries flowing as we had promised and undertaken to do. In fact, we were told by Ottawa that we often astounded them by doing so."

That is only a sketchy outline of Outboard Marine's contribution in the tremendous manufacturing accomplishment by the industries of Canada during those years when quality of product and speed of production were so important.

FROM 29,000 TO 185,000 SQ. FT.

Expansion of factory space has been from 29,000 square feet of floor space in the original building to the present 185,000 sq. ft.

"Our original building was the 29,000 area. In 1941 we completed our first addition. It was 33,000 sq. ft., and we needed the extra room then for war production.

"That was followed by the 64,000 sq. ft. addition in 1950; then 19,000 more in 1952, and now we are completing the 40,000 sq. ft. building we began last year. We expect to move in around April 1."

Mr. Neal recalled that in 1946, "we had to start from scratch again, get back to peace time work, just as we had to do in 1939, when we had to go into war work."

POST WAR BACKLOG

"There was a terrific shortage of outboard motors after the war, and the backlog continued to 1951. Sustained business since then has demanded the further expansions."

Consolidation of Evinrude, Elto and Johnson Motors in 1936 had promised a surge of new business before the war, "but we did not have time to exploit and merchandise our new products before the war started. That factor and the general increase in demand for outboard motors have been the chief reasons for our later enlargements of plant and capital investment."

The company acquired last year the Lawn-Boy rotary power mower which is about to be manufactured completely at Outboard Marine, everything from die-casting up, from the raw materials to the finished product.

The company is investing $300,000 in tools, machinery, general equipment, etc., in the new department "so that we can fabricate our power lawn mower completely in Peterborough."

Four assembly production lines will be set up in the addition that is being built by Eastwood Construction Co. "We shall have more flexibility in our system of production, four assembly lines, turning out four different models at the same time, instead of one. Outboard, lawnmower and engine assembly will be in that building."

FACTOR IN PROSPERITY

To return to the theme of this series of industrial sketches, obviously Outboard Marine's 950 payroll can hardly be equated in homes with all their attendant and necessary purchases, but that is the shining nub of the whole story of successful management of the Peterborough industries in review.

Possibly Outboard Marine's payroll may move up to the substantial four-figure 1,000 mark this year. That is only a surmise, but even at the 950 level its business accounts for a substantial part of the prosperity of this city.

Many elements and factors of initiative and ability have been joined in the growth of Outboard Marine as it will appear this April, another phase of the industrial enlargement of Peterborough through the first half of this century.

While J. G. Rayniak, president of the Waukegan company, and several associates, were concluding their selection of a Toronto building, Mr. Denne proceeded with his plan for a dinner in the suite. Senator O'Connor promised to come; Senator William H. McGuire, formerly of Peterborough county, was also recruited for impressive effect.

Somehow, Hon. Peter Heenan, federal Minister of Labor, agreed to join the party. Denne and Armstrong called in others to lend a hand with the act. And so, the stage was set. The presence of two Senators and a minister of the national government was calculated to impress the Johnson Motors people, and from all accounts of several of the supernumeraries who were rounded up during the day, the dinner was quite a pleasant affair.

DENNE PERSUASIVENESS

Friends of Rollie Denne may imagine his persistence in appealing to Mr. Rayniak—"just come down to Peterborough tomorrow and see what we've got. You can get here by noon and out again at 5 p.m. . . ."

As the concluding chapter was told again last year and by Mr. Rayniak himself, Mayor Denne and his visitors had to force a window of the former Henry Hope Co. factory to get inside and look it over.

He had been told in Toronto: "But, we already have a suitable building right here." That was how desperate appeared the chances of the two Peterborough civic men when the U.S. visitors promised to make the trip to Peterborough.

When you see the progress of the newest addition to the physical plant of Outboard Marine and Manufacturing Co., you may remember the salesmanship of Rollie Denne and the quiet patience and perseverance of Simon R. Armstrong as having some remote hand in its building here in Peterborough, instead of Toronto, the latest unit of expansion.

Expect 50,000 Canadians Invade U.K. This Year

By WALTER GRAY

TORONTO (CP) — Travel agencies and transportation companies believe that more Canadians will visit Britain this year than ever before. Present indications are that last year's influx for the Coronation will be exceeded.

Alistair McLean, manager of the British Travel Association here, said in an interview that an estimated 50,000 Canadians are planning a vacation in the United Kingdom this year, compared with 47,000 in 1953.

"We are talking in terms of 50,000," Mr. McLean said. "And we are never far out in our estimates."

E. V. Stokes, manager of Thomas Cook and Son, Ltd., said bookings are "considerably heavier" this year due to the fact that thousands of Canadians who had planned to take in the Coronation last June became discouraged by lack of accommodation and passage and postponed their trip for a year.

The tourist season will begin as early as March due to heavy bookings, Mr. Stokes said.

To meet the demand, airlines and steamship companies are increasing their services.

Cunard Steamship Lines will open the season with four ships—the Franconia, Samaria, Scythia and Ascania—and company officials said they expect the new 22,000-ton liner Saxonia, now under construction in Glasgow, will be ready before the summer is over.

The present four ships have total accommodation for 950 first-class passengers and 2,375 tourists. The Saxonia will handle 125 first class and 850-900 tourist.

The Franconia opens the season April 17 at Quebec. The Ascania goes into service May 6 at Montreal. Cunard sailings will be once weekly.

CPS BOOKINGS

Canadian Pacific Steamship officials said their three Empress ships—the France, Australia and Scotland—are booked solid from April to July. The three ships have a total capacity of 735 first-class passengers and 1,293 tourist. The season opens in Montreal April 19 with the departure of the Empress of Australia.

Trans-Canada Airlines will introduce the 63-passenger superconstellations to the Atlantic service May 14 and will operate five flights weekly until July 1 when daily service will be inaugurated. Two flights will operate from Toronto and five from Montreal.

British Overseas Airways Corporation officials said they were booking flights up to 1955. They expect a 10-per-cent increase in business this year.

BOAC's weekly service will be carried out by three first-class flights on the 55-passenger stratocruiser and four tourist flights on the super-constellation. All flights will originate from Montreal.

Fire In Newspaper 8 Slightly Injured

NEW YORK (AP) — A smoky fire raged for an hour Friday through the nine-floor annex of the 36-storey New York Daily News building, but the paper's first edition came out only half an hour later than usual.

Starting in a third-floor press room in mid-afternoon, the blaze sent heavy black smoke pouring from windows and spread through the annex via ventilation pipes. Eight persons were slightly injured, including four firemen, and 25 men reached safety by climbing down aerial ladders.

As the smoke cleared, editorial workers went back to their desks. However, all of today's editions of the continent's biggest-circulation newspaper were printed in The News' auxiliary Brooklyn plant. The news has a normal press run of 2,000,000 copies.

Delay Decision On Death Penalty Change

TORONTO (CP) — A resolution before the Ontario section of the Canadian Bar Association calling for abolition of the death penalty for murder in Canada, was put over Friday to the association's next annual meeting for further discussion.

Those who urged abolition at the association's mid-winter meeting, included a psychiatrist, a lawyer, and three religious leaders. Those against were an Ontario Supreme Court justice, two lawyers, and a newspaper man.

The abolition resolution was moved by Arthur Maloney, Toronto lawyer and chairman of the Ontario association's criminal justice division.

He said the death penalty is no deterrent to a killer, and added that the incidence of murder had dropped in countries where capital punishment was abolished.

Speakers on the motion, however, were unanimous that such comparisons were inconclusive.

CAN'T RECTIFY ERRORS

"The death penalty," said Mr. Maloney, "makes it impossible to rectify errors of human judgment that may occurr in two fields—law and fact. Death by hanging is brutal."

Mr. Justice J. K. MacKay, of the appeal division of the Ontario Supreme Court, disagreed.

"The death penalty is the only punishment suitable for the deliberate and premeditated taking of a life," he said. "For normal human beings, no other punishment is so effective (as a deterrent) as the threat of death."

MATTER OF TIMING

Ven. G. B. Snell, Anglican archdeacon of Toronto, said to him the only question is when capital punishment should be abolished.

Two other Toronto religious leaders said if the death penalty is retained for murder it should also cover the "greater crime" of supplying narcotics to teen - agers. The speakers were Rabbi Abraham Feinburg of Holy Blossom temple, and Rev. John Kelly, professor of philosophy at St. Michael's College.

Speaking in favor of abolition were Dr. Arthur Doyle, chief psychiatrist, St. Michael's Hospital, Toronto; Rabbi Feinberg, Fr. Kelly and Archdeacon Snell. Opposed were Mr. Justice MacKay, Toronto lawyers Vera Parsons and Joseph Sedgwick, and J. B. McGeachy, editorial writer for the Toronto Globe and Mail.

Exclusive Rights Not Given CBC

OTTAWA (CP) — An accredited representative of CBC television news took films of the start of the dog sled championships at The Pas, Man., but the corporation did not seek or obtain exclusive rights to cover the opening, a CBC spokesman said Friday.

Newspaper photographers and reporters were unable to snap close-up pictures or interview drivers before the start of the 200-mile race Tuesday. In Winnipeg, Supt. R. W. Wonnacott of the RCMP said this was due to a "forgetful festival committee."

He said his men in The Pas reported they were told the CBC television cameras had exclusive photography rights, "and members of the festival committee somehow forgot about the newspaper men." He added that everything had been straightened out and there would not be another such mix-up.

What Will Tax Rate Be

To begin wih, when council struck the mill rate last year, they estimated that their total receipts, including taxes and revenue from other sources, would be $3,358,872.88, which is just $2,083.96 less than was actually spent.

In other words, they would have had a deficit in place of a surplus if they had not received higher revenues than they expected. The sources of these unexpected revenues were government grants, parking meters, police court fines, payments in lieu of taxes and a refund on the city's bill for street lighting.

To give credit where credit is due, spending was less than had been estimated in some departments, notably the board of works, city hall administration and payments to Civic Hospital.

But the actual surplus was a windfall in the form of unexpected revenues.

Given the unpredictability of wage demands and the vagaries of prices of a host of commodities purchased by the city, Peterborough's finances are budgeted about as tightly as can be expected.

TWO METHODS

There are two ways of keeping the tax rate down: cutting extra departmental spending to a minimum and keeping a close eye on special grants. As for the latter, a dispute has already arisen over the question of a $1,000 grant to the Peterborough Nursing Registry and the Chamber of Commerce are asking for $6,395 to cover part of their operations.

As for the departmental expenditures, Ald. Anglesey has already asked the committee chairmen to start going over their needs for 1954. From the two or three meetings that have been held so far, it can be gathered that Ald. Anglesey's task is not going to be too easy.

Both the sanitation and parks departments have expressed a need for new vehicles. The city has already decided to advertise for tenders for a new car for the fire chief, who at present chases fires in a 1946 model. The chief has also recommended the purchase of some costly new equipment and has described the 1927 ladder truck as a "menace." It should have a major overhaul or be replaced.

The situation in the board of works is somewhat different. They have received permission to advertise for replacements for two panel trucks, two dump trucks (both 1944 models) and a tractor.

But years ago the board of works set up a depreciation fund to pay for replacing outworn vehicles. For some unknown reason, none of the other departments have such a fund, although it has been talked about for years. The talk has revived this year but the other funds don't exist yet, although this doesn't prevent equipment wearing out.

To date, Ald. Anglesey has contented himself with quiet but persistent questioning about the necessity for certain expenditures last year and a sympathetic ear to the requests of departmental heads for 1954 spending.

But when it is time to set the tax rate, the parjng and slicing will probably begin. Anyway, most department heads have grown philosophical about seeing their fondest dreams of what they consider necessary spending go up in smoke at budget time.

Another thing that could keep Ald. Anglesey awake nights is the big question mark hanging over the court of revision. The court has 529 appeals to hear. Will the tax rate be forced up by sizeable reductions in the assessment?

Officials tend to think not. Revisions granted up to January 21 brought the city's total assessment for general purposes and secondary schools down from $59,562,390 only to $59,180,135, slightly more than one half of one per cent.

The city clerk will submit a further total on February 15. But the big industrial appeals will not be heard until March. And nobody, including the members of the court, can predict what will be the outcome.

Faced with these problems, if Ald. Anglesey can keep the tax rate down to 47 mills, it will be the equivalent of pulling a rabbit out of a hat.

If the rate is to be kept within two or three mills of this figure, he will have to depend on the co-operation of his colleagues on council. It looks as though he probably will get it.

A week or so ago, when a department head sent a written request to committee for a desk and tyepwriter, Ald. Gordon Farquharson demanded that he appear in person to make his request.

Although it was conceded by the entire committee, including Ald. Anglesey, that the desk and typewriter were really needed, they went along with Ald. Farquharson, against whose property committee the expense would be charged.

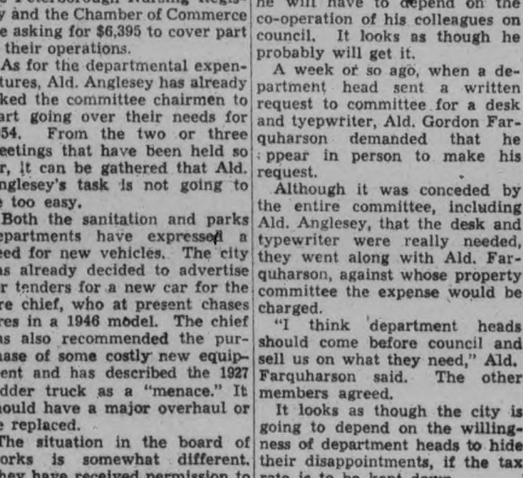
"I think department heads should come before council and sell us on what they need," Ald. Farquharson said. The other members agreed.

It looks as though the city is going to depend on the willingness of department heads to hide their disappointments, if the tax rate is to be kept down.

They seem to be used to it.

Publisher Honored

SYRACUSE, N. Y. (AP)—Frank Wilkie Severne, 93, publisher of the Watkins Review of Watkins Glen, N. Y., was honored Friday night as the "New York state weekly newspaper editor of 1953." Severne has been blind since he was 11 years old. He was awarded a placque by the New York Press Association, an organization representing 350 New York state weeklies.



NOT BLIND TO ACHIEVEMENT—It took 12 years, but Richard Kinney, of East Sparta, Ohio, blind since he was seven and deaf since his first year in college, finally will achieve his goal. He'll graduate this spring from Mt. Union College with a 3.8 average, highest in the college's history. Eyes and ears for the 32-year-old student is Ron Smith, right, who tutored Kinney to the honor. Kinney always wears a glove marked with the letters of the alphabet. Classmates at the Alliance, Ohio, college can "talk" to him by touching letters and spelling out their messages.

In Fishing Business 85 Years St. John's Man Would Go Again

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—Isaiah Dawe, who has been in the fishing business 85 years, spent last summer spreading codfish caught by his sons, but he says "I've got a mind to buy a boat and go out fishing again myself next summer."

Dawe's father was drowned off the Labrador coast nearly 90 years ago, and Isaiah was forced to start fishing when he was eight years old. At that time he went in a boat with his two brothers, one 15 and the other 12.

"It was a hard life in those days," he said, "and my mother went everywhere but nobody could give any help." Therefore she allowed the three boys to go to Labrador while she and two daughters picked berries to sell.

Dawe stayed in Labrador that year, but before he returned disaster struck. He had rowed two boatloads of men to the schooner which was to bring them back to Newfoundland when the storm struck. "The boat beneath me was swept away," he recalls. "The schooner I was going to, went down, and all aboard were drowned."

When he got his bearings he learned that about 80 vessels had been lost in that storm.

That was enough for Isaiah, who never went up the Labrador coast again. He returned eventually to St. John's, and had just moored his boat in the harbor here—more than 60 years ago—when the city burned down.

His boat was also burned, but he bought another one. This time things went better, and he fished for 60 years without mishap.

"No my boys won't let me take out a boat myself," he mourns. "But I'd like to."

Bad Manners 'Exhaust Queen'

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuters)—Queen Elizabeth relaxed under a parasol today to watch thousands of bronzed, muscular Australians crowd Sydney's Bondi beach for a series of water contests.

In blazing sunshine, the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh saw the brawny youths plunge into the ocean for swimming contests, surfboat races and life-saving exhibitions. Later, the Queen and duke drove past lines of the sun-tanned competitors in an informal review.

Later the Queen bestowed decorations, including four knighthoods, on 130 persons in the first royal investiture ever held in Australia.

The Daily Mirror today said bluntly that the lord mayor's ball, attended by the Queen Friday night, was a "flop" and claimed the young monarch had been worn out by the "shocking bad manners and boorish behavior of most of the guests."

SLEEPY? NO, JUST TIRED—Here we have a picture of an airman completely wrapped up in his work. The tired gentleman is Corporal Bud Carmody, of Charlottetown, P.E.I., displaying some of the tires in stock at the RCAF's No. 30 Air Material Base in Langar, England. This base supplies the RCAF's 12 jet fighter NATO divisions. Bud is buried in truck tires, is carrying a pair of small aircraft tires. —(National Defence Photo).

Broadcasters Oppose Contract

VANCOUVER (CP)—Signing of a $50,000 contract giving the CBC, exclusive rights in coverage of the British Empire Games here this summer was attacked Friday by the British Columbia Association of Radio and Television Broadcasters.

A resolution, unanimously approved at the closing session of the association's annual convention, said "such a contract appears to interfere with the activities of independent broadcasting stations in B.C. in reporting the games to the public."

The resolution urged that "actual description of events by direct line to broadcasting stations or by tape recording, or any similar method, be recognized as essential parts of reporting by radio broadcasting stations."

Delegates voted to appoint a committee to discuss the matter with the B.E.G. executive committee to seek "essential changes to permit free and more extensive coverage" of the games by independent radio stations.

but not the full story

UNTIL YOU READ these words you might not know that these girls are nurses . . . Navy nurses . . . and that they have been taking swimming lessons . . . and that the final lesson consists of jumping fully clothed into the water to learn how to swim under emergency conditions.

A picture, a headline, a brief announcement can whet your appetite for news, but cannot satisfy your hunger for the whole story.

It takes words—sometimes many—to satisfy your curiosity about the who, what, when and where of any picture or headline.

Words bring meaning, words bring understanding, words bring news. Newspapers bring news.

Only the newspaper brings you full stories day after day—pictures and sufficient words.

Only the newspaper can bring you the full story as soon as your appetite is aroused. Fast, without delay.

• This goes for advertising, too. The brief message that hangs in the air . . . or the brief headline here or there . . . may indeed have a momentary interest.

But the newspaper ad carries the brass-tacks quality, the urgency of the newspaper itself.

Like a news item, the ad can be examined and re-examined. Can be read any time. Anywhere. Can be clipped and carried in a pocket or pocketbook.

Like the news, the ads themselves have the same important local quality. No other medium can match this quality.

Add to all this the fact that the newspapers reach everybody in town, and you know why the newspaper is the nation's most powerful advertising medium.

The newspaper is always "first with the most"

Mining Interest Curbed Rise Of Industrials

By BOB JOHNSTONE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Profit-taking and mining interest curbed the rising trend of industrial issues on the stock markets this week.

Toronto, Montreal and New York featured the industrial gain that began with the new year, but a few soft spots appeared. Montreal and New York were hit by profit-takers and in Toronto recent mining discoveries attracted a big share of investor interest.

Papers led the Toronto industrial advance and steels also gained. Foods were strong and utilities closed higher. Textiles were lower.

Manitouwadge-area base metals, in Ontario's Thunder Bay mining district, attracted the interest in the mining groups as Geco continued to leap upwards, topping the $10 mark. Consolidated Howey, another Manitouwadge issue, also gained in active trading.

Western oils made a few rising attempts but most strength was too specialized to constitute a trend. Golds, base metals and uraniums and Bathurst-area base metals were quiet.

Friday - to-Friday comparisons showed industrials up 2.85 at 325.68, golds up .30 at 71.38, base metals up .67 at 139.19, and western oils up .24 at 93.91.

IRREGULAR GAINS

Montreal opened the week with irregular gains and several trendless bursts of activity. Toward mid-week a softer note prevailed, then Friday's close was slightly stronger with papers, banks, steels and utilities leading upward.

The Friday-to-Friday comparison showed banks off .09 at 37.50, utilities up .5 at 96.9, industrials up 1.1 at 186.7, combined up .9 at 156.8, papers up 15.03 at 824.99 and golds up .23 at 51.99.

New Hork slipped at the opening as profit-takers moved in. Motors took the brunt of the initial loss. Toward mid-week, railroads and motors headed advancing movements as Thursday's close saw averages reaching their highest point in 24 years.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks as up $1.10 at $114.70 to its highest point since March, 1953.

Gassing Fatal

TORONTO (CP)—A pot of potatoes boiling over on a gas stove may have caused the death of Vaselle Balon, 70, in his rooming house Friday, Coroner Dr. Julian Loudon said the water probably doused the domestic gas flame, and Balon was overcome. Balon, whose wife was in another part of the house, was found dead on a bed.

Developments In U.S. Point To Break For Consumer Now

By WALTER BREEDE Jr,

NEW YORK (AP)—Several developments in the United States economy this week pointed to a break for the consumer.

There were price reductions covering such varied items as automobiles, bed sheets, frozen orange juice, gasoline, auto batteries, chlorophyll, winter apparel, round-trip railroad fares, "drawing grade" sheet steel and classical phonograph records.

At the same time, a move was shaping up in Congress to try and curb rising coffee prices by having the department of agriculture clamp market controls on coffee futures speculation.

The shifting pattern in United States' post-Korean economy was noted by the chairman of the federal reserve board in testimony before the joint congressional economic committee. Said William McChesney Martin: "Competition has been intensified, not among buyers as during the war and much of the postwar period, but among sellers. The consumer is no longer the forgotten man."

The swing to a peace-time buyers' market had other less pleasant effects: Factory cutabcks, reduced overtime, rising unemployment. Business failures were more numerous than in any week since April 1942; steel and auto production were under the levels of the previous week. Michigan authorities reported a 16-per-cent rise in unemployment compensation mostly in Detroit.

CAUTIOUSLY OPTIMISTIC

The U.S. labor department noted a sharp decline, 380,000, in the number of industrial jobholders in the U.S. during the period from mid-December to mid-January. But, the department said, its employment service offices across the country are "cautiously optimistic" that the downtrend of employment may be checked by mid-March and will be less severe than in the recession of 1949, when unemployment neared 5,000,000.

Auto retailers complained that for the first time in 10 years they have more new cars than customers. Manufacturers retorted that dealers, accustomed to the easy money days when cars were in short supply, have forgotten how to sell. "We've had to call them from the golf links to sales meetings," said one manufacturer spokesman.

THE AGA KHAN WEIGHS IN — Electric scales added up to 215 pounds and $230,000 in platinum when the Aga Khan finished weighing under a huge awning at Karachi, Pakistan. However, the leader of the Ismaeli Moslems accepted only a symbolic payment of about $1,400. He directed the rest of the funds to be donated to a "better cause."

DIDN'T KNOW SHE WAS ON PAYROLL—Mrs. Olga Hardaway, a former clerk for Rep. Ernest K. Bramblett (R., Calif.), relaxes with a cigarette in the press room of the District Court Building at Washington after she had testified she was on Bramblett's payroll for six months before she was told about it. Her husband, John Hardaway, gives her a light. Bramblett is being tried for payroll padding.

GOLFER DIES

OTTAWA (CP)—A. W. H. (Gus) Mullen, 63, leading Ottawa golfer of the 30s and holder of city and district championships, died at his home Friday after a long illness. He retired from golf because of ill-health about 15 years ago.

3 KILLED IN MILTON FARMHOUSE FIRE

Father Dies Trying Save 2 Daughters

3 Others Injured As Flames Destroy Building

MILTON (CP)—Three persons burned to death and three were injured late Sunday night when flames, fanned by a 40-mile-an-hour wind, destroyed a two-storey frame farmhouse eight miles west of here.

Dead are Emerson Laver, 55 and his daughters Merle, 18, and Linda, 6.

Mr. Laver, his wife and five children had gone to bed about 10 p. m. and the fire broke out shortly before midnight. Firemen said they believed high winds blowing down a chimney pipe into the stove whipped it red-hot and caused the fire.

SAVED WIFE, LOST OWN LIFE

Firemen reconstructed this story of the blaze from survivors:

Mr. Laver woke first. He carried his wife outside from their first-floor bedroom, then ran inside to arouse his two girls and three boys sleeping on the second floor.

He ran to a burning staircase and disappeared.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Laver had smashed a window in the room below that in which her three sons, Edwin, 20, Gordon, 16, and Keith, 13, were sleeping. She called to them, they awoke and jumped 12 feet from a second-storey window.

The three suffered burns and were brought to hospital in this town 18 miles northeast of Hamilton.

The boys said the only sound they heard from their father after he climbed upstairs was a muffled "Oh" They said the girls made no sound.

WIDOW TELLS OF FIRE

Mrs. Isobelle Laver said she was awakened when her husband jabbed his elbow into her side.

"Our bedroom was full of smoke," she said. "He pushed me outside the house with all his force.

"Then I ran to the back of the house to arouse the boys. I smashed a window with my fist and yelled up.

"'Ed, Gordon, Keith, wake up or you'll all be killed. The house is burning down!' "

"They soon jumped out the window. I went around to the front of the house and was going to run in to get my daughters but neighbors held me back.

"It was then that I learned my husband had run into the fire to get the girls and had disappeared."

Another daughter, May, 19, was away from home on a date when fire broke out. She returned to find the house in ruins.

Milton fire department was hampered in fighting the blaze by a lack of water and by the high wind. The house was in flames when they arrived.

Firemen estimated damage at more than $25,000.

St. Laurent Meets With French Heads Talks Encouraging

PARIS (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent called on French President Rene Coty and Premier Joseph Laniel today as part of a full program for his first day in Paris. The Canadian leader arrived here by air from London Sunday on the second stage of a global tour. He is due to leave for Bonn Wednesday. Republican guards lined the entrance to the Hotel Matignon, the French premier's official residence, when the prime minister arrived for a formal call. The two government leaders, together for about 30 minutes, had what St. Laurent afterwards called a "very encouraging conversation."

WIDE DISCUSSION

"We were able to discuss a wide range of problems and, as far as I am concerned, I was able to renew my confidence in the future of France," he declared.

An hour later, the prime minister was received at the president's Elysee Palace.

Guests at the president's lunch included British Ambassador Sir Oliver Harvey, Laniel, Andre le Troquer and Gaston Monnerville, presidents of the Lower and Upper Houses of Parliament, Maurice Schumann, secretary of state for foreign affairs, and other government and parliamentary figures.

EMBASSY RECEPTION

Later today, the Canadian leader was due to receive Le Torquer, Laniel and Monnerville at the Canadian embassy. He will dine tonight with Dana Wilgress, permanent Canadian delegate to the North Atlantic Council.

The prime minister this morning walked between blue-uniformed ranks of the Republican guard to the Arc de Triomphe where he placed a wreath on the tomb of the Unkown Soldier.

IMPRESSIVE CEREMONY

The Arc de Triomphe ceremony was impressive. Spruce gendarmes blocked off all traffic around the usually busy Place de l'Etoile, a star-shaped intersection of many streets in the centre of which the arch dominates the Champs Elysees.

A guard band played 'O Canada" and "La Marseillaise" when the prime minister arrived for a greeting by Gen. Marie-Emile Bethouart, president of the perpetual flame committee, and Gen. Henri Zeller, military governor of Paris.

When the prime minister lowered the wreath on the stone tomb he

900 Collapse While Waiting To See Queen

SYDNEY, Australia (AP)—Queen Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh today slipped out a side entrance to Government House for a day off from official engagements. Only a handful of their enthusiastic Australian public caught up with them.

The royal couple drove to the harbor and took a barge trip to a palatial private home on the waterfront before lunch. Hundreds meanwhile milled about the main entrance to government house or followed rumors about the pair's plans for their holiday.

An Australian government spokesman said the Queen has not been "unduly wearied" by her heavy, crowd-attended schedule of the last few days. The spokesman said the Queen had a restful day at the Randwick races and Bondi beach Saturday. Her only public appearance Sunday was for church services at St. Andrew's cathedral.

HEAT TAKES TOLL

But again the summer heat took a heavy toll among the spectators who packed around the cathedral and knelt on the hot pavement. Some 900 persons, including many children, collapsed and were given first aid in the cathedral chapter house.

Tens of thousands of cars were caught in a tremendous traffic jam 27 miles from the heart of Sydney Sunday when a false report spread that the Queen intended to spend the afternoon at fashionable Palm Beach.

CROWD DISORDERS DENIED

The London correspondent of the Melbourne Argus reported today that Britons were "rocked" and "shocked" by news of unruly crowd scenes here last week and by the fact that Australians had "actually tried to touch the Queen, called her 'Liz' and the duke 'Phil.' "

1st Secret Berlin Meeting Held By Big 4 Powers

BERLIN (AP)—The Big Four foreign ministers today met in their first restricted session of the Berlin conference to see whether they could agree on steps to promote peace settlements in Asia and on a formula for a world conference on disarmament. They were back in the Allied control authority building in West Berlin after a week in the Soviet embassy in East Berlin.

During the first two weeks of meetings, full details were made public. Today's session was more secretive. In contrast to the big delegations attending previous meetings, each of the four powers today was limited to four persons in the room although experts on a variety of subjects were standing by for consultation.

Russia's Foreign Minister Molotov had at his side Deputy Foreign Minister Andrey Gromyko, ambassador to London Jacob Malik, and interpreter Oleg Troyanovsky.

AMBASSADOR INTERPRETS

U.S. State Secretary Dulles was assisted by state department counsellor Douglas MacArthur II, assistant secretary for European affairs Livingston T. Merchant and ambassador to Russia, Charles E. Bohlen, who acted as interpreter.

British Foreign Secretary Eden had on hand deputy under secretary Sir Frank Roberts, Roger Allen, assistant under secretary of state for Far Eastern affairs, and an interpreter.

The meeting was called for discussion of Russia's demand for a world disarmament conference and a Big Five conference on world problems that would give Commun-

Announce Pope Up For First

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Ailing Pope Pius rose from bed today and spent some time sitting in an armchair—the first time he has done this for any considerable period since Jan. 25.

Both the pontiff's private physician and the Vatican press office announced that his health is improving.

The latter, in its daily bulletin, said the doctor has advised the 77-year-old Pope "to move about some within his chambers."

Vatican sources said the Pope did this, sitting in an armchair. He also took solid food—his first in many days. Previously he had been able to hold down only liquids. He has been secluded in his apartment for more than two weeks with a stomach ailment of undisclosed nature.

Prayers for his health were repeated Sunday in Roman Catholic churches throughout the world. Thousands of letters and messages have poured into the Vatican from far points expressing hope for his recovery.

Galeazzi-Lisi's report was terse: "The Pope rested well and his improvement continues."

BULLETIN

BERLIN (AP)—The Big Four foreign ministers decided today in secret session to invite Austria for the opening of the Austrian independence treaty discussions this Friday at the latest. Acting on the assumption the Big Four were about to move on to the Austrian question, Austrian Foreign Minister Leopold Figl arranged plane reservations to come to Berlin from Vienna Tuesday.

$65,000 Fire Razes Bungalow

BELLEVILLE (CP) — Fire gutted a ranch-style bungalow three miles west of here early today while its owners were on a trip to Europe. Damage was estimated at $65,000.

Expensive oil paintings and antique furniture in the home of Mr. and Mrs. George K. Graham were destroyed. Firemen said they believed the blaze spread from an overheated furnace stoked by a caretaker Sunday.

Gunman Robs Garage Of $153 In Daylight

PORT HOPE (ENS)— A lone gunman walked into a service station here this morning, demanded the Sunday receipts, then escaped with $153 in cash. He was described as being in his late 20's or early 30's, dark, stout and well dressed.

The proprietor, Andy Murphy, was in the service station lunch counter counting Sunday receipts when the holdup occurred.

Murphy said he saw a car come past the window, then park slightly past the pumps.

The driver got out, walked casually into the bar, then pulled out an automatic and demanded the money.

"I took a look at the gun and decided to do as I was told," Murphy said. The gunman took the money plus $187 in credit card sales bills. He warned Murphy to stay in the counter, then dashed to his car and drove away.

Murphy told provincial and town police who investigated that he didn't see the license number. He could describe the vehicle only as a 1946 or '47 grey two door sedan.

The robber was dressel in dark clothes.

The additional $187 in credit card bills will be of no use to the hold-up man; their loss will only serve to complicate his bookkeeping.

Memorial Service

HONG KONG (AP)—A memorial service for Canadian war dead of two world wars was conducted Saturday in Hong Kong's military cemetery.

The Canadian community was represented by T. R. G. Fletcher, Canadian trade commissioner in Hong Kong.

Have Promising Lead In Torso Murder

MONTREAL (CP) — Provincial police said today they have "a promising lead" in connection with Montreal's torso murder mystery of two months ago.

Detective-Captain Leopold Trottier said an officer from Quebec has been sent to the remote Gaspe village of Baie du Sable to investigate a report that the unidentified victim was a former resident of that community.

Buried Under Tons Of Snow Skier Found After 5 Hours

OWEN SOUND (CP)—Buried under tons of snow while skiing, George Bornet, 38, of Toronto, had an escape from death Sunday that he will never forget. Searchers after a five-hour hunt heard faint cries from underfoot and found themselves standing over the very avalanche of snow that buried Bornet. They dug him out unharmed. He was taken to hospital at Collingwood, 40 miles east of here, suffering shock.

A three-inch hole in the snow from the surface down to his burial place in a creek bed saved Bornet's life. It gave him sufficient air until searchers found him.

Bornet had gone to Blue Mountain Lodge near Collingwood with a party of week-end skiers from Toronto. When he was missed Sunday afternoon a search party, led by the Owen Sound skiing brothers Bill and Jim Georgas, was organized.

HEARD FAINT CRY

After five hours of fruitless searching Bill Georgas thought he heard a faint cry. He told the others to listen and then from beneath the snow at their feet, they heard it again:

"Help, I'm here."

The searchers shone a flashlight into the small hole in the snow. They saw Bornet's white face.

Using tree boughs and other improvised implements they dug him out. It took two hours to get him down to the ski lodge and off to hospital by car.

Bornet lay for several hours in the creek bed after he was engulfed by an avalanche that tumbled down the mountainside. He was weak when dug out but searchers said he escaped freezing to death because he was lying in running water under the snow.

That and the air hole saved his life.

In at the rescue besides the Georgas brothers were Jamie Clark and Ken Ferguson, Owen Sound, George Weider of Collingwood and Donald Proudfoot of Toronto.

Unions Veto Wildcat Strike

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—A demand for a wildcat strike at the Windsor plant of the Ford Motor Company of Canada to protest the provincial government's conciliation procedure met with outright rejection Saturday at the Ontario Federation of Labor convention.

Sam Lore, a member of the Ford Local 200, United Automobile Workers (CIO-CCL), urged this action in referring to the UAW's dispute with the company in negotiations for a new contract.

"Local 200 is as good a place as any to start fighting the law," he said. "We're law abiding citizens, but we can't agree to a law that is slowly strangling us."

George Burt, president of the Federation and Canadian director of the UAW, strongly rejected illegal walkouts and said "not one delegate at the UAW convention has proposed wildcat strikes."

The law has to be obeyed whether it is liked or not, he told the convention at its final session.

Mr. Lore said a wildcat strike would focus government attention on labor's objections to the long delays involved by contract disputes being handled by conciliation boards after the parties had failed to reach agreement with the help of a conciliation officer.

Ask For Conciliation

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Local 200, United Auto Workers (CIO), has asked for government conciliation services in connection with its negotiations for a new contract with Ford of Canada, a company source said this morning.

Wallace H. Clark, vice-president, industrial relations, for Ford said:

ARRIVES HOME — John Hvasta waves farewell from Munich, Germany, before his plane leaves on the last lap of the trip home to Hillside, N.J. Hvasta, escaped from Czechoslovakia's grim Leopoldov prison, refused to talk with newsmen on his arrival in New York.

5,000 Homeless In Earthquake

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Fears of a heavy death toll in the earthquake-shattered region of Chiapas state in southern Mexico diminished today as new reports trickled in from the remote mountain region. But 5,000 families are believed homeless following the severe shock Friday.

The quake centred in a 500-mile-wide coffee producing area 60 miles west of the Guatemalan border. Four towns were reported devastated.

State governor Efrain Aranda Osorio Sunday said telephone reports from four mayors in the hardest-hit region did not list any fatalities.

Damage was estimated in the millions.

Organize Behind Iron Curtain

Underground Keeps Revolt Simmering

NOTE: The fires of rebellion flicker behind the Iron Curtain. Here's the story of this resistance movement based on interviews with underground partisans and Allied intelligence officers by Associated Press correspondents in West Berlin, Vienna and Belgrade.

BERLIN (AP) — The spindly little fellow blew a big smoke ring on a cheap cigar.

"There are thousands like me," he said quietly. "Not only Germans, but Poles and Czechs and the others. They're all wating for the day the Russians step back just one little bit.

"Yes, the Soviets call me and others like me underground agents. We're a little more than that. We are an army without guns. But we're an army just the same."

How many are there like this from Berlin to Moscow? There is no firm estimate anywhere except perhaps in the files of the late Lavrenty Beria's secret police.

Is there a genuine resistance movement? Reliable reports from this crossroads city, from Vienna, gateway to the Balkans, from Prague, from Warsaw and Belgrade indicate the fires of rebellion flare up constantly behind the Iron Curtain, never connected, never organized, but there just the same.

HATRED UNIVERSAL

From diplomats, refugees, intelligence agencies, personal contacts and from Soviet admissions themselves, Associated Press correspondents in Berlin, Vienna and Belgrade conclude:

1. There is simmering hatred everywhere the Russians impose their rule by might.

2. Sabotage is rare but sometimes highly dramatic.

3. Passive resistance, the only safe weapon against power, is evident.

The amount of active revolt decreases as one moves east toward the core of the Kremlin's power.

East Germany appears more loaded with a potential explosion than any other area, as shown in the uprisings last June, which probably would have blown the Communists out of their government swivel chairs if Russian tanks hadn't roared into the breach.

COURTS WORK OVERTIME

Red police still are on constant alert and Communist courts have piled up this winter a record of 73 trials, six death sentences, 22 life sentences and various terms against 1,557 additional men and women.

The charges were always the same: Sabotage, resistance, espionage. Plots to blow up bridges and to dynamite rail lines used by Soviet reparations trains were admitted. A 21,000-ton Soviet ship was scuttled off the Baltic coast.

In East Berlin, little rockets explode almost daily over roof-tops, scattering anti-Communist leaflets. Through the East zone, resistance bands tie pamphlets to weather vanes when they expect windy weather.

Across the Oder river in Poland, there are persistent reports of sabotage gangs making lightning swoops out of the forests to attack the Russian rail lifeline. The famed Blue Express has been dynamited three times in the last four years. Passive resistance to high work quotas and unenthusiastic participation in state functions is the underground order of the day.

POLES BACK GUERRILLAS

Ninety per cent Catholic, the Poles are sympathetic to any hardy guerrilla who swings a punch at the anti-church system.

Three Soviet Army divisions are deployed in strategic areas to bolster Marshal Rokossovsky's Polish forces.

To the south, the Czechs and Slovaks are in an equally tight view but the Red Army has not found it necessary to provide troops. Nevertheless, tension is high. Czech workers mutinied in Pilsen last June. The toll exacted by gun-wielding Communist police never has leaked out.

In Romania, scattered bands roam through the Transylvania Alps, making life miserable for any Communist who gets in their way. The hills of Bulgaria are said to harbor thousands of partisans.

What Are Things Coming To Scot Says Kilt Outmoded

EDINBURGH (AP) — A Scotsman named David McIntosh thought out loud before a gathering of the clans and loosed some wailing.

"The kilt is an outmoded relic fit only for the museum," said McIntosh, speaking to the Clan Chattan Society. Present were members of the associated McIntoshses, the McBeans, the Farquharsons, the Davidsons, the MacGillivarys and some others.

"Absolute nonsense," said Hugh MacPherson.

"Worse than nonsense," said W. G. Kinloch Anderson.

Both make the kilt.

Down Edinburgh's Princes street, where on a busy Saturday mid-day some 25,000 persons can be seen walking, you can spot at least two or three persons wearing a kilt. Tourists may not give them an extra glance, but Scotsmen do.

The kilt is Scotland's traditional garb for ceremonial and social occasions. You can hire one from any well-stocked shop. The kilt also is proper uniform—off duty—for Scottish highland regiments.

McIntosh, 30-year-old accountant and father of three boys who sometimes wear the kilt, had this to say:

"The kilt may be all right in the heather, but it is out of place in the town. Most Scotsmen haven't the physique to carry it off. They're too fat, thin, too tall or small to go swaggering around in tartan skirts.

"How can a business man keep his mind on what he is doing when he is spending most of his time insuring that his kilt isn't too revealing?" asked McIntosh.

"The kilt," insisted McIntosh, "is no longer a symbol of national pride."

Two Alaska Bush Pilots Save 6 Fliers In Wilderness

CURRY, Alaska (AP)—Two veteran Alaska bush pilots are credited today with saving the lives of six men tumbled into the snow-covered mountain wilderness near here Friday when the plane in which they were riding exploded.

Two of the other 16 men aboard the United States Air Force C-47 when it left Elmendorf Air Force base near Anchorage on the ill-fated flight are known dead.

Eight are missing and bush pilot Cliff Hudson, who with Don Sheldon is credited with effecting the rescue of the six survivors, said today that there is little chance any of the others are alive.

The air force said Hudson and Sheldon saved the lives of the six who spent two nights and most of two days in freezing temperatures awaiting rescue after the wrecked two-engined transport was sighted.

Hudson spotted the wreckage late Friday. The following day Sheldon located the first three survivors huddled in the snow 15 miles from the wreckage where they had floated down in their 'chutes.

FLYING IN SNOWSTORM

Sheldon, Hudson and an air force doctor flew to the spot in a blinding snowstorm Saturday and were grounded overnight when the weather worsened.

Hudson struck off then on the arduous trek through 3½-foot-deep snow to reach the crash scene. Sheldon, meanwhile, flew his trio of survivors Sunday to Anchorage, 75 miles southwest of here. The others were picked up by helicopter.

Hudson said the survivors told him the plane exploded as it was flying between air force bases at Anchorage and Fairbanks, some 200 miles north of here.

2 Americans Charged With Murder

Police Holding 3rd For Questioning In Simcoe Slaying

SIMCOE (CP)—Two Americans were charged with murder Saturday night in the ax-slaying of 68-year-old Bruce Beatty. A third man is being held for questioning.

Jerry Simmons, 47, of Syracuse, N.Y., and Joe Lotharp, 23, of Detroit were picked up Friday night and charged 20 hours later. Henry Little, 43, of Detroit was picked up at the same time and held for questioning. He is Lotharp's uncle.

Beatty and his 65-year-old wife were found Wednesday morning in a pool of blood in their service station at Renton, four miles east of here. They had apparently been attacked with an ax which was found on a couch.

The service station had been ransacked and cash boxes were empty.

Beatty died without regaining consciousness and Mrs. Beatty still is unconscious and in critical condition in hospital in London.

FEB. 11 REMAND

Lotharp and Simmons were arraigned before justice of the peace Leonard R. Easdon in Jail and remanded to Feb. 11.

They were charged after intensive questioning that lasted until 3 a.m. Saturday and started again at 10 a.m. the same day. Lotharp and Little appeared relaxed while they awaited their turns to be questioned. They joked with police officers and smoked cigars. Simmons chain-smoked in silence.

Provincial constable Don Pursley, 33, arrested the three after he stopped their car for a routine check on a main highway two miles from the scene of the ax attack.

Police throughout the province had been put on the alert for an auto with United States licence plates. They were warned to approach it with caution because the wanted men were believed to be armed.

OBTAIN INFORMATION

Information was obtained from Syracuse and Detroit police while the three were being questioned. Inspector D. V. Whiteley of the provincial criminal investigation branch was in charge of the case.

Ray Chambers, 28-year-old Simcoe truck driver who found Mr. and Mrs. Beatty, and two other men were questioned by police. They told a reporter later that they did not recognize the men arrested.

ist China official recognition as a major world power.

The three western ministers were reported determined to confront Molotov with a 3-point program.

1. They will meet with China only for discussion of such Asian issues as Korea and Indo-China, and only if the Peiping regime demonstrates good faith by cooperating first in a Korean settlement, or else stops arming the Communist-led Vietminh rebels in Indo-China.

2. The Big Four must fix a deadline for their fruitless discussions on Germany unless Russia is ready to modify her demands.

3. All international attempts to bring about world disarmament must be within the United Nations. Russia's V. M. Molotov had proposed that such a conference be held outside the international organization so Red China could attend.

EMBASSY MEETINGS

The conference moved out of East Berlin, where it met last week at the Soviet embassy, in the wake of evidence that the 18,000,000 East Germans again are stirring against the Red occupation.

Western agencies with information networks in the East say 300 to 500 Germans have been jailed in the last week for speaking out against Molotov's proposal to unite Germany on the Soviet pattern.

East German secret police were reported on a full alert, but the 300,000 - man Soviet occupation army was reported going about winter activity as usual.

Women Beaten, Had $500,000

DETROIT (AP) — More than $500,000 was found Sunday in the home of an 86-year-old woman who was beaten brutally last Wednesday.

The woman, Mrs. Carrie Wherritt, dressed in rags and lived alone.

Police counted $291,800 in cash and estimated there was at least that much more in securities in a safe in her bedroom.

Mrs. Wherritt, still in serious condition in hospital, offered no explanation of the large sum of money.

The cash was in $500, $100, $50 $20 and $10 bills.

Police found Mrs. Wherritt sprawled on her bedroom floor after a neighbor reported she had not seen the aged woman for several days. The safe lay beside her.

Detectives said they thought that the woman was beaten for refusing to tell robbers the combination of the safe.

ABROAD AT NIGHTS

A neighbor said Mrs. Wherritt often left her house at night, always travelling through alleys instead of streets, and would return about midnight.

Police said her living room was a museum piece of antiques, and the basement was crammed with old newspapers, tin cans, light bulbs, coat hangers and other objects.

The woman's relatives did not know the source of the aged woman's wealth. A niece said some of it might have come from Mrs. Wherritt's husband, an artist, who died more than 30 years ago.

Grading Plan Being Considered

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—The Ontario Beef Cattle Producers Association is considering a grading plan to explain beef grades to consumers and establish a grading plan that would carry through to the retail level, Ted Bateman of Mount Brydges said Saturday.

He told a directors meeting of the Middlesex Federation of Agriculture that the producers association hopes to form a grading organization representing producers, distributors, packers, retailers and consumers.

The organization would set up grades that would apply to cattle on the farm and beef in the stores.

Simcoe Voters Cast By-Election Ballots

ORILLIA (CP)—Voters cast ballots today in a provincial by-election to decide Simcoe East's new representative in the Ontario legislature.

The by-election, the second since Premier Frost's Progressive Conservative government was swept back to power with a landslide victory in 1951, is being watched with more than usual interest in view of the disclosure of alleged contract frauds in the Fort William division of the highways department.

It became one of the major issues of the campaign and led both Premier Frost and Farquhar Oliver, Ontario house leader, to make personal campaign appearances in the central Ontario constituency.

The seat, the only vacant one in the 90-member legislature, is being contested by Progressive Conservatives, Liberal and CCF candidates. It is a traditionally Progressive Conservative stronghold and was held for the party since 1943 by Dr. John McPhee until his death last December.

Stove Thieves Sentenced In Lindsay

LINDSAY (ENS)—Two Warsaw men were placed on suspended sentence for one year and assessed cost of $16.75 each when they pleaded guilty in magistrate's court today on two charges each of breaking, entering and theft from Haliburton county hunting camps last December.

William McMillan, 23, and Kenneth Freeborn, 25, pleaded guilty to the charges of breaking and entering the bush camps of Sidney Walling, of Haliburton county, and James Cowan, of Picton, on December 3 and stealing a cook stove from both buildings. Constable McHendry, of Apsley detachment of the OPP, told the court that during his investigation, he checked Peterborough scrap metal yards, and found that one of the stoves had been sold by McMillan and Freeborn. He then contacted them and laid the charges.

Last month according to Crown Attorney Jordan, both had been scheduled to appear in Minden court on the charges, but MacMillan, who had been AWL from the army since Nov. 1952 gave himself up to military authorities before the trial, receiving 60 days detention from the army. He was brought to Lindsay under guard to face the theft trial. Magistrate Moore suspended sentence on Freeborn because he had made restitution amounting to some $50 to the owners of the two stoves. "The army will probably handle you" he told MacMillan, in suspending his year's sentence, "otherwise I would have given you a short term in jail."

MacMillan was remanded in custody until Friday, pending payment of costs and notification of the military authorities. Value of the two stoves when sold for scrap, according to constable McHendry, was "probably not more than $2 each".

Carries Two Sons Safely From Fire

MEADOWVALE (CP) — Mrs. Rudy Kreppner of Meadowvale, 15 miles west of Toronto, carried her two small sons to safety Sunday when a $10,000 fire destroyed her home.

Mrs. Kreppner was warned of the fire by Alan Tranor, 12, who was walking past the house on his way home from church when he saw flames shooting from a second floor window. She grabbed her sons, John, four, and Joseph, four months, and fled.

Mr. Kreppner and the couple's two eldest children were still at church.

Battery, Headlights Stolen From Tractor

Provincial police are investigating the theft of a battery and headlights last week from a tractor owned by Clarence Taylor of Asphodel township.

The battery and lights are valued at about $20.

The tractor was left at Mel Edwards' woodlot where timber cutting is going on. Sneak thieves stole the accessories after the machine had been left for the night.

School Teachers, Board Work Out Compromise

TORONTO —(CP)—The dispute between Toronto high school teachers and the city's board of education over the single salary schedule has ended in a compromise agreement. The settlement removed the double threat of a mass resignation of the teachers and a stop to extra-curricular activities in high schools.

The board and representatives of the teachers said Saturday night they had reached "a harmonious and satisfactory settlement" of the dispute, which flared open last December.

The agreement, announced at the annual dinner of the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation, actually leaves both groups in the same position they were before the fight started. The teachers now have a salary statement with which to negotiate but the board, in effect, still operates a single salary schedule for both high school and public teachers.

The dispute started after the board lumped high school and public school teachers together in a single salary schedule based on equal pay for equal experience. Members of the secondary school group objected on the ground they had lost bargaining rights since they were outnumbered by the public school teachers.

BARGAIN SEPARATELY

The statement announcing the settlement made no reference to public school teachers. It was described by Dr. H. O. Barrett, president of the Toronto district group of the OSSTF, as a "statement of salaries of our own, on which we can bargain and negotiate independently and separately."

Effective Jan. 1, 1954, the agreement provides for a minimum of $2,800 annually for non-specialists and $3,000 for specialists. Non-specialists, on the basis of 14 increases of $200 each, can earn a maximum of $5,600. The specialists maximum was set at $6,000, established by 15 $200 increases. It was not specified whether the increases would be annual.

The agreement maintains the board's policy of equal pay for equal qualifications and experience. This means that any change in the secondary teachers' salaries would produce an equal change in the salaries of the public school teachers with the same qualifications and experience.

The settlement was reached at a secret meeting Saturday afternoon between the board's sub-committee and teachers representatives.

Hecht Defends Max Bodenheim

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP)—"Who would want to kill Bodenheim?" asked Ben Hecht.

"He was one of the most delicate-minded of people, yet he always got into the most violent trouble," the author said today of his old friend, poet Maxwell Bodenheim, found slain in New York Sunday.

"Nevertheless, nobody would have any reason to kill him, that I could understand.

"We had some great times. Once Bodey and I staged a debate in Chicago, for $200, on the subject: 'Are people who attend literary lectures fools?' I looked solemnly at the audience and said: 'I rest my case.' Bodenheim looked at me, and the audience, and he said, 'You win!'"

Hecht, who upheld the affirmative in the debate, didn't say what the audience's reaction was.

Scholastic Aptitude Test Plan Proposed For Universities

TORONTO. — Sidney Smith, president of the University of Toronto, suggested Saturday that Canadian universities should try using a scholastic aptitude test as an adjunct to departmental examinations in determining which high school students should be admitted to them.

Speaking at the Ontario Secondary School Teachers Federation annual dinner at King Edward Hotel, Dr. Smith also suggested these ways of getting pupils best fitted for higher education into universities:

1. Have high school principals send to universities confidential character reports about prospective university students.

2. Establish a national scholarship and bursary scheme that will ensure real equality of educational opportunity.

The rate of failures in university courses showed that universities are not getting the selection of students who can profit from higher education, said Dr. Smith.

"We are getting many of that group, but not the whole group and nothing but the group," he said.

ORIGINATED IN U.S.

The scholastic aptitude test he referred to originated in the United States, Dr. Smith said. It is an "objective" test, completely controlled by the Educational Testing Service, N.J. The service sets dates for the test, administers it, marks it, and returns results in confidence to the university at which the candidate intends to apply for admission.

There are different sections to the test, depending upon what subject the candidate is interested, he said. Results are marked and scored, mostly by machines, showing only a percentile rank, comparing the score with all others who have taken the test.

Dr. Smith warned that U.S. methods should not be used here uncritically, because Canadian tradition is differerent from the U.S. tradition, and he also said there was something repellent to him about the mechanical aspects of the test.

"Yet it is the overwhelming testimony of eminent American educators that the scholastic aptitude test provides a better index of a student's capacity for advanced work than the familiar essay type of examination."

CAN'T BE COACHED

There was no known way of being coached for such a test.

Dr. Smith did not agree with arguments put forward to abolish Grades 13 examinations and rely eritirely on the aptitude test.

Essay examinations compel the student "to organize his material, relate facts and ideas, and express himself comprehensibly," he said. Examinations can contribute something to the educational process that no "objective" test can supply.

"It is true that we are interested in intellectual power, but we are also interested in the content of courses that have been covered and in the industry and application and self-descipline of students," he continued.

"No matter how agile a brain one has, he cannot think very clearly, and he will not thing very often, unless he knows something to think about."

SHOW UPPER BRACKETS

But the aptitude test should be used here to indicate, if it was found reliable, "the pupils who are in the upper intellectual brackets. It would make easier appeals for funds, particularly for scholarships for those in small centres who have aptitude but not the money for university work."

Dr. Smith did not believe that principals would be put on the spot by having to send confidential character reports to universities. Nor did he think "town pump politics" would enter into their assesments.

Such reports were the practice in the United Kingdom and the United States, and Canadian principals were as trustworthy as those countries' principals. Reports should contain such things as integrity, iniative, energy, application, and ability to discipline oneself.

Red Hater To Form Gov't

ROME (AP) — Mario Scelba, "tough guy" former interior minister whose riot police batted the Communists down in the tense days of 1948, agreed today "with reservations" to try forming a new Italian government.

The surprise choice of the 52-year-old Sicilian-born Christian Democrat was made by President Luigi Einaudi after more than a week of consultations with political leaders.

Most observers had expected that Alcide de Gasperi, eight times premier and long Scelba's boss in the cabinet, would be asked again to try to keep Italy on the path of democracy and end the recurrent political crises which have plagued the country since the June 7 general election.

Scelba's agreement "with reservations" means that before finally accepting the president's charge he will see if he can form a government.

was assisted by two RCAF NCOs, Sgt. E. A. Goodman of Vancouver and Cpl. Emery Cormier of Moncton, N.B.

The huge wreath bore a tricolor ribbon with the inscription in gold-lettered French "from the Canadian government and the people of Canada."

PAPERS NOTE VISIT

Influential French newspapers noted the visit to France on the Canadian leader's world tour and spelled his name "Saint-Laurent." The semi-official Le Monde said no one is better qualified to dissipate misunderstandings arising over Indian premier Nehru's "neutralism."

Le Monde said Canada's understanding of France's reticence on the question of a European army should permit French premier Laniel and Maurice Schumann to "go beyond a banal and diplomatic exchange of views on the Far East."

The newspaper said that in Indo-China France is engaged in a war that "paralyzes her efforts in other sectors.

Le Figaro, reporting on Canadian-French relations said:

"Contacts between the two countries are particularly close since Canada has made a gift to France of war material in important quantities.

"Three squadrons of Canadian jet planes are stationed at Gros Tenquin air base near Metz and the two countries are considering the establishment of a new base at Marville in the same region.

DISCUSS ATOMIC MATTERS

"Atomic questions will also be gone into by Mr. St. Laurent and Laniel as well as the question of the European Defence Community."

For the prime minister the visit to Paris was a return to the land of his forefathers, and he said his first visit to France in two years filled him with "profound emotion."

The premier of France and a thick snowfall greeted the Canadian leader when he arrived late in the afternoon for the French portion of his round-the-world tour. He leaves Wednesday for Bonn, capital of West Germany.

Premier Laniel and Jean Desy, Canadian ambassador to France, met the Canadian prime minister at Orly airfield after a quick flight from London where he had spent an active week-end.

Dana Wilgress, Canadian representative at the Paris headquarters of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization also was in the delegation that stood in the cold at the airfield where the big RCAF C-5 landed with the Canadian party. A French naval and air force band and an air force guard of honor was on hand, and several hundred French civilians stood about the airfield's motor traffic exit to salute the Canadian visitor.

TOUCHED BY RECEPTION

The prime minister was visibly touched by the reception, including the band's performance of "O Canada" and "La Marseillaise." He said in a brief address that his visit gave him great pride to return once more as a grandson of French pioneers to pay an official visit to France on behalf of the Canadian people.

When the C-5 set out from London airport the weather was dismal, and for a time left in doubt the possibility of landing at Orly. But the trip was smooth and during a sunny interval the prime minister read with interest a Montreal newspaper account of his arrival in London Friday night.

The Saturday newspaper came to London by Trans-Canada Air Lines plane and was picked up by Sgt. Gerard Mignault of Isle Erte, Que., steward aboard the C-5.

In London Saturday the prime minister lunched with Prime Minister Churchill who in a private talk laid emphasis once more on his view that a Big Five meeting is necessary.

TALK ON ASIA

Viscount Swinton, also a luncheon guest, filled in the Canadian leader on information the secretary of state for Commonwealth relations acquired during a recent visit to Asia. The prime minister's tour includes several Asiatic stops.

He also talked to R. A. Butler, chancellor of the exchequer, about the improvement in Britain's exchange position, which has exceeded expectations.

Saturday he had tea with the Earl of Athlone, a former governor-general of Canada, and the Earl's wife, Princess Alice.

The prime minister's visit to London was semi-official but today began the official part of his tour, of which two full days are devoted to France and talks with her leaders.

Reuther Charges Newspapers Favor Management Side

WINDSOR (Special) — Walter P. Reuther, CIO president, charged Canadian daily newspapers were biased in the treatment of labor news. He spoke as guest of the editors 8th annual conference, which wound up its 3-day session Sunday.

Mr. Reuther appeared on what was scheduled to be a three-member panel discussing management-labor press relations. Planners of the Saturday afternoon part of the program failed to tell the CIO chief that there was a limit on the speakers. He went on for 55 minutes. The two remaining speakers stayed within a 15-minute limit. G. Wilson Craw, managing editor of the Examiner, introduced the speakers and conducted the panel.

"I know it must be hard for people on the management side of newspapers to view labor disputes from anything but the management angle, but you've got to learn to do it if you are going to live up to your responsibilities," he told the editors.

The CIO leader had to leave immediately after speaking to meet another engagement in Detroit. He missed many of the questions editors had ready to fire at him.

IMPROVED RELATIONS

Other speakers included J. Stuart Richardson, Montreal, who spoke as representative of the Canadian Manufacturers association and Angus Munro, labor writer of the Windsor Star, who was spokesman for the press. Neither had an opportunity fully to answer each other or indulge in the usual panel follow-up discussion. Both stressed that despite some still existing faults, management - labor - press relation had greatly improved over the past decade.

Mr. Richardson emphasied that it should be kept in mind that management in its dealing through the press, had to satisfy not one, but several publics - - shareholders, employees, customers and supplies, as well as the general public.

"Is it to be wondered at if they appear a bit over-cautious?" He asked.

Mr. Munro advised the editors that in his experience nothing compared with building mutual trust and confidence between the individuals acting as spokesmen for labor, management and the press.

"There is no substitute for these, he declared. "If you can win the confidence of your news sources, you can get the facts even though it is not always permissible to quote them directly."

He said the term "collective bargaining" was as yet not clearly understood by the reading public. For this reason, preliminary stories leading to a strike crisis often were misinterpreted.

STARTING POINT

Unions, he pointed out, always ask for more than they expect to get, and employers invariably offer less than they are prepared to grant their employees. These, he said, were normal bargaining steps, but always treated as headlines.

The conference also heard from Robert A. Farquharson, news director for NATO, who flew from Paris especially to address the delegates. He advised editors that Canada's growing importance abroad made it essential that more Canadian newsmen be sent there to interpret NATO countries to Canada. Whether we like it or not, Canada, he said, is being placed in an ever-increasing position of responsibility in world affairs. Canadians, therefore, must know more of foreign affairs.

Only 23 Survivors Out Of 125 Pilgrims

BOMBAY (AP) — Police have found only 23 survivors of about 125 Hindu pilgrims flung into the Ourna river near Surat, India, when their boat capsized Saturday night.

The disaster was the second within a week involving the great masses taking part in religious festivals throughout the country. Last Wednesday about 500 Hindus were crushed to death in a stampede at a holy bathing place at Allahabad, the juncture of the Ganges and Jumna rivers.

Fishermen Stranded

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Twenty ice - fishermen were temporarily stranded Sunday when a stiff southwest wind broke off a vast ice field from Lake Erie's shore south of here. Eighteen of the fishermen were taken to safety by a passer-by who borrowed a boat. A coast guard skiff picked up the others.

Bishop Dedicates Organ At St, Luke's As Memorial

Members of the congregation filled the church seating accommodation and other additional seating in St. Luke's Anglican church Sunday night to hear the Right Rev. Frederick H. Wilkinson, Coadjutor Bishop of Toronto, dedicate the newly-installed organ to the glory of God and in memory of those who gave their lives in two world wars.

The bishop, who also gave an organ recital at the conclusion of the service, congratulated Canon Walter Gilling and members of St. Luke's church who had worked in the erecting of a very fine memorial to those who had died.

"Here we have a memorial which will continually remind us of the faith, courage and supreme sacrifice of those who died for us," he said.

Music alone seemed to speak most of immortality and was sometimes the best medium of giving sincere praise to the Almighty.

The Bishop also dedicated two collection plates donated by church wardens, and a recessional cross, dedicated in memory of the late George C. Leech.

IMPORTANCE OF MUSIC

In his sermon, Bishop Wilkinson emphasized the important place music took in worship. Through the ages the church had accumulated a vast number of songs and for many Christians there was no better medium of giving praise to God. Since the time when the first Christians had chosen the Almighty in defiance of man and had accepted persecution, hymns had proved a great source of strength.

Evensong was sung by the Rev. J. Cranston, chaplain at Lakefield Preparatory School. Rector of St. Alban's the Rev. Henry Peasgood, read the lesson.

At the conclusion of the service, members of the congregation were given the opportunity to meet Bishop and Mrs. Wilkinson at a reception in the parish hall.

Weekend Deaths Drop To Seven

Eastern Canada reached its lowest week-end fatality mark in months as seven persons died violent deaths in two provinces, a Canadian Press survey showed today.

Ontario was the scene of five deaths, two of them on highways.

Nova Scotia, where the other two fatalities occurred, had one traffic death and one shooting.

Howard Longhurst, 35, of Beeton and Leslie M. Kreger, 43, of Wingham were Ontario's traffic fatalities. Longhurst was killed when his car collided with a truck 10 miles south of Barrie and Kreger died after his car, which was being towed, was struck by another car near Listowel.

Two deaths were recorded in Toronto. Fred Wright, 45, died from gas fumes when a potato pot boiled over and extinguished the flames of a gas stove and Raymond Hrycyna, 10, accidentally hanged himself on a water pipe.

The other Ontario death was at Kitchener where Robert Wenzel, 32, was asphyxiated after a chesterfield on which he was sleeping caught fire.

Heaviest Spending In Peace-Time History

When Mr. Abbott brings down his annual Budget, probably early in March, he will present the biggest bill Canadian taxpayers have ever had to face, apart from the peak war year of 1943-44. The estimates tabled Friday specify federal spending to the sum of $4,491,751,000; the indications are that when all items are included the spending will reach $5,000,000,000 for the fiscal year 1954-55. On this side of the border, people used to give the trailing zeros of the American budget the amazement and incomprehension they held for calculation about the distances of stars. Now Canadian spending is in astronomical terms every year, and has to be considered ordinary.

* * *

It is a wry comment on peace-time that the estimates for 1944-45 are not far removed from the maximum spending during the war—$5,322,000,000 in the year 1943-44. More than a third of the estimated expenditure will go towards defence projects. But what becomes of the other two-thirds? Canada has grown and therefore the cost of services has grown. Further, the dollar goes only half as far, in government and in ordinary household spending, as it did ten years ago. Another element in the increase is this: Canadians now are demanding and getting more and more social welfare benefits. These—family allowance, old age pensions, health services and the like—cost hundreds of millions of dollars. We note, without approval, that the cost of running most departments of the Government is still rising; estimates for these are greater than they were last year.

* * *

Where is the money coming from to provide for these great Federal expenditures? From one source—taxpayers. However, there are more taxpayers because there are more people, and the national productivity, from which taxes are extracted, has increased. Thus, more money is likely to be raised than last year, even though the tax rate is not raised. On the other hand, the increased estimates preclude the possibility of any significant tax reductions. The budget can hold out little promise of tax relief, because the estimates are so high. There is this crumb of consolation. In the past, years of the biggest budgets have usually been years of biggest earnings and most jobs for people generally; that is, prosperous years.

More Pay, Less Work in Parliament?

Is it not odd that the emoluments of Members of Parliament are becoming significantly high, if not handsome, at a time when Parliament itself is becoming insignificantly lowly? Increased sessional indemnities, tax free expense allowances, pensions—for what? Pay for presiding over the decline of the parliamentary system?

The areas in which governments operate now are bigger, more numerous and more complicated than formerly; undoubtedly much more must be done therefore in a foreshortened world by the Cabinet Ministers and their assistants. This should not mean, however, that Parliament does less, nor should the device of Order-in-Council be used to circumvent Parliament. The Cabinet must not assume that Parliament is a rubber-stamp and the members a frayed ink pad.

It is too easy to make this assumption, unfortunately. Parliament is close to being a one-party House. Further, many members of Parliament are not the kind to inspire reference of important matters to them. In neither their actions nor their debating prowess do they seem to command their position and the rights of Parliament. Some of the members utter not a dozen sentences during an entire parliamentary session. Others say too much about too little. Still others cannot say anything for themselves, and in fact, not only read their speeches (which is contrary to parliamentary usage)—they read speeches written for them by "ghost writers". (Perhaps that is one reason for higher stipends for members—so that they can pay hirelings to write their speeches.) This "scandalous, vicious, outrageous practice" was frankly discussed by Mr. Eugene Forsey before the Montreal Historical Society last week. "Some members, reading a speech written by a 'ghost writer', even fail to notice the stop lights in the form of periods. They are then forced to back up and start over again".

How attentive are Members to Parliament? We are told that almost any Friday or Monday you will have difficulty counting thirty members present, thirty in a House nominally of 265 members. Absenteeism is chronic, and not only because Ontario and Quebec members take long week-ends, hopping a train Thursday evening, and often arriving back only on Tuesday morning. Members who remain over the weekend and the others who return on Monday evening or Tuesday are lax even in attending the House when they are in or near Parliament Hill. Excuses may be made, of course: committees have to be attended, constituents given a Cook's tour; a cocktail party demands attention; and so on. But the plain fact is that much of the time a bare quorum is present in the House. The quorum is on 20. Not without reason did Mr. Stanley Knowles last month introduce a private bill to raise the quorum from 20 to 30. (The figure 20 was set in 1867 when the membership was 181.)

We shall not say that Members of Parliament are not conscientious in reporting their attendance when the time comes to draw the sessional indemnity. (Members are allowed 15 days of absence each session, free of pay deductions.) There is no check on the member's statement of the number of days he wa absent, but Professor Norman Ward, writing about the Canadian House of Commons, remarks a tendency to treat the words "present" and "absent" as if they were "almost synonymous".

Are Members of Parliament lax in their House duties because the Cabinet circumvents Parliament, or does the Cabinet treat Parliament in this remote way because the members are lax? What an idle question! We suspect that the basic reason for the decline of Parliament is, in Mr. Forsey's words, "the relative indifference of the public generally to the actions of their elected representatives". The public is paying the piper but not calling the tune.

Turbulence In Russia's Enslaved North

On this page today is the first of two instalments of a remarkable personal story. Brigitte Gerland of Berlin was arrested in the Soviet Zone at the end of 1946 for writing reports for a West Berlin paper. She was sent to the Soviet Far North as a political prisoner, to the strange world of the REG camps, of which phantom news seeps to the western world from refugees and novelists. Mrs. Gerland tells here for the first time the story of the great mass strike of Soviet slaves last summer.

Because she learned Russian, is herself a trained reporter, and had six years experience of the camps and its inhabitants, Mrs. Gerland is able to give a reliable interpretation of the strength and character of the opposition movements in contemporary Russia. The entire Komi autonomous Soviet Republic, between the northernmost end of the Urals and the Arctic, is today populated almost entirely by prisoners, millions of them. Other areas of the U.S.S.R. are also restive—the Ukraine, for instance. The "new look" and "humanizing" that have marked a change in technique if not in spirit since Stalin's death have come out not solely because the Malenkov regime has had a change of heart. Economic and political crises—the East Berlin riots being a manifestation—may have forced the Kremlin's hand.

Brigitte Gerland is able to tell her story now because before Christmas she was granted an amnesty and has returned to West Germany. Her account will be concluded tomorrow.

Far-Flung Canada

While a ton of buffalo meat and rolled oats was being flown from Edmonton to twelve Eskimo families starving a thousand miles north, the Canadian freighter Labrador was having a busy time in the harbour of Rio de Janeiro. (Perhaps it is not inappropriate that the ship named Labrador should be in the harbour of the River of January at this time of year.) What was the Labrador doing—bringing bargain Canadian pork to hungry Brazilians? No—she was taking down to South America, in the very hottest part of the continent's summer, a load of Cape Breton coal. Fancy what happened! The ship took fire when an oil tank on deck exploded. Harbour fire fighters extinguished the blazes, happily. Which brings us back to the Eskimos and the Dakota which took buffalo meat and rolled oats north. The Eskimos got their meat and the plane was in Edmonton again Wednesday in time for its pilot to see the second show at the local movie.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Crossword puzzles, says the Sarnia Observer, are tricky and amusing. We found them much trickier than amusing, and gave them up in 1926.

Nobody has come out yet with the opinion that the Montreal Slasher is just a crazy, mixed-up kid for whose pitiful condition society as a whole is responsible.

Russia's 250,000 Slaves In Revolt

(An Eyewitness's 'Story of Hope' from the Soviet Labour Camps)

This is the first authentic story of popular resistance in the Soviet Union. It tells of the strike of a quarter of a million prisoners in the labour camps of the Arctic Circle—a strike of slaves in a country where even free workers have no right to strike. Most startling, it tells of the nature of the opposition groups that have developed in post-war Russia and found themselves face to face in the microcosm of the camps.

It is told by Brigitte Gerland, a British journalist who was given amnesty by the Soviet last August along with hundreds of other civilian prisoners from Germany as part of the effort to reconcile German opinion after the June rising, and returned to her home town a few weeks ago after the usual long journey through Russia. Frau Gerland was arrested in Dresden in October 1946, at a time when Germany was officially still under Four-Power control, for sending to her Berlin newspaper reports about conditions in the Soviet Zone. She was sentenced by a Soviet security tribunal to fifteen years' imprisonment as a "British spy", and after fifteen months in a German prison was transferred to a camp for political prisoners—a so-called "Regime camp"—at Vorkuta in 1948. She is now thirty-five years old.

By BRIGITTE GERLAND

THE TRAIN STOPPED. We had reached our destination—Vorkuta, the metropolis of Arctic Russia. Icy cold took my breath away and brought tears to my eyes, and as we entered one of the strangest towns in the world, I saw nothing but an endless plain glittering in bluish-white. Here and there, towers rose dark against this background, most of them close to ugly-shaped hills which looked like Japanese silhouettes: they turned out to be the coal heaps of the fifty pits for the sake of which Varkuta had been called into existence.

Here half a million prisoners were supposed to live—but where? I looked around—snow. Nothing but snow, and every few steps a strange wooden box resting high up on four strong pillars, with fabulous bear-like beings leaning from their windows—the guards wrapped in their thick furs. Only those "vishky" (Watchtowers) showed that we were passing a camp—one of the sixty which make up Vorkuto town—for the fence and huts were deeply embedded in the white vastness, indistinguishable from accidental snow heaps.

We stopped in front of a wall of snow. It opened, and I felt I was entering the magic mountain from which there is no return. In the dark I stumbled over blocks of ice, sank into the snow; somebody took me by the hand and led me along a narrow, sloping path. Suddenly light hit me, then warmth and a confusion of voices. For the first time, I entered a hut of the "Penal and Regimelager Predshakhtaya"—and stopped at the door in utter bewilderment.

My eyes hit first on some fifty women in black clothes and white kerchiefs who were kneeling in the middle of the floor, praying aloud. Next, there was a group of young girls in colourfully-embroidered Ukrainian blouses, sitting on high, clean peasant beds, whose melancholy singing now and then drowned the ecstatic prayer. A little apart from it all there was a group of young men and women engaged in passionate debate, who looked as if the hand of some giant had picked them up in a Western European cafe to drop them in this hut of a Soviet labour camp.

I SAW at once that each of these three groups formed a world apart. Later I found that each represented a different type of movement opposed to the Soviet power. Before 1948, the year of the great reform in the Soviet penal camp system, they would have been separated and individually divided up among the thousands of camps in the vast regions of Siberia and Central Asia given over to this type of colonisation. There, they would quickly have perished by starvation or by the terrorism of the criminal bandits who then formed the camp aristocracy. In 1948, the Ministry of State Security began to sort out part of the prisoners sentenced for "political" offences who were supposed to need stronger guards and stricter isolation because they were dangerous to the State, and to put them into special "Reglager" (regime camps), so that the Ministry of the Interior could reduce the expense for troops, dogs and machine-guns in guarding mass murderers and other harmless people in its general camps.

The result of this "economy measure" was the creation of entire regions in which the political opponents of the regime were concentrated and at last got a chance to meet one another. At about the same time, the bread rations of all prisoners were doubled by special order of Stalin from four hundred grammes to eight hundred grammes per day and even such undreamed of luxuries as meat, fish and margarine began to make their appearance: the worst post-war hunger was over in Russia and the forced labourers, forming a vital element in the Soviet economy, were no longer supposed to die.

TWO LANGUAGES were spoken in the camps—Russian and West Ukrainian. I never heard a West Ukrainian speak a Russian word, nor a Russian a Ukrainian one. Up to 1950, the West Ukrainians were, in numbers, the stronger element in our area, in mental activity the Russians. But the two nations, who could improve their sub-human lot only by conscious solidarity, were divided by bitter enmity, and that not only for reasons of nationalism. A brief description of the outlook of the main groups will show why.

The intellectuals whose debating zeal had so struck me at first sight were students from Moscow, Leningrad, Kiev or Odessa. Outstanding among them were the children of the "generation of '37"; their parents, once leading figures in Party, Army and Government, had fallen victinms to Stalin's great purge. They themselves had been educated in State orphanages and had managed to fight their way to the universities only by endless efforts and tricks. Now these would-be philosophers, historians or economists sat in the camp, with twenty-five years of forced labour as their only future—and they seemed perfectly content with their fate.

Not that they were broken or resigned. On the contrary. "At last we are free," I still hear them say. "At least we can talk to everybody who wants to listen about our protests and our search for a way out. At last we find contact with people from all walks of life—that contact we always sought for but found impossible to attain while in liberty."

The message this students' movement wanted to bring to the Russian people they called "the true word of Lenin"—Istiny Trud Lenina—yet the word of the great Vladimir Ilyitch has changed strangely in the interpretation: it has assumed syndicalist, even anarchist, features, more in the likeness of those Kronstadt sailors who rose against him in 1921 to demand "soviets without Communists'." In their view, the socialist State of the future would not be run by either one or several parties, but purely by workers' and peasants' "Syndicats"—they use the French word, picked up from a study of the Paris Commune of 1871, which Lenin himself had hailed as his model before he seized power.

THIS PROGRAMME had been worked out in small secret circles, meeting at night behind locked doors. It had been born from a desperate rejection of the alternatives of the system of Stalinist oligarchy on the one hand and of Western "bourgeois" democracy on the other. The parliamentary forms and the capitalist economy of the West held little attraction for these young people thirsting for social justice who, as they put it, "were not ready to be seduced by motor cars and nylons." The whole movement is said to have started in 1948 from a discussion between five Moscow students on the long-banned poetry of Boris Pasternak, in which this great Russian writer of the twenties had developed this idea that spiritual freedom was incompatible with social justice: their system was devised as an answer to this pessimism, a way of making room for spiritual freedom in a collectivist society by decentralisation of State power, until the State could finally be replaced altogether by the workers and peasants "syndicates."

For this programme, the initiated recruited hundreds of followers in the great universities, spreading their propaganda both by writing and posting leaflets and by means of tiny "flying discussion groups". Despite arrests here and there it took the spies of the secret police some time to penetrate the inner core of the new resistance movement. In 1950 they struck: several hundred were accused of "terrorist conspiracy" and, after a dramatic secret trial, sent to join those arrested earlier in the forced labour camps of the Far North.

But the strange situation in the political camps gave to the lively minds of the students and to their hunger for organised activity a new chance to turn the icy hell itself into something like an island of freedom. It is largely due to their courage, vitality and initiative that a new kind of play is now being enacted against the same old backdrop of the camp system while the high officers of the secret police look on and do not believe their eyes.

THE STUDENTS quickly recognised the dangers as well as the weaknesses of the camp system. "It's true" they said, "that we are not being maltreated or starved, but the real torture here is the work." Digging snow or carrying bricks for twelve or even fourteen hours a day at a temperature of forty degrees Centigrade below zero would quickly turn even the most intelligent and lively people into dull robots. How could they put a spoke into the wheels of the deadly mills of 'norm-fulfilment' before it ground all their energy to bits?

Here the students received a vital lesson from another group of prisoners, the "Verushchy" (believers) who, refusing to work for the State on grounds of conscience, had after years of bitter struggle forced the camp administration to respect their special position and employ them only in work for their fellow prisoners. Their experience proved that resistance was possible inside the camps. But even beyond that, it brought the students into contact with another, far larger underground movement of whose existence they had hitherto known nothing.

I SHOULD LIKE to tell the story of one member of that secret order—for that is what the Verushchy movement amounts to. I can still see her sitting in our hut, copying out the Gospel because the Bibles of some of her sister-members had been found and confiscated in a recent search and had to be replaced. I remember her broad face with its deep, dreamy eyes, her dark vibrant voice, her smiling readiness at any time to answer questions about her faith. Tamara came from an old Bolshevik family and had been a member of the Comsomol (Communist Youth organization). Working in Leningrad as a trained technician in a factory, she had not been badly off materially but had never felt contended and happy—"It was as if I was walking on thin ice which would at any moment give way under my feet" she said, "and as if people around me were not human beings but puppets or automatons." She had withdrawn more and more to her books, turning even to Western philosophy in her search for a meaningful life, but in vain. One evening she had accidently stumbled on a New Testament which she had never read before. That night she experienced her conversion; dawn found her determined to start a new life, based on the word of the Gospel.

The next day, she talked of her experience to a girl in her factory whom she hardly knew but trusted. "Irina understood me at once—that day she brought me to a circle of brothers and sisters who were not only reading the Gospel together but tried to spread it everywhere, above all in the factories and kolkhozes.

"They received me, without asking many questions. I learned that love alone is creative, while the anti-Christ is sterile for ever. I came to see the madness of the false prophets who want to control our souls and realised that we can banish the demons by showing up their inner-nonentity.

"I left my parents, changed my name, abandoned my job. Nobody compelled me, but all the believers do it—that is why people call us "Monashki" (monks and nuns) though we do not dream of the monastic life. After a few months I went with my friend to a kolkhoz in distant Central Asia. Working in the hospital there, we found miserable, ignorant, downtrodden human beings who forgot their hunger and fatigue when they heard our message."

✧ ✧ ✧

BUT the N.K.V.D. had heard them too—and it sentenced them to fifteen years forced labour for "religious agitation." The story of their conversion, apostolate and arrest is typical of the fate of hundreds whom I met and of thousands of others, and it is the story of a movement that is still alive outside the camps.

When the Marxist students met these "believers" in the camps, they attempted at once to come to an understanding. Difficult though it was to bridge the gulf between their philosophies, the spirit of toleration proved strong enough on both sides to give a firm foundation for working together. Soon the fruits of this co-operation began to appear: the camp chiefs appointed by the Ministry of State Security, often semi-illiterate, showed a naive tendency to offer the higher posts in the prisoners administration to the students, whose education greatly impressed them. But the latter willingly ceded those preferred positions to the "Monashki" and volunteered for the hard outside work, thus securing a large part of the "brigadier" jobs for themselves.

Letters To The Editor

REGISTRY NOT A COMMON NEED?

SIR: It is my understanding that the City Council is to reconsider a grant to Community Nursing Registry in order that the Registry may continue to carry on. It would seem to me that if any organization of this type cannot operate without a grant from the city it is time for it to call a spade a spade and if necessary cease to operate.

It was only a short time ago that there was an election of Mayor and Aldermen, and the one thing promised by all was to serve the people faithfully and do everything to reduce taxes where possible. The Nursing Registry is not a common need, therefore, why should the council grant money to assist it?

If the new Aldermen pressing this issue wish to change their views of a few short weeks ago by promoting issues such as this, I can only say they are not endeavouring to fulfill their election promises and trust in future they will not be so generous with the taxpayer's money.

It is also my understanding that some of the nurses themselves do not feel the Registry is needed, as there appears to be a shortage of nurses and those wishing employment should have no trouble having their names placed on the calling list.

It has also been brought to my attention that several of the doctors in the city do not regard the Registry as a necessity, and very seldom, if ever, have occasion to use the facilities offered.

Thanking you for the space in your paper,

"INTERESTED"

MR. ANGLESEY ANSWERS MRS. BRECKENRIDGE

SIR: First let me say thank you to Mrs. Breckenridge for mentioning my name in her letter to the Editor of Friday, February 5, and hasten to assure her that her son-in-law Alderman Stanley McBride and Alderman Gordon Powell are staunch supporters of her cause.

Thank you again Mrs. Breckenridge, for mentioning our Telephone Answering Service. It is coming along very well (without city subsidy) and as well as a large number of business people who subscribe to our service, we have an imposing number of medical men, who have chosen to withdraw from your service, and pay a per-doctor rate to T.A.S., three times higher than the rate you are charging at Community Nursing Registry. So you see we are not underselling you, but are offering the most advanced equipment and quality of service available today.

It is true your letter did not ask for a grant from City Council, none the less Alderman Powell, after much oratory, supported by your son-in-law Alderman McBride, moved that a grant of $1,000 be made to Community Nursing Registry. This motion was seconded by your son-in-law, Alderman McBride and carried in committee, after the mayor made the statement that a member of the registry had informed him that they must have a decision that night as telephone listings closed the next day. (Information from the Bell telephone Co. is that listings close March 8.)

The statistics from other municipalities of comparable size to Peterborough, even since Monday's meeting, have increased, and are supported by the signature of the clerk in each municipality. The following 6 cities do not make a grant from taxpayers' money. Oshawa, Guelph, St. Catherines, Kitchener, Kingston, Peterborough. Port Arthur gives $75, Brantford $100, Fort William $125.

Let us not start comparing our city with places like Ottawa, London, Windsor or any other city in the 100,000 population class. A grant of any size now would only be the beginning of what could eventually become another bureau operated by taxpayers' money.

It is true, Mrs. Breckenridge that TAS services have been offered your registry but you forgot to mention at a very small fraction of your present costs.

Mr. Editor, as chairman of the finance committee of our Council, I am entrusted with the responsibility of holding the expenditures at last year's level, which this year would bring a mill rate of 45.5 mills. In an effort to hold this line, and faced with increased costs from every department, I assure you I will be opposing every unnecessary expenditure.

Sincerely,

PATRICK ANGLESEY,
Chairman, Finance Committee,
Peterborough City Council

P.S:—Mr. Taxpayer, you may be moved to comment on this problem; if so, I would suggest you call any alderman of your choice on the telephone, or, convey your thoughts in writing to the finance committee meeting.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Then the Pharisees went out, and held a council against him, how they might destroy him. But when Jesus knew it, he withdrew himself from thence: and great multitudes followed him, and he healed them all; and charged them that they should not make him known: that it might be fulfilled which was spoken by Esaias the prophet, saying, Behold, my servant, whom I have chosen, my beloved, in whom my soul is well pleased: I will put my spirit upon him, and he shall shew judgement to the Gentiles . . .

Then was brought upon him one possessed with a devil, blind, and dumb: and he healed him, insomuch that the blind and dumb both spake and saw. And all the people were amazed, and said, Is not this the son of David? But when the Pharisees heard it, they said, This fellow doth not cast out devils, but by Beelzebub the prince of the devils.

And Jesus knew their thoughts, and said unto them, Every kingdom divided against itself is brought to desolation; and every city or house divided against itself shall not stand: and if Satan cast out Satan, he is divided against himself: how shall then his kingdom stand? And if I by Beelzebub cast out devils, by whom do your children cast them out? therefore they shall be your judges. But if I cast out devils by the Spirit of God, then the kingdom of God is come unto you. (Matt. 12:14-18, 22-28.)

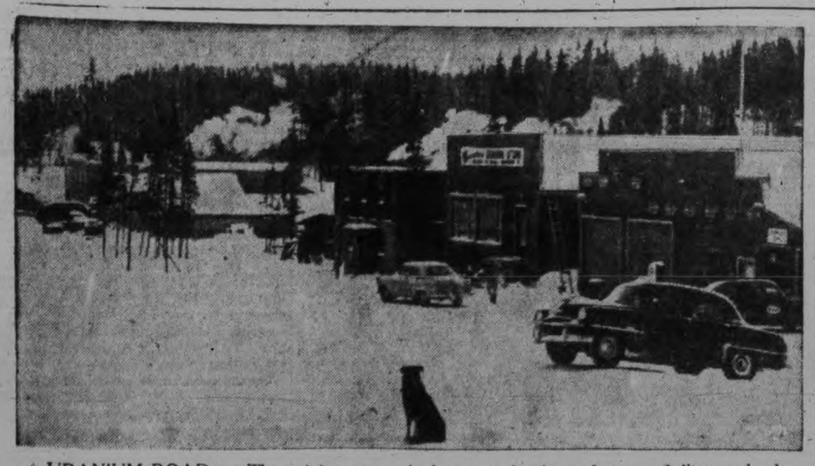
The Paris Municipal Council has named a metro (subway) station "Verdun" in memory of the French and Allied soldiers who fell in battle during the First World War.

The Gare de l'Est station will henceforth be known as "Gare de l'Est-Verdun" and will thus remind French and foreign tourists of the hundreds of thousands of soldiers who went east with the slogan, "They shall not pass."



URANIUM ROAD — The mining community of Uranium City in northern Saskatchewan has shown remarkable progress since the provincial department of natural resources began carving the townsite out of the wilderness in June, 1952. When the hunt for uranium started, incoming prospectors threw up haphazard rows of flimsy shack-tents and one-room shanties. These have been replaced by well-planned business sections and modern homes and schools. Uranium City Grows Quickly

URANIUM CITY, Sask. (CP)—This mining community in northern Saskatchewan has shown remarkable progress since the provincial department of natural resources began carving the townsite out of the wilderness in June 1952.

When the hunt for uranium start-started, incoming prospectors thre up haphazard rows of flimsy shack-tents and one-room shanties. These have been replaced by well-planned business sections and modern homes and schools.

The present population is about 600 men, women and children—a jump from the 250 of a year ago.

But residents—they expect a population of about 2,000 by the end of the year—have given the bustling town individuality. Street signs expected to appear soon will bear such names as Nuclear avenue, Fission avenue and Uranium road.

LOTS TAKEN UP

Most of the townsite's 624 surveyed lots have been taken up or spoken for. Business men and home builders invested more than $1,000,000 in development last summer, bringing total capital investment here to about $1,500,000.

With an eye to the future, the people of Uranium City are beginning to talk of incorporation. At present, the community is part of the Beaverlodge local development area—a municipal administrative branch of the resources department.

Two of the biggest champions of incorporation are Jock McMeekan, editor of Uranium Era, one of the community's two weekly newspapers, and tall, Gus Hawker whose name was once well suited to his sage advice to visitors: "Stake some claims and make your fortune."

AMONG FIRST LEADERS

The men were among the first community leaders here. Uranium City now has electric power, street lighting, schools, fire - protection equipment, road and street grading and a waste disposal ground. A start on a water and sewage system is expected to be made this summer.

Uranium City, almost 500 miles north of Saskatoon, was first planned to accommodate men and their families working for the federally-owned Eldorado Mining and Refining Corporation, and the smaller independent companies which serve it.

LARGE BILLS And How to pay them

Most people spend large sums of money only when they know where the money is coming from. But there are some bills that you just can't plan for. For instance, car smash-ups, unexpected medical expenses, fires, thefts and anything completely out of your control; bills . . . that hit you like a bolt out of the blue. These large bills are often a serious concern to a family. That's when a Niagara loan can really be of help. At any rate there are a lot of letters in our office which were written by people who certainly think our service was a mighty fine answer to this difficult kind of problem. You'll find if you inquire, that friendly loans at Niagara Finance often have lower rates. Another point about Niagara, loans to $1500 are life-insured at no extra cost to you. If you have a large unexpected bill which you can't handle why not drop in or phone; we'll be glad to see you.

Urges Firm Stand On U.S.

TORONTO (CP)—The National Progressive Conservative Student Federation ended a week-end conference here Sunday night with a series of resolutions and reaffirmed its faith in George Drew as the party's national leader.

In its resolutions, the federation urged a firm policy with the United States, declaring that while friendly relations with the U.S. were desirable, that country should not be permitted to interfere in Canadian internal affairs.

It urged the establishment of a central organization of the party to reach a closer liaison with labor groups; maintenance of government grants to universities and establishment of a system of scholarships as recommended in the Massey report.

John Diefenbaker, Progressive Conservative member of the Commons for Prince Albert, in an address to the students, said that defeat of Socialist governments in New Zealand, Australia and Britain indicated an international trend towards conservative thinking.

High School Teacher Arthur Clarry Dies

OTTAWA (CP)—Arthur Ressor Clarry, 62-year-old head of the Nepean high school science department here, died Saturday.

The body then was sent for burial to Guelph, where he was married in 1927 to the former Olive Moody, who survives along with three daughters, a brother and four grandchildren.

He was a native of Locust Hill.

Belmont And Methuen Assessor Chosen

HAVELOCK (ENS) — Main item on the agenda at the meeting of the Belmont and Methuen council Saturday, was the appointment of an assessor.

Six applications were received and the appointment went to Melville Dafoe, who has had four years' experience. The council approved his application at a salary of $1,200.

Councillor W. Barrie was appointed to investigate indigent patients, who applied for hospitalization.

Bylaw 880, which covered road expenditures, estimated at $18,000 for this year, was passed. A bylaw covering current loans was also passed.

Three officials of the Canada Flint and Spar Company were present and addressed the council regarding assistance in making the roads and bridges at the north-east and of Blue Mountain fit for heavy equipment.

The council were very sympathetic to their request and promised to give them all the help possible. With a bylaw for only $18,000 for all the roads in the townships the council felt the matter should be taken up with the department and they would be able to give a more definite answer . . at a later date.

Urge 18 Considered To Be Adult Age

TORONTO (CP)— The Ontario section of the Canadian Bar Association Saturday recommended that minors legally be considered adults upon reaching the age of 18, rather than at 21 as at present.

Proponents of the resolution passed at the mid-winter meeting of the Ontario section said one of the main purposes of this step would be a saving in procedural time and expense to litigants.

The lawyers also urged a change in the Canada Evidence Act that would prevent an accused person from having to reveal a criminal record while under cross examination.

Indian Machine Gets Most Out Of Manure

NEW DELHI (OFNS)—The latest joke here is about an invention which will make use of the unpleasant gases that emanate from animal and human manure. The invention, however, is not a joke; it exists and works, and represents an ingenious way of tackling a major Indian problem.

India has very little fuel. For centuries the villagers have had to use dried manure as fuel. Thus for centuries the soil has been deprived of manure and now has an extremely low nitrogen content, yielding poor crops. The problem of providing fuel for the cooking pot, and at the same time providing manure for the fields, had always appeared insoluble—until the invention of this machine.

The machine, which can be seen at the International Low Cost Housing Exhibition, releases inflammable gases from the manure, and these gases can be used for fuel, while the residue makes excellent fertiliser. Only one is working at present, and it will be many years before every village has a model of its own. But the invention is a sign of India's determination to tackle apparently insoluble problems.

London Editor Honored

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — A citation for meritorious service to the newspaper industry and profession during more than 50 years as reporter and editor was awarded Sunday to Arthur R. Ford of the London Free Press.

The award was the first of its kind presented by the Canadian Managing Editors Conference since the association was formed seven years ago.

Mr. Ford, editor-in-chief of the Free Press, is convalescing from a serious illness and was able to attend. It was accepted for him by his executive editor, R. J. Churchill.

ILLUMINATED ADDRESS

The citation, an illuminated address drafted by Charles Knight, staff artist of the Windsor Star, said Mr. Ford was honored:

"For outstanding service to the newspaper profession over a period of 50 years, during which he at all times exemplified its highest ideals.

"For the high standards he set, as one of Canada's great reporters which today are an inspiration to those who have followed him.

"For his insatiable curiosity and boundless energy which enable him to unearth stories of significance to those who have followed him.

"For his defence of the freedom of the press.

"For his achievement as editor for more than 30 years.

NEVER LOST TOUCH

"For his ability to walk with kings without losing the common touch, and his faculty for making friends in all walks of life.

"For his service in the formative days of The Canadian Press and his continuing interest on behalf of this enterprise.

"For his service to his country and to the communities in which he lived."

In a message of thanks read to the conference at its final session, Mr. Ford said his greatest satisfaction in his half-century had come from his work as a reporter.

The life blood of a newspaper is good reporting, he said. Principles of reporting and editing had not changed much in 50 years but newspapers were much improved.

"There is no comparing Canadian and world news services of today with the service that was received 50 years ago. This has been largely due to the development of the national co-operative news service of The Canadian Press."

CBC Bought Up Rights For B.C. Games To Check Advertising Firm

VANCOUVER (CP) The CBC's chief aim in buying up rights to radio and television coverage of the British Empire Games next summer was to prevent the franchise from falling into the hands of a private advertising firm, a CBC official said here Saturday.

Kenneth Caple, CBC regional director, said the corporation paid $50,000 for the rights because a large Canadian advertising firm "was trying to get exclusive rights to the games."

He did not name the company.

The British Columbia Association of Radio and Television Broadcasters unanimously approved a resolution Friday deploring the action of games officials in signing the contract with the CBC. The resolution said the contract "appears to interfere with the activities of independent broadcasting stations in B.C. in reporting the games to the public."

NOT TRYING TO CUT IN

Mr. Caple said in a statement the CBC has no intention of trying to "hamstring" private stations.

"We're not that crazy that we'd try and keep them away from the games."

Mr. Caple added that the CBC's aim was to ensure that Canada and other Commonwealth countries get "first-rate" radio, TV and movie coverage of the games in Vancouver while keeping overseas coverage free of commercial announcements.

The contract does not cover still photographs and press coverage rights.

Stan Smith, general games chairman, said the CBC contract will in no way prevent radio or newspaper men from getting coverage which is "their inherent right."

TV Officials Still Divided On Live, Filmed Shows

NEW YORK (AP)—Where do you stand on television's live vs film argument:

The folks in the industry still are split on the question. Some contend you can get better programs by putting them on film, with retakes if there's a fluff or mistake. Others argue that a canned show never can capture the spontaneous sparkle of one that's telecast as it's performed.

Indications are that the trend toward film has been slowed or halted in recent months. Ross Reports on Television, New York industry information service, says its program analyses show no significant changes in the last year. The ratio currently is 20½ hours a week on film and 115½ live on network shows out of New York, including the major film shows photographed in Hollywood.

Meanwhile, some of the "prolive" producers now are signing off their shows with the line: "This show originated live from New York" or "—from Hollywood." While the film advocates are ready with arguments for their celluloid versions, the identification at the end of many recorded shows is an inconspicuous: "This has been a mechanical reproduction."

The performers themselves are in opposing camps on the subject.

Examples are Dinah Shore, ardent advocate of the live show, and Dennis Day, who favors the filmed form.

"I believe in live shows, I love a live performance," Miss Shore said the other day on a trip here from Hollywood to do two of her NBC-TV programs in color.

"It gives a performer a keyed-up excitement that's missing in films."

Day, who came east from Hollywood a few days later, says it's the other way around with him on his NBC programs.

"I couldn't do the costume changes I do now unless I did my show on film," he related. "And if the show were live, and I had to run from one set to another in 30 seconds or less, I'd be out of breath when I got there and wouldn't be able to do a very good job on a song."

Burtt To Concentrate On Being Mayor

TRENTON (CP) — Mayor Ross Burtt, a familiar figure in work clothes, is about to end his career as a railroader and concentrate on being mayor of Trenton.

This is the last week Trenton residents will see their chief magistrate heading for work with his lunch pail in his hand, for at the end of the week the mayor is due to retire from the Canadian National Railways. He has been with the railway for 41 years.

He has served on council for 15 years, and was elected mayor last December.

URANIUM ROAD — The mining community of Uranium City in northern Saskatchewan has shown remarkable progress since the provincial department of natural resources began carving the townsite out of the wilderness in June, 1952. When the hunt for uranium started, incoming prospectors threw up haphazard rows of flimsy shack-tents and one-room shanties. These have been replaced by well-planned business sections and modern homes and schools. Uranium City Grows Quickly

URANIUM CITY, Sask. (CP)—This mining community in northern Saskatchewan has shown remarkable progress since the provincial department of natural resources began carving the townsite out of the wilderness in June 1952.

When the hunt for uranium start-started, incoming prospectors thre up haphazard rows of flimsy shack-tents and one-room shanties. These have been replaced by well-planned business sections and modern homes and schools.

The present population is about 600 men, women and children—a jump from the 250 of a year ago.

But residents—they expect a population of about 2,000 by the end of the year—have given the bustling town individuality. Street signs expected to appear soon will bear such names as Nuclear avenue, Fission avenue and Uranium road.

LOTS TAKEN UP

Most of the townsite's 624 surveyed lots have been taken up or spoken for. Business men and home builders invested more than $1,000,000 in development last summer, bringing total capital investment here to about $1,500,000.

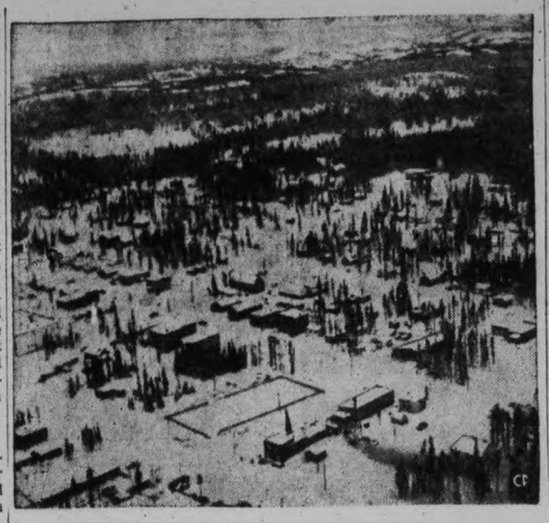
With an eye to the future, the people of Uranium City are beginning to talk of incorporation. At present, the community is part of the Beaverlodge local development area—a municipal administrative branch of the resources department.

Two of the biggest champions of incorporation are Jock McMeekan, editor of Uranium Era, one of the community's two weekly newspapers, and tall, Gus Hawker whose name was once well suited to his sage advice to visitors: "Stake some claims and make your fortune."

AMONG FIRST LEADERS

The men were among the first community leaders here. Uranium City now has electric power, street lighting, schools, fire - protection equipment, road and street grading and a waste disposal ground. A start on a water and sewage system is expected to be made this summer.

Uranium City, almost 500 miles north of Saskatoon, was first planned to accommodate men and their families working for the federally-owned Eldorado Mining and Refining Corporation, and the smaller independent companies which serve it.



URANIUM BOOM TOWN — This is an aerial view of Uranium City in northern Saskatchewan which has taken on a new look since the townsite was first settled in the wilderness in June, 1952. At the start of the first uranium hunt, prospectors threw up haphazard rows of flimsy shack-tents and one-room shanties. These have been replaced by well-planned business sections and modern homes and schools. This view, taken from the southeast, shows part of the business section. LARGE BILLS And How to pay them

Most people spend large sums of money only when they know where the money is coming from. But there are some bills that you just can't plan for. For instance, car smash-ups, unexpected medical expenses, fires, thefts and anything completely out of your control; bills . . . that hit you like a bolt out of the blue. These large bills are often a serious concern to a family. That's when a Niagara loan can really be of help. At any rate there are a lot of letters in our office which were written by people who certainly think our service was a mighty fine answer to this difficult kind of problem. You'll find if you inquire, that friendly loans at Niagara Finance often have lower rates. Another point about Niagara, loans to $1500 are life-insured at no extra cost to you. If you have a large unexpected bill which you can't handle why not drop in or phone; we'll be glad to see you.

Urges Firm Stand On U.S.

TORONTO (CP)—The National Progressive Conservative Student Federation ended a week-end conference here Sunday night with a series of resolutions and reaffirmed its faith in George Drew as the party's national leader.

In its resolutions, the federation urged a firm policy with the United States, declaring that while friendly relations with the U.S. were desirable, that country should not be permitted to interfere in Canadian internal affairs.

It urged the establishment of a central organization of the party to reach a closer liaison with labor groups; maintenance of government grants to universities and establishment of a system of scholarships as recommended in the Massey report.

John Diefenbaker, Progressive Conservative member of the Commons for Prince Albert, in an address to the students, said that defeat of Socialist governments in New Zealand, Australia and Britain indicated an international trend towards conservative thinking.

High School Teacher Arthur Clarry Dies

OTTAWA (CP)—Arthur Ressor Clarry, 62-year-old head of the Nepean high school science department here, died Saturday.

A funeral service was held Sunday night for Mr. Clarry, who was principal of high schools in Thessalon, Cobalt, Bradford and Grimsby and had taught at the Royal Military College, Kingston, before coming to Nepean in 1938. The body then was sent for burial to Guelph, where he was married in 1927 to the former Olive Moody, who survives along with three daughters, a brother and four grandchildren.

He was a native of Locust Hill.

Belmont And Methuen Assessor Chosen

HAVELOCK (ENS) — Main item on the agenda at the meeting of the Belmont and Methuen council Saturday, was the appointment of an assessor.

Six applications were received and the appointment went to Melville Dafoe, who has had four years' experience. The council approved his application at a salary of $1,200.

Councillor W. Barrie was appointed to investigate indigent patients, who applied for hospitalization.

Bylaw 880, which covered road expenditures, estimated at $13,000 for this year, was passed. A bylaw covering current loans was also passed.

Three officials of the Canada Flint and Spar Company were present and addressed the council regarding assistance in making the roads and bridges at the north-east and of Blue Mountain fit for heavy equipment.

The council were very sympathetic to their request and promised to give them all the help possible. With a bylaw for only $18,000 for all the roads in the townships the council felt the matter should be taken up with the department and they would be able to give a more definite answer at a later date.

Urge 18 Considered To Be Adult Age

TORONTO (CP)— The Ontario section of the Canadian Bar Association Saturday recommended that minors legally be considered adults upon reaching the age of 18, rather than at 21 as at present.

Proponents of the resolution passed at the mid-winter meeting of the Ontario section said one of the main purposes of this step would be a saving in procedural time and expense to litigants.

The lawyers also urged a change in the Canada Evidence Act that would prevent an accused person from having to reveal a criminal record while under cross examination.

Fellowships Awarded

KINGSTON (CP)—Hamilton and Kitchener mechanical engineering students have been awarded Athlone fellowships by Queen's University, each valued at about $3,000. The students are Ian J. Former Mayor Dies

WALLACEBURG (CP)—J. Eric MacDonal, former mayor of Wallaceburg for six years, died in his home Saturday of a heart attack. He was 54.

Indian Machine Gets Most Out Of Manure

NEW DELHI (OFNS)—The latest joke here is about an invention which will make use of the unpleasant gases that emanate from animal and human manure. The invention, however, is not a joke; it exists and works, and represents an ingenious way of tackling a major Indian problem.

India has very little fuel. For centuries the villagers have had to use dried manure as fuel. Thus for centuries the soil has been deprived of manure and now has an extremely low nitrogen content, yielding poor crops. The problem of providing fuel for the cooking pot, and at the same time providing manure for the fields, had always appeared insoluble—until the invention of this machine.

The machine, which can be seen at the International Low Cost Housing Exhibition, releases inflammable gases from the manure, and these gases can be used for fuel, while the residue makes excellent fertiliser. Only one is working at present, and it will be many years before every village has a model of its own. But the invention is a sign of India's determination to tackle apparently insoluble problems.

London Editor Honored

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — A citation for meritorious service to the newspaper industry and profession during more than 50 years as reporter and editor was awarded Sunday to Arthur R. Ford of the London Free Press.

The award was the first of its kind presented by the Canadian Managing Editors Conference since the association was formed seven years ago.

Mr. Ford, editor-in-chief of the Free Press, is convalescing from a serious illness and was able to attend. It was accepted for him by his executive editor, R. J. Churchill.

ILLUMINATED ADDRESS

The citation, an illuminated address drafted by Charles Knight, staff artist of the Windsor Star, said Mr. Ford was honored:

"For outstanding service to the newspaper profession over a period of 50 years, during which he at all times exemplified its highest ideals.

"For the high standards he set, as one of Canada's great reporters which today are an inspiration to those who have followed him.

"For his insatiable curiosity and boundless energy which enable him to unearth stories of significance to those who have followed him.

"For his defence of the freedom of the press.

"For his achievement as editor for more than 30 years.

NEVER LOST TOUCH

"For his ability to walk with kings without losing the common touch, and his faculty for making friends in all walks of life.

"For his service in the formative days of The Canadian Press and his continuing interest on behalf of this enterprise.

"For his service to his country and to the communities in which he lived."

In a message of thanks read to the conference at its final session, Mr. Ford said his greatest satisfaction in his half-century had come from his work as a reporter.

The life blood of a newspaper is good reporting, he said. Principles of reporting and editing had not changed much in 50 years but newspapers were much improved.

"There is no comparing Canadian and world news services of today with the service that was received 50 years ago. This has been largely due to the development of the national co-operative news service of The Canadian Press."

CBC Bought Up Rights For B.C. Games To Check Advertising Firm

VANCOUVER (CP)—The CBC's chief aim in buying up rights to radio and television coverage of the British Empire Games next summer was to prevent the franchise from falling into the hands of a private advertising firm, a CBC official said here Saturday.

Kenneth Caple, CBC regional director, said the corporation paid $50,000 for the rights because a large Canadian advertising firm "was trying to get exclusive rights to the games."

He did not name the company.

The British Columbia Association of Radio and Television Broadcasters unanimously approved a resolution Friday deploring the action of games officials in signing the contract with the CBC. The resolution said the contract "appears to interfere with the activities of independent broadcasting stations in B.C. in reporting the games to the public."

NOT TRYING TO CUT IN

Mr. Caple said in a statement the CBC has no intention of trying to "hamstring" private stations.

"We're not that crazy that we'd try and keep them away from the games."

Mr. Caple added that the CBC's aim was to ensure that Canada and other Commonwealth countries get "first-rate" radio, TV and movie coverage of the games in Vancouver while keeping overseas coverage free of commercial announcements.

The contract does not cover still photographs and press coverage rights.

Stan Smith, general games chairman said the CBC contract will in no way prevent radio or newspaper men from getting coverage which is "their inherent right."

Slight Interruption

MOOSE JAW, Sask. (CP) — Mayor Louis Lewry missed his first city council meeting in more than six years when he became ill in January. He had never missed in two years as alderman and four as mayor.

TV Officials Still Divided On Live, Filmed Shows

NEW YORK (AP)—Where do you stand on television's live vs film argument.

The folks in the industry still are split on the question. Some contend you can get better programs by putting them on film, with retakes if there's a fluff or mistake. Others argue that a canned show never can capture the spontaneous sparkle of one that's telecast as it's performed.

Indications are that the trend toward film has been slowed or halted in recent months. Ross Reports on Television, New York industry information service, says its program analyses show no significant changes in the last year. The ratio currently is 20½ hours a week on film and 115½ live on network shows out of New York, including the major film shows photographed in Hollywood.

Meanwhile, some of the "prolive" producers now are signing off their shows with the line: "This show originated live from New York" or "—from Hollywood." While the film advocates are ready with arguments for their celluloid versions, the identification at the end of many recorded shows is an inconspicuous: "This has been a mechanical reproduction."

The performers themselves are in opposing camps on the subject.

Examples are Dinah Shore, ardent advocate of the live show, and Dennis Day, who favors the filmed form.

"I believe in live shows, I love a live performance," Miss Shore said the other day on a trip here from Hollywood to do two of her NBC-TV programs in color.

"It gives a performer a keyed-up excitement that's missing in films."

Day, who came east from Hollywood a few days later, says it's the other way around with him on his NBC programs.

"I couldn't do the costume changes I do now unless I did my show on film," he related. "And if the show were live, and I had to run from one set to another in 30 seconds or less, I'd be out of breath when I got there and wouldn't be able to do a very good job on a song."

Burtt To Concentrate On Being Mayor

TRENTON (CP) — Mayor Ross Burtt, a familiar figure in work clothes, is about to end his career as a railroader and concentrate on being mayor of Trenton.

This is the last week Trenton residents will see their chief magistrate heading for work with his lunch pail in his hand, for at the end of the week the mayor is due to retire from the Canadian National Railways. He has been with the railway for 41 years.

He has served on council for 15 years, and was elected mayor last December.

Junior Petes Capture A Win Against Collingwood, 5-4 To Keep Atop OHA Loop

Collingwood Greenshirts dropped a close 5-4 junior hockey struggle to Red Creighton's high-flying Junior Petes on Saturday night, before 1,000 home fans; it was Peterborough's 17th victory in 22 starts, their fourth and final win over the cellar-dwelling Greenshirts. The Creighton lads have two remaining games in the regular schedule. They meet the tough Lindsay crew tonight at Civic Arena, and wind up in Midland Thursday. Gord Coyle, veteran Lakefield sharpshooter, opened the scoring Saturday near the three-minute mark as play steamed up, when he took a forward thrust from Murray Byrne near the red line, burst through the defence, then fired a waist-high rifle shot past Don Hudson from 20 feet out. Two minutes later, a tremendous power attack by Petes paid off, when Doris' intended passout to Coyle travelled back to Jerry Frizzelle at the right blueline. The latter slapped a terrific 38-foot drive high into the left corner of the mesh, through a maze of players.

TWIST ON DECK

Bill Twist, tall centre-ice star, whose back is responding to treatment slowly, made it three after a similar lapse of time, as he, with Gary Kearns and Bob Gardner, stormed the rival fort. The first thrust failed, but the second found big Bill camped on the right crease to plop in Gardner's relayed passout. Greenshirts wobbled slightly under Petes' power attacks, but recovered to hold well in the remaining minutes of the first, and tallied a fine goal at 14.46 to stay in the game. Jim Hanna found the range on a sharp 20-foot right-wing line, as Robinson passed back neatly from behind the cage.

Despite Greenshirts' best efforts, the mid-frame belonged strictly to Peterborough, and the Liftlock lads tallied twice, at the same time putting up a defensive wall the homesters could not penetrate effectively. Bob Delahey guarded the twine with the poise and precision of Sawchuck as he turned aside many dangerous drives, and over the route earned star rating. Bill Twist scored his second marker at 7.33 on a double pass from Doris and Gardner a brilliant close-in tally. Coyle followed suit three minutes later on a dead-centre 30-foot blazer through a maze. Frizelle drew an assist on the play.

BECAME ROUGH

Play roughened up, and when Twist suffered a painful groin injury near the boards when dumped by McMillan, play was held up several minutes. Ball and Delahey drew misconducts for talking, and coach Creighton, Dick Yeo and linesman Butters engaged in a short spirited debate. McMillan and Robinson served time in the frame as well.

Collingwood showed a remarkable change of form in the third, by far their best period. Action proved fast and hard as the Greenshirts gave their all to pull defeat from the fire in a dashing display. Play continued rough with six penalties, including majors to Coyle and Gary Parish for fighting. Though enjoying no great margin in territorial play, Greenshirts' scoring finish, hitherto ineffective for the most part, suddenly blossomed into an instrument of terror.

Bill Fisher found the range early in a scramble with John Hill and Jerry Rawn and a hoist over prostrate Delahey. Near the halfway mark, Archie Blanchard outwitted a lone defender to whisk a low slider into the visiting mesh —and home hopes rose like the morning sun in Alabama. Petes were not to be denied, however, and despite Rawn's late goal in the final seconds, held gamely to their small but vital victory edge in a classy battle.

Petes: Goal, Delahey; defence, Frizzelle, Byrne; centre, Twist; wings, Coyle, Morrow; alts., Doris, Kearns, Gardner, Ball, Ferguson, Pue, Snape, McDougal.

Collingwood: Goal, Hudson; defence, R. Taylor, Crew; centre, Robinson; wings, Kirk, Hanna; alts., G. Taylor, McMillan, Parrish, Grier, Hill, Sholtz, Fisher, Blanchard, Rawn.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

Prexy Jack Devine of the Central Ontario Baseball League—he was top guy when it folded a year ago—is sending out feelers to Oshawa, Peterborough, Kingston, Belleville and Watertown with the idea of calling a meeting in about two weeks. If ball interests in these centres show enough interest, the conclave will be held and a start toward re-organizing the senior diamond circuit in Central Ontario. Personally, we doubt if Watertown will come in, or if other cities want 'em in — except maybe Kingston. Also, we'd advise Jack to really go after Oshawa Transporters, as they're presently contacting the West Toronto and the Toronto Viaduct senior loops, seeking an entry up that way. We'd like to see the COBL go gain, with Oshawa, Kingston, Belleville and the Petes aboard.

Those destroying Duseks, as nasty a pro mat brother act as the mean Mills, show here Wednesday eve along the Brock Avenoo. They face Whipper Bill Watson and huge Hombre Montana in the main bout, a tag team tussle to top the grabble card. Ernie and Emil Dusek will provide a stern test to the testy champ Watson and his powerful partner, who presently hold the tag team title along the Rue de Rassle in Canada. Wonder who will referee it. One of these scraps, the Whip is going to tee off on a bossy ref as Watson — like Dempsey in his prime — has an abiding dislike of being pushed around by any official. Fred Atkins tackles Ilio Dipoalo in the semi-final, as Ray Cernados (a newcomer) meets the colorful and humorous Jack Bence in the prelim:

Hap Day Liked Red

For weeks now we've been wondering audibly what George (Red) Sullivan has to do to get another crack at the NHL with Boston Bruins. All he's doing this winter is lead the AHL in scoring practically from the start till now, boasting 68 points in 49 games the last league bulletin we saw. Toronto Star had this item the other day about the Ashburnham redhead: "Leafs' Hap Day calls Red Sullivan, a Boston chattel, the Ted Kennedy of the American Hockey League. Hap says Sullivan retains his leadership in AHL by sheer hard work." Fans who follow men's softball in the summer at the Bowl will realize what Hap means, since Sully is sure a hustler at any game.

* * * * * *

Another indication that winter soon will be on the wane is the fact that Junior Petes have their last home scheduled game tonight at 8:30 in Civic Arena. They tackle Lindsay in this one, and then have one trip away ere playoffs commence shortly. While Red Creighton's crew have top spot in the group clinched, there's a stiff scrap going on now betwixt Lindsay and the Oshawa outfit (using Port Perry as a home base) for the other playoff position in the "B" setup, as one faces elimination. Never any love lost between the Scugog puckists and the fast-stepping young hockeyists from here, so we anticipate a keen contest on the frozen water tonight here.

Take Their 7th Win

Up in Collingwood on Saturday e'en, big Eddie Bush's junior Greenshirts gave the local lads a hot third period but Red Creighton's boys came through with a 5-4 win in a stormy struggle. It was their 17th win against five defeats so far this cool semester, and they won't be meeting the northerners again this winter. Peterborough goes to Midland on Thursday to finish out the string, but Collingwood and Midland will then drop back to junior "C" playoffs while Junior Petes tackle either Port Perry or Lindsay in the "B" sawoffs. Moon Wootton is busy playing in the TVL, so Dootch Vitarelli has taken over his job as manager of the local junior club, working with Red Creighton. Nice to see these experienced athletes interested in these youngsters.

Tough luck on Ike Hildebrand, who broke his leg playing for Hawks in Toronto on Saturday night. Globe columnist wrote: "The likeable Hildebrand, who has been trying to crash the big top since 1948, blamed himself.. 'It's my own fault,' he said from his bed in Wellesley Hospital. "I stuck out my foot to stop Nesterenko as he broke from behind the Toronot net. I should have known better.. I only tried it once before and injured my knee." Ike expects to become a pappy any moment. His wife is in hospital in Vancouver and he phoned her as soon as he reached Wellesley to assure her he was in comparatively good shape. She had been listening to the game on the radio. He won't play hockey again this season. In fact, it'll be four weeks before he'll be given a pair of crutches. Hildebrand, a member of Peterborough's Mann Cup lacrosse team, has been roughly treated by the hockey fates this season. He thought he'd make the grade with Rangers and the fact he was team's leading scorer gave him added confidence. Then came the shocker. He was sold to Vancouver Canucks six weeks ago, who in turn sold him to the Hawks Jan. 20."

St. Peter's Lose OCC Fray In Cage Tourney

St. Peter's High senior Saints bowed out of the 1954 Ontario Catholic Conference basketball tournament Saturday to London Catholic Central High in the semi-finals. But Central High Sunday afternoon lost the Ontario title to St. Michael's College of Toronto when St. Mike's successfully defended their conference title with a 45-50 victory.

In reaching the semi-finals this year the senior Saints, coached by Hilly Yudin, made the best showing in the tournament's history. Usually they have been knocked out in the first round to enter consolation play.

For a while Saturday tournament officials seemed to think the Saints would be the team to beat. They scored a close victory over the strong St. Jerome's quintet from Kitchener on Friday night and went on to edge DeLaSalle Oaklands Saturday afternoon.

But in defeating the Nobby Wirkowski-coached Oaklands, 41-38, the Saints ruined their chances of advancing much further in the tournament. In the rough play they lost temporarily the services of stars Ab Ryan and Dave Quinlan.

INJURY HURT

Ryan's twisted thumb, and Quinlan's sprained ankle meant the Saints had three on the injured or sick list. Star Doug Galvin, on whom the Saints' offence relies for points, rose out of a sick bed for the tournament and was playing under par.

Wirkowski's Oaklands, who hold a one-win one-loss record with the Saints in league play, took a slim lead in the first half. But in the second half, particularly the third quarter, the Saints surged ahead for the victory.

Galvin who was feeling better for this game after a night's rest starred for the Saints with 18 points while Ryan had nine.

With their main stars out or nearly out, the Saints were easy targets for a fast London quintet from Catholic Central High. The Western Ontario quintet grabbed an early first quarter lead, led by more than 20 points at the half, and finally took a wide winning margin 64-44.

Ryan this time led the Saints' scoring with 15 points while Ron Board had 11 and Galvin six.

London advanced into the finals against St. Michael's who had easily defeated Corpus Christi of Windsor in a last-minute semi-final round.

But in the final, pressing only five players into action, St. Michael's rallied in the fourth quarter to win the championship for the third year in a row. It was also the third successive year they defeated the London school.

St. Michael's trailed 11-5 after the first quarter and the Central five continued to lead 25-17 at the half. Going into the last quarter St. Michael's were behind 32-25 but in the last 10 minutes they outscored the Londoners 20-8 to take the title.

Campbellford Takes Victory Against Bata

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS) — Campbellford's puckists upset the Bata Shoemen in a TVL encounter in the community centre here on Friday night. Although the shoemen started fast, and the Campbellford lads could seem to do nothing to stop them, the locals showed an amazing burst of speed in the dying minutes of the game and netted three fast goals, in the space of a minute and 44 seconds.

This final surge made the score 6 to 5 for the homesters, and although Campbellford received a penalty in the last three minutes, Bata were unable to penetrate the local defence. Why they did not take off their goalie and put on six forwards, nobody knows, but Nelson, in the Campbellford nets, appeared quite glad that they didn't.

Bata: goal, LeFort; defence, Wright and Howard; centre, Robson; wings, Mitts and Cosgrove; alts.: Rankin, Courtney, Farmer, Reid, Foster.

Regent Cagers Get Victory Over Oshawa In 60-57 Tilt

Building up an early lead in the first quarter, the YMCA Regents, coached by Doug MacPherson, managed to hold off a last-half rally by Oshawa Grads to win their exhibition intermediate "B" game 60-57. This was the Regents' stiffest test in intermediate play this season. The Grads, playing this season in the strong Metro intermediate league in Toronto, were much better than Grad quintets of previous seasons.

The exhibition indicated to Coach MacPherson several places which need polishing before entering the intermediate "B" playdowns, probably in a week's time. The Regents were throwing the ball away too much on the offence while on the defence they were caught several times on the quick break.

This week they'll again be tested when they meet the Trenton RCAF Flyers for the second time. Last week they edged the Flyers in Trenton. This game will be played Wednesday at the YMCA gym, following a preliminary game between Collis', the city girls' intermediate entry, and the Trenton RCAF Jets whom Collis' defeated handily last week.

STEWART SHINES

Veteran Joe Stewart, making a comeback after a year out of active basketball, hit his stride of old Saturday night. Along with former PCVS star Don Ash, Stewart paced the Regents almost throughout the game.

With driving in one-hand jump shots, Stewart and Ash led Regents to a 20-9 first quarter lead after spotting Grads a 4-0 lead at the start. That lengthy margin practically gave Regents the victory.

But in the second quarter the Grads, led by guard Sheenan, rallied up the court with fast breaks, resulting in baskets by Riseborough, Wilson, Gedge and Sheenan. But Stewart continued his revival along with help from Dan Griffen and Gord Burns to hold the lead 30-20 at the half.

EMPHASIZE OFFENCE

Both teams emphasized offence in the third quarter as play quickly broke up and down the floor. Sheenan still conducted the Grads' play, setting up scoring plays to either Riseborough or Gedge. At the same time the close-working Regents' plays resulted in an over-all scoring spree which netted 20 points, keeping Regents out in front 50-39.

In the fourth quarter, the Grads rallied under Riseborough, Gedge and Sheenan to outscore Regents 18-10. But the Regents, mostly through foul shots, held their lead for the victory.

Stewart led the scoring with 17 points, followed by Ash with 11 and Ed Nicholls with 10. Riseborough easily led the game scoring with 21.

Canadiens Crush Rangers 4-1 In Sellout Game

By JIM BASTABLE, Canadian Press Sports Writer

The difference between color and a so-so hockey club: 9,049 fans and plenty of cash. In New York, Montreal Canadiens, who have always ranked among the best in color clubs, played the fifth-place Rangers in Madison Square Garden. Canadiens won the National Hockey League game 4-1 and the Garden had its first sellout in more than five years—15,925 fans. In Chicago, only 6,876 subdued followers turned out to se the last-place Black Hawks, shackled with one of their poorest seasons in history. The Hawks beat Toronto Maple Leafs 2-1 for their 10th victory in 54 games.

The New Yorkers expected color Sunday night and they got it. Maurice Richard, Montreal's great rightwinger, was at his best. He scored his 31st and 32nd goals of the season as Canadiens cooled off the Rangers for the second straight night.

There wasn't a seat or standing room space in the Garden. The 15,925-figure is the maximum allowed by New York law. Hundreds of fans were turned away and not since Jan. 25, 1949, when Canadiens and Rangers met, has there been such a turnout.

LOW-SCORING TIE

In another league game Sunday night, the league-leading Detroit Red Wings and the fourth-place Boston Bruins fought to a 1-1 tie at Boston Garden.

In three games Saturday, the Leafs blanked the Hawks 6-0 before 12,541, a usual crowd at Toronto's Maple Leaf Gardens—Canadiens beat the Rangers 4-3 and Detroit defeated Boston 4-2.

The Rocket boosted his all-time goal total to 379 last night with a couple of typical Richard blasts; low and hard from about 15 feet out. His total output now is 55 more than the old mark set by Nels Stewart.

Rookie Jean Beliveau and Floyd Curry tallied the other Montreal goals and helped Canadiens take second-place again. Aldo Guidolin scored for Rangers.

END LOSING STREAK

At Chicago, the Hawks scored twice in the first period and played good defensive hockey to win. It ended their five-game losing streak.

Bill Mosienko scored at 2:38 when Toronto was shorthanded and Jack McIntyre beat goalkeeper Harry Lumley at 7:14. The Leafs' lone goal came at 11:42 of the second period when Ron Stewart drove the puck past netminder Al Rollins.

LEAFS NOW THIRD

The loss dropped the Leafs into third place with 60 points, one behind Canadiens.

Rookie Earl Reibel's second-period goal gave Detroit the tie in Boston as the Wings lengthened their undefeated streak to seven games, the longest of the season.

Winger Leo Labine pushed his own rebound past Detroit goalie Terry Sawchuk midway through the second period to give the Bruins a 1-0 edge.

Defenceman Doug Harvey gave Canadiens their victory Saturday by firing two goals. Paul Meger and Lorne Davis, the latter recalled from Montreal Royals of the Quebec League, scored the other Montreal goal. Paul Ronty, Max Bentley and Wally Hergesheimer counted for New York.

Leftwinger Gord Hannigan led the Leafs with two goals Saturday. Harry Watson, Sid Smith, George Armstrong and Stewart tallied the others.

HILDEBRAND INJURED

The Hawks lost rightwinger Ike Hildebrand in the second period when he suffered a fractured left leg after tripping over Leafs' Eric Nesterenko and crashing into the boards. It was Hildebrand's first appearance in Toronto since the Hawks bought him from Vancouver Canucks of the Western league nearly three weeks ago.

The Wings were led by Metro Prystai's two goals Saturday. Defenceman Red Kelly and Glen Skov tallied the others. Doug Mohns and Cal Gardner accounted for the Boston scoring.

No games are scheduled until Wednesday night, when the Bruins are at Toronto and the Red Wings travel to New York for a tilt against the Rangers.

Angry McMaster Students Pelt Queen's Coach

HAMILTON (CP) — Angry McMaster University students chanted "Money, money, money" and showered the Queen's University coach with pennies in a rough senior intercollegiate basketball game here Saturday night.

Marauders defeated the visiting Gaels 58-52.

The 1500-odd students were protesting the recent ousting of McMaster from senior intercollegiate football, a move led by the Queen's representative on the Intercollegiate Athletic Union. Queen's officials, supported by the University of Toronto and the University of Western Ontario, said it was financially impossible to operate a five-team league.

It was the second time the students have demonstrated at a basketball game here. Two weeks ago they adopted similar tactics when the University of Toronto played the Marauders.

TINDAL PELTED

The fans chant "Money, Money, Money, red, gold and blue, red, gold and blue, gold, gold, gold, gold" while they tossed pennies at Queen's coach Frank Tindall.

During the game, 52 personal fouls and three technicals were handed out, 31 personals and one technical going to the Queen's team.

Marauders were never headed and led 21-14, 31-22 and 44-39 at the quarters.

The Gaels bottled up Marauders' scoring leaders, Lorne Wrigglesworth and Bert Raphael, during the game, holding them to seven points apiece. However, John Stanley and Vilin came up with 17 points each.

For the Gaels, Don Lyon and Jim Harrison were high men with 12 and 13 point efforts respectively.

McMaster plays at Queen's next Saturday.

Near Riot Develops In Game As Windsor Edges Tigers 5-3

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Joe Zorica may go on to bigger and better things as a player but for the moment he can lay claim to being one who created a big ruckus in the Ontario Hockey Association junior and senior A groups in the same season.

Battling Joe was one of the principals in a fight with Wally Kullman that developed into a near riot in the third period of the OHA Senior A game at Windsor Sunday between the Bulldogs and Hamilton Tigers.

Zorica, on loan to the Tigers from the junior Hamilton Cubs, tangled with the Windsor player on the Hamilton bench and some of the 3,000 fans poured on to the ice. Both Zorica and Kullman received 10-minute misconduct penalties and the Bulldogs went on to a 5-3 decision.

A few weeks ago Zorica was involved in a rhubarb in a junior game between the Cubs and Montreal Canadiens. He was reported to have scuffled with the referee.

In other OHA senior A action during the week-end, the fifth-place Stratford Indians edged the league-leading Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen 3-2 before 6,204 fans at Kitchener Saturday night while Owen Sound Mercurys ran their winning streak to three games with an 11-6 victory over the Bulldogs at Windsor.

TRAPPERS SPLIT

North Bay Trappers split two week-end road games in the Northern Ontario Hockey Association senior southern group, defeating the league-leading Sault Ste. Marie (Ont.) Greyhounds 2-1 Saturday night and then losing a 4-3 decision to Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Indians Sunday night. At Pembroke Saturday night the Lumber Kings whipped the second-place Sudbury Wolves 6-4.

The Trappers' split left them tied with Lumber Kings for third place with the Indians one point behind.

Windsor's win over Hamilton pulled the Bulldogs to within one point of the third-place Tigers. Kullman, Walt Pawlyshyn, Bob Hayes, Fred Hildebrand and Gord Haidy scored Windsor's goals. Joe Zorica and Ab Conick were the Tigers' marksmen.

DEFEAT DUTCHMEN

Stratford defeated the Dutchmen on George Aitken's goal with less than two minutes to play. Herve Dejordy and Johnny Muretich tallied the Indians' other goals. Charlie Brooker and George Scholes counted the Kitchener-Waterloo markers.

Bill McComb paced Owen Sound to its win over Windsor with a four-goal effort. Doug Gillespie got three, Tom Burlington two and Herb Carnegie and Ralph Hosking one each. Hildebrand counted two of the Windsor goals with the others shared by Earl Keyes, Pawlyshyn, Alec Birukow and Clarence Jaster.

National Hockey Loop Oldtimers Stage Game

GUELPH (CP) — The Whites downed the Reds 10-8 in a National Hockey League Oldtimers game here Saturday.

Whitey Farrant fired three goals in the third period to lead the winners. Roy Conacher and Butch Keeling scored twice each for the Whites, and Doug Smylie, Red Herron and Hank Goldup once each.

Bobby Bauer, Charlie and Lionel Conacher led the Reds with two goals each. The others were tallied by Bill Thoms and Rhys Thompson. Cy Wentworth was given the game's only penalty.

Weekend Stars

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Maurice Richard, Montreal, who scored twice Sunday to lead the Canadiens to a 4-1 victory over New York Rangers.

Harry Lumley, Toronto, who got his ninth shutout Saturday when the Maple Leafs defeated Chicago Black Hawks 6-0.

Earl Reibel, Detroit, whose second-period goal Sunday gave the Red Wings a 1-1 tie with the Boston Bruins.

Doug Harvey, Montreal, who scored two goals Saturday to give the Canadiens a 4-3 victory over the Rangers.

Metro Prystai, Detroit, whose two goals Saturday upset the Boston Bruins 4-2.

Police Quell Hockey Riot

FORT ERIE (CP)—The national anthem was played twice and a squad of police called to quell one of the biggest hockey riots to break out at a game here.

The fighting broke out Saturday night in the second period and some of the 1,000 fans were chiefly responsible. They heckled the visiting Dundas team to the point of molesting them.

Twice police had to be called to clear the crowd from the ice and at one point there were more fans on the playing surface than in the seats.

Four players from the Fort Erie Spears Cheves team received misconduct penalties for leaving the bench and four Dundas players got misconduct sentences for fighting. A total of 34 penalties—17 in the first period, 13 in the second and four in the third—was handed out.

The game was a scheduled Ontario Hockey Association Senior B encounter. Fort Erie won 6-2.

Hamilton Blind Bowlers Win Third Tournament

HAMILTON (CP) — Hamilton blind bowlers won their third straight white cane tournament championship Saturday. Hamilton captured the Bennett Trophy after competition with teams from Toronto, Kitchener, St. Catharines, Peterborough, London and Buffalo.

Hamilton bowlers won by 10 pins over the Toronto team, 2,514 to 2,504. Individual trophies went to Harold Mitchell of Hamilton.

Kitchener bowlers won B group title with a 2,362 total, more than enough to top London and Buffalo quartets.

The tournament will be held next year in Kitchener.

Canada Edges Switzerland In 6-5 Triumph

ZURICH, Switzerland (CP) — Canada defeated Switzerland, 6-5 Sunday in a warm-up for the world hockey championships scheduled for Stockholm later this month.

It was the last of three exhibition games in Switzerland for the Canadians — Toronto East York Lyndhursts — and it was their toughest.

They apparently are having difficulty adjusting to the European game in which body contact plays a lesser part than in Canada.

The Swiss team got two goals in the second period while the Canadians were shorthanded and managed to get two more to tie the score 5-5 in the third period when the Lyndhursts had men in the penalty box for a total of eight minutes.

GETS TWO GOALS

Moe Galand, 23-year-old rightwing who formerly played junior A hockey for Oshawa and Stratford in the Ontario Hockey Association, got two goals for the Canadians. His second was the winning tally and he got it with only five minutes left in the game.

Other Canadian scorers were: George Sayliss, John Petro, Carl Clement and John Scott.

Lyndhursts, who now have won three out of four on their pre-championship exhibition tour, move on to Italy next for a single game, then play four in Germany before winding up in Stockholm for the championships which begin Feb. 27.

Templer Noted For Hardness But Pays Off In Malaya

NOTE: Irish-born Gen. Sir Gerald Templer has a reputation for toughness in Malaya, where he serves as Britain's high commissioner. He'll carry it with him next fall when he takes over as commander of the Allied Northern Army Group in Europe and the British Army of the Rhine. Here's a close-up of Templer in action in Malaya and a look at his record in that troubled land.

By OLEN CLEMENTS

SEGAMAT, Malaya (AP)—Gen. Sir Gerald Templer stared hard at the Chinese and Tamil Indian village councilors.

"What's the matter with you people?" he demanded. "Haven't you any guts?"

An interpreter rattled off his words.

"I hear Communists have been seen in this village and you didn't even shoot at them."

The general's trim moustache quivered. You could have heard a coconut drop in the jungle 100 yards away.

The councillors squirmed in their seats.

"If I ever hear of you seeing a Communist in this village again and you don't shoot him I'll take away your guns," the general roared.

SOUNDED HARD

Irish-born Sir Gerald, high commissioner of Malaya, paused . . . "I can be a hard man if I have to be."

He sounded like a hard man.

"That is all," he concluded. He got up, stalked to his car. A bewhiskered policeman opened the door. The general roared away to another village.

FOOD FOR REDS

There another anxious council waited for this trim, 54-year-old soldier who will command the Allied northern Army Group in Europe and the British Army of the Rhine next fall.

The general got right down to business at his next stop.

"Food is still going out of this village to the Communists," he stormed. "I want it stopped."

The councillors sweated. The interpreter made plain the quick-tempered general's words.

"Has anybody anything to say?" growled the general. — Nobody spoke.

A smile toyed around the general's mouth. The tension lessened.

"If you will stop all food from going out of this village, I'll move the curfew back one hour."

The councillors promised rapidly. They were relieved. They shook the general's hand as he stalked out into the rain.

These are scenes typical of Templer's regular visits to villages in the Malayan provinces. He wants desperately to win the war against Red rebels here and he believes a firm policy is the surest means to victory.

MASS MOVEMENT

He steps down from his Malayan post next June. By the time he have moved 400,000 Malays, Chinese and Tamil Indians from their jungle homes, where they were prey to the Reds, to new villages, some with two wire fences around them to keep out Communist prowlers.

He feels he has accomplished his main objectives here. Malaya's police have been reorganized, a Federation army has been started and Malaya is slowly regaining confidence.

The general's predecessor, Sir Henry Gurney, was murdered by the Communists and Red violence was at its peak when Templer arrived early in 1952.

NOBODY SURPRISED

The Templer temper was known when he landed in Kuala Lumpur, the capital, and nobody was surprised by his dynamic drive. But the big question was: Would the strong military man the crisis demanded also have the political touch? Today, there are no doubts here on that score.

Templer has been as big a success politically as militarily and has impressed his personality on the political scene to a greater degree than any high commissioner before him.

The Reds' numbers are smaller now. There are an estimated 5,000 to 6,000 Communists scattered in the jungles. They raid villages, ambush planters and troop patrols.

WINDSOR (CP)—The Canadian Managing Editors Conference Saturday returned its 1953 executive for another year.

The business meeting decided the 1955 meeting will be held in Montreal, probably some time in February.

Bar Association Asks Changes In Labor Act

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario industrial relations section of the Canadian Bar Association has recommended changes in the Ontario Labor Relations Act to clarify bargaining rights of employee and employer.

In their report to Labor Minister Daley, the lawyers say a strike is legal or illegal depending on whether a conciliation report has been made to the minister of labor. Unions can strike seven days after he has received this report but sometimes unions and employers have been unable to tell when the report is received.

The proposed change in this act would make it the duty of the labor minister to report reception to both parties. A strike would then be legal.

Among other proposed changes, the lawyers say clarification of another section of the act would make ~~it clear~~ there is no obligation to bargain once there is freedom to strike or lockout. In cases where it is not felt a conciliation officer is needed, his services could be dispensed with at the request of both parties.

Lawyers Will Study Duplessis' Bill 38

TORONTO (CP)—A special committee of Ontario lawyers will study Premier Duplessis' Bill 38—which critics say is aimed at the Jehovah's Witnesses in Quebec—for its constitutionality and propriety, it was announced Saturday.

Isadore Levinter, chairman of the Ontario civil liberties section of the Canadian Bar Association, said the bill had been studied and discussed by his group and that a special sub-committee was appointed to report what effect the bill would have on the welfare of the people of Canada.

The bill recently passed by the Quebec legislature, prohibits distribution of literature or attacks on any religious organization in the province.

Wounded While Hunting

SIMCOE (CP)— Duncan Walsh, 17, of Victoria was in fair condition here today after he was wounded in the hip Saturday in a hunting accident near his home. Walsh, his brother, Gordon 17 and two other youths were walking down a farm lane with shotguns when one of the guns accidentally discharged, The pellets struck Duncan Wash in the hip.

Veteran MOH Retires

GALT (CP)—Dr. Ward A. Woolner, 75, medical officer of health of North Dumphries for 31 years and of Ayr for 25 years, retired Saturday. A former head of the Canadian Medical Association, the Association of Medical Officers of health and the College of Physicians and Surgeons, Dr. Woolner was honored a banquet arranged by both municipal councils.

Build Feed Mill For $750,000 At Quaker Oats Co.

A new $750,000 feed mill is being remodelled and expanded from the old one at the Quaker Oats Company. It's expected that this new mill, equipped with latest innovations in milling processes, will increase the feed grain output of the Quaker company from two to three times, with no increase in manpower.

Everything in the new mill will be built around the concept of forced air suction. Whereas raw products and ingredients for various feeds had to be handled largely by hand, heretofore, everything now will be mechanized.

The new mill will be almost devoid of bags of grain piled about awaiting processing or transshipment. Material thus packaged will come direct from railway sidings into the basement of the mill, will be unpacked and fed into giant hoppers for storage. Grains packed whole in boxcars will likewise move to storage bins.

Huge grain bins, three stories deep, run from the fifth to eighth floors of the new mill. Each bin contains a different grain and there is an elaborate cross-index system to mix grains and ingredients. Whereas most such mixing once had to be done by hand, now devices are attached which will control the volume per hour of all material going to all bins.

The basic philosophy of the new arrangement, says operational manager Fred Ash, is to replace the "batch" system with a "continuous flow" process. Instead of mixing goods for day-to-day needs, bins will be so cross-indexed that the flow of any product can be maintained at whatever quantity desired.

NEW FLOOR

An entire new floor has been added to the Quaker plant and here nine floors above the street, is the heart of the new feed mill. Here is the focal point of the air conduits which suck grain in from outside, through the various stages of processing, into the packagers and later to storage space for finished products.

The ninth floor also contains $10,000 worth of equipment solely designed to take stones and foreign bodies from the grain. Here there is also a separate air suction unit which removes the dust from the grains and then recirculates it back through the hoppers. This dust, Mr. Ash pointed out, is not the kind of dust we see on the street but fine particles of grain.

This is an especially significant development said Mr. Ash, and one unique in Canadian mills. Sucking the dust out and re-using it not only is more economical but provides much better working conditions, since the atmosphere in feed mills is usually pretty overpowering.

Greater emphasis on air suction and more conveyor belts reduces the number of man hours necessary for processing a given quantity of material and makes freight elevators almost obsolete. Almost the only material which will be stored in bags, henceforth, is 3,000 odd tons of grass which cannot be kept any other way.

The whole system will be controlled by a bank of eight "legs" on the ninth floor, each operating independently. This means that if one unit is inoperative, the rest can sort out the grains and ingredients without production being noticeably slowed. Previously all was controlled by a master unit on the top floor.

Manual work on packaging, often the bottleneck on many a plant assembly-line, has been reduced to a minimum. From the scratch-grain bins, for example, goods come down to the packaging machine, the operator punches levers to attach bags to the machine and these are then off full. Thus 400 bags per man per hour can be packed.

Even the bank of chemical feeders on the seventh floor operates mostly by suction. Material is dumped in by hand but then it goes where needed without further manual work.

SEED BY SUCTION

Basically, what happens is that ingredients and grains enter the building at the basement and are stored for future use or processed. The processing begins at the top of the building where the tops of the bins are located on the eighth floor just below the air-suction machinery. Each of these bins contains different type of grain, fed by suction from the various hoppers by control levers. The finished product ends up in the packaging machines on the fourth floor, shoots by conveyor from here to freight cars for shipment or to other storage sections for shipment.

This new feed mill is but one phase in a Quaker development program which has been going on since the end of the war. The reorganization plan, which will cost over $3,000,000 when finished, is predicated on the assumption that the market for rolled oats is not what it once was.

Before the war Quaker's main function was to supply the British Commonwealth with rolled oats on a preferential tariff basis. Since the war the emphasis has been increasingly on developing the home market, since sales of rolled oats to the United Kingdom has become relatively less important. There has also been more of a demand from the consumer for the "dry" cereal products—puffed rice, cornflakes etc.

There has also been an ever-increasing demand for feeds — poultry feeds, dairy feeds, hog feeds, various types of mash etc. The aim in building the new mill is to create a full line in all feeds, primarily for local consumption but with some for export. The automatic-mix arrangement at the new plant is the forerunner of a demand which is expected to increase more and more each year.

Practically all the work on the new mill is being done by Quaker workers and engineers. The development process still continues and will continue, says Mr. Ash, until the mills have been completely rehabilitated to meet changing market needs.

Already, says Mr. Ash, the Peterborough plant is producing a greater variety of goods than any other Quaker plant on the continent. He sees the feed mill expansion as the logical step in keeping Peterborough's production up to market demands.

Man Suspected Of Stealing Car Found In Oshawa

Police have tracked down a suspect in the stolen car collision which occurred in Water St. late Friday evening. Although detectives gave no name, they said this morning that a man was being held by Oshawa police and would be brought to Peterborough later today for questioning.

On Friday evening an unknown person stole a car from the rear of the Empress Hotel. Further along Water St. he collided with two parked cars and smashed the stolen car against the brick wall of the Old Brewery office.

By the time police arrived at the scene, the thief had escaped, but a taxi driver later picked up a man near the CPR station and took him to Lake St. where he disappeared. The cab driver remembered his fare had a bleeding cut on his face and appeared to have been running.

BLOOD AT SCENE

Police found blood at the scene of the accident and immediately began the search for the unknown taxi occupant. Late Sunday they had some information as to his possible whereabouts, but it was not until 9 a.m. today that Oshawa police reported him to be in custody.

Inspector of detectives William Clarke and detective Doug Farthing left for Oshawa shortly after 9 o'clock this morning.

Two Men Found Dead In Homes

Two elderly men, living alone in different parts of the city, were found dead in their homes this morning. In both cases city coroner Dr. H. G. Carleton, ordered autopsies which were conducted at the Civic hospital this afternoon. When the Examiner went to press no further reports had been received.

Dead are William John Martin, 81, a retired real estate agent who lived alone at 344 King St., and John Ayres, aged about 60. He was unmarried and lived alone at 242 Simcoe St. He was employed as a locksmith at the Peterborough Lock Co.

Neighbors phoned police when they found no sign of life at the Martin home. Police broke into the house and found Martin's body. He had been dead about 12 hours. The coroner told The Examiner that he considered Martin had not died of natural causes.

Samuel Clarke who lives at 249 Simcoe St., became worried when he did not see any sign of life about the house where John Ayres lived alone. Entering the house at noon today he found Ayre's body lying in a pool of blood. Dr. Carleton did not make any observation as to the probable cause of death, but said that he had ordered an autopsy to be performed.

Union School Described Best Project Yet

Eighty-three AFL trade-unionists from Peterborough and district completed a two-day school on union subjects over the week-end.

All who participated labelled the school a success. At the dinner Sunday night that wound up the school, Arthur Hemming, director of public relations for the Trade and Labor Congress of Canada, said it was the most enthusiastic school he had ever attended. And John McPhee, president of the Peterborough and District Trades and Labor Council, said it was the best project that the two-year-old council had yet undertaken.

Highlight of the school was Sunday afternoon. J. B. Metzler, deputy-minister of labor for Ontario, made an unscheduled visit and spoke at length on the Ontario Labor relations Act. Afterwards he answered questions from delegates.

Sixty-three trade unionists attended the dinner Sunday night.

Max Swerdlow, TLC director said that the object of schools like that held in Peterborough was not to make "professors" out of trade union members but to develop union leadership. Those who had taken the course should go back to their locals and put their education to use.

Arthur Hemming, after complimenting the Peterborough group, gave a light talk on the role that wives of union members (trade union widows) play in organized labor. Unfortunately for Mr. Hemming, it was a stag affair and the wives were not present to hear his remarks.

Alderman Bill Beggs brought greetings from Mayor Norman Graham who was unable to attend, and on his own behalf—as a member of the rival Canadian Congress of Labor—he had a few remarks.

"Over a period of years I have realized the necessity of such schools," he said. "Each and every one has learned something. Now go out and practice and preach what you have learned.

"Together the trade unions in Peterborough can make this city a better place to live in for the working man."

Alderman Beggs then proposed the toast to the trade union movement.

Peter McCombe of Local 248, ITU, replied.

"Trade unionism in Canada has made a tremendous growth, similar to its growth in the rest of Canada," said Mr. McCombe. "This is comforting and stimulating—but there are dangers. Like a plant the movement needs good roots."

Because the trade union movement in this country lacks the background of older movements in Europe and the British Isles, schools like this weekend one are necessary, he said.

Jack Kellythorne, TLC representative thanked both Mr. Swerdlow and Mr. Hemming for their speeches. John McPhee presided and also proposed the toast to the Queen.

Tractor Trailer Collides With Three Cars

Unable to stop on the greasy road surface, a tractor-trailer came into collision with three cars at the intersection of Monaghan Rd. and Lansdowne St. about 8 a.m. Monday. No persons were injured and total damage to the four vehicles was estimated at $400.

Driver of the tractor-trailer was Vincent Mimmennux of Sharkslow. He was driving east along Lansdowne St. when the accident occurred. Boy Badly Burned As Gas Spilled, Ignited; 3 Cars Used To Reach Hospital

Youngster In Critical Condition
Father's Car Skids Into Ditch
Second Car Has Flat Tire, Third Stalls

By DON GRANT

Literally burned from head to toe, a little blond-haired three-year-old Havelock boy is in critical condition today in St. Joseph's Hospital. He was rushed to the hospital in a wild 30-mile dash from his home, east of Havelock, following an explosion and flash fire late Sunday night. Three cars were used to get him to Peterborough hospital when his father's car was ditched, a neighbor's car had a flat tire and a stranger's car stalled at the hospital entrance.

Near presstime today the hospital listed the lad, John Dubeau, three, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Dubeau, RR 3, Havelock, as "very low" and "in critical condition".

The explosion and flash fire which burned the youngster happened about 8:30 Sunday night shortly after the Dubeau family had returned from visiting with friends. He was sleeping fully dressed in a large arm-chair while his father filled a lamp with naptha gas by the light of a small candle.

SOME GAS SPILLED

Some of the gas spilled over the side of the one-gallon can, rolled towards the candle and the fumes set off the explosion followed by a flash of fire.

Johnny Dubeau awoke, still sleepily, and in an attempt to escape the fire directly in front of his chair, apparently fell, rolling into the fire. He was picked up and rushed outside to below-freezing temperatures where his clothes were ripped off by his father.

Realizing the boy was badly burned, his mother and father bundled him, along with two other children, David and one-year-old Noella, into the family car. They started down the icy, snow-packed country road to Highway 7, but when within a 100 feet of the highway slipped off into the ditch.

Just at that time a neighbor's son, Clifton Wood, was coming out of the laneway and rushed to the Dubeaus' rescue.

STARTED FOR HAVELOCK

With the Dubeau family in his car, young Wood started a mad drive to Havelock and a doctor. But when they reached Havelock they went to Dr. D. J. Holdcroft's home. He was out. They then raced to Dr. W. M. Judd's home. He was out.

Still in the Wood's car, the Dubeaus started out for Norwood and Dr. A. R. Atkinson's. As soon as the Norwood doctor saw the three-year-old boy, he bundled him in blankets and sent him on, in the Wood's car, to Peterborough hospital.

Just as they neared Indian River, the Wood car had a flat tire. The first car that came along was flagged down and four men picked up the family, to finish the dash for the hospital.

But when they reached the city, no one knew where the hospitals were located. They asked a policeman and he directed them to St. Joseph's. At the hospital the car zipped past the entrance and as the driver attempted to stop the car, it stalled.

Dubeau ran the last 300 feet with his son.

"We had just come in from visiting neighbors," said Mr. Dubeau. "Johnny was lying in a chair sleeping with his outside clothes on.

Nearby Dubeau had lit a candle while he filled a lamp with gas when suddenly "some spilled out over the side and down by the candle."

"I think the fumes near the candle exploded," explained Dubeau, and then the fire started. "It blew right up. I grabbed the can and threw it out. I gave the baby to my wife, Geraldine, and sent the other lad, David, outside," said Dubeau.

"When I went to get Johnny, he had rolled into the fire. He probably came off the chair trying to get out," he recalled. "He was right on fire, his pants burning and his coat on fire. I ran outside and ripped his clothes off."

HANDS BURNED

It was than that Dubeau and his wife were severely burned about the hands. In fact Dubeau's hand's received second degree burns and were bandaged; he could only eat and dress today with the help of his wife whose right hand was wrapped in bandages.

The other children escaped unscathed. The little girl's sweater was on fire "but we got it off."

"We had a car and started up the road and were just past our neighbor's when the car slipped on the glare ice into ditch.

At this time Wood was coming out of his laneway, "he picked us up and started for Dr. Holdcroft's in Havelock. He was out. We went to Dr. Judd's and he was out. So then we drove to Norwood and Dr. Atkinson's."

Mrs. Dubeau recalled that they were about half-way to Peterborough when the tire went flat. They flagged down the first car.

"He really leaned on the horn all the way," said Mrs. Dubeau. "When we reached Peterborough, they didn't know the town any better than we did. We asked a policeman where the hospital was and he directed us."

STALLED

"The car stalled at the laneway and John had to carry him to the hospital."

But their troubles didn't end there. Arrangements had been made at the Civic Hospital for doctors to attend the lad. They had to rush over to St. Joseph's.

The youngster has been dogged by ill luck throughout his short life. When he was three months he nearly died due to sickness. Then when he was two years old in a period of three weeks, he jabbed a jagged saw near his right eye, was hit with a baseball bat near the left eye and smashed his right eye again when he ran into a table.

Tragic Life Of Bat Nelson Ends In Charity Ward

CHICAGO (AP) — The courageous, tragic life of Oscar (Battling) Nelson, one of boxing's finest, ended Sunday in a charity ward.

The former brilliant and once wealthy lightweight champion succumbed to lung cancer at the age of 71—a wasted, incoherent little man without a penny to his fabled name.

It was the end of a slide from the heights of prestige and fortune —a slide that began nearly 25 years ago for the storied "Durable Dane," whose fists earned him the world's title in the early 1900s.

He lost a half-million-dollar fortune in the financial crash of 1929 and spent his last years subsisting on the public dole and the handouts of friends.

COMMITTED TO HOSPITAL

Just a month ago he was committed to Chicago state hospital after a court found him suffering from "an incurable senile dementia" and unable to take care of himself. A week before, his wife, Edna, 49, had died.

Nelson weighed 80 pounds when he was sent to the institution.

He and Mrs. Nelson had been living in a cheap near north side hotel for several years. Periodically friends who remembered his past greatness got together purses to keep them going.

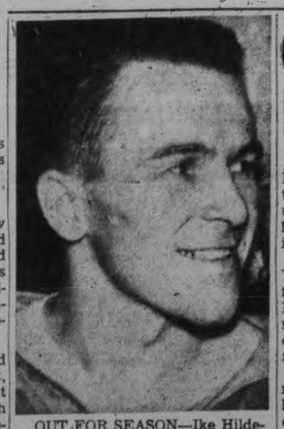
FOUGHT AT 14

The latest windfall came a few months ago when it was announced that about $3,000 had been turned over to the aging "Bat" and his wife. The money came from fund-raising campaigns in San Francisco and Chicago. None of it apparently was left.

Nelson, who came to the United States from Denmark as an infant, fought his first fight at 14 against a circus heavyweight. He won with one punch but the management reneged on a promised $1 payment and it was 16 years before he collected. He sued the circus and was awarded the dollar with interest.

Thereafter, in a 22-year ring career, he fought approximately 250 times. He won the lightweight championship in 1908 with a knockout over Joe Gans, the clever Baltimore Negro, and lost it in 1910 in a 40-round bout with Ad Wolgast.

His last match, in 1917, was a 12-round no-decision affair with the then light weight champ, Fred Welsh.



OUT FOR SEASON—Ike Hildebrand will be out for the rest of the season after suffering a double fracture of the leg while playing for Chicago Hawks against the Leafs in Toronto on Saturday. It is not likely he will be seen in lacrosse action with the Petes next summer, either, as the leg heals, and he rests up for further NHL action another season.

Canada Will Play Russ Team In Championships March 7

ZURICH, Switzerland (CP)—The International Ice Hockey Federation Sunday announced the schedule for the world and European hockey championships being held in Stockholm Feb. 26 to March 7.

Canada's entry, Toronto East York Lyndhursts, will play its first game Feb. 27 against Switzerland and will wind up the tournament in what is expected to be one of the most interesting games meeting Russia March 7.

This is the first time Russia, represented by Moscow Dynamos, has entered a team in the world championships and there is considerable interest in the possibility that the tourney may provide a test from a new sector of Canada's traditional domination of world hockey.

Eight teams are entered for the combined European and world championships. Besides Russia, Switzerland and Canada, they are Germany, Czechoslovakia, Sweden Norway and Finland.

EXTRA GAMES

The IIHF announced that if two or more teams are tied for first place at the end of the combined European and world championships, extra games will be played to decide on the winner. Other placings will be decided upon goal averages.

Two referees have been chosen each from Czechoslovakia, Germany, Switzerland, Russia and Sweden.

The eight - team round-robin schedule:

Feb. 26: Switzerland - Czechovakia; Norway-Sweden; Russia-Finland.

Feb. 27: Germany - Czechoslovakia; Canada-Switzerland; Norway-Russia.

Feb. 28: Switzerland-Germany; Canada-Norway; Sweden-Finland.

March 1: Czechoslovakia - Finland; Germany - Russia; Canada-Sweden.

March 2: Switzerland - Sweden; Czechoslovakia - Russia; Finland-Norway.

March 3: Germany-Canada; Norway - Czechoslovakia; Russia-Switzerland.

March 4: Switzerland - Norway; Canada-Finland; Sweden-Germany

March 5: Czechoslovakia - Canada; Finland - Germany; Russia-Sweden.

March 6: Finland - Switzerland; Sweden-Czechoslovakia.

March 7: Russia - Canada; Norway-Germany.

WINTER MARATHONER — Despite snow and zero weather, Canada's veteran runner, Gerald Cote, of St. Hyacinthe, Que., steps briskly along a 38-mile stretch of highway. Cote is aiming for a place on Canada's team at the British Empire Games in Vancouver this summer. This snowy jaunt was undertaken when he carried an official message from St. Hyacinthe to the International Snow Shoers Convention in Montreal inviting delegates to visit his hometown. Cote has won the famous Boston marathon four times and the Yonkers, N.Y., marathon three times.—(CP Photo).

Will Fly Three Players To Strengthen Lyndhursts

MIDLAND (CP) — George Dudley, secretary - manager of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, announced Sunday night that three players will be flown overseas to strengthen Toronto Lyndhursts, Canada's entry in the world hockey championships at Stockholm.

The players will be a goalkeeper, a defenceman and a centre. In addition, Bill Shill, regular forward for the suburban East York Lyndhursts who was unable to leave with the team, is expected to rejoin them in time for the tournament.

"The three reinforcements I have in mind are Ontario boys, but I haven't contacted them yet," said Dudley. "I hope to know definitely within two or three days. If any or all of them are unavailable, then we'll get three others."

SUFFERED DEFEAT

Fear that Lyndhursts, a senior B team, weren't strong enough began growing after they suffered an 11-2 beating in their initial continental exhibition game leading up to the tournament. They were beaten by a collection of Canadian-born all-stars playing in England.

Dudley's announcement followed a telephone call to him from team officials at Zurich, Switzerland, where, Saturday night, Lyndhursts edged the Swiss national team 6-5. The Swiss team is considered one of the best in Europe.

The latest victory, third against one loss, was viewed by Red Stapleford, who travelled from London by invitation of the CAHA to size up the Canadian entry.

After the game, Stapleford, one-time Canadian player and now a coach in the English League, conferred with Lyndhurst officials, including coach Greg Currie. Then they telephoned Dudley.

"They agreed Lyndhursts needed added strength, so we'll do what we did three years ago," said Dudley. "We sent two forwards to strengthen Lethbridge and that team went on to win the world title."

Young's Point Gets Win Over Hiawatha

YOUNG'S POINT (ENS) — Friday night's EPL contest between Young's Point and Hiawatha, proved to be a rugged battle, with penalties being a large factor in the victory. It was the second meeting between these clubs, with Young's Point hammering in 15 goals to Hiawatha's three counters.

Play tended to be fast from the starting whistle, and Referee Romhanyi handed out his first penalty at the 2:40 mark to D. Musgrave for slashing. A few seconds later, however, N. Paudash dented the twine for Hiawatha's first goal. This set off a scoring barrage by Young's Point, in which they chalked up five goals in seven minutes, without a return. Goals were by G. Henry, D. Heard (Blewett), Russelle (C. Darling, Henry), J. Fawcett, and Russelle (Darling).

About the halfway mark in the period, Paudash was penalized for slashing, and two minutes later Cowie got Hiawatha's second goal. Blewett made it 6-2 for the visitors at 15:33. Other penalties of the period went to Russelle for slashing, McNaughton for holding, Paudash for hooking and a misconduct to R. Freeburn for banging the boards with a stick.

A GOOD EDGE

In the second period it was Young's Point all the way. They broke fast with goals by J. Fawcett (G. Shearer), and McIsaac (Heard), in the first minute. Cowie was tagged for slashing at the four minute mark and Anderson went off for charging. Again the Point capitalized with goals by Heard (J. Fawcett, R. Freeburn), and Henry (Blewett) while Hiawatha was a man short. Barcroft (C. Freeburn) made it 11-2 as the visitors continued to outhit and outplay the homesters. Play roughened toward the close of the period when G. Shearer was given two minues for interference and L. Salleby a major penalty for fighting. Shearer was forced to leave the game due to mouth injuries. Young's Point completed the period as they started it, with goals by J. Blewett and C. Russell (Blewett).

Hiawatha attempted a comeback in the final frame, and play became more even for a while. C. Freeburn opened the scoring with a goal for the visitors, but Paudash (Cowie) retaliated a minute later. At 8:59 G. Scllaby was given the gate for tripping, and at 12:40, a highsticking duel brought majors to E. Musgrave and S. McNaughton. J. Darling earned five minutes for fighting and B. Cowie went off for interference. Play became wide open and both goalies made several good saves, especially Spencely in the Young's Point net, who outguessed Hiawatha on two breakaways. D. McIsaac (Heard) wound up the scoring to make it 15-3 for Young's Point. Wednesday night sees Young's Point play host to Keene in Lakefield Arena for the final league game.

WIN WANAMAKER MILE

NEW YORK (AP) — Josy Barthel, the mechanical man from Luxembourg, won the famed Wanamaker mile in the Millrose Games Saturday night in 4:07.5—the first foreigner ever to accomplish the feat.

This was Josy's third effort at the mile indoors since he arrived here to do post-graduate study at Harvard and it was his simplest and best. The 1952 Olympic 1,500-metre champion won by 25 yards from Fred Wilt, the perennial runner-up, and shaved two-tenths of a second off his best previous effort.

Barthel shared the limelight with Mal Whitfield who won both the half-mile and 60-yard tests.

Two Golfers Deadlocked In Phoenix Tilt

By BOB MYERS

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Cary Middlecoff, a seasoned man of many playoffs in golf, and Ed Furgol, who has never been in one, meet late today in the extra-inning round of the $10,000 Phoenix open.

The two were to tee off at the Phoenix Country Club over the 18-hole route, with a sudden-death finale if still deadlocked at the end of the 18 holes.

Middlecoff, 32-year-old former national open champion from Memphis, was the solid favorite to defeat the 38-year-old St. Louis pro.

They wound up in a tie at the end of the regulation 72 holes of the main show Sunday and both said they would not play for an equal split of the $3,400 representing first and second money.

"The winner will get $2,000, the second-place finisher $1,400," said Middlecoff. Furgol nodded in agreement.

Furgol came from behind with a last round 68 to tie Middlecoff, who shot a par-71, for a 72-hole total of 272.

Vancouver's Stan Leonard, playing his best golf and making one of the best showings by a Canadian golfer on the United States pro circuit, ended up three strokes behind the two leaders. He collected $560.

KESSELRING QUALIFIES

Two other Canadians who made it through the qualifying round were Jerry Kesselring of Kitchener, Ont., and Al Balding of Toronto, Kesselring had a total of 293 on rounds of 69, 75, 78 and 71. Balding wound up with 289 on rounds of 72, 72, 67 and 78.

Leonard had a one-over-par 72 for the final round after earlier scores of 70, 63, and 70.

Ahead of Leonard and Marty Furgol of Lemont, Ill., no relation to Ed, and tied behind the co-leaders were Johnny Weitzel, Hershey, Pa., with a 71; Jack Burke, Jr., Kiamesha Lake, N.Y., 68, and Jack Harden, El Paso, 69.

Eight players were within a five-stroke spread going into the final nine holes but Ed Furgol came through from two strokes back and Middlecoff hung on while Leonard fell back with his 72.

Port Perry Earns A Win At Lindsay

LINDSAY (ENS) — The Port Perry Fliers almost assured themselves of a playoff berth in the Central Ontario junior "B" group on Saturday night, as they downed hard-trying Lindsay Juniors 5-3 on Port Perry ice. The win gave the Ports a three-point bulge in the standings, each team having only two games remaining.

The Ports opened a 4-1 lead by the end of the second period, then watched the visitors score two goals in the third period and threaten many times to tie, before Fisher nailed the clincher for the home club late in the game. The tilt was one of the fastest and best of the eight the two clubs played this season. Penalties had a good deal to do with the scoring. Fisher and Copeland scored for Port Perry in the first, the latter goal coming with Al Williams sitting out a penalty for Lindsay. Williams got one back for the visitors. Later in the second, with Williams again in the box, O'Connor put the Ports two up and two minutes later, when O'Neill of Lindsay received a sentence from Referee Bun Kingdon, Copeland gave Ports their winning goal.

Art Truax scored twice in the third period, the second goal coming past the midway mark and the Lindsayites put on the pressure, but either because of Hawe's goal tending or in spite of it, couldn't gain the tie. With less than four minutes remaining, Fisher broke out with O'Connor and banged the clincher in.

Marlies Squeeze Out 5-4 Win Over Flyers

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The boys in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series are apparently beginning to hit their stride. No matter whether two top teams or a top and a bottom-place club meet, victories are coming harder.

In four all-Ontario games Saturday only four goals separated the opponents.

The league-leading St. Catharines TeePees edged out the seventh-place Guelph Biltmores 2-1 in St. Catharines; the second-place Toronto Marlboros squeezed out a 5-4 decision over the fifth-place Barrie Flyers in Toronto; third-place Toronto St. Michael's College Majors fought to a 3-3 tie with the fourth-place Kitchener-Waterloo Greenshirts in Toronto; and the fifth-place Hamilton Cubs defeated the last-place Black Hawks 4-2 in Galt.

STILL HAVE TROUBLES

Sunday, however, showed that Quebec Amateur Hockey Association Junior teams are still having their troubles on Ontario ice during the interlocking schedule.

In a Toronto doubleheader St. Michael's defeated Quebec Frontenacs 5-1 and Marlboros shut out Montreal Royals 5-0.

The Barrie - Marlboro game in Toronto was a see-saw battle which saw the lead change hands four times.

Sonny Larose scored twice for Toronto, including the winning marker with little more than two minutes remaining. Wally Maxwell Dave Reid and Billy Harris were the other Marlboro snipers.

WILSON GETS TRIO

Tommy Wilson counted three of Barrie's four goals. George Raneiri notched the other one.

The St. Michael's - Kitchener game was much the same.

St. Michael's carried a 2-1 lead into the scoreless second period but Kitchener scored twice in the third for a 3-2 edge. Jim Logan, firing his second goal of the afternoon, knotted the count for good.

Jack Caffery, Logan's linemate, got the other Irish goal.

Grieg Hicks, Glen Cressman and Graham Joyce shared Kitchener's scoring.

In St. Catharines Cec Hoekstra and Don McLean were the TeePee scorers. Irv Scott's close-in drive gave Guelph its only goal.

Cummy Barton bagged two for the Cubs in Galt. Joey Zorica and Marlin McAlendin rounded out the total. Rick Collin and Chick Chalmers counted for the Hawks.

IRISH IN CONTROL

St. Michael's had complete control of their game against the Frontenacs Sunday. Jack Caffery, Bill Colvin, Ken Gribbons, Ken Linseman and Dick Duff were the snipers for St. Michael's. Dick Bouchard got Quebec's goal six minutes from the end of the game when Pete Huggard was off for tripping.

Royals gave Marlboros little opposition. Marlboro captain Wally Maxwell registered two for the winners. Gerry James, Sonny Larose and Bill Harris added singles.

Kitchener is at Guelph in tonight's only game.

Proportion Of Exports Same In Canada After 50 Years

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's exports, while multiplying more than 20 times in volume since 1900, were just about the same last year in proportion to the country's output as they were at the beginning of the century.

Trade department economist, O. J. Firestone, reviewing the country's growth in the 50th-anniversary issue of the department's magazine, Foreign Trade, says that in 1900 commodity exports amounted to $177,000,000, or 17 per cent of the country's output—gross national product. By 1920 exports were $1,268,000,000, 23 per cent of output. By 1950 exports were substantially higher than in 1923 at $3,118,000,000, but their proportion to output had slipped back to the 1900 ratio, just over 17 per cent.

"In 1953 exports were in the order of $4,100,000,000, with the proportion little changed from 1950," he said.

"What happened was that in the first two decades of this century, exports of agricultural products, and later forest and mineral products, rapidly increased Canada's dependence on world markets."

But since the 1920s, "the domestic market has grown even more quickly than Canada's foreign markets. Even the serious depression of the 1930s could slow down the growth of the domestic market for only a limited period."

DEVELOPING STRENGTH

He said that though Canada's prosperity still depends heavily on a high level of trade, "there are some indications that the economy is developing a growing domestic strength and resilience."

Mr. Firestone also said major shifts have occurred in the destination of Canadian exports.

"In 1953 the bulk, 58 per cent, went to the United States and 16 per cent went to the United Kingdom. At the beginning of the century, the position was reversed.

"The United Kingdom was Canada's best customer then (52 per cent) and the United States followed (38 per cent.)."

Another important development over the 50-year period was the expansion of the Canadian overseas market to some 120 countries other than the U.S. and U.K., he said.

"Trade with these countries," Mr. Firestone said, "is now relatively more than twice as important as it was at the beginning of the century."

Struck Cruiser, Fined $36.50

BANCROFT (ENS)—An accident January 24, in which OPP Constable M. Perry was injured and his cruiser wrecked was described at Magistrate C. R. Jackson's court when the driver of the other vehicle involved, Orville Masters, of Tweed, pleaded guilty to a charge of careless driving.

Evidence was given that the Masters' car veered to the wrong side of the road and had started to turn back to its proper side when it struck the police car. Masters stated that the car had been giving trouble and he had to be pushed to start a short time before the accident. On coming over the brow of a hill he became excited and the car went out of control. A fine of $20 and $16.50 costs was imposed.

Conflicting evidence kept the court busy for more than two hours when Lorne Kuno, of New Carlow, pleaded not guilty to a charge of failing to share the road.

The charge arose as a result of an accident on the Papineau lake road on Nov. 29 when Kuno's car was in collision with a half-ton truck driven by Mac Prentice, of Maple Leaf. Both the driver and his wife received head injuries, while their four-month-old baby, carried by Mrs. Prentice, escaped unhurt.

Knox was defended by J. A. Maloney, QC, and Crown Attorney S. G. Robertson, QC, prosecuted.

Crown witnesses stated that the Kuno car had swerved from side to side before striking the truck and was stopped well on its own side of the road when it was struck. Defendant said that he was driving in the centre track of the road and that his car did not swerve from side to side.

The magistrate registered a conviction and Kuno was fined $5 and $34.50 costs.

'Bad Boy Writer' Of 20's Maxwell Bodenheim Slain

NEW YORK (AP) — Maxwell Bodenheim, "bad boy" writer of the 1920s, and a woman believed to have been his wife were found slain Sunday. A 25-year-old "fast talker" was sought today by police for questioning.

The 63-year-old Bodenheim was discovered with the woman in a cheap furnished room where drink, obscurity and poverty had sent him after a spectacular and controversial career in the 1920s and 1930s as a writer of poetry and harsh fiction.

Police today issued a 13-state broadcast for Harold Weinberg, alias Joseph Greenburg, and warned that he "may be armed." Meanwhile, 50 detectives started a methodical search of Manhattan for clues.

One of the areas on which they concentrated was Greenwich Village, where Bodenheim had flourished and floundered.

NOT ROBBERY MURDER

Chief of detectives Thomas A. Nielson told reporters Sunday night that "this is definitely not a robbery murder."

No other motive was indicated.

The room in which police found the bodies of Bodenheim and the woman, identified as Ruth Fagan, 35, had been rented three weeks ago in Weinberg's name.

Whether Bodenheim had registered under the Weinberg name or shared the room with Weinberg was not made known by police.

Bodenheim was shot in the chest. The woman was stabbed and beaten almost beyond recognition. Both were fully clothed when found after the rooming - house proprietor sawed off a padlock which had been placed on the door from the outside.

On the dead novelist's chest was a copy of the best-seller, "The Sea Around Us," by Rachel Carson. No weapon was found.

A medical examiner said the couple had been slain in the 24 hours before discovery of the bodies.

PROMINENT FIGURE

In the 1920s Bodenheim was a prominent figure in the literary worlds of Chicago and Greenwich village. He and author Ben Hecht helped to found the Chicago Literary Times, an irreverent chronicle of Chicago before the depression.

Bodenheim, born in Hermanville, Miss., and without formal education, became bitter critic of U.S. civilization.

His novel, "Replenishing Jessica," caused a sensation in 1925. Later it resulted in charges against the author for publishing an indecent work, but he was acquitted on grounds that he had received no royalties from the book's sale.

Among the novels he considered his best were "Blackguard," "Crazy Man," "Georgia May" and "Sixty Seconds." His verse included "Minna and Myself."

His peak was in the 1920s. By 1935 he was broke and on relief, an acute alcoholic. But as late as 1942 he published a novel, "Lights in the Valley."

Acquaintances of Bodenheim and Miss Fagan said she became his third wife recently.

Windrem-Lowes Wedding

Bethel United Church, Emily, was the setting Saturday for the wedding of Jean Marilyn Lowes to Gordon Russell Windrem, with the Rev. V. E. R. Zufelt officiating in the ceremony.

The bride is daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Lowes of RR 1 Omemee, and was given in marriage by her father. The groom is son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Windrem of RR 2, Omemee.

Chrysanthemums and ferns decorated the church for the occasion. Wedding music was played by Mrs. Oswald Ruth and Mrs. Nelson McConnell was soloist. Before the service she sang "The Lord's Prayer" and during the signing of the register she sang "Because."

Antique bengaline taffeta styled on classic lines fashioned the bride's gown. The full gathered skirt was worn over a crinoline and the fitted bodice with mandarin neckline in Alencon lace was outlined with beads. Her fingertip veil was of silk illusion enhanced with a scalloped border of embroidery and was caught to a feather bandeau. She carried a cascade bouquet of sweetheart roses.

Maid of honor Miss Anne Hatton was frocked in debutante blue faille taffeta, with soft low-necked bodice, gathered cap sleeves and full circle skirt over a crinoline. She wore a demi-hat of matching material, silver mesh mittens and carried a colonial nosegay of pink and blue carnations. Mr. Neil Windrem was the groomsman and ushers were Keith Lowes and Boyd Windrem, brothers of the bride and groom.

The reception was held at the Kawartha Golf and Country Club. The bride's mother received in a gown of Malta blue ticatina crepe with matching lace trim, black hat and accessories and a corsage of pink sweetheart roses. The groom's mother chose a gown in "Lovely Lady" crepe intrique and Chantilly lace and she also wore black accessories and a corsage of roses.

Leaving later to motor to Florida for their honeymoon, the bride was wearing a dress of bistro barathea crepe and teal blue topcoat with white accessories.

The couple will live on the groom's farm near Omemee.

2 Girls From U.S. Find Canadian Hospitality Good

MONTREAL (CP)—A couple of American girls are convinced that "Canadian hospitality is marvellous."

Anna Scharrenberg, 18-year-old student at the State Teachers College at Danbury, Conn., and her friend June Moeller are going back home after a brief sojourn in Canada "to gain experience."

Their trip was in line with the policy of the college to have students in their freshman or sophomore years try some new experience approved by the faculty.

"Some of the students," says Anna, "jog off to Mexico or Florida, while others just experiment with hobbies at home. We decided to come to Canada."

She says that until recently the girls knew little about things on this side of the border. But there is a new interest in Canada among younger Americans at the moment. Anna says this has been encouraged by an increasing number of articles about Canada in United States newspapers and magazines —such as stories about the St. Lawrence seaway.

GOOD CO-OPERATION

The girls—they are fourth-year science students—financed their own trip to Montreal and Ottawa, but found plenty of willing helpers on arrival. The Montreal Council of Women acted as hostesses here, and at Ottawa the girls were chaperoned by Senator Cairine Wilson. The Canadian - American Women's Committee arranged a sight-seeing schedule.

The girls said they experienced only one disappointment on the trip—there weren't enough mounties about.

"We didn't expect to see them on every street corner, however," said June.

So they settled for postcards featuring pictures of the redcoats. "We're taking a lot of postcards home to show our friends."

Dr. J. P. Wells Speaks On Cases Of Retardation

Dr. J. P. Wells MOH was guest speaker at this month's meeting of Peterborough and District Association for Retarded Children. Dr. Wells made reference to a booklet prepared by the Provincial Government, entitled "The Backward Child." This is available through the local health office. Also the book, entitled "New Hope for the Retarded", which deals with the training of various types of retarded children.

Speaking mainly on the Cerebral palsy type, Dr. Wells explained how a damaged part of the nervous system may produce a handicap both pervasive and permanent. Generally speaking palsy does ont create abnormality in just one area or in one way but often in many. No means has yet been discovered whereby the damaged part of the nervous system can be restored to enable the movements or speech of a severe case to become wholly normal.

The doctor likened this condition of Cerebral Palsy to a telephone system whose sending-out apparatus does not co-ordinate because the connecting wires do not function. "This damage may have been done before birth by faulty brain development in the embryo. It may have occurred during birth when some of the mechanical or chemical processes involved went awry. It could be aftermath of an infection or injury some time after birth. However it is not hereditary or transmissible."

"While some of the cerebral palsy cases are mentally subnormal because the sections of the brain that do the thinking are injured, others may have this part still intact and have dull normal intelligence, while others may be superior in intelligence—a similar range to that of individuals who have normal muscular control."

It was explained that the nature of cerebral palsy is more understood today. Methods have been developed to help the child to improve speech, gait and to use his hands. Children with this type of retardation are facing a more hopeful future because of medical research of recent years and an awakening of public interest.

"Co-operative parents are most necessary. Patience and understanding with love and affection will help promote a feeling of security which is of greater importance to the handicapped child, than any other member of the family, because of the continual frustration in almost everything he attempts, said Dr. Wells.

During the question period which followed Dr. Wells assured the parents that these children, are entitled to everything the Dept. of Health has to offer. Arrangements will be made for visits to the class by the doctor and a public health nurse.

During the brief business session it was moved that a letter be forwarded to Dr. Dunlop, minister of education, expressing appreciation of the action by the Provincial Department in assisting Retarded Children.

The services of more volunteer drivers are required to take the children to and from school. Mrs. A. W. Nelson transportation convener will arrange times with those who offer services. One morning a week or every second week would relieve others.

Proceeds of a concert on April 23, sponsored by Beta Sigma Phi Sorority will be given over to the association it was announced.

Refreshments were served at the close by Mrs. J. E. Walsh, assisted by Mrs. J. Davidson and Mrs. M. Beck.

Valentine Day Calls For Gifts Of Imagination

Teen-agers, who are usually way ahead of the rest of us, have come up with a novel twist for Valentine gifts.

It seems that one scholarly youngster discovered that the word "glove" is derived from the early English words "gift-love". Also, it seems that in the 17th Century, lovers would exchange gloves as a token of affection, which were considered as binding as an engagement ring.

So, the fad this year is to give your favorite male a pair of gloves for Valentine's Day. Here's how one youngster suggests you go about it—and the idea is not restricted to any age group. It's free for all of us.

First, scout around the shops for a handsome pair of men's gloves. Then, inside one of the gloves, slip a small, heart-shaped Valentine on which you've written one of the following couplets or a similar and probably better one of your own:

"Here's my heart in your glove
And it pledges my love."
"So that you'll understand
That my heart's in your hand."
"Take my heart in this glove,
A true token of love."

Tie a red ribbon or string through a hole punched at the top of the Valentine. Make sure the ribbon or string protrudes from the glove so that he can see it and pull out the Valentine.

Lastly, pack the gloves in an attractive red heart-shaped box which you can get at most gift shops and department stores.

Since you are going to find many different kinds of men's gloves in the shops, here are some pointers which may help you decide on the most appropriate type for that special "him":

If he likes wearing sports clothes, if he does a lot of driving or even if, say, he's a travelling salesman with a lot of luggage to juggle around on the job, get him something masculine in one of the sturdy textured leathers.

The man in you life may be a lover of the outdoors and wintry weather. In that case his dish would definitely be a pair of the new extra-heavy leathers, snugly lined in wood, cashmere or fur.

And remember, "dressing up" isn't the special prerogative of women. For a real uplift to the average male's morale there's nothing better than changing from business or sports clothes into more dressy attire for special occasions. A pair of luxurious dress gloves in gray would be perfect with his charcoal gray or navy coat.

May Present Marmora Play

MARMORA (ENS)—The regular meeting of St. Paul's Ladies' Guild was held on Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. Donald McInroy with eleven members present.

Mrs. F. Leal, president, opened the meeting with prayer.

The treasurer's report showed a bank balance of almost $200. $100 was voted to the parish needs.

Mrs. J. M. Brownlie and Mrs. Don Donaldson reported a total of six visits made to the sick and shut-ins.

The visiting committee for February will be Mrs. E. Hewitt and Mrs. R. G. Winters.

A letter was read by the president from Fred Dorrell, of St. George's Dramatic Society, Peterborough, suggesting that the Guild might be interested in their presentation of the society's play in Marmora. It was decided to notify Mr. Dorrell that there was no open night before Lent, but the Guild might be interested in the project at the close of the season.

Final arrangements for the oyster supper to be held in the parish hall on Feb. 10 were made.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. J. Reynolds.

The president closed the meeting with prayer. Refreshments were served.

MR. AND MRS. N. RAY YELLAND of Peterborough, the bride formerly Miss Marie Sinclair, were married Saturday afternoon at Murray Street Baptist church, and are honeymooning in Ottawa. —(Choate Studio Photo)

Yelland-Sinclair Nuptials

With white snapdragons and palms banking the altar of Murray Street Baptist church, the wedding was solemnized of Marie Ida Sinclair, daughter of Mrs. James Willis, of Port Hope, to Norman Ray Yelland, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Yelland, of Peterborough.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Ivan C. Morgan and the wedding music played by organist Mr. Stanley Northrop. Before the service Mr. M. J. Curits sang "Still as the Night" and during the signing of the register he sang "Because."

Given in marriage by her stepfather, Mr. James Willis, the bride was gowned in white nylon tulle over taffeta, embellished with inserted tiered lace on the bouffant skirt. The fitted bodice was topped with a bolero of lace and she wore matching mittens. Her veil of nylon tulle was caught to a crown of pearls and rhinestones and she was carrying a bouquet of pink roses.

Mrs. Ralph Conger, of Fulton, N.Y., attended her sister as matron of honor, wearing a strapless gown of orchid nylon over taffeta with matching nylon stole and a mauve feather headdress. Bridesmaids Mrs. Harry Yelland and Miss Barbara Yelland, sister of the groom, were in similar gowns of apricot and sea green nylon over taffeta with matching stoles and feather hats. Each carried a bouquet of hyacinths.

Flower girl was the bride's niece, Brenda Conger, who was dressed in yellow nylon over taffeta and wore a matching nylon hat and was carrying yellow roses tied with blue tulle.

Mr. Harry Yelland was his brother's groomsman. The ushers were Morley Tuck and Pat Aldred.

The reception was held in the Kawartha Room at the Empress Hotel. The bride's mother was wearing a gown of dusty rose crepe and hat of rose sequins with brown accessories and her corsage was of pink roses. The groom's mother chose a navy crepe gown and navy hat and wore navy and white accessories and a corsage of tea roses.

For going-away, on a wedding trip to Ottawa, the bride donned a grey cashmere suit with which she wore a yellow hat and gloves and grey accessories and topcoat.

They couple will live at 338 Aylmer Street on return.

Guild President 10 Years

HAVELOCK (ENS) — Annual meeting of St. John's Parish Guild was held in the church basement with Mrs. F. McKay presiding.

The treasurer's report, presented by Mrs. L. Sanderson showed the society had enjoyed a very successful year. Improvements were made to the church kitchen to the extent of new cupboards, stainless steel sinks and an electric pump.

The card convener, Mrs. R. Jones, reported that cards had been sent to the sick and bereaved, and Christmas cards to shut-ins and the older church members.

A discussion took place on the remodelling of the old cupboard, but it was decided to postpone changes because the new cupboards have yet to be painted.

Mrs. Roche took the chair for the election of officers. All were returned by acclamation, with the exception of the president, Mrs. F. McKay, who has served in that capacity for 10 years. Mrs. McKay resigned and Mrs. D. Kirk was elected as president.

Mrs. McKay expressed her thanks and appreciation to the rector, the church wardens, and members of the guild for guidance and assistance.

The newly-elected president, Mrs. Kirk then took the chair and thanked the members for her election.

The first item of business was the payment of dues. It was decided to leave the membership fee at 25 cents per year and that a collection be taken at each meeting. It was also decided to meet once a month instead of twice a month as suggested. Meetings will be held the first Tuesday of each month at 2:30 p.m.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Small 3-Egg Yoke Sponge Cake

Our mailman arrives around 3:00 p.m. and his arrival provides a perfect excuse for me to have a cup of tea or two while I open and read the mail.

Imagine my surprise when I opened a box containing a note saying: "I hope the cake arrives in time again to have with your cup of tea" . . . and it did. It was a delicious cake too.

It was from Mrs. W. R. W. who wants a smaller recipe for an egg-yolk cake (this was made from one I gave her for a five-egg yolker). She also finds the cake falls a little after being taken from oven. If I remember correctly the oven temperature I suggested was 325 deg. Fahr. for the 5-egg yolk sponge cake. The brown top on Mrs. W. R. W.'s cake indicated to me that the oven was hotter than this. It could be that her oven thermometer is registering too low, when the heat of the oven is actually higher.

Note to Mrs. W. R. W.: Thank you for the cake first. For the 5-egg yolk cake try setting your temperature regulator at 300 deg. Fahr. and bake cake at that temperature for once to see if it does not fall.

Here is a recipe for a small three-egg yoke sponge cake. While temperature for it is 350 deg. Fahr. I would like you to try it at that temperature the first time. However, for reasons just stated it may be you will have to reduce your setting to 325 deg. on the second trial if the first is not satisfactory.

EGG-YOLK SPONGE CAKE

Three-quarters cup sifted all-purpose flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, ¼ teaspoon salt, 3 egg yolks, ½ cup sugar, ¼ cup boiling water, ½ teaspoon lemon extract. Sift the sifted flour, baking powder and salt together. Beat egg yolks with rotary or electric beater (low speed for two minutes, then very slowly beat in the sugar until very thick and pale lemon-color. Add boiling water and lemon extract. Beat for 30 seconds. Sprinkle flour mixture over top and fold in until all flour is moistened, but do not overfold. Grease and flour-dust small tube pan or loaf pan or square pan, and turn batter into it. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr.—time depends on shape of pan, but this size of cake should require only about 30 to 35 minutes. Invert on cake rack to cool.

Sometimes when things happen like they did last Sunday I mutter into my front teeth "Who's running this column?" (No answer.)

It seems that Pete went to Zeni's (his present lady-love of 19 tender years) and she had made the prize-winning Orange Kiss-Me-Cake. Last weekend, like the dutiful son of a food editor, he turned up with the recipe, because he was so proud of Zeni's skill and the cake was so good. This cake enjoyed so much publicity a while ago it did not need my attention. But some of you might like to try it again—on Pete's recommendation.

ORANGE KISS-ME-CAKE

Grind (or your teeth if you'd prefer) together the pulp and peel from 1 large orange (reserving the juice for the topping), 1 cup raisins and ½ cup walnuts. Sift together 2 cups sifted flour, 1 teaspoon each soda and salt and 1 cup sugar. To these last 4 ingredients add ½ cup soft shortening and ¾ cup milk and beat 300 strokes if by hand or for 2 minutes at medium speed on electric mixer. Now add 2 unbeaten eggs and ¼ cup milk (making 1 cup milk in all) and beat tor 300 strokes for 2 minutes in beater. Fold in orange-raisin mixture. Pour into well-greased and lightly floured pan—either oblong 12 x 8 x 2 or 13 x 9 x 2 inches. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 40 or 50 minutes. While cake is still warm drizzle over top ½ cup orange juice. Mix together ½ cup sugar, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, ¼ cup chopped walnuts and sprinkle over still-warm cake. If desired further decorate cake with attractively cut orange slices. Cut in squares to serve.

Insists On Making Decisions Expects Girl To Give In

DEAR MISS DIX: I'm writing yo in behalf of my sister, who is a sweet, well-liked girl of 22. She has been going with a man six years her senior for the past year and they are planning to marry. All our family is against the marriage, since we can see no indications in him of a good husband. He is not of our religion, doesn't attend his own church, yet won't go to church with my sister; he is very rude to my father when he visits us. When he is out with my sister, he decides when they are to come home and, if she doesn't agree immediately, he grabs her arm and pushes her out of the door. He won't agree to a church marriage—insists on eloping. Furthermore, his mother won't speak to any of us, including her future daughter-in-law. Now, if all that adds up to any hope for a happy marriage, I can't see it. We've all talked to the girl but failed to convince her.

M. E.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Of course, this could be a story with two sides, but since I have but one before me, I can only judge by that. From the facts I have, it seems fairly apparent that your sister is the victim of a simple infatuation. The man must have charm, he seems to have little else.

BOORISH HABITS INCREASE

It is quite certain his boorish, selfish habits will multiply after marriage. A man who won't give his fiancee any consideration whatever certainly won't render anything better to his wife. The one fact you must face, however, is not a pretty one. A girl of 22 isn't going to be talked out of anything. You can present what seems to you convincing argument but it will fall on deaf ears. The man has her charmed with something, and since she is of an age when she's supposed to be able to make decisions, she'll go ahead on this one. All a family can do is to stick around and help pick up the pieces later.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I'm in charge of a small business. I have become friendly with a salesman who calls here quite often, and we have corresponded between his calls. We dated occasionally when he was in town. Last week, when I was indisposed, I received an apathetic letter from him—quite different from those he had been sending. He said he didn't expect to call here for several months since his territory has been changed. Should I answer the letter?

C.C.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: No! Quite evidently it was written to put "finis" on a budding friendship, that, for some reason or other, he did not wish to continue. Perhaps he has a wife or sweetheart somewhere else on the route; perhaps he discovered that his interest in you was becoming too keen and therefore unwise, or perhaps he's just a fickle drummer. At any rate, don't answer the letter and try to forget him.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I'm 16 and in love with a boy of 19. He's married, but separated from his wife. He says he loves me, and I love him. Should I continue seeing him?

S.T.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: My pet candidate for a good old-fashioned whipping is a man, even one as young as 19, who encourages a young girl in so cowardly a fashion. He already has led one girl into a mess, do you want to follow in her footsteps? Go with wholesome boys your own age.

World Approaching New Era In Medicine, May Soon Have Spare Parts For The Body

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

NEW YORK (AP) — Science is at the gateway to a new era of medicine—giving you new spare parts for old, much like you now fix your automobile.

It would mean you could get a new, living kidney, lung, heart, or teeth, skin and glands to replace your own sick, damaged or lost ones. Or perhaps even a new arm or leg, or brain.

The door to this era is still tightly locked by a secret law of nature. This law says you will destroy any living tissue transplanted into your body from another human, or an animal.

MAY BE REPEALED

But, to an observer, there are signs that the law may be repealed, and the key found to open the door.

One sign is the fact that some transplants already exist. You can get new blood, new pieces of bone and artery, new corneas or windows for the eye. There are banks for all of these, and new improvements in banking these spare parts to repair other humans.

Just beyond is the old dream of skin banks, skin to save the badly burned. Or a new kidney or lung or gland to save life and restore health.

But it is here that nature has put up the barrier.

For there is a peculiar difference between your tissues and the tissues of anyone else, except perhaps an identical twin.

This unknown or "X" factor leads to a reaction between your body and the borrowed tissue. Your body begins to destroy and absorb the foreign material.

Actually the borrowed parts which can be given to you now do not stay alive in your body, you replace the borrowed blood cells. Your body grows new bone or artery or cornea tissue to replace much of the borrowed tissue. Borrowed bones or arteries act as a scaffold for regrowth of your own tissue. The same thing happens when small lengths of nerves are transplanted from one body to another.

A piece of artery or bone or skin can be taken from one part of your own body, and substituted elsewhere in your body, and live. Skin from someone else will act as a temporary protective cover, but then it sloughs away, destroyed by the "X" reaction. Skin from one identical twin can be given to the other twin, because they are so alike.

Does this mean that transplanting living spare organs is a hopeless dream? Some scientists and doctors may say yes. But others say it may not always be impossible, and that is another hopeful sign.

Their view is that the real difficulty is simply ignorance — not enough is yet known about this "x" factor and how to overcome it.

Blood transfusions failed over hundreds of years, until scientists discovered there are blood types, and that blood types must be matched to make transfusions safe.

Can the "X" process be solved, and controlled? Here and abroad, brilliant scientists and physicians are looking for answers.

A WONDER DRUG HELPED CHANGE THIS . . .

This wheel chair is empty because of antibiotic wonder drugs. In fact the patient never used the chair and he is now back at work with no heavy hospital bills to pay, no lengthy convalescence to shrivel his savings.

And for these drugs his charge was reasonable.

In grandfather's day the same illness called for drastic measures . . . many medicines, doctors, possible surgery, nurses by day and night, and certainly a long period of convalescence. Even in his day of low prices all these costs were great.

It is only because truly staggering sums have been spent in research and development by the leading pharmaceutical houses that we can buy today's wonder drugs at all. And buy them moreover, at grandfather's prices . . . prices even he in his day would have found reasonable!

YOU CAN DEPEND ON YOUR NEIGHBOURHOOD DRUGGIST

You will always be sure of reasonable prices at your neighbourhood druggist's. He is highly-trained in the profession of pharmacy, a friendly man . . . and you can depend on him as surely as you can depend on the wonder drugs he stocks.

See him soon for whatever you need.

One in a million, that, mother, was you.
Just in your judgment, always right.
Honest and liberal, ever upright,
Loved by your friends and all you knew;
A wonderful mother, that, mother, was you.
—Ever remembered by the family.

PATTON—In memory of a loving wife, Mrs. Frederick Patton, who passed away February 9th, 1953.
What would I give Her hand to clasp,
Her patient face to see,
To hear her voice, to see her smile,
As in the days that used to be.
But some sweet day we'll meet again
Beyond the toil and strife,
And clasp each other's hand once more,
In Heaven, that happy life.

Tour Air Base

FUERSTENFELDBRUCK, Ger. (AP) — Former German field marshal Albert Kesselring, together with about 20 top pilots in the old German luftwaffe, toured the United States air force base here Sunday. The visit coincided with Communist charges in Berlin that the Americans are conspiring with Kesselring to build up a new aggressive German air force.

Suzanne Cloutier, 24 Awarded Divorce

LONDON (Reuters) — Movie actress Suzanne Cloutier, 24, of Ottawa, was awarded a divorce today from Dr. Francois LaFleche of Montreal for his adultery and desertion.

They were married in Ottawa in August, 1946. Petite, blonde Suzanne worked in Hollywood before coming to Europe in 1948. She played opposite Orson Welles as Desdemona in his movie version of Othello.

The divorce court judge said today that although she had lived in England for three years, her husband made no effort to join her.

Relatives File Action To Recover Estate

OTTAWA (CP) — Relatives of Rose Bertrand, murdered two years ago by her husband, today filed an action in Surrogate Court here to recover her $31,613 estate.

Rheal Leo Bertrand was hanged last June for killing his wife by setting fire to a cabin in which they were spending their honeymoon. Her will left him the estate.

The petition to have the estate turned over to her next-of-kin was filed by two brothers, four sisters and a niece.

AGED ATHLETE

Richard Linsell, the old English cricketer of Essex county, played his last game at age 68.

Building Record Of Thefts, Man Jailed 5 Months

"You are managing to build up quite a record of thefts for yourself," commented Magistrate W. R. Philp, QC, in court today when William Bright of Warkworth, admitted to having 10 previous convictions for theft. Today he added two more convictions to that list and began five months definite and two months indefinite imprisonment at the Ontario reformatory.

The charges against Bright concerned the theft of a windbreaker and the receiving of a stolen TV field strength meter. He pleaded not guilty to both charges.

Constable Grant Gillespie said that he had found Bright lying under a wagon in the backyard of the Queen's Hotel just after midnight on January 26.

He was wearing the stolen coat and nearby equipment which he said he had been given by someone called "George."

Bright had little to say in his defence and appeared hazy as to how he had become in possession of the articles. He told the magistrate that it was drink that usually led him into trouble.

"Well then, you should see to it that you don't drink if that's the case," said Magistrate Philp.

"I would like you to give me a prohibition order," said Bright.

"We'll see about that when you come out of prison," answered the magistrate.

Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw mentioned that there was a warrant out for Bright from Cobourg. He also wondered, in view of previous convictions, if a reformatory term would do Bright any good.

On the theft charge, Bright was given five months' definite and three indefinite. For receiving stolen goods he received three months' definite. The terms will be served concurrently.

400 Attend Fireside Service

As part of a nation-wide climax to Christian youth week, 400 Peterborough young people gathered at George Street United church Sunday night at an interdenominational fireside.

They were challenged by Hughes Winfield of Toronto to be practical and effective in Christian service. Using as his text, "So send I you," Mr. Winfield urged the young people, too, to be effective workers for Christ as were His disciples.

Christianity is more than a philosophy, he said; it's a way of life. It's God's way of changing the world and making people the way He wants them to be.

The program opened with a singsong, led by Ron Roufley. The Rev. A. A. Mathews, pastor of George Street, welcomed the young people and led in opening prayer. The tambourine group of the Salvation Army also entertained.

Scripture reading by Bob Harvey preceded vocal selections by St. Paul's ladies' trio. Rev. G. D. Smith of St. Giles' dedicated the offering and Bob Peebles introduced the speaker.

Noranda Head Rejects Meeting

ROUYN, Que. (CP)—James Y. Murdoch, president of Noranda Mines Ltd., has turned down a proposal by the Rouyn - Noranda Chamber of Commerce that he meet with C. H. Millard, national director of the United Steelworkers of America (CIO-CCL) and the Hon. J. Antonio Barrette, Quebec labor minister, in an effort to end a strike at Noranda mines.

Both Mr. Millard and Mr. Barrette had offered to take part in any negotiations to settle the five-month strike of 1,500 miners which has paralyzed this northwestern Quebec mining community.

In a letter to the chamber, Mr. Murdoch wrote: "I am satisfied that nothing is to be gained by any such meeting and that it would only serve to raise false hopes in the minds of our employees and the business community and so further delay termination of the strike."

7½ CENTS OFFERED

The president reaffirmed the company's stand that a seven-and-a-half per cent wage increase is "the utmost that would be done." This offer, which is reported to mean an average wage increase of 10 cents an hour, was turned down by 90 per cent of the membership of the Noranda local.

Thaw Causes As Much Trouble As Cold Wave In Europe

LONDON (AP) — Europe's cold wave returned with heavy snows and sub-freezing temperatures in northern Britain and Germany today.

Southern England, France and Holland had a thaw. Burst waterpipes, snarled traffic in melting ice and slush and threatened floods in some areas.

The Moulin Rouge cabaret in Paris was flooded when water pipes burst in the floor above and water poured downstairs. The manager announced an indefinite shutdown and laid off 120 employees, including the cabaret's Can-Can girls.

Horse racing in England was cancelled for the 17th consecutive day.

Manchester had more than five inches of fresh snow.

SEALS ON THE RHINE

In London, however, the mid-day temperature hit 43—the highest in 17 days.

Snow and 15-degree temperatures gripped most of Germany after a slight let-up during the week-end. The Rhine river now is frozen solid for a distance of 37 miles between the Lrelei and Main—the biggest freeze-up in seven years.

Police reported seals frisking about in the Rhine near Bonn. Weather men believed the animals may have been driven south by the intense cold of the polar regions. Ice-breakers worked to keep open Hamburg harbor and the Kiel canal after strong winds piled new ice along the coast. Most other North Sea ports were sealed off in ice.

CONTINUE FOOD DROP

Airlift continued to drop food and other supplies to residents of the Frisian islands, cut off from the German mainland by ice.

Two persons froze to death in Vienna during the weekend and the Danube river at the Hungarian frontier was frozen solid.

In Italy, warmer weather enabled communications to be restored with several mountain villages previously cut off by snowdrifts. Airplanes still flew emergency supplies to relieve shortages in some communities. Two "weasel" snowplow tractors borrowed from a French polar expedition snorted through 10-foot drifts to mountainous Andorra, restoring communications between that tiny republic and the outside world.

Attempted Break-in Near Belleville

BELLEVILLE (CP) — Provincial police are investigating an attempted safe-breaking at the post office at Read, 18 miles northeast of here. An attempt was made to burn the hinges from the safe door with an acetylene torch.

The acetylene tanks had been loaded on a toboggan and were found abandoned a mile south of read.

Rammed Truck Driver Fined For Impaired

Walter Kent of 120 Aylmer St. drove his car towards a line of vehicles stopped at the railroad tracks on Aylmer St. Attempting to stop, his car skidded into the rear of a public utilities truck. He backed up and parked his car outside his house some 90 feet away.

When the driver of the truck, John R. Casey, got out, Kent had disappeared, so he phoned the police.

In court today Kent faced a drunk driving charge, which was later reduced to driving while impaired. Magistrate W. R. Philp, QC, fined him $50, costs $8.

Constable W. G. Scott said that he went to Kent's house where Kent was lying on the bed. He had smelt of beer and had staggered walking about the room. He had shown signs of intoxication while walking to the police cruiser, and at no time appeared particularly concerned with proceedings.

Represented by W. J. Arthur Fair, Kent testified that he had gone to do some shopping in the city on the evening of January 15. The stores being crowded, he had decided against the shopping and instead had gone to an hotel and had three draughts of beer.

He maintained that he was not intoxicated. He suffeded from stomach ulcers and a blow in the stomach at the time of the accident had caused him to stagger with pain. Kent's wife and 14-year-old daughter supported this evidence. Reginald Black, who also lives at 120 Aylmer St. gave his opinion that Kent was not intoxicated.

Maurice Dunkley Honored By Union Friends

Maurice Dunkley, 525 Romaine St., was presented with a sheaf of records for his phonograph library by the members of Local No. 248 of the International Typographical Union Saturday night at Colonial Grill, George and Lake streets. The gift included a Gilbert and Sullivan album.

The presentation was made by Harold Dormer, president of the Union.

Mr. Dunkley has been its financial-secretary 31 years, and after that long term of service he recently requested the members to relieve him of the financial affairs.

"If this gift was a hundred times better than it is," said Mr. Dormer, "it still wouldn't begin to repay Maurice for the way he carried out his duties. He is one of the best union men we've ever had. There were times when it wasn't easy going, especially during the depression years when there were dark days and some of the men gave up working days to others to help them keep going."

Mr. Dormer said every member of the Union was grateful to Mr. Dunkley for the faithful and friendly manner in which he had served them.

The gift of phonograph records was accompanied by a testimonial scroll signed by all the members of No. 248.

"There are no better fellows than those I have been associated with since 1922 as financial-secretary," Mr. Dunkley said. "One of the nicest things you have done was sending a gift of roses to my wife this morning. I feel that I have the friendship of all the members, and that is appreciation enough. But, I do thank you for these gifts. I have had a happy time in the Union, and also in my relations with the office and the management. I believe that much good can be accomplished by goodwill and co-operation."

The evening's program included: bowling, progressive euchre and buffet lunch.

Missouri, Kansas Facing Water Shortage

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP)—Many communities in Missouri and Kansas, wracked only three years ago by devastating floods, are faced with a different crisis today; they're drying up.

A merciless drought that lasted through the summer shows no sign of abating. It's no longer just the preoccupation of worried farmers, but has moved into the cities and towns.

The water shortage varies in acuteness but there are communities which have little more than a month's supply left.

At least one, has run dry—Olathe, Kan., 20 miles southwest of here, where the level of the reservoir has dropped below the intake pipe. Trucks will haul water from a nearby lake while this source holds out, then arrangements will be made for hauling it from Kansas City.

Dr. Warren A. Kramer, chief of water supplies for the Missouri health division, said many towns already have reached the crisis stage, and there's no immediate relief in sight.

SITUATION SAID SERIOUS

For Kansas, too, the outlook is glum. The weather bureau describes the general situation as "serious," explaining: "Good, general rains would be the only solution. But our long-range forecast doesn't indicate them."

Water for car washing and other non-essential use has been banned in some areas. Pastors are offering prayers for rain at Sunday services. Daily prayers for rain are being said at Ursuline College.

The water rate has doubled in Paola, Kan., and officials say another raise is inevitable if Paola, as is likely, is forced to import water from nearby Kansas City.

400 Paratroopers Take Part In Exercise Hot Dog

By DON HANRIGHT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

EDMONTON (CP) — About 400 Canadian paratroopers are undergoing the final sub-arctic warfare tests of exercise Hot Dog II on the shore of Kluane lake in the Yukon territory 1,400 miles northwest of Edmonton.

The paratroopers, some of them just back from Korea, are members of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry. They were taken to Silver Creek, near Kluane lake by trucks and snowmobiles. They have done no jumping since leaving Calgary's Currie barracks.

The army, more concerned in Hot Dog II with what happens to this part of the country's mobile striking force once it gets on the ground, is using them for cold-weather tests of everything from boot-laces to wireless radio units.

The exercise began Jan. 5 when temperatures were hovering around 30 below zero in the mountainous lake district. During the first part of February, however, the mercury seldom dipped below zero and even climbed to 40 above last weekend.

RIFLES TESTED

Included in equipment under examination are rifles and rapid-fire weapons. However, the new Belgian rifle recently acquired by Canadian armed forces is not believed to be included. One army spokesman indicated the Belgian rifles have not yet arrived in western Canada.

Silver Creek is a cluster of five wooden structures built in 1942 for the official opening ceremonies for the Alaska highway which skirts the western shore of 40-mile-long Kluane lake.

The same mountainous region also served as a base camp for exercise Eager Beaver, a six-month joint Canadian-United States exercise in 1952 which experimented with airfield construction at the 2,500-foot level of the lake shore.

About 40 miles to the west are the towering St. Elias mountains, which include the 19,850-foot mount Logan, highest peak in Canada. The coast mountains to the east are about 5,000 feet higher than the glacier-fled Kluana.

The valley forms a virtual trap for the cold air which rushes inland from the Beaufort sea and across the mountains from northern Alaska. In February, 1947, the Snag weather station, about 100 miles north in the same valley, recorded an official 81 below zero.

LONG HIKES SLATED

To test clothing and weapons on the march, the army has included several long hikes through the valley and into the mountains.

One of the first of these was almost a flop. The parachutists taking part had to call off the 50-mile hike when they met up with a bitter "williwa"—a strong local wind that rushes off the western mountain peaks like a waterfall. The troops made only five miles in one day, and called off the hike after the first 17 miles.

Another of the treks is planned later this week. The objective will be the radio base and weather station at Aishihik, a 60-mile walk eastward through the coast mountains.

The army is supervising survival tests of the Canadian Rangers, a largely obscure force of civilians recruited on a reserve status in the northern mainland and the arctic islands.

Easy Living Said Reducing U.S. Stamina

CHICAGO (AP) — Brig. Gen. Louis H. Renfrow, deputy director of selective service, said Saturday night that easy living habits are steadily reducing U.S. stamina to the danger point.

Citing high draft rejection rates on physical and mental grounds in a speech prepared for the Chicago section of the International College of Dentists, Renfrow said:

"Civilizations have disappeared when they lost the central core: Strength, incentive, vitality, and the stamina necessary to withstand strain and extreme shock in emergencies.

EXPENSIVE LUXURY

"No one can estimate what the automobile has cost the American people in muscle, or the radio, television and motion pictures in active participation in recreation.

"A nation that does no walking, if it can avoid it, that is careless and indifferent about the correction and follow-up of remedial defects; that is intemperate and faulty in its diet, that has become addicted to deteriorating habits of easy living, is steadily reducing its stamina to the danger point."

Bidault Big Power-House In Berlin Conference

By PRESTON GROVER

BERLIN (AP) — Georges Bidault, once an uncertain quantity in the French cabinet, has become a power-house in Berlin.

The dark-haired French foreign minister, who stands barely shoulder high to State Secretary John Foster Dulles, has surprised British and United States delegates by his stout battles with Vyacheslav Molotov.

His outspokenness has been particularly pleasing to the Americans although they know that every time he defends the European army treaty he risks hotter political fire for himself at home.

He came to the conference representing the weak sister among the Big Three. Moreover, in Paris, many Americans and a good many Frenchmen never felt sure just where Bidault stood on the EDC. Here they are not in doubt.

BURNS HIS BRIDGES

"He acts like a man who has burned his bridges behind him," said one high U.S. source.

He has verbally slugged it out with Russian foreign minister Molotov day after day, defending the EDC as the only device for curbing German militarism because it means harnessing Germany with "democratic peace-loving nations" in the Western sense.

If any impression at all has been made on Molotov during the present big four conference it has been made by that argument.

To correspondents Bidault is a problem. He uses all the devices in the French language to shade his meanings and his sentences often are so minutely contorted that translation is well nigh impossible.

But in conference, according to one American, his sentences roll out powerfully.

SOUNDS CONVINCING

"His commas and inverted sentences disappear and the fine periods sound convincing even to those who can't speak French," the American said.

Some English diplomats are not as much impressed with Bidault's words as the Americans, but they agree he has been a strong fighter in the conflicts with Molotov.

So far Molotov has been unwaveringly polite to Bidault, but the Frenchman hasn't shown any signs of being charmed.

Reuther Nearly Has Unwelcome Meeting

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — There was a flurry of activity Saturday at the Canadian Managing Editors conference when two well-known figures came within a hair's breadth of an unwelcome meeting.

While Walter Reuther, CIO and United Automobile Workers union president, was talking to reporters on the mezanine floor of the hotel, Clarence Jacobs was in the lobby.

Jacobs is the man recently named by Donald Ritchie as the person who handled the shot-gun in an attempted assassination of Reuther in 1948. Jacobs is awaiting an extradition hearing on charges preferred by Michigan authorities.

When reporter told Mr. Reuther of Jacobs' presence, he laughed and said he had no desire to meet him. He was seriously wounded by the shotgun blast through his kitchen window.

First Diesel Car Developed In Britain

LONDON (AP) — The Standard Motor Company Saturday announced Britain's first diesel-engined passenger automobile — a six-seater which will travel 45 miles on a gallon of fuel oil.

The diesel engine will be fitted as an alternative power unit on Standard's four Vanguard models, the company said.

At £1,042, the car will cost more, but will save the 20,000-mile-a-year motorist £125 in fuel bills, Standard claimed.

Pallbearers were Harry Reycraft, Campbellford, William Grifiith, William Hitchins, Jack Watson, Orval Brown and Donald Plunkett. Burial was in Maple Grove cemetery.

French Braced To Meet Red Attack

Last-Ditch Defence Of Laotian City Against Invaders

By MAX CLOS

SAIGON, Indo-China (AP) —French and Laotian defenders of Luang Prabang braced today for an "imminent" attack from the Communist-led Vietminh. The rebel invaders were reported within 25 miles of the royal Laotian capital on the banks of the Mekong river.

Laos' rheumatic old King Sisavang Vong vowed once more that the city of 142,000 would be defended "until the end." He made the same pledge last spring when the Vietminh invaded to within 12 miles of the city, then withdrew without a major battle.

This time there is every indication that the fight will be joined.

The French said today that they have completed their major defences against the onslaught.

The Vietminh invaded Laos from the north early last week, sending at least a division through the jungles and down the valleys of the Hou and Suong rivers toward the capital.

As the rebels advanced, the French and Laotian forces and many civilians withdrew under cover of intensive French air bombardment, leaving rice stocks burning behind them in an effort to destroy food the Red fighters need.

Though the Vietminh were reported officially today within 25 miles of Luang Prabang, it is possible that their advance troops are closer.

ATTEMPT CROSSING

Officials said Monday the invaders had been stopped, at least temporarily, as they tried to force a crossing of the Suong in the area of Pak Seng, 37 miles northeast of Luang Prabang and strategically located at the juncture of the Suong and the Seng rivers.

Today military authorities said it appears likely the French-Laotian forces have abandoned Pak Seng, though there is no confirmation of this.

The king's son, Prince Savang, in a public statement declared that the fall of Luang Prabang to the Communist-led forces "would not only be a national catastrophe but would have enormous repercussions on world opinion."

"In defending Luang Prabang," he said, "we are protecting the gateway to Thailand, Burma and all southeast Asia."

ARRIVES FROM PARIS

In Saigon, meanwhile, France's defence minister, Rene Pleven, arrived today from Paris and said cryptically: "I've come to confer with the military leaders on questions which could lead to rapid solutions."

WORK NEARLY COMPLETED—Construction work on the small CNR railway bridge (above) over Boyler's Creek, near Lansdowne St. East, is nearly finished. Starting in September a crew began repairs which included new back and wing walls and a new bridge seat. They haven't missed a day of work due to bad weather and the job is expected to be completed in a month's time. Rail traffic between Peterborough and Belleville has not been affected by the work. —(Examiner Staff Photo)

Crash Survivors Describe Plane Explosion

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — What is it like to be hurled into space and marooned on the snowy wastes of Alaska?

Six airmen who were catapulted into the air last Friday when a United States air force C-47 "disintegrated" in flight told last night of their experience.

They were among 16 men on the plane. Searchers have found the bodies of three. Seven are still missing, among them Lt.-Col. W. West-Watson of the British joint military services mission on the U.S. army staff at Washington.

A ground party which battled deep snow 15 miles to the scene of the crash from the little town of Curry, 75 miles northeast of here, Monday night reported it had found three bodies.

The six rescued men talked with reporters at nearby Elmendorf air forse base after being flown to safety.

All six suffered exposure, shock and various cuts and bruises when they parachuted into the blizzard-bound wilderness.

None of them could explain the accident, which happened on a flight from Elmendorf to Fairbanks, 275 miles to the northeast.

Airman Edward J. Fox, 22, who was lying on a pile of baggage when disaster struck, said: "We seemed to hit a down-draft and the next thing I knew I found myself in the air. I looked down and saw the plane and some of the other guys flying underneath me. I pulled the cord on my parachute and landed."

Three survivors were picked up at the site of the wrecked plane. They had joined after reaching the ground and walked through snow to the smashed craft for Arctic survival gear and food rations.

The other three were spotted 15 miles from the scattered wreckage of the C-47, wallowing through deep snow.

Both trios constructed makeshift shelters and huddled together Friday night in below-freezing temperatures awaiting dawn and rescue.

Two veteran Alaska bush pilots, Cliff Hudson and Don Sheldon, played key roles in the rescue. Hudson first sighted the downed plane late Friday. His find spurred the search and Sheldon later landed his light plane twice in a blinding snowstorm to take survivors to safety.

Considers NATO Effective

PARIS (CP)—Louis St. Laurent said today that Russian efforts to disrupt the North Atlantic Treaty Organization are evidence of its effectiveness. The Canadian prime minister made the statements in a brief address in both English and French to staff officers at Supreme Headquarters, Allied Powers in Europe. He spoke to the military representatives of 14 Western powers bound together in NATO during a brief visit to the headquarters, eight miles from the outskirts of Paris. He lauded the co-operative atmosphere inspired in the European defence organization by Supreme commander Gen. Alfred Gruenther, the cheerful American general whose multilingual headquarters is a beehive of cheerful activity.

Gruenther greeted the prime minister on the broad stone steps of the interconnected one-storey group of command offices where 30 Canadian service men are on duty.

PROUD OF CANADIANS

In his address before the SHAPE staff the Canadian leader said he is proud of a remark by Gruenther that all the Canadians are "top notch."

He compared the maintenance of SHAPE to household fire insurance, saying a man doesn't give up his fire insurance just because his house hasn't burned down.

The prime minister paid his visit to the headquarters just before a meeting with French Premier Laniel and Maurice Schumann, foreign affairs secretary. The talks were followed by a luncheon given by Laniel at which France's thanks were offered for the Canadian prime minister's visit, part of his round-the-world tour.

The prime minister replied that he will report to the Canadian people, when his world tour concludes March 17, on the "astonishing" recovery of France from the war.

He said the memories he will take home of an economically active France will be added reason for Canadians to remain busy within the framework of the "grand defence alliance which has been set up."

LAST DAY

The Canadian leader started the second and final day of his visit to Paris with a call at the Canadian embassy where the staffs of all Canadian offices in Paris were assembled.

He gave a brief outline of the goodwill idea behind his tour and said a "little prayer for its success would do no harm."

Throughout the afternoon he whipped back and forth through Paris on a round of formal calls and receptions required by diplomatic procedure. He kept to his schedule by speedy automobile travel with a police escort.

The visits included calls on President Rene Coty and Premier Laniel, and lunch with the new president.

Rain, Cheering Thousands Greet Queen At Newcastle

By GOMER JONES

NEWCASTLE, Australia (Reuters) — Drizzling rain drenched Queen Elizabeth today as she ducked from under an umbrella to smile at water-soaked thousands cheering her arrival here. Wearing only a thin silk dress, the young monarch risked the rain the moment she stepped from her train and stood uncovered in the downpour to give her spectators a good look.

She dodged under an umbrella a moment later for a drive to Newcastle's city hall in an open car.

But both the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh were soaked by the time they reached the shelter of an awning at the hall. So was the cheering crowd estimated at 250,000.

Rain swept over the royal couple's car again as they drove to an open-air rally of ex-servicemen and war widows and orphans.

But the Queen, already soaked, passed up the duke's offer of a raincoat and cheerfully settled for the umbrella again. When the rain decreased, she motioned the duke to put the umbrella down.

Damp but smiling, she thanked the city for a "wonderful welcome" in a speech at the town hall and urged her audience "to build and strengthen the greatness of Australia and the British Commonwealth as you have done in the past."

The duke also made a speech in the rain, telling the rally of ex-servicemen and women that they had rendered "immense service" during the two world wars and in Korea.

The sun came out as the royal couple drove on for another open-air appearance before 40,000 wet school children, and a trip to a blazing steel mill blast furnace gave them a chance to dry out later.

The Queen told the school group she wished they could meet her own two children, Prince Charles and Princess Anne.

Then, after the visit to the steel works, she and the Duke boarded a plane to continue their journey through New South Wales state. They started the tour this morning from Sydney.

A promise that every effort will be made to ease the next stage of the Queen's Australian visit came today from Melbourne. Premier John Cain of Victoria said his cabinet will try to relax the strain of constant royal engagements and huge crowds.

Soviet Diplomat Returns To Rome

ROME (Reuters) — The impending return to Rome of a top Soviet diplomat who helped build up the two largest Communist parties in Western Europe injected a new prospect today into Italy's current political crisis.

Even as premier-designate Marjo Scelba began talks this morning for forming a coalition government, Russia prepared for the key diplomatic change. Retiring Soviet ambassador Mikhail Kostilev, reputedly a friend of executed police chief Lavrenti Beria, left by train for Moscow.

He will be replaced by deputy foreign minister Alexander Bogomolov, Russia's astute, gold-tooth diplomat who supervised the post-war reorganization of both the Italian and French communist parties.

Bogomolov, lately ambassador to Czechoslovakia, will provide fresh guidance to the Italian Communists for their campaign against ratification of the European Defence Community treaty.

Indians Sail With Prisoners

SEOUL (AP) — A contingent of Indian troops sailed for home today with 88 war prisoners despite angry protests from South Korea. The prisoners — North Koreans and Chinese — had refused South Korean pleas to remain in the republic and had asked instead to be taken to neutral countries.

Foreign Minister Pyung Yung Tai threatened action to "remedy the evil effects" of what he called a "flagrant violation" of the armistice.

An Indian officer said there would be no official comment on Pyun's threat and added: "So far we have not paid any attention to irresponsible statements" by the South Korean government.

Investigating Woman's Death

TORONTO (CP) — Inspector W. H. Lougheed of the Ontario Provincial Police said today that inspector Tom Wright has gone to Sturgeon Falls in an investigation of the New Year's eve death of Mrs. Jacqueline Kelso, 22.

Inspector Wright is from the criminal investigation branch of the OPP. An autopsy was performed following the woman's death and parts of the body were sent to Toronto for analysis.

The Toronto Telegram says today that one provincial police source said the analysis showed traces of strychnine in her stomach.

Mrs. Kelso, mother of a three-year-old daughter and expecting another child, died suddenly after returning home from a theatre. Her body has been kept in a vault and further pathological examination is expected.

Her husband, Ralph, 22, said his wife seemed "perfectly well" when she visited him at his job in a service station on the way home from the theatre.

Trainmen No Longer Opposing Seaway

WASHINGTON (AP) — Representative Clarence E. Kilburn (Rep.-N. Y.) said today that the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, long opposed to the St. Lawrence seaway, now has adopted a position of neutrality.

"They are neither opposing or supporting the bill passed by the Senate last month," Kilburn told a reporter. The brotherhood is one of the most influential of the railroad unions.

Chairman Ejected By Board As Church Bell Tolls

ROUYN, Que. (CP) — Viateur Guillemette, 34, chairman of St. Joseph's school board at nearby Granada, was ejected from a meeting Sunday while the church bell tolled.

The meeting in the church basement was called [illegible] the resignation of a teach[illegible] broke up in confusion.

Mr. Guillemette said the trouble occurred when he tried to end the meeting, which was to discuss the resignation of Miss Roberte Duroche, who was 16 years old when she began teaching a year ago.

He said her resignation had been requested and had been written, but the person who received it refused to hand it over for consideration of the meeting. He suggested the meeting be postponed.

At that, he said, several ratepayers, "not even from my end of the parish," seized him with the cry, "Out with you."

"I was legally in charge of the meeting," said Mr. Guillemette. "It's an outrage, and tolling the funeral bell was a sacrilege."

He said he is the first chairman who has had the board members working in harmony but people were jealous of his success because he belongs to "the white-collar class." Mr. Guillemette is a butcher.

"It was all arranged beforehand," he claimed.

"Miss Duroche snapped me with a camera as they bundled me out of there," he added.

Warns Against Move To Restrict Lakes

CHATHAM (CP)—Jochem Carton, vice-president of a Montreal shipping agency, said Monday night that any move to restrict the Great Lakes to Canadian and United States vessels might "boomerang" and result in restrictions on such waterways as the Black Sea, the Red Sea and the Baltic.

He told the Board of Trade here that a strong lobby of interested parties now is trying to close off the Great Lakes to ships under foreign flags.

Mr. Carton, a partner in March Shipping Agency Limited, said Canadian vessels have priced themselves out of international shipping largely because of high labor costs.

96,839 Units Erected During Year

Ontario's Total Increased By 7,712 Units

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada set a record of 96,839 new dwelling units built in 1953. The Bureau of Statistics reported today the figure—a preliminary one—was 23,752 above the previous year's and 7,824 more than the previous record of 89,015 in 1950.

Counting 3,824 units added by conversion of existing buildings, a total of 100,663 sets of living quarters were added to the country's dwellings.

At the year-end, the bureau reported, there were 59,923 units still under construction, 4,234 more than a year earlier.

More new dwellings of all types were constructed last year than in the previous year, but the proportion of one-family homes showed a decline in relation to other types.

The 1953 construction upsurge was common to all parts of the country and more new dwelling units were started in all months. Ontario's total rose to 35,173 from 27,461.

Ontario starts, with the 1952 total bracketed, were 38,873 (30,016). The Ontario total of units under construction at year's end was 24,134 (20,513 at the close of 1952).

New Approach To Korea Peace

WASHINGTON (AP) — State Secretary Dulles apparently has switched to negotiations with Russia's Foreign Minister Molotov at Berlin in a new approach to a peace settlement in Korea.

With the situation at Panmunjom in a seemingly hopeless deadlock, these developments indicate that Dulles may be taking this tack:

1. A denial by the state department here Monday that Arthur H. Dean will be replaced as United Nations Panmunjom negotiator.

2. Hints that some way may be found for arranging a time, place and agenda for the peace conference without resuming the Panmunjom talks.

CONTINUING DELAY

3. Dulles' continuing delay in replying to the Communist demand two weeks ago that Dean return to Panmunjom. The state department has drafted several suggested replies and sent them to Dulles. He has not given approval to any, which indicates that he may try a different manoeuvre.

Dulles and the other Western ministers, Anthony Eden of Britain and Georges Bidault of France, are reported united in opposing any meeting with Red China except on Asian questions. And even for such talks, they are said to be insisting on a prior show of good faith by Red China, such as co-operation in settling Korea's future.

ANOTHER CONFERENCE

Thus, if the Communists are willing, Dulles might arrange through Molotov another conference away from Panmunjom to set up a preliminary Korea peace conference.

Dean walked out Dec. 12, vowing not to return until the Reds took

Postcard Increase Surprise Move Declare Opposition

OTTAWA (CP)—Post cards, along with letters, will require an extra cent postage starting April 1. A proposed boost in the rate on post cards, to four cents from three, was announced Monday by postmaster-general Cote. The news, coming during Commons consideration of a government bill to increase letter rates by one cent an ounce April 1, met opposition from Progressive Conservative and CCF members. They accused the government of not playing fair with Parliament in withholding announcement of the higher post card rate.

Stanley Knowles (CCF-Winnipeg North Centre) said the delay was "an insult to Parliament."

Davie Fulton (PC — Kamloops) said the government was "not far short. .. of false pretences" in getting Commons approval of legislation for the letter-rate increase without letting members know about the increase on post cards.

The rate on post cards can be set by the postmaster-general without reference to Parliament. The bill covering the letter-rate increase was given second reading—approval in principle—last week.

Daley Sees Need To Speed Up Conciliation

TORONTO (CP)—Labor minister Daley says changes are needed in the Ontario Labor Relations Act to speed up conciliation procedure.

Speaking over a CBC network of Ontario stations, he said Monday night labor groups have protested delays in setting up conciliation boards to hear disputes and had said there were further long delays in receiving conciliation board reports.

"By and large, the Labor Relations Act of 1950 has worked well and the experience of the department of labor, as well as the briefs submitted to the government and to the department by interested groups of citizens, do not indicate the need for any major amendment except in one respect—the conciliation provisions of the act."

Since collective bargaining legislation was introduced in Ontario in 1943, the improvement in relations between employers and employees had been noteworthy.

"Union recognition, formerly a major cause of industrial strife, is now dealt with effectively under the legislation, and strikes because of the refusal of an employer to recognize a trade union representing a majority of his employees now rarely occur and are of very short duration."

Man Tries Stop Train Car On Track Wrecked

KITCHENER (CP) — Clarence Schmidt, 18, of Kitchener was only partly successful in slowing a freight train early today when his car stalled on the tracks at a level crossing.

He tried unsuccessfully to start the car, then saw the light of a train turning a bend up the tracks. He ran down the tracks toward the train, waving his arms. The engineer saw him and put on the brakes but the train butted the car 25 feet, wrecking it. Schmidt jumped into the ditch as the train went by.

Letherby Retains Simcoe Seat In 3-Way Fight

ORILLIA (CP)—Lloyd Letherby, 53-year-old insurance and real estate agent at Coldwater, Monday retained the Simcoe East seat for the Progressive Conservatives after a three-way fight in a provincial by-election in which the chief issue was alleged contract frauds in the Fort William division of the Ontario department of highways.

Mr. Letherby captured 54 per cent of the vote in the traditionally Conservative constituency in central Ontario. He polled 7,715 votes, compared with 4,929 for Liberal William Moore and 1,444 for CCF candidate Wilfrid Hoult.

Premier Frost, who was born in the riding and whose godfather, Andrew Miscampbell once represented Simcoe East in the Legislature, said the by-election result was "most gratifying" and reflected credit on the campaign workers.

"It is an encouraging endorsement," said Mr. Frost, who followed the returns from his Toronto hotel suite. "We accept the verdict with humility, regarding it as an additional trust. Perhaps I may be excused for introducing a personal element and saying that it is encouraging to have such an emphatic endorsation from the old home riding."

SCATTERED RIDING

The by-election was called to fill the vacancy left by the death last December of Dr. John McPhee, who had held the seat for the Progressive Conservatives since 1943, in the scattered constituency whose largest town is Orillia with a population of about 12,000.

The Ontario legislature's 1954 session opens Thursday but Mr. Letherby must wait until next week to take his seat. He cannot be seated as a new member until after the official count next Monday.

Mr. Letherby took the lead as soon as tabulation started after the 101 polls closed at 7 p.m. His election was reported by The Canadian Press at 8:08 p.m.

Murder Witness Critically Ill

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—The single witness to a brutal Simcoe district murder remained critical in Victoria hospital today, unable to speak, write or apparently understand questions.

So far police have been unable to break through the shell of hurt and shock that seems to cut Mrs. Bruce Beatty from the world to hear from her lips the circumstance of the savage beating which she suffered or of the murder of her husband.

Nurses at the hospital said Mrs. Beatty, so far, gave no response when spoken to, although the 65-year-old woman is conscious.

Two United States men have been arrested in connection with the case and charged with murder. A third, Henry Little, Detroit, has been released.

PO Workers Not Hired By Patronage System

OTTAWA (CP)—Postal employees are not hired under the patronage system, Postmaster - General Cote said Monday in the Commons.

He was replying to a question by G. K. Fraser (PC—Peterborough West) as to whether patronage would be used in getting additional employees needed for a shortened work week in the postal service.

"We are not [illegible]ng under the patronage system," Mr. Cote said.

As a matter of fact, he added, members from all parts of the House were coming to his office recommending people for postal jobs.

"Oh, no," shouted an unidentified member.

"Oh, yes," Mr. Cote returned. "And probably the member who said 'Oh no' is one of them."

No Indication What Moves Mean

Americans Say Soviet Making Changes Among Top-Level Party Executives

By TOM WHITNEY

NEW YORK (AP) — Important shifts of top-level Communist party executives are taking place in the Soviet Union, but so far there's no clear indication what they mean.

There's the apparent possibility they reflect conflicts within the Soviet leadership and jockeying by factions for better position.

There's also the hint that they may be the result of the discovery of bad situations in important localities which require the urgent dispatch of trouble-shooting bosses by Moscow to the spot.

Copies of Soviet newspapers reaching her report the appointment of Nikolai G. Ignatov as head of the Communist party organization in the Voronezh region, several hundred miles southeast of Moscow.

Ignatov is a former secretary of the party's central committee.

His appearance in Voronezh is of major interest — clearly he has been sent there either to correct a bad situation in that industrial province, or because someone is afraid to have him around Moscow.

The fate of the previous head of the Voronezh party was not announced.

Soviet radio stations broadcast Monday that a man named Ponomarenko had been named to head the Kazakhstan party as first secretary and one Brezhnev was his deputy.

The previous first secretary, Zhumabai Shayakhmetov, was reported fired.

Though there was no clarification, the shift is a development of major importance.

"Ponomarenko" can hardly be other than Panteleimon K. Ponomarenko, minister of culture of the U.S.S.SR., a member of the clique of a dozen or so men which runs the Soviet government.

"Brezhnev" obviously is Gen. Leonid Brezhnev, former chieftain of the party in Moldavia, former secretary of the central committee of the Communist party in Moscow, and now deputy chief of the political administration of the Soviet defence ministry.

Neither Ponomarenko nor Brezhnev are Kazakhs. Both are men whose career has been made in the party apparatus, and both have had powerful protection in Moscow.

Why have they been sent now to distant central Asia? Have they lost their other and more important Moscow jobs? Does this mean there's a crisis in Kazakhstan and if so of what sort? These will have to remain unanswered questions for the present.

Asks Statement By Gouzenko Made Public

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada is willing that the testimony given to a United States Senate sub-committee by Igor Gouzenko five weeks ago be made public, it was learned.

But after the international dust-up over the affair, the sub-committee has apparently lost all interest in Gouzenko and his testimony. Though informed last month of the Canadian view, the Senate group has made no request that the testimony be made public.

This would bear out the original Canadian contention that Gouzenko, former cipher clerk in the Russian embassy here who revealed operations of a Soviet spy ring in Canada, had no new information to offer the Communists-in-government investigators and that any interview would be fruitless.

NO OBJECTION

The Canadian government informed the Americans some three weeks ago that it has no objection to publication of the Gouzenko testimony taken Jan. 4 by Senators William Jenner and Pat McCarran if the senators so requested. There has been no reply from the senators.

Canada asked only that 33 words in the transcript of testimony be eliminated if the testimony were published because it would be impossible to prove any charges against persons named among these 33 words.

It was learned reliably that these names came out in questions asked by the two senators and that Gouzenko knew nothing about them or, if he did, he had given the names previously. The senators did not obtain a single scrap of new information, it was stated here.

Criticize Fraser In Health Stand

A letter expressing disappointment that he voted against a CCF motion for a Canada-wide health insurance program is being sent to Gordon K. Fraser (PC), the MP for Peterborough.

The decision to write this letter was reached Monday night at the February meeting of the Peterborough and District Labor Council (CCL).

William Triggs, president of Local 293, UPWA (CIO-CCL), had been reading over a copy of "Canadian Labour," a CCL publication that gives the rundown on how MPs in Ottawa vote. Mr. Triggs noticed that Mr. Fraser had joined his PC colleagues and the Liberals in voting against a motion by M. J. Coldwell expressing regret that the Liberal government had "failed to recommend legislation establishing a nation-wide health insurance program, with provision for provincial participation.

The House of Commons divided, with the Liberals and PCs combining to defeat the CCF-ers and Socreds by 156 votes to 36. The division took place last November 27.

"It's a crying shame that our own MP for Peterborough voted against this motion in the House of Commons," said Mr. Triggs. "This is one of the few civilized countries that hasn't a health program."

The Labor Council, on a motion by Mr. Triggs and Jack Binstead of Local 570, IUE (CIO-CCL), approved the writing of a letter to Mr. Fraser which will (1) express disappointment that he voted against the motion, and (2) ask him to give his reasons for voting against it.

Denies Advocated Wildcat Strike

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Sam Lore, local 200 delegate to the recent Ontario Federation of Labor convention at Niagara Falls, denied today that he advocated a wildcat strike at Ford of Canada.

"I said at the convention that I felt some international union should test the present conciliation law in Ontario. Local 200 could do the job since it was ready for conciliation. I in no way advocated wildcat action. My proposal was that the international UAW authorize a strike before conciliation, after the constitution had been adhered to, that is, a two thirds majority vote of the membership by screen ballot.

"Everyone knows wildcat strikes are not authorized by the international."

The report from Niagara Falls also stated Mr. Lore was not an accredited delegate of his union. This, he said, is wrong, since he was duly elected at the local union elections held for the purpose of choosing delegates to the OFL.

Delegates attending the convention rejected Mr. Lore's plea that a test be made of the Ontario conciliation laws.

14 Diamond Drills After Uranium In Bancroft Area

Fourteen diamond drills, most of them probing around the clock, are busy these days in the Bancroft uranium area. Until lately, the area was known as the "no man's land of mining" but recent developments in staking, optioning gound and drilling have made the Bancroft field one of the most interesting in Canada.

The pioneer property, Centre Lake Uranium, north of Paudash Lake, is in the process of financing for shaft-sinking and further underground developments. Engineers have proved there are 1,150,000 tons of uranium ore down to 500 feet averaging $14.50 per ton. It is estimated by engineers that there could be three to four times as much ore if deposits of lower grades were taken into consideration which, at present prices, would give better than $7.25 per ton.

The number of drills working at various properties at the present time are as follows: Faraday, three; Fab Metals, Aumacho River, Dyno and Strategic Metals, two drills each; Croft, Rare Earth and Bonville Gold, one drill each.

From the results of the scintillometer air surveys sparked by the Newkirk Mining Corp., there have been extensive staking and surface checking over a wide area. The ore pictures in many cases appear to have revealed lengthy deposits of good widths. It is possible, mining men say, that a great deal of the winter-staked ground will be dropped by various companies as their field men narrow down the finds. Meanwhile, there is almost feverish activity while this phase of exploration is in progress.

The most solid strip of acquired ground stretches from the Centre Lake property south to Newkirk ground in mid-Anstruther township, Peterborough county. On the Rare Earth holding south of Tory Hill in Monmouth township officials say they have found a deposit of Ellsworthite which contains columbium and tantalum as well as uranium.

Court To Decide If Stuck Auto Is Still A Car

When is a car not a car? Answer (according to law), when it's stuck in a snowbank or ditch.

Supposing there's proof it used to be car; does that help any? That's the question Magistrate W. R. Philp will have to answer on February 17 when Lloyd Sutton is scheduled to re-appear on a charge of having care and control of a car while intoxicated.

Sutton was charged when his car was found stuck on a Bethune St. railway track switch. According to one police officer the car couldn't be moved except by a tow truck.

Law says, however, that a car ceases to be a car when it can't be operated. However drunk the owner may be won't matter in a case of drunk driving or having care of the vehicle; the charge can't stick.

On that basis plus the contention Sutton wasn't drunk January 28, his defence counsel, Robert Carley, moved for dismissal.

TIRE TRACKS

Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw, QC, pointed out, however, that tire marks showed how the vehicle became stranded on the tracks. In neither of the two precedent cases did that apply.

The other two cases referred to involved drivers who were found stuck, one in a snow bank and the other in a ditch. Both were intoxicated but dismissed because their cars were inoperative.

Magistrate Philp decided he'd look over the two cases in light of the evidence disclosed this morning in magistrate's court.

Two police officers, PC Grant Gillespie and PC John Conlin found Sutton's car 190 feet south of Brock on the Bethune St. tracks, stuck at the Lindsay line switch and straddling one rail of the Lakefield line track.

Constable Gillespie said the accused was staggering around the car, described his speech as thick and "nonsense," and smelled of alcohol. Keys were in the car and the engine was running. Two men were helping Sutton try to extract the car from the tracks. The officer said the vehicle could be moved only by a tow truck.

Constable Conlin said Sutton was "slightly" unsteady and had a stoppage of speech as if his mind was foggy. He thought the accused was at a point near intoxication.

As to how the car got there, Sutton said he had turned right off Brock St. to go south on Bethune St. got stuck on the tracks but stayed there for the distance mentioned earlier because he thought it would be easy to get out of the ruts.

HAPPENED BEFORE

A Bethune St. Resident told the court the occurrence during the winter is not uncommon; usually five or six cars get stuck every winter and unless they're light cars, have to be towed out.

Sutton admitted to the court he had four draughts of beer at a nearby hotel and had left there at 11 o'clock. A companion, Leonard Chapman, agreed with this.

As Crown Attorney Bradshaw pointed out, however, Sutton's vehicle wasn't found there until one o'clock. Asked what he did in this time, Sutton said he drove Chapman home, got stuck and then spent the rest of the time trying to free his car.

Commons Asked Amend Act Speed Delivery Periodicals

OTTAWA (CP)—The Commons has been asked to amend the Post Office Act to speed deliveries of periodical newspapers and magazines in Canada. An amendment was proposed Monday night by Postmaster-General Cote during study of government legislation to increase first-class mail rates a cent an ounce.

He said the amendment was requested by the Periodical Press Association, Agricultural Press, Business Newspaper Association and Magazine Publishers Association. No request was made by "newspapers," Mr. Cote said, and Finance Minister Abbott added that it is "of no value to daily newspapers at all."

Mr. Cote said the act now provides that second-class mail privileges can be enjoyed by a newspaper or periodical if posted "within the postal area in which the place of its office of publication is situated."

Under the amendment newspapers and periodicals could be posted in some other postal area approved by the postmaster-general if the change were for added convenience in distribution and did not reduce postal revenues.

PROTESTS LENIENCY.

Stanley Knowles (CCF—Winnipeg North Centre) said the amendment is "an act of impertinence." It was proposed at a time when the CCF party was protesting the leniency, latitude and subsidization granted publishers of periodicals under second-class postal rates.

Earlier Harold Winch (CCF—Vancouver East) urged the government to abolish free mailing privileges for weekly newspapers in communities with fewer than 10,000 persons. Present legislation grants such free mailing rights up to a distance of 40 miles for 2,500 copies.

Mr. Cote said "it has been suggested to us" that limiting a newspaper or periodical to mailing only in its place of publication "in some circumstances" delays reception of the newspaper or magazine "in some quarters."

By permitting a newspaper or periodical to be mailed in a postal area other than that of its publication, the post office would be "spared the transportation in some circumstances."

"It does not involve any money at all," he said. "It is only a minor amendment. It would have the effect of speeding the delivery of newspapers and periodicals."

Mr. Cote did not explain the measure further.

Mr. Knowles protested that the government had given no indication that the amendment would be proposed.

"We had no suggestion at any point in the remarks of the postmaster-general that anything like this was up the government's sleeve."

NOT REQUESTED

Any changes to be made to section 11 of the act, which sets out second-class mail rates, should be "to reduce the extent to which the post office is subsidizing newspapers and periodicals and subsidizing advertisers in those newspapers and periodicals."

The newspapers were not making the request to save money for the government. It was something that would suit their convenience.

"It was not requested by the newspapers at all," Mr. Cote said. "It was requested by the periodicals. It is merely a case of facilitating the circulation and transportation of the newspaper or magazine."

It was a step which would enable the post office to save money on its second-class mail operations.

City Will Close Two Streets For Parking Lot

Plans of the Quaker Oats Company for parking space east of the Court House received the assent of the finance committee of the council Monday night.

Vice-President L. H. Ingram explained in a letter that parking has become a major problem for the company. Employees' cars occupy the area south of the Hunter St. bridge, leaving insufficient room for the requirements of an increasing local business, particularly during the harvest period when grain is being drawn from the combined fields of a large area for delivery at the mill.

Mr. Ingram wrote that an acre lot could be converted into parking accommodation in the vicinity of Dickson St., and between the ends of Brock and Murray Sts.

Closing of Dickson St. and the east end of Brock St., both shown on the map but neither opened, would help materially to relieve the congestion of parked cars.

City Solicitor Huycke said that if any funds had been spent on a street, closing authority would have to be embodied in a bylaw. If the city had spent no money on these several streets, all that would be needed for closing was an order by county Judge Kenendy.

NO ONE AFFECTED

"It is only a weedy spot back of the jail," Mayor Graham commented. His motion was adopted instructing City Solicitor Huycke to take the necessary legal action to close the two streets of the plan.

City Clerk Outram said no private owner would be adversely affected.

Purchase from Mrs. Nora Lawrie of a lot 66 ft. wide for the extension of Armstrong Drive through to Weller St. was recommended in a motion by Aldermen McBride and Farquharson. The price is $20 a foot, amounting to $1,320.

It was pointed out that there is no outlet from the former wartime housing area by way of Armstrong Drive. Option on this lot, which has been used as a right-of-way, has been taken by a private builder who, in turn, was willing to sell it to the city at the exact cost to himself.

"Purchase of the lot had been discussed with the late Norman Hatton and it could have been obtained by the city for less then, but no action was taken," City Clerk Outram said.

Officer Criticizes Protest Resignations

The question of reserve army personnel having to pay income taxes does not seem to be a very controversial issue at either the 28th Technical Squadron or the 50th Heavy Anti-Aircraft Battalion in Peterborough.

In Toronto, according to a report non-commissioned officers in at least three reserve regiments will turn in their uniforms in protest against government orders to pay taxes dating back to 1952.

One Peterborough permanent force man, who backed the order has pointed out that this is an unrealistic attitude inasmuch as one cannot quit the army as one quits a job. Even reserve army personnel can be hauled before military tribunals for missing parades, if their excuses for being absent are not valid. If a man joins the reserves for three years, the army can "really get tough" if it wants to.

Reserve army personnel in Toronto have taken the stand that inasmuch as they have joined the reserves out of patriotism, they should not be taxed for their patriotic zeal. On the other hand soldiers sent to Korea did not receive any income-tax exemption until well after the Korean war had started.

Average pay of a reserve private is in the neighbourhood of $200 a year, this, of course, a supplement to his regular income. Reserves usually parade twice a week and spend two or three weeks at summer camp. This adds up to about 45 full days per year.

Suspect Scotch Of Bomb-Planting

LONDON (Reuters) — A stick of high explosive gelignite dropped in a mailbox here today aroused special police precautions against the possible spread of a Scottish nationalist bomb-planting campaign to London.

Police removed the explosive from a west London mailbox safely after receiving a mysterious telephone call of warning.

But the lack of any detonating attachment convinced Scotland Yard authorities that today's incident was intended merely as a demonstration.

Appeal Court Agrees On Guilt Of Fred Blaby

The Appeal Court of Ontario on Monday upheld the conviction of Fred Blaby, 23, of 554 Romaine St. on a charge of abducting a 10-year-old Peterborough girl last June 13.

Blaby was sentenced by Judge John de N. Kennedy to six months determinate and six month indeterminate late in December. He has been in custody since then.

The youth was orginally charged with indecent assault as well but this charge was washed out after Judge Kennedy found that the accused had never elected speedy trial on it consequently he should never have been tried on it.

Edward Fanjoy went to Toronto on Monday and argued the conviction on behalf of Blaby. But the Appeal Court, consisting of Justices J. W. Pickup, J. K. Mackay and E. R. E. Chevrier, upheld Judge Kennedy's conviction.

Blaby met the schoolgirl at Chamberlain St. and Monaghan Rd. when she was coming home from her music lesson at the YWCA. He enticed her into his car and took her out to a side-road in North Monaghan township.

The girl was with him all night in the car, which had become stuck in the mud, and the two of them walked home next morning along the CNR railway tracks. Blaby was later arrested at home.

His defence was that he was drunk and didn't know what he was doing.

Mr. Fanjoy argued that there was not intent on Blaby's part to deprive the parents of their child.

MORE ABOUT—

Postcard Increase

GENERAL INCREASE

Mr. Cote said members should not be surprised that the government planned to boost the rate on post cards.

He said that on Jan. 15 he told a CCF member in reply to a question that there would be a general one-cent increase in all first-class mail.

Mr. Knowles said the question had dealt with rates on second-class mail and no member had realized Mr. Cote was referring to post cards.

"All the way along we've been assuming we were talking only about the increase in the rates on letters."

Mr. Fulton said the government has followed a "most reprehensible course" and should withdraw the legislation. Mr. Knowles said if the government will not withdraw the bill, the least it can do is promise not to increase the post card rate.

In reply to questions, Mr. Cote said that after April 1 post cards, as well as first-class letters, will be carried by air wherever air service is available and will speed delivery. No increase was planned in the present two-cent rate on unsealed letters, including Christmas cards.

The Commons spent the entire day on clause-by-clause study of the legislation to increase the rate on one-ounce letters to five cents from four on mailings between postal districts. The rate on each additional ounce will be increased to two cents from one.

CASUAL WORKERS

Mr. Cote said the increases will yield about $14,000,000 to meet an estimated $13,500,000 in additional costs, including implementation of the five-day, 40-hour week for postal staffs in some areas.

Mr. Cote's announcement that the five-day week will be put into effect by using casual workers, including high school students, for Saturday deliveries met criticism from opposition speakers.

The minister said regular carriers will be given a chance to work spare time on Saturdays, but indicated this will be at standard pay rates rather than overtime rates. He said a delegation from the Letter Carriers' Association has endorsed the plan.

Mrs. Ellen Fairclough, Hamilton West, Progressive Conservative labor spokesman, said the change will cause "terrific dislocation" in mail deliveries. The present postal staff should be used in building a five-day service.

"To discharge experienced employees to take on casual help . . . seems to be just asking for trouble."

"A HORNET'S NEST"

Thomas Barnett (CCF—Comox-Alberni) said the government will "stir up a hornet's nest" by encouraging employees to work Saturdays. Blood had been shed in union campaigns for the 40-hour week and the government should not take the matter lightly.

Opposition Leader Drew said that new issues of stamps which appeal to stamp collectors would be one way to increase postal revenues to offset the need for a postage rate increase. Canada was far behind other countries in printing attractive new stamps.

Mr. Cote said he does not pretend Canada has the world's most attractive stamps, "certainly not in regard to the last issue." But he expected there would be attractive new issues in the near future.

HEAR COMMIE EXPERT

An expert on communist espionage, John DeGraff of Brockville, will be one of the speakers on the SO-ED panel in March. Mr. DeGraff, it was only revealed recently, was a former Soviet officer. During the war he joined the British MI-5, top-secret anti-espionage body, and still later came to Canada. His subject will be "International Communism in Action."

Labor Council Opposes Grant To Chamber

The Peterborough Chamber of Commerce shouldn't get a grant from city council, the Peterborough and District Labor Council (CCL) decided Monday night.

"I don't think we should be giving grants to organizations like that to carry on their own business," said William Gunn of Local 293, UPWA (CIO-CCL).

(Last week the chamber asked for financial assistance—$6,395 to be exact—because they said they were devoting 30 per cent of their time doing work that otherwise the city would have to do, particularly promotional work and running the Better Business Bureau.

(Council will consider the matter when they are preparing their annual budget.)

FOR BIG SHOTS

Alfred Barber of Local 210, UPWA (CIO-CCL), and president of the labor council, said: "The Chamber of Commerce is not working for us; it is working against us. It is working for the interests of the big shots. It's taxpayers' money they're asking for and the majority of the taxpayers are working people . . . Let them try the Manufacturers' Association".

Edmund S. Humphrey of Local 434, UPWA (CIO-CCL), said that the city council had set a precedent by turing down the grant for the Nursing Registry. And the Nursing Registry was every bit as deserving of public funds as the Chamber of Commerce.

"We should tell the city council that we are very much opposed to them making grants to the Chamber of Commerce," said Cecil Osborne of Local 5009, USWA (CIO-CCL). The motion was seconded by George Linsell of 19, NUPSE (CCL), and it carried unanimously.

Protect Public From Strikes

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Duplessis said Monday the Quebec government plans to study means to protect society from possible excesses of strikes.

He told a delegation of the Provincial Association of Industrialists that strikes are a serious undertaking. The right to strike had become, in certain cases, the right to cause disorder.

Mr. Duplessis promised to co-operate with employers and employees to assure that the good of the community would not be threatened by strikes.

The delegation asked in a brief that measures be taken to assure that, if industry was to be of service to the public, it would not "suffer from the exaggerations and abuses of strikes."

Cobourg Spends $62,383 Road Repairs

COBOURG (ENS)— Subject to a 50 per cent subsidy from the Dept. of Highways, council Monday night gave three readings to the 1954 road expenditure bylaw, the total estimated outlay being $62,383. This includes pavement construction cost of $18,583 and maintenance of $43,800. Actual outlay on paving is $26,820 but as part of this is for storm sewers and road preparation, the subsidy can only be paid on $18,583.

Last year the total outlay was $44,733.20 and this was for maintenance only.

The road paving program for 1954 consists of top surface on Spring St., Covert St. and Darcy plus a one-inch top on William St., from the tracks to King St. Another bylaw passed by the council was one which puts street cleaning on the general rate.

Council accepted the recommendation of the finance committee that the combined job of tax collector and assessor be divided into two separate positions due to the extra work which has come with the growth of the town. The necessary bylaw will be introduced.

Montreal Coach Angry At Criticism Of Richard

NEW YORK (AP) — Montreal coach Dick Irvin has angrily called any comparison between the Canadiens' Maurice Richard and Detroit's Gordie Howe "ridiculous" and blasted the Red Wings' official scorer.

"Richard is the greatest player in the game," Irvin said here. "He's eight years older than Howe and he's still got more goals. I can't imagine anyone trying to compare the two. Just look at the record."

Through Sunday's games, Howe led the National Hockey League in scoring with 58 points with Richard the runner-up with 52. The Rocket, however, has 32 goals to 21 for the Detroit ace.

Richard has 379 goals in the 12 seasons he's played in the NHL—more than any other player in the circuit's history. Howe has 230 goals in eight campaigns.

"Howe never would be leading the league if they had an impartial official scorer at Detroit," Irvin added. "Every time there's a Wings' goal while Howe is on the ice he almost automatically gets an assist."

Irvin also had some unkind words for New York Rangers, who dropped a 4-1 decision to the Canadiens before a capacity crowd here Sunday night.

"Every time we play those guys we lose a man. First Jean Beliveau gets a broken leg against them. Then (Boom Boom) Geoffrion is hit in the head and suspended for eight games. Ron Murphy, the guy who hit him, is playing regularly in the Western League. Does that figure?

"Now Dollard St. Laurent is out. I think we've got a better team than Detroit, but how can we catch them if our players are always hurt."

St. Laurent suffered a shoulder separation in Sunday's game and will be sidelined for an indefinite period.

The second-place Canadiens, who trail Detroit by nine points, still have three games left to play against New York.

"I'm not looking forward to them," Irvin said. "Not when we get all the lousy breaks."

Father Takes Action To Protect Children

Wife and Family to Receive At Least $20,000

Last winter, a young father told a Confederation Man: "Fred, you know how much is left of my $5,000 income after payments on my house . . . food and clothing bills . . . and all the other expenses. How much protection can I afford for my family?"

"A lot more than you think, Jim," replied the Confederation Man. "We have a plan that, on your salary, will provide for your family $10,000 in cash at death . . . and $100 every month until your daughter is 21. Then, they'll receive another $10,000. In the event of death after your daughter is 21 this plan provides $20,000 in cash. That's enough to provide a brighter future!" MILLBROOK (ENS) — On Sunday morning the re-opening session of the Sunday school after the recent renovation was held in St. Andrew's United church hall. The service was conducted by Herbert Patton, superintendent.

The Rev. A. M. Butler was in charge of the dedication of the new worship centre and the unveiling of the picture which hung above it, Salman's noted painting of the head of Christ.

Taking part in the worship service were Dorothy Ball, who told the story of the picture which had just been unveiled, George Patton, who gave the scripture reading, and Peter Crowley who read John Oxenham's poem "Where are you going, Great Heart?" Lenore and Jane Quellette sang a duet, "Fairest Lord Jesus."

Mrs. N. Weatherilt gave a talk on temperance.

The Sunday school orchestra played under the direction of Miss Beverley Patton.

The worship centre and the matching frame for the picture above it were made for the Sunday school by Mr. and Mrs. Homer Ouellette.

Moving The Film Board

The hullabaloo about moving the National Film Board from Ottawa to Montreal is not of great interest to Canada at large; Ottawa is understandably angry, and Montreal is equally understandably complacent. Ottawa hates to have anything taken from it, and Mayor Whitton has hinted that she will do something unstated, but very terrifying, to spite the Dominion Government, if the Film Board moves. Nevertheless it looks as though the Film Board would soon be on its way toward Montreal, and we think that there are fairly good reasons for the move.

* * *

The Film Board's chief occupation for many years has been the production of documentary films, at the behest of, and in collaboration with, several government departments. The Film Board carried out its tasks not merely well, but with distinction, and won an enviable measure of acclaim abroad. But the development of television in a country with a government-owned radio network suggests that more and more documentary film will be made for use on television, with distribution for use as film taking second place. Therefore it is desirable that the makers of the film (for television) should be near to the television distribution centre, and as Montreal is the only bi-lingual television distribution centre in Canada, the Film Board has a reason to be in Montreal. We do not put forward this reason as an overwhelming argument in favour of the move: we merely suggest it as a probable and comprehensible reason.

* * *

We should think that the Film Board might be glad to get out of Ottawa, where it has been abused more than it deserves. Like any sort of artistic enterprise, the Film Board tends to work along lines which are incomprehensible to the civil service intellect, and it needs the talents of many people who do not fit into the civil service pattern. Such people are easy marks for the criticism of Members of Parliament and others who do not understand the peculiar nature of the work they do, and the vagaries of the creative temperament. It is fairly easy for a business man to look at a movie studio, and point out that it is not being operated on what he considers to be business principles; what he does not know and will not believe, is that movies are not made according to the principles he knows and admires, but upon entirely different and sometimes curious principles. He may dislike the girls in sandals and the young men in corduroy pants who work for the Film Board, but he does not understand that they differ not simply in appearance, but in almost every important way, from the clerks in government offices. Perhaps it is well to get the Film Board away from Parliament before they succeed in driving each other mad. In Montreal we think that the Film Board might not only be more efficient, but happier.

U.S. Democrats Are Grinning

There will be a Federal election this year in the United States, with a third of the Senate seats and all of the House of Representatives to be elected. Members of the Democratic Party are confident, at the moment, that the party's position will be stronger after the election; some even predict the party will gain control of one or both Congressional bodies. It is obvious that either the Senate or the House under Democratic control could seriously handicap the Eisenhower Administration, yet the prediction might prove accurate, despite the personal popularity of President Eisenhower.

The Democrats are relying on the farm vote to regain strength. They have reason to do so. They recall that in the Presidential election in Wisconsin, farmers' cars carried slogans favouring the election of an oddly mismated pair —Democratic Leader Adlai Stevenson and Republican Senator Joseph McCarthy. Wisconsin farmers liked Stevenson for what he was, McCarthy for what he promised, which was more parity payments than even the Democrats had promised. And McCarthy was elected at the tail end of the Republican ticket with the farm vote being credited for his election.

The Eisenhower Administration, however, is not promising parity payments. Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson is calling courageously for a revision of farm price support legislation to permit flexible prices, and President Eisenhower has supported him. This program is most unpopular with the farmers, but the Administration is understandably concerned about the huge surpluses it has been forced to acquire and is now trying unsuccessfully to sell at prices which would allow it to break even. For example, the Government will own more than nine billion bales of cotton when this year's crop is in, and the situation in wheat is said to be even more critical. Storage alone is costing the Administration fourteen million dollars every month.

Republican candidates in this year's election are not likely to express support of the views of the President and the Secretary of Agriculture. But the Democrats will certainly call attention to the Administration's views — and promise farm price support. Since fourteen Senate seats and one hundred House seats represent predominantly agricultural States, a solid farm vote in these States could determine the make-up of the next Congress. This is the reason the Democrats are grinning, confidently.

Finance Minister Not There

The Victoria Times remarks that the Social Credit Bennett government of B.C. is about to enter the Legislature in a curious condition. "On the eve of the session the Finance Department is still in the hands of Mr. Gunderson, a minister twice rejected at the polls. The annual budget has been prepared and the Government's taxation policies shaped by a gentleman who . . . has no mandate from the people."

What is the matter? Is there no Social Credit member of the Legislature capable of administering British Columbia's finances? Or does the Social Credit government think that it would not be safe to have its budget-maker exposed to questions in the Legislature? The real problem may be that Social Credit is not the kind of economic philosophy whose devotees can budget properly. The Minister of Finance in Alberta seems to be able to demonstrate a sharp budgeting ability, but we suspect that it's the oil not the Social Credit economics which make Alberta's budget successful.

Parliamentary Pensions Not To Be Increased

The Government has decided not to countenance increases in parliamentary pensions and has put before Parliament a bill to amend the phrasing of the pension Act so that doubled sessional indemnities will not double the pension benefits payable to Members. The maximum pension will be $3,000 a year, as before provided. Across the country there was aversion to Members of Parliament voting themselves—through an automatic clause in the Pensions Act—retiring benefits which could have been as high as $6,000 a year. Constituents are willing to provide adequate stipends and pensions which avoid penury, but they rightly demur at pensions so generous as to be lavish; at bonuses for parliamentary service rather than a modest financial assurance that a member shall not suffer hardship because of his service.

Whiff Of Spring

Spring is in the air and underfoot today. Tomorrow it may go back again to wherever spring hibernates while the fastness of winter takes a renewed hold. But today we can whiff a hope, anyway, with the sun overhead, giving confidence that this country is not entirely lost to grace and warmth. There is a touch of March in the sky, the March Archibald Lampman described:

The sun falls warm: the southern winds awake:
The air seethes upwards with a steamy shiver:
Each dip of the road is now a crystal lake,
And every rut a little dancing river.
Through great soft clouds that sunder overhead
The deep sky breaks as pearly blue as summer . . .

A pleasant thought, but be not hasty in putting away the snow shovel, the mufflers and the budget for the furnace.

Slash!

It's hard being a man in Montreal these days, we hear. Every female looks on every male on the street with horror in her eyes. The fellow might be The Slasher. So the paradox is that because women need protection from the razor-blade maniac, men need it from the sharp gaze, nervous twitching and screams of the women. Montreal men have become pariahs. Young women pass by on the other side, or at least look the other way, and woe betide the young fellow who whistles! The situation could be restored to normal if the women took to wearing thick calf-skin leggings, the kind broncho-busters used to wear in the movies. Aluminum petticoats might be protective, too, for the duration of the scare. Another simple solution to the problem would be to nab The Slasher.

The Fabulous Chou En-Lai

By O. M. GREEN

UNDOUBTEDLY the man of hour in Asia today is the Chinese Premier and Foreign Minister, Mr. Chou En-lai.

America's Mr. John Foster Dulles may ask scornfully at the Berlin conference: "Who is this fabulous Chou En-lai whose addition to our circle would make possible all that so long has seemed impossible?" And he may describe him, accurately, as a "leader of a regime which gained de facto power though bloody war, which has liquidated millions of Chinese, which became an open aggressor in Korea and promotes aggressiveness in Indo-China." But if this were all, Chou would not be such an interesting character. It would be absurd to suggest that he rivals Mao Tse-tung, China's leader — though for some months past Mao seems to have withdrawn himself from public notice. But at one time Mao certainly knew little of foreign affairs; and it is in this sphere that Chou speaks and acts as the voice of Communist China, the most formidable Power in Asia.

✧ ✧ ✧

IF THERE is to be a great speech made—on China's right to a seat at the United Nations, on the Korean armistice, on the iniquities of the United States — Chou will make it; and while he seems to distain the coarse abusiveness of the Propaganda Bureau, no one can put more venom into fewer words.

If the North Korean commander-in-chief goes to Peking to see what he can beg; or if a Russian Minister is invited to the opening of a steel mill in Manchuria, or if a good will mission arrives from a Soviet satellite, it is Chou, not Mao, who entertains the visitors to lavish banquets and talks eloquently about the immortal friendship between his country and theirs.

✧ ✧ ✧

SINCE 1924 Chou has continuously held important posts in the Chinese Communist Party. At moments of crisis in its fortunes he has seen leading men, closely associated with himself, fall by the way, while he himself has escaped — although he had no special power, no army, usually so essential to political progress in China.

Chou had something much more valuable. For he is that most dangerous animal, a compound of the born aristocrat, Confucian scholar, Western-trained student and Marxist dialectician. He has a remarkably cool head, a strong instinct for self-preservation and uncanny skill in keeping on the right side.

✧ ✧ ✧

BORN IN 1898, descendant of a long line of Mandarins, Chou received the usual classical education of boys of his class; but at the age of fifteen he was sent to the Western-style Nankai Middle School. The Manchu Dynasty had been overthrown two years before: all the student world was afire with revolutionary ambitions, and in one of their riots Chou was seized and put in prison — where, incidentally, he met the girl whom he married five years later.

On his release he went to Paris, where in 1921 he took part in the memorable founding of the Chinese Communist Party. This was a little before a similar meeting held for the same purpose in Shanghai, and attended by Mao Tse-tung.

✧ ✧ ✧

CHOU returned to China in 1924, and gained his first important post as secretary of the Canton branch of the C.P. He was in Shanghai, organising bands of terrorists in 1927, when the Communists were overwhelmed by General Pai Chung-hsi, Chiang Kai-shek's lieutenant; but he managed to escape, and went to Moscow for a year.

Subsequently Chou was closely associated with Li Li-san, who was trying, under Moscow's instructions, to rebuild the revolution in the towns (Mao was then out of favour for pinning his faith on the peasants). Li failed, was cashiered and sent to Moscow for "re-education." Other prominent men were also ejected. But not Chou. With remarkable foresight he went over to Mao Tse-tung's side, and was appointed vice-chairman of the Politburo in the first Chinese Soviet Republic in South China.

✧ ✧ ✧

AFTER THE Communists' "Long March" to Yenan, in the north-west, in 1934, Mao, instituted another purge of the Party, and threw out some pro-Russians. Chou, though he had been closely associated with Moscow's policy, not only escaped but was appointed Minister of Foreign Affairs.

It was he who made the agreement with Chiang Kai-shek for common action against the Japanese in 1936. After the defeat of Japan he conducted the long and futile negotiations with General George Marshall for peace between Communists and Kuomintang. Neither undertaking brought him fame. But when, in October, 1949, the People's Political Consultative Conference met in Peking to proclaim the Communist Government, the Common Programme (the Communists' Constitution) was presented, and the most impressive speech made, by Chou En-lai.

✧ ✧ ✧

RAJA HUTHEESING, who had a long interview with Chou in 1952 (when the latter evaded every question with a mouthful of Communist platitudes) describes him in his book, "Window on China," as "a very handsome man" — although this description would not be endorsed by everyone.

"His suit (says Hutheesing) was perfectly tailored and his conscious elegance, coupled with mandarin grace and charm, must impress the ordinary simple country people. His well modulated voice, cultured gestures, boyish infectious laughter and twinkling eyes, grip the onlooker with a spell of his charm."

✧ ✧ ✧

YET SURELY this is the picture of a prosperous bourgeois rather than of a good Marxist? Can he, with his undoubtedly first class brain, really believe all that his post makes it necessary for him to believe? The truth is that adroitness at keeping in with the powers-that-be has been the hallmark of his career.

The king shall joy in thy strength, O Lord; and in thy salvation how greatly shall he rejoice! . . . Be thou exalted, Lord, in thine own strength: so will we sing and praise thy power. (Ps. 21:1, 13.)

A Quarter Of A Million Slaves Struck

(An Eyewitness's 'Story of Hope' from the Soviet Labour Camps)

This is the second authentic story of popular resistance in the Soviet Union. It tells of the strike of a quarter of a million prisoners in the labour camps of the Arctic Circle—a strike of slaves in a country where even free workers have no right to strike. Most startling, it tells of the nature of the opposition groups that have developed in post-war Russia and found themselves face to face in the microcosm of the camps. This second instalment concludes the account.

✧ ✧ ✧

By BRIGITTE GERLAND

IN the Soviet camps the "brigadier" is the link between slave keeper, slave driver and slave. The slave keeper is not at all like a figure out of "Uncle Tom's Cabin"—he is one of the innumerable Soviet State enterprises for coal mining, road building, etc., who hire the prisoners for sixty rubles apiece from the camp administration and are always involved in unending legal wrangles with the latter because they fail to pay. The slave driver, now called desyatnik or prorab, is a civilian employee of the Ministry of the Interior, who has come voluntarily from Russia proper or the Ukraine to earn a few roubles more in the Far North.

The brigadier, himself a prisoner, takes the slave driver's orders every morning at the place of work, and divides the jobs among his 'brigade' of prisoners. He acts as overseer when the desyatnik is busy elsewhere and uses the whole rich vocabulary of Russian swear-words to keep his men up to scratch. Such at least is the intention of the authorities—and such it was in fact for many years until the revolutionary students came and changed the system.

In the old days, the camp chief himself had selected the brigadiers, mostly members of his private spy service who then proceeded to take bribes from the rich (those who often got parcels); to harass the weak and the timid and toady to the strong. Naturally, they were generally disliked, but only the students, helped by the creation of purely political camps, found the way to get rid of them. They would tell the slave drivers: "listen Ivan Ivanovich, you will have nothing but trouble with the present brigadier. He is too stupid to cook the work reports for the administration in the right way.

✧ ✧ ✧

IF you know where your bread is buttered you should demote him for inefficiency and appoint our friend Kolya Nikolayevich instead. He will guarantee you that fifty percent of the norm will really be fulfilled, and will keep your report books so that you are never below one hundred per cent for a single day. Does that suit you?" Now, in fact, Ivan Ivanovich wants only two things—the plan fulfilled on paper, and a quiet time for himself. How could he resist such an offer? Kolya gets the job—and work begins to be tolerable.

✧ ✧ ✧

BY this type of organisation, the "True Disciples of Lenin" improved the prisoners' conditions so much that from 1950 onwards a wave of hopeful encouragement began to spread through the camps. Resignation gave place to self-confidence, hopelessness to an active search for possibilities of liberation. The exciting idea of a strike began to be discussed. "The Soviet system is so largely based on forced labor that strike movements among the prisoners would shake the foundations of the regime," some of them argued. "A strike is possible in the camps, we do not risk much once we are here—we must set an example!"

But even if the two Russian groups combined, there was one snag to any such plans: the West Ukrainians who had remained consistent "separatists" even in the camps. Almost all the Ukrainians came from the underground movement of Bandera (Ukrainian nationalist leader) and had fought four years as partisians in the woods of Galicia and Volhynia against the annexation of their homeland to the Soviet Union. Marvellous stories were told of their bravery, but it often seemed as if they had surrendered their courage along with their rifles in combat. The students and the Monashki, used to the weapons of the mind and spirit, had become more militant in contact with the harsh realities of camp life.

At any rate, while the Russians expressed their opposition by working as little as possible the Ukrainians were eagerly fulfilling their working norms; they looked down on the Russians as lazybones, while the Russians looked down on them as willing servants to the hated masters. This conflict on the most burning problem of camp life did more than any political nationalism to keep alive the antagonism between the Russians and Ukrainians. Yet those Ukrainian peasants hated the Soviet State, which had come to them as an alien conqueror and destroyed their lives, with a merciless hatred that was quite foreign to the Russian prisoners.

The Ukrainians had known nothing but their fields, their cattle and their forest camps at which they had sung their national songs, and they were quite unable to distinguish between the bearers of that intangible and abstract Soviet power which gave its deadly orders from the distant Kremlin, and the last illiterate guard who understood nothing of the purpose he served, felt thoroughly uncomfortable in his job, and expressed his attitude to the prisoners by resigned shrugs, ingratiating grins and frequent gifts of tobacco. To the Banderovtsy, anybody who wore the blue cap of the State security forces was an enemy for whom there would be no pity when the day came.

If nevertheless they worked with such frantic zeal for the hated State, the reason was simply that work had for them become a drug: having lost their horse, their soil and their plough, they now found in ceaseless digging, hoeing and stone-carrying the only source of self-respect, the only antidote against their burning home-sickness, the only content of their lives.

✧ ✧ ✧

THEN came the days when the prisoners assembled in breathless silence around the camp loudspeakers to hear the bulletins about Stalin's illness and death. The unimaginable had happened — yet public opinion was concisely expressed by a young soldier: "Well, he is dead—we shall be neither the warmer nor the colder for it."

And so it was at first. Nothing changed. True, there was an amnesty but all illusions were quickly destroyed by the announcement from General Derevenko, head of the "Reglager," that the millions of "political criminals" would not be released because they would constitute a danger to the security of the State. But when Beria fell, hope revived. Might it be possible after all to break the shackles? Again the idea of a strike sprang up, entered every discussion, could no longer be pushed aside. Strike until liberation! But would it be possible even now to get the "loyal" Ukrainians to join in?

The answer came when, in one of those July nights brilliantly lit by the midnight sun a West Ukrainian killed a notorious camp spy. Under the "law against terrorism in the camps," enacted only in March 1953, the killer was sentenced to death and shot within forty-eight hours. On the morning of the execution, the 680 Ukrainians of the little camp concerned struck spontaneously. Within a few hours, their action was the only topic in Vorquta; to the Monashki, it was a sign from Heaven. The students started to organise in feverish haste: strike committees and pickets were formed, thousands of leaflets written by hand. They called for the release of all the prisoners, who would, however, voluntarily undertake to remain as free workers and settlers in the region for another five years. The slogan was: "Prisoners, you have nothing to lose but your chains."

✧ ✧ ✧

ON July 20, 1953, seven thousand prisoners refused work in the first pit. On July 23, twenty-five pits were idle. On the 25th, all fifty were idle. The coal trains which had been crawling along in an unending chain had disappeared. Two hundred and fifty thousand prisoners—the whole active mining population and half the total inhabitants of Vorkuta, had joined the strike.

Soon State security chiefs came down from Moscow in their shining planes. At first they talked to the strikers' representatives with fatherly kindness: release, of course, was impossible, but conditions could be improved —they would be allowed to write to their families twice a month instead of twice a year, and even once a year to have a visitor . . . The prisoners were not interested. The tone of the security chiefs changed, became threatening. When that failed, the automatics took over. On August 1, one hundred and twenty strike leaders were shot. And still the strike continued.

It was still in full scale progress when I left Vorkuta on August 4 for an unnamed destination. Once again I stood at the station. From the radio loudspeaker blared some victory song. On all sides the tundra, now green and no longer white, stretched to infinity. Painted on a boarded fence of a camp that lay a little higher up there shone in enormous red letters which the guards had not succeeded in washing off, the word "Freedom." On the platform, heavily-armed soldiers jostled one another. A military train had just entered the station: new guards for Vorkuta.

Letters To The Editor

RAISE NURSES' FEES

SIR: In reference to the two appeals — Chamber of Commerce for $6,395, Nursing Registry for funds to carry on — of the two I feel that the Nursing Registry has a more deserving need. I have heard most of the arguments put forward by people who did not even read the information contained in the letter presenting the registry's case to the public.

One of them went so far as to say, "The nurses get well paid, let them look after their employment office." Well paid! One dollar per hour? Why the sweepers in the plant I work in get half as much again as that.

Those who have been forced to avail themselves of the services of a special nurse, know that the Registry can get that service when all other means are exhausted. In an emergency of that kind the Nurses' Registry is invaluable as a public service. This for the mean sum of one dollar per hour paid to the nurses that do the special nursing — Day or Night.

I am in favour of the grant to keep this service, and if the grant is not forthcoming, I would suggest that the nurses raise their fees to one dollar and fifty cents per hour. In this way they may be able, with the doctor's help, to keep this public service going.

If any professional group needs a raise it's the nurses. Doctors, politicians, etc., make themselves financially sound through increased fees in voting themselves a raise.

We talk of a shortage of nurses — maybe if the present nurses made their profession financially attractive like the foregoing, there would not be a shortage!

In reference to the Chamber of Commerce's appeal for $6,395, I feel that with the grand profits enjoyed by the merchants and industrialists of this area, they should be ashamed to call on the little men to carry their load. What if labour unions went to the City Council for grants to carry out the duties of their organizations? These organizations raise the dues when more finances are needed to do a job for their members — Let the C of C do likewise.

MYSTERIOUS MALE VOICE

SIR: Last summer I dialed a Peterborough doctor's number and asked to speak to him. A male voice informed me the doctor was out of the city and would be back on a certain date, and would I leave my name and number (which I did), and he would have him call me.

No business name — no surname was given. Needless to say, my professional indignation, along with a certain amount of suspicion, was aroused.

Who was this person to whom I was speaking? Could he be a certain alderman named by Mrs. Breckenridge who is privately operating a Telephone Answering Service (T.A.S.).

Why should he be in sympathy with the Nursing Registry?

Thank you, Mrs. Breckenridge, now I know.

HIGH PRICES

In a grocer's shop several people were waiting to be served. Suddenly the cash register went crazy, clicking wildly and ringing up the same amount twice, after which it spun out the tape without a pause.

The assistant stared in amazement, and one customer exclaimed: "Heavens! Prices are too much even for machinery now!"

CCF Platform Approved By Convention

FORT WILLIAM (CP)—Draft of a new CCF platform to be approved by the party's provincial convention in the spring was endorsed at a two-day regional conference of the CCF, provincial leader Donald C. MacDonald announced Monday.

Details of the program were not disclosed.

The conference, attended by 50 delegates, mapped out four resolutions, dealing with the highways investigation at Fort William, a proposed natural gas line to the east, Blue Cross insurance rates and a heavy transport bypass for Port Arthur.

Discussion of the Fort William division highway investigation prompted a resolution that an inquiry into accounts be conducted by commissioners appointed under the Public Enquiries Act.

On natural gas, Mr. MacDonald said the conference believed there is growing evidence that the federal and provincial governments are "selling out to private interests who desire to get in on the lush profits."

"This sell-out is going to result in double cost of natural gas for Ontario consumers," he said.

A full-scale inquiry was requested into a recently-announced 26 per cent increase in Blue Cross insurance rates.

17,000 Children Compete Art Competition

By NORMAN CLIFF

NEW DELHI (OFNS)— It is time for adults to take notice when nearly 17,000 children from forty-four countries join in a common enterprise, ignoring all dividing curtains. This is what is happening every year—only the number of participants keeps on growing—at the Children's International Art Exhibition which is organised in New Delhi. The extibition is now touring India, and only a sponsored invitation is needed to allow it to be seen in other countries.

Here is an astonishing revelation of childish imagination, dreams and talents, putting to shame the sophisticated pretentiousness of much that passes for modern art in the adult world. Doubts as to whether the delightful paintings on view could be the unaided work of children were set at rest when an "on the spot" competition was held at the exhibition grounds in New Delhi. About six hundred youngsters turned up and, sitting at small tables in the sunshine, made pictures of their choice without supervision.

STARTLING RESULTS

Children of three produced their pencils, paintboxes and crayons, and with all the solemnity of experienced artists translated their ideas into form and colour. The results were startling. One painting by a lad of ten would have earned praise for an adult artist who had spent a week perfecting it. Another Indian boy of eleven, Ronjob Sen, who started painting at the ripe age of two-and-a-half, and has been carrying off gold medals and other awards since the children's exhibition was inaugurated in 1949, sketched a number of black and white portraits of remarkable quality in a matter of hours.

In the exhibition proper the most delicate and perhaps most skilful painting was the work of Japanese children. A ten-year old Japanese girl Kyodo Mawatari, won the Indian President's gold medal for the best picture with a clever representation of "A ball game". A Dutch girl, Brita Van Den Bogart, who is only eight, was a close runner-up with a brilliant study of "A child artist at work". Contributions from Turkey, Hungary, Finland, Russia and Eire were of a particularly high standard.

NEHRU PRIZES

India's Prime Minister, Pandit Nehru, gave prizes for the best pictures in each of eleven age groups, and two of them were won by girls from Britain: one by fourteen-year-old Janice Renee Allsop, of Whalley Range High School, Manchester, with a painting entitled "At the table"; and the other by Claire McMillan, twelve years old, who apparently draws her inspiration from the Schools Museum Service at Glasgow art galley. Her picture entitled "Snowy Day" earned high praise. Another Scottish prize-winner was eleven-year-old Ian MacKenzie, of Preston St. School, Edinburgh, with his picture of "Three Jolly Fishermen". In all eighteen awards for drawing and painting were made to children from Britain, twenty-eight went to Japanese youngsters and twelve to Americans.

Eight of the young American artists who were prize-winners come from Kentucky.

In an international literary contest in English held concurrently, there were two thousand competitors. The Indian Vice-President's gold medal went to Veena Malik, fifteen year old daughter of the Indian Ambassador in Paris, for a poem entitled "Night". American children won nine prizes and children from Britain three.

New Issues Stamps More Readable

OTTAWA (CP)—The price figures on future issues of Canadian stamps will be more readable.

Postmaster - General Cote said Monday in the Commons that the figures on some stamps are not too visible, and he expressed hope that new issues now in prospect will have price tags that "we will be able to see."

He spoke in a postal debate after G. K. Fraser (PC—Peterborough West) had complained about the readability of some current issues, notably the five-cent and two-cent stamps.

Peter Lorre Breaks Some Of Film Jinx

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The title of this story is "the ghoul goes west," and concerns my favorite living Charles Addams character, Peter Lorre, who is back in filmville after a considerable absence. A little man with a large sense of humor, he takes a wry view of his own fortunes.

Lorre left town four years ago for a number of reasons. For one thing, the film business was in a slump. Also, he had long wanted to set up his own film team to make movies but couldn't manage to do it here. But most of all he wanted to escape being a Peter Lorre type.

"In England, where I went highbrow and did some readings of Edgar Allen Poe and others, they billed me as 'the world's most imitated actor,'" he reported. "And it's true, I guess. I'm easy to imitate. All you need are the soft-boiled-egg eyes and the bedroom voice. The imitators would be run out of business if it were not for myself, Edward G. Robinson, Jimmy Cagney, Ronald Colman and a few other easy marks."

TOO SCARED

He laughed about the old Spike Jones record, "My Old Flame," which featured a Lorre imitator. "Some people even said that I had come to a pretty low point when I had to do such work as that," he said. He recalled appearing on a radio show with Spike. His mimic faced Lorre and was supposed to do the number, but couldn't emit a sound. He was that scared.

Lorre's European jaunt helped him vacate the pigeonhole Hollywood had stuck him into. He realized his ambition of setting up his own production team and made "The Lost One" in Germany. It has already won a number of international awards.

He made a couple of films in England and then teamed up with his old "Maltese Falcon" pals, Humphrey Bogart and John Huston in "Beat the Devil," which was filmed in Italy.

"That one was a healthy departure from my Hollywood roles," he commented, "and so is my next picture. I'm going to do '20,000 Leagues Under the Sea' for Walt Disney, and the role is not a heavy at all."

CFA-Cabinet To Meet

OTTAWA (CP)—Representatives of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture and members of the cabinet will hold their annual meeting Feb. 19. They will discuss proposals made at the recent CFA convention, including one that the Canadian wheat board market flax and rye as well as other grains.

MONUMENT TO AIRMEN—During the Queen's forthcoming visit to Malta on her present Commonwealth tour she will unveil this memorial to 2,300 officers and men of the Commonwealth air forces who lost their lives in the central Mediterranean area in the Second World War and have no graves. The memorial, a seven-foot, nine-inch gilded bronze eagle, will surmount a 39-foot column in Valletta, the capital of the island.—(CP from U.K. Information).

Photographer Dies

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Robert Darragh, operator of a photographic studio here for 35 years, died Monday. He was president of the Ontario Society of Photographers in 1946 and was an honorary life member of the society. Born in Milton, he moved here 35 years ago and retired in 1947.

Triple Shift Expected Among Canadian Envoys

By DAVE McINTOSH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—A triple shift in Canada's representations abroad is expected within the next few months.

Hon. Robert W. Mayhew, 73, is believed ready to retire. He now is Canadian ambassador to Tokyo, a post he has held for more than a year.

He probably will be succeeded in Japan by Hon. Thomas C. Davis, 64, Canadian ambassador to West Germany who has served previously in the Far East.

The Bonn post is expected to go to C. A. S. Ritchie, 47, now special ambassador and chief adviser to Prime Minister St. Laurent on his world tour.

His appointment to Bonn would signify Canada's growing concern with one of the West's major cold-war problems—what to do about Germany.

Mr. Mayhew, a native of Cobden, Ont., has been in public life for more than 20 years. In 1933, he was elected reeve of Oak Bay, near Victoria, and became a member of Parliament in 1937. He was minister of fisheries from 1948 until 1952, when he went to Tokyo as Canadian ambassador.

SERVED IN CHINA

Mr. Davis, a native of Prince Albert, Sask., was called to the Saskatchewan bar in 1915. After three years as mayor of Prince Albert, he was elected to the Saskatchewan Legislature and was appointed first municipal affairs minister and later attorney-general.

He became a justice of the Saskatchewan appeal court in 1939, associate deputy minister of national war services in Ottawa in 1940 and high commissioner to Australia in 1942. From 1947 to 1949, he was Canadian ambassador to Nationalist China and went to Bonn in 1950.

Mr. Ritchie, a native of Halifax, joined the external affairs department in 1934 and has since served in Washington, London and Paris.

Reserve Decision Picket Quarrel

TORONTO (CP)—Judgment was reserved Monday on an application by Smith Brothers Construction Company for an interim injunction to restrain picketing which has stopped work on four Niagara peninsula building projects.

The pickets, members of Local 713, United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners (AFL), have halted work on a crippled children's camp near Port Colborne, a federal building at Ridgeway and alterations to the Bank of Montreal building at Niagara Falls.

Work also has stopped at the Welland plant of North American Cyanamid although there is no picketing. The projects involve work estimated to cost about $500,000.

The Ontario labor relations board has ruled the walkouts illegal. The union has not been certified nor applied for certification.

S. S. MacInnes counsel for the company, claimed the picketing was unlawful but Allan Goodman, counsel for the pickets said "peaceful picketing" is always lawful.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Some of us were talking the other day about strenuous sports, and most agreed that hockey is not the hardest, by not means. Skating is much more effortless than running, therefore lacrosse and track take more out of a competitor. Football definitely is a hard-hitting game, too, while speedy sports like basketball, tennis and badminton feature fellows and femmes going around in short pants. Real perspiration producers. Boxing is another business where one takes a lot of punishment as well as handing it out. Yet we feel that toughest grind is swimming, especially distance swimming. Because the water is not man's natural habitat and it takes tremendous muscular energy to go a comparatively short distance at a slow speed.

Some years ago we were out on the West Coast and took a boat trip from Long Beach over to Catalina Islands. It followed the route which George Young of Canada swam in his famous Wrigley water marathon nearly a decade before. A distance of 25 miles, we believe, straight ahead, but he had to ride waves which frequently rolled as high as a house. A two-storey house. It was so choppy on our crossing that the heavy glasses danced a continuous jig on the bar, and some folks became sea-sick ere the sound of the Catalina's band's welcoming guitars was heard. And we though: George Young, you sure earned that $10,000 for doing this the hard way.

Petes Pretty Well Set

TPT Petes travel tonight to Orillia for their last scheduled tilt there, and they entertain Oshawa here Friday in senior "B" puck play. They're tied atop with Oshawa now, two and a half games up on Kingston and Orillia, and seem assured of a playoff spot by month's end. Belleville have a well-nigh hopeless task of reaching the charmed circle as the schedule starts to peter out. Looks like the four top teams will be jockeying for positions the next three weeks. First team plays off with the fourth in semi-finals, the second and third meeting in the other bracket as March is ushered in. Best-of-five sets, finals being best-of-seven. Winner probably hits into Ontario semi-finals.

* * * * * *

Loop statistician George Carver of Belleville lists the top 10 snipers to date. Erwin Duncan of B's has 60 points, one more than Kingston's Murray. Payne of Pontiacs follows with 55, one in front of Ed Duncan, Chum Fryia of Petes has 51, MacGregor 49, Gus Leonard of the TPT-ers 48, and then Orillia's Bowen with 47 and Favero with 44, one in front of Petes' Toodie Greenlaw. Etcher of Oshawa and Partis of Kingston have 40 each. These marks include the Feb. 5 games. He also forwards the Petes' scoring list up to and including Jan. 30, and we publish it elsewhere today. Fryia, Leonard, Greenlaw, Redmond, Hill, McMaster, Peterson, Prentice, Belisle and Montgomery lead in that order with 20 or more points. Fryia is high on goals and Leonard tops with assists. Redmond has sinned most, with McMaster and Monty next high in penalties served.

Put Cookies in Oven

Gary Kearns was hotter than the south end of a firefly heading north as he scored six goals and aided on three more here last eve. He sparked the Junior Petes to a 14-4 OHA victory o'er Lindsay, snuffing out the Scugog squad's chances of making a playoff spot. So, it'll be Junior Petes vs. Port Perry in junior "B" group finals, probably starting next week. Local lads wind up their schedule with a tussle in Midland this Thursday. Other prominent on the home attack last gloaming were Bill Twist, Paul Doris, Gord Coyle, Jim Morrow, Bud McDougall and Murray Byrne. Strong in goal was Bob Delahey for the group leaders. A so-so crowd saw the lively and rough tilt, 22 penalties being handed out and several fights threatening, besides the one that did occur.

If any of his friends here wish to drop a line to Ike Hildebrand they can reach him for the next month or so at Room 501, Wellesley Hospital, Toronto. He's through with hockey for the rest of this season and is not likely to be playing lacrosse for the Petes' Trailermen comes summer. Talking to Bob Peirson by phone yesterday, the Hawks' forward said he received three breaks in the leg during the NHL game in Toronto on Saturday night, and it would be a month or more ere he was hobbling around on crutches. Mike Costello, keen Mimico foller of the local lacrossers, was visiting Ike at the time of the phone call. In his NHL debut this brief season, for him, Hildebrand scored 18 points, leading such chaps as Beliveau, Migay, Mortson, Leswick, Dewsbury, St. Laurent, Goldham, Nesterenko and many more loop regulars.

OSHAWA (CP) — Mrs. C. S. Robertson of Toronto Granites, three-time winner of the premier event in the annual Ladies' Bonspiel here, won both her games Monday to advance into the third round of the fifth annual bonspiel.

She won her first game with an outstanding comeback that gave her an 11-9 decision over Mrs. M. McCartney's Peterborough rink.

Lakefield Wins OHA Tussle Over Cobourg

LAKEFIELD (ENS)—The Lakefield Lumbermen came up with another OHA intermediate "A" lakeshore victory here last night as they pulled out a 2-1 triumph over Cobourg Ghos s before a fair-sized crowd. In a fast, tight fray, 15 penalties were handed out, including majors in the second period to McKeen and Hunter for fighting. It was much cleaner in the last chapter.

Caravaggio put the Lumbermen up early in the initial inning on a neat play with Hunter and Reid. Alexander served a boarding penalty and then Cobourg tied it up on a Flesch shot from Fisher close in. D. Wasson was gated for elbowing, with Floyd ragging neatly. Birch went over for cross-checking, McKeen following for tripping and then McCracken for boarding. It kept rough, and J. Fisher and Birch got it for high-sticking. Wilson and Alexander followed suit for a similar ofefnce.

GOT THE WINNER

Lakefield got the eventual winning tally in the second with Caravaggio snaring his second marker, Hunter again aiding. D. Wasson went over for elbowing in this period, and McKeen and Hunter drew majors for mixing it. Harding and Reeves drew the nod for high-sticking as the penalty parade continued.

Play was much cleaner in the scoreless third heat, with both sides playing smart hockey. The fans kicked at one call when a Lakefield goal was disallowed, as they felt there should have been a delayed penalty.

Caravaggio, Floyd, McCracken, Hunter and Harding stood out for the victors, and they have the strongest defence in the loop, D. Wasson and Richlark shining again last night. Sommerville was tough to beat, too, in the visitors' net.

Teams:

Cobourg: goal, Sommerville; defence, McKeen, Flesch; centre, Wilcox; wings, J. Fisher, D. Fisher; alts., Reeves, Johnson; Ham, Stevenson, Alexander, Campbell, Legrow, Irvine, Huffman.

Lakefield: goal, Harding; defence, D. Wasson, Richlark; centre, Birch; wings, Hopkins, C. Wasson; alts.: Wilson, McCracken, Reid, Floyd, N. Wasson, Hunter, Caravaggio.

Curling News

By HERB MARTIN

Two ladies' rinks and two men's rinks from Lakefield motored down yesterday afternoon and enjoyed a game of curling on artificial ice.

We believe there is a movement on foot to re-organize curling in Lakefield. And what a grand thing that would be. Now that there is curling in Keene and Norwood, it would certainly seem like old times again to have these clubs entering rinks in local bonspiels.

Away back in the early '20s we could depend on wonderful support from these clubs—and we need that support now, and they need us. Let's hope that this latest move in Lakefield goes over in big style. Norwood and Keene did it. Why not Lakefield?

Up in Midland, on Saturday, Vic Brown, Fred Stenson, Jack Smith and D. Gerolomy came home with first prize.

Two rinks from our men's club are entered in the Ontario open bonspiel at Toronto, beginning next Monday morning. The rinks are:

A. Rutter, E. Braund, A. Winslow, G. Braund, skip.

C. Campbell, Dr. R. Smyth, H. Bradburn, Dr. M. McCartney, skip.

Our open bonspiel gets away at nine o'clock tomorrow morning—and we are going to use this old, worn-out hint: "Please be on time."

Canadiens Suffer Most Injuries In National Hockey League

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Canadiens have the unenviable distinction of being the most injury-beset club in the National Hockey League, a statistical review by the league showed today.

Since the start of the 1947-48 season to the two-thirds mark of the current campaign, the number of player-games missed by Montreal players stands at 871. In contrast, players of Detroit Red Wings have lost only 264 games.

The compilation is based on records of the National Hockey League Pension Society, which was formed Oct. 1, 1947. These records are computed game by game.

Total number of games missed through injuries during the six and two-thirds seasons is 3,613 for all six clubs in the league. The missed player-games are figured in this manner: If two players miss a game because of injuries, two missed games are recorded; three players, three games, etc.

In order behind Montreal's 871 are: Toronto Maple Leafs, 692; New York Rangers, 680; Boston Bruins, 605; Chicago Black Hawks, 501, and Detroit Red Wings, 264.

At Jan. 27, the two-thirds point, Montreal's missed player-games stood at 104 and Detroit's at only seven. Boston had 87, Toronto 82, New York 60 and Chicago 20.

The worst season was 1951-52 when 645 games were missed. Heaviest full-season loss for one team was 202 in 1950-51, suffered by Chicago. The Black Hawks also hold the record for the least injured—only 13 missed games in the 1952-53 season.

The league's review doesn't attempt to explain the wide variations but poses such questions as whether styles of play and training camp routine have any bearing. The review says the Red Wings are always the first club to open fall training camp and have a heavy schedule of exhibition games prior to the NHL opening.

Will Sign On New Goalie

BARRIE (CP) — Hap Emms, coach of Barrie Flyers of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series, said Monday he has received permission from the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association to sign another netminder.

Barrie's regular goalkeeper, Jack Spencer, was injured in a game with St. Catharines TeePees last Friday and will be out for the rest of the season. He suffered a fractured skull when he was hit on the forehead by a puck.

Emms said he doesn't know yet who the new netminder will be. Barry Smith, a junior B goalie, has been filling in.

Newcombe Back With Dodgers

BROOKLYN (AP) — Don Newcombe, Brooklyn Dodgers' "pennant insurance" for 1954, celebrated his release from the United States Army Monday by returning his signed contract to the Dodgers.

Disclosing that the giant Negro pitcher had telephoned him earlier with the glad tidings, Dodger vice-president E. J. (Buzzie) Bavasi did not announce terms of the contract.

"Don got a well deserved raise," Bavasi said. "He's had the contract for some time now but couldn't sign it until he was discharged from service."

Newcombe won 20 games and lost nine in 1951 when the Dodgers were nosed out of the National League pennant by New York Giants in a three-game playoff.

Junior Petes Erase Lindsay In 14-4 Puck Windup As Gary Kearns Scores Six

Blasting out a 14-4 OHA junior "B" victory here last night, the Junior Petes eliminated Lindsay from further hockey contention this season, winding up the home season of scheduled frays for Red Creighton's group leaders. They have a tilt in Midland on Thursday to end the schedule, and will then prepare for group finals against Port Perry. The loss to Lindsay killed off any chance they had of making a playoff spot. After a scoreless first frame, the Junior Petes racked up a 6-1 margin in the middle heat, and outscored their Scugog rivals 8-3 in the hectic third chapter. Play was speedy most of the route, and rough enough.

ROUGH ENOUGH

Referee Jim Crombie handed out 22 penalties, 12 of them to the winners. His sentences included majors for fighting to Snape and Teal, a first-period misconduct to Packer of Lindsay, and a match misconduct to the same player in the final minute of play when Packer used profanity directed at the referee for getting a slashing penalty.

Gary Kearns was outstanding on the attack for the victors as he slapped in six goals, and helped on three more for nine points in a stellar performance. He nearly notched several more, being plain poison around the Lindsay net. He scored five goals in the third period, getting the last three markers for his side in the game.

Bill Twist and Bud McDougall each scored a pair, singles going to Murray Byrne, Paul Doris, Tim Hook and Clare Ferguson. Three assists each were marked to Doris, Coyle and Morrow, while John Pue helped on two, and Hook and Twist one apiece.

SCORED PAIR

Traux tallied twice for the losers with Hutton and Graham getting the other goals. Hutton also had a pair of assists, and Packer one. Goalie Kemp made a lot of nice saves for the losers, especially in the first half before his mates faded under the powerful pressure applied by the Junior Petes. Bob Delahey turned aside plenty of hot rubber in the home cage, or Lindsay might well have had half a dozen more markers.

There was no scoring in the initial heat. Packer drew an early penalty for cross-checking and had a misconduct tagged on for lip. Byrne went over for holding and Kearns followed for high-sticking. Gardner followed for boarding and they were shy two for two minutes. Later on Delahey got it for high-sticking, Growden going next for interference, and then Graham and Doris for roughing.

OPENED SCORING

Twist scored the first goal in the stanza on a play begun by Pue and finished neatly. McDougall was off for slashing when Byrne blazed a blue-line blast by Kemp, Morrow getting the assist. Gardner was gated for interference and Graham evened the score from Hutton. Doris got it right back on Kearns' pass, and then Hook tallied on a play with Pue and Kearns. The latter added another from Hook and Twist. Packer climbed the wall for elbowing, as Byrne got it for cross-checking. McDougall made the count 6-1 from Coyle near the close.

Frizzelle drew the finger in the third for cross-checking, and then Truax and Twist followed for a high-sticking duel. Cochrane was chased for kneeing. Twist returned to pick up a drop pass from Morrow on a play started by Coyle to count one. Kearns cuffed home two quickies then, Doris helping on one. Ferguson racked up the count on a neat play with Kearns next. Twist went over for roughing and, after Hutton scored a solo, Teal and Snape threw fists to draw majors. Truax scored two in a row for Lindsay, Hutton and Packer aiding on the first. The Petes then caught fire to slam home four in a row. McDougall got the first batch with Morrow and Coyle, and then Gary Kearns pulled the hat-trick for three. Doris helped him on two, but he wound his feat up with a solo effort on the final marker of the fray. Packer was waved away for slashing at 19.40 and he swore loudly at the referee and was given a match misconduct.

JUNIORS' MANAGER—Dootch Vitarelli, former senior "B" puck star, has taken over the job of managing the Junior Petes in OHA Jr. "B" competition, working with Coach Red Creighton.

Sarnia Schoolboy Rink Ready For Competition

By FRED WHEELER

SARNIA, Ont. (CP)—Ontario's entry in the Dominion schoolboy curling championship opening at Hamilton Feb. 22 will fight fire with fire when it clashes with western rinks.

The Sarnia rink skipped by 17-year-old Bill Fraser uses the western style of long-sliding delivery, but is also proficient at draw or take-out style. It was the rink's draw game that gave it a 15-5 victory over Owen Sound in the provincial finals at Toronto Jan. 31. It downed Oshawa 10-9 and Orillia 19-1 in earlier play.

VETERAN COACH

The western-style delivery was taught by coach M. J. Chilton, veteran skip from the Sarnia Curling Club. Chilton has been chairman of the schoolboy curling organization here for six years and now is coaching 30 boys.

Other members of the Sarnia team are lead Rod Brown, 18, second Ed Fraser, 18, and vice-skip Carl Madery, 19. All are students at the Sarnia Collegiate Institute and Technical School.

Skip Bill Fraser is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Irwin Fraser. He has been curling for three years. His father was a halfback with University of Western Ontario football clubs from 1928 to 1931 and was a member of Sarnia Imperials who won the Grey Cup in 1934.

Brown, also an ardent golfer, has been at the curling game for two years. His father, Roy Brown, was a halfback with the mustangs and Sarnia Imperial clubs in the late 1920s and early 1930s. He managed the 1936 Imperial Club which won for Sarnia its second Grey Cup.

NO RELATION

Ed Fraser, no relation to the skip, has been curling for three years. His father Jack Fraser was in his youth a prominent softball and hockey player. Ed has played football for Sarnia Collegiate Blue Devils.

Madery, also a collegiate football player, has been curling for three years. His father, Vaughn Madery, played for Petrolia Hard Oil football teams in the 1920s.

Schoolboy curling in Sarnia was started seven years ago by W. A. Watson, a past president of the Ontario Curling Association, and W. H. Kenny. Annual competition is held for the Lucas Trophy, donated by Fred Lucas of Toronto, a past president of the Dominion Curling Association, and his brother Gordon of Sarnia.

CURLING CHAMPIONS—Ontario's entry in the Dominion Schoolboy Curling championships at Hamilton, February 22, is the Sarnia rink skipped by Bill Fraser (second from left). It won the provincial title at Toronto using the western style of long-sliding delivery. Left to right: Ed Fraser, second; Fraser; Carl Madery, vice-skip, and Rod Brown, lead.

THE Calvert SPORTS COLUMN

by Elmer Ferguson

This is a week which should furnish memories, good and bad, but certainly vivid, for the greatest heavyweight warrior of modern times, the Manassa Mauler, Jack Dempsey.

On February 13, 1917, Jack Dempsey suffered the only knockout defeat of his career, when Fireman Jim Flynn, a rough, tough character out of Pueblo, Colorado, flattened him with one devastating punch. But on February 14, 1918, a Dempsey who had found himself and was whirling upward took ample revenge. He dropped his erstwhile conqueror, also with a single punch, in a match that was scheduled for 10 rounds, but went only a small fraction of one.

"I wasn't much more than a middleweight the first time I boxed Fireman Flynn" Dempsey told me years later. "I was 22 years old. (Dempsey was born June 24, 1895.) I didn't know much about boxing, really. I started fighting in 1915, won some fights under the name of Kid Blackie, some more under my own name. But I was just a journeyman fighter, not too much interested in the trade. And when I was knocked out by Flynn, a powerful fellow and a cagey fighter who kenw much too much for me, I was just on the verge of quitting the ring game entirely.

"Then Jack Kearns came along. Under Kearns I learned how to fight, how to box a little; how to use a left hand. Then I began to really fight. I found a style, a bob-and-weave type of fighting that was something different. I scored a lot of knockouts, lost a decision to Willie Meehan, but I was on my way, taking on bigger and better foes."

The fact is that the miraculous Dempsey fought for four years before he finally began to look like somebody of importance. In his early days he had some terrific fights with specimens like the burly Negro John Lester Johnson, Battling Jim Johnson, Andre Anderson, Wild Bert Kenney, Andy Malloy and many other tough foes. Some of his battles lasted 20 rounds.

His later battles are still remembered as epics, the mad assault on the giant Jess Willard, the furious melee with Luis Angel Firpo, the Wild Bull of the Pampas, and those two fights with Gene Tunney in which Dempsey made more friends in defeat than he ever had in victory.

That's the fantastic Dempsey story, one of the great legends of sport in our times, a legend we recall, because this is the anniversary of the week when he was on the verge of giving up the game in which he became an unforgettable figure.

Canadiens' Richard Still Big Scorer After Twelve Years

MONTREAL (CP)—If Maurice (Rocket) Richard keeps to his present goal-getting clip he will have a total of 43 at the end of the current National Hockey League season. Montreal Canadiens' 32-year-old right-winger, now in his 12th campaign, is still showing oldsters and youngsters alike the art of putting the puck into the net. This is the sixth season in his career he has scored 30 goals or more. In 52 games this season the Rocket has fired 32 goals, an average of .615 a game. That's the pace he maintained the 1948-49 campaign when he scored 43 goals in the full 70-game season.

Richard's record-making all time total, now at 379, is far ahead of any other active player in the NHL.

However, Gordie Howe of Detroit Red Wings is showing the way to the Rocket and all others in the tussle for this season's point-scoring honors. The NHL's official statistics, released today, show Howe with 58 points, made up of 21 goals and 37 assists. Richard has only 20 assists to put with his 32 goals and trails Howe by six points.

Howe failed to score in three games last week but picked up four assists, while Richard's point-making was confined to three goals in three games.

Ted Lindsay, also of Detroit, highest point-getter with two goals and three assists, slipped into third place with 47 points, one more than Bernie Geoffrion of Montreal.

Red Kelly of Detroit, with two goals and two assists, moved into a fifth-place tie with his teammate, Earl (Dutch) Reibel, who had one and one. Each now has 41 points. Ken Mosdell of Montreal, with three assists for a 39 total, stepped up from eighth to seventh place displacing Ed Sandford of Boston Bruins who went pointless.

REGAIN POSITION

The league-leading Detroit Red Wings stretched their margin another point by winning two games and tying one—all with Boston Bruins—for five of a possible six points. Canadiens and Toronto Maple Leafs each won two of three, and in the process Canadiens lost and regained second place. Canadiens, with 61 points, trail Detroit by nine and are only one point ahead of the Leafs, who have two games in hand.

The close battle for fourth place, last playoff spot, continues between Boston Bruins and New York Rangers. Glad to be finished with that three-game series with Detroit, in which they salvaged only one point the Bruins managed to hold on to fourth place. They have a two-point margin over the Rangers, who defeated the cellar-dwelling Chicago Black Hawks but then lost two in a row to Montreal.

Harry Lumley of Toronto Leafs lost ground to Terry Sawchuk of Detroit in the goaltenders' little feud. Lumley still leads, with a goals-against average of 1.68 to Sawchuk's 1.73. But a week ago Sawchuk had 1.83 and Lumley 1.70. Gerry McNeil of Montreal holds third place easily with 2.15.

Ed Furgol Beats Golf Ex-Champ

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Cary Middlecoff blew a two-stroke lead on the 18th hole and under-dog Ed Furgol came on to defeat the former U.S. Open champion on the 19th in their playoff for the $2,000 top money of the Phoenix open golf tournament Monday.

The 36-year-old Furgol from St. Louis, Mo., shot a conceded birdie four on the sudden-death extra hole while Middlecoff had a six to lose the playoff. Both shot par 71s for the 18 holes.

Furgol had never won a major tournament.

AUSTRALIAN BUSHMEN DO NOT WEAR HEARING AIDS!

HEARING AIDS represent progress in civilization. They are a badge of intelligence and consideration on the part of the wearer, and that's too much to expect of an Australian Bushman.

Now here's the important question: Are you or some hard-of-hearing friend acting like a Bushman by not wearing a hearing aid?

Some people in our highly civilized society refuse to wear a hearing aid because of their enslavement to false personal vanity. These otherwise intelligent men and women think that they can hide their hearing loss. They don't realize, or want to admit, that their deficient hearing is obvious—and a tremendous burden—to friends and associates who have to repeat and shout to make themselves understood. Their deafness is more obvious without a hearing aid than with one.

Because they cannot hear, these people give the impression that they are dull and backward . . . many lose their friends . . . lose their jobs . . . even jeopardize their lives and the lives of others because while driving autos and crossing roads they miss the warning sounds and signals that guide us safely through everyday life.

We are sure you'll agree: that's an enormous price to pay for false vanity!

If you have been a "hesitant" hard-of-hearing person, we urge you to join the hundreds of thousands of progressive people wearing Zenith Hearing Aids. You will be helping yourself to a fuller, happier life. And you will be removing the burden of your hearing loss from others around you—they will appreciate your consideration.

NEW 3-TRANSISTOR ZENITH "ROYAL-T"® IS CANADA'S GREATLY-WANTED HEARING AID

One tiny, 18¢ "A" battery operates the entire aid for a full month in average use—no "B" battery, no tubes! Only $135 (bone conduction accessory at moderate extra cost). 10-Day Money-Back Guarantee. You can't buy a better hearing aid at any price...ask any Zenith owner.

Positions Still Unsettled In OHA Final Series

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Two weeks from Wednesday the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series winds up its 1953-54 schedule and that's about the only sure thing in the league.

First place is still a toss-up but Owen Sound Mercurys, who are tied for the top rung with Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen, appear to have the inside track.

The Mercurys have 11 games left while Kitchener has eight. And if home ice is any advantage the Mercurys have a greater advantage. Six of their 11 games are in Owen Sound. The Dutchmen play three at home and five on the road.

The Mercurys have a chance to slip into sole possession of first place tonight when they play the last-place Niagara Falls Cataracts in Owen Sound. The Dutchmen are idle.

Chatham Maroons, who dropped a 2-1 decision to the Indians in Stratford during Monday night's only game, play the Bulldogs in Windsor tonight.

INDIANS MOVE UP

Stratford's victory over the Maroons moved them to within three points of the fourth-place Bulldogs. The Indians outplayed Chatham in the first period when Fred Pletsch and Billy Flick gave them a 2-0 lead.

After a scoreless second period Jim Campbell narrowed the margin to 2-1 but the Maroons couldn't get the tying goal.

In a single Northern Ontario Hockey Association Senior A southern group contest Ed Harrison counted twice in overtime to give Sudbury Wolves a 7-6 victory over Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Greyhounds in Sudbury.

Mauno Kauppi also scored twice for the Wolves. Lennie Speck and Red Barrett notched singles. Terry Biocchi, Jim McBurney and Johnny Ubriaco were the snipers for the Greyhounds.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Indians play the Trappers at North Bay tonight.

May Take Over Coaching Eskies

EDMONTON (CP) — Bill Meek, head football coach at Kansas State, met here Monday with officials of Edmonton Eskimos of the Western Interprovincial Football Union on the possibility of his succeeding Darrell Royal as coach of the Eskimos.

Various meetings were held throughout the day and evening, Eskimo officials said. A statement may be issued later.

"He wasn't signed," said an official. "You don't sign a coach in 10 minutes."

Meek, like Royal, an exponent of the split-T formation, was in Edmonton on a "look-see" basis.

He left Edmonton by plane at midnight to return to Kansas State.

Last year he led Kansas to its first successful season since 1934.

England Chasing West Indies Total

BRIDGETOWN, Barbados (Reuters)—England's cricketers, chasing a West Indies total of 383, lost two first-innings wickets for 53 runs before rain ended the second day's play in the second test match here Monday.

Once again it was the little spin bowler, Sonny Ramadhin, who struck the blows for the West Indies. With the total at 35, he dismissed Willie Watson and 10 runs later he had Peter May caught.

West Indies won the first test by 140 runs.

In a friendly match completed before the second test, the tourists defeated the Barbados eleven by one wicket. Barbados scored 389 and 179 while England scored 373 and 196 for nine wickets.

100-9 Favorite Grand National

LONDON (AP)—Irish Lizard, an 11-year-old jumper owned by Lord Sefton, Monday night was made the 100-to-9 favorite for the March 27 Grand National steeplechase.

Irish Lizard finished third in the gruelling race of four miles, 856 yards last year which was won by J. H. Griffin's Early Mist. Early Mist, a nine-year-old gelding, shared the second favorite's role with Coneburrow at 100 to 8.

Bookmakers at the preliminary call-over at the Victoria Club liked Irish Lizard because of his light weight impost. He will carry 145 pounds, Early Mist 168.

Other odds quoted included:

Queen's Taste and Whispering Steel, 100-6; Ordnance and Royal Tan, 20-1; Mont Tremblant, 22-1; Legal Joy, Mr. Cippendale, Clearing Tudor Line and Wot No Sun, 25-1; Glen Fire, Southern Coup and Stormhead, 33-1; Overshadow and Knock Hard, 40-1.

Corriveau Heads Scoring Race In Quebec Loop

MONTREAL (CP)—Andre Corriveau of Valleyfield was held off the score-sheet during last week's play in the Quebec Hockey League but he still heads the scoring race by eight points.

The 135-pound speedster, who missed a week's play with the Braves three weeks ago to try out with Montreal Canadiens, has 31 goals and 39 assists for 70 points in the 51 games he has played. Another tiny player, Skippy Burchell of Montreal Royals, is in second place with 21 goals and 41 assists for 62 points.

Rip Riopelle of Ottawa Senators leads the league in assists with 43. He also has 17 goals for a total of 60 points, good for third place in the standings.

ONE POINT BEHIND

One point behind Riopelle is team-mate Leo Gravelle, former Montreal and Detroit player in the National Hockey League. Gravelle is the top goal-getter with 35, four more than Corriveau.

Ray Frederick of Ottawa, purchased by Toronto Maple Leafs of the NHL, is the top goalie with a goals-against average of 2:62. Bob Perreault of Montreal is second with a 2:82 average. Frederick also has eight shutouts.

Bep Guidolin, Ottawa forward, is the league's badman with 134 minutes in penalties.

Sullivan Leads Scoring Race

NEW YORK (CP) — George (Red) Sullivan of Hershey Bears opened a three-point gap over his nearest competitor this week in the American Hockey League scoring race.

Sullivan's 20 goals and 54 assists were good for 74 points, three more than Eddie Olson and Jackie Gordon of Cleveland Barons.

Harry Pidhirny of Syracuse Warriors remained the AHL's top sniper while Sullivan's 54 assists also were best in the league.

Rambunctious Larry Cahan of Pittsburgh Hornets ran his league-leading penalty total to 129 minutes.

Jacques Plante of Buffalo owned the best goal-tending average, 2.74 goals a game scored against him. Cleveland's Emile (The Cat) Francis had the most shutouts, four.

Ray Frederick Sold To Toronto Leafs

OTTAWA (CP)—T. P. Gorman, owner of Ottawa Senators of the Quebec Hockey League announced the sale of netminder Ray Frederick to the Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League.

This is Frederick's second year with the Senators. He leads the QHL goalies with eight shutouts to his credit. He will stay with the Senators for the remainder of the season unless Leafs' Harry Lumley suffers injuries.

STICKS WITH DOG—Mrs. Elsie Scheithauer, 36-year-old German immigrant who landed in Halifax en route to join her husband at Edmonton, refuses to leave her pet Dalmatian "Mushie" who was placed in port quarantine for 90 days under immigration rules. She said the dog would "die for sure without me." Mrs. Scheitauer vows she won't join her husband in Edmonton until the dog is freed. An Edmonton veterinary is trying to arrange for the dog to be shipped westward without waiting the usual 90 days.—(CP Photo).

CNR Workers Laid Off

OTTAWA (CP)— The Canadian National Railways has laid off 312 mechanical department employees in the Atlantic region since last October.

In a reply tabled Monday in the Commons to questions asked by Henry J. Murphy (L—Westmorland), Transport Minister Chevrier said the duration of the layoffs will be "determined by business requirements."

Of the total, 240 were from the railway's shops at Moncton, N.B.

Asked if there are any more layoffs to come, the minister said staff requirements are affected by business conditions.

No Objection Canadian War Effort In Korea

OTTAWA (CP) — External Affairs Minister Pearson said Monday there has never been any objection from the United States government concerning the size of Canada's war effort in Korea.

But he declined in the Commons to comment on a speech by Senator William F. Knowland (Rep.-Calif.), U.S. Senate majority leader, at Washington Saturday.

Senator Knowland was quoted as saying that the United States had furnished 90 per cent of the United Nations forces in Korea and that this was "not a fair distribution."

It would be a disservice, Senator Knowland was quoted as saying, if "we let our Allies believe that we approved that performance."

"I wish all our Allies were as stout as the Turks and the South Koreans," he was reported to have said.

Mr. Pearson was asked by John Diefenbaker (PC—Prince Albert), opposition external affairs spokesman if he would care to comment.

Though there was no official comment, some government authorities were known to be annoyed, if not shocked, at Senator Knowland's statement.

Peterborough Gladioli Show Reviewed In Magazine

The 1954 review of the Canadian Gladiolus Society includes an account of the provincial show for juniors in Peterborough last August, by Bud Lloyd, chairman of the junior section of the Peterborough gladiolus growers.

Mr. Lloyd wrote that this was the greatest number of junior gladiolus exhibitors ever brought together under one roof in Canada. The local committee is encouraging the young "glad" growers with gifts of valuable bulbs by seniors of the district such as Ed Summers, Bowmanville, agricultural representative in Durham; John Buckley and Fred Storey of Peterborough. There is also a program of judging contests for them and demonstrations of floral arrangements.

For this year's distribution, which will be in March, John Buckley is presenting 2,000 corms, Fred Storey 1,000 and Mr. Summers 100 extra-specials. Groups who are to receive the bulbs are juniors at Omemee, Millbrook, Lakefield, Norwood, Keene, Peterborough.

With Mr. Lloyd on the committee are: Mrs. A. Wade, Mrs. George Duncan, Mrs. Chris Plunkett, Clifford Brien, Fred Storey and John Buckley.

Says Ritchie Was Coached To Give Answers To Police

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—The woman who lived with Donald Ritchie as his wife Monday issued a statement that Ritchie was coached by a private investigator paid by the United Automobile Workers' union when he named four men involved in the attempted murder of Walter Reuther.

The CIO and UAW president suffered severe wounds from a shotgun blast through his kitchen window in 1948.

In an affidavit to Joseph W. Louisell, Detroit lawyer defending Carl Renda, one of the men named by Ritchie, Betty White of Windsor said Ritchie was coached by Sam Henderson in answers he gave Detroit officers during a week of questioning.

The 33-year-old Canadian named his uncle, Clarence Jacobs of Windsor, as trigger man in the attempt. Others named were Renda, Santo (Sam) Perrone of Detroit and Pete Lombardo. Lombardo is serving a prison term and Perrone is at large. Renda will come up for another hearing in March.

Ritchie, a Windsor native, is scheduled for extradition hearing on a charge of attempted murder Feb. 16. Jacobs faces extradition on the same charge Feb. 17.

KNEW OF ARRANGEMENT

The statement by Miss White claimed Wayne county (Mich.) prosecutor Gerald K. O'Brien had full knowledge of the arrangement by which the UAW paid Ritchie $5,000 for the information. Ritchie walked out of the Detroit hotel where he was questioned and, using the money, led police a merry chase across Ontario before his capture.

Bernard Cohn, Ritchie's attorney, served notice of motion Monday demanding the state of Michigan produce any statements made by Ritchie concerning the attempt on Reuther's life. The demand asked that Cohn be allowed to see the statements and copy them. It was served on crown attorney Bruce Macdonald who will act for Michigan at the hearing.

Miss White claimed the contract between Ritchie and the union was reviewed in a Windsor hotel with Henderson and O'Brien in attendance. O'Brien said the statement was "utterly ridiculous."

It said Henderson met Ritchie first Dec. 11 with his partner, Ralph Winstead, and O'Brien. They went to the hotel where the contract was read. She said Ritchie saw Henderson regularly for the next 10 days and received about $300.

During this time "he was wined and dined like a king," Miss White said.

QUESTIONED IN HOTEL

The statement said the next time she saw Ritchie was after he called her to come to a Detroit hotel Dec. 31. She found him suffering from a "terrific hangover" and "very sick." She said he was being questioned by seven or eight men including Detroit police.

It took her six hours, between questioning periods, to sober him up, she said. During the sobering-up periods, Henderson coached Ritchie on what to say when the questions began again. She said Henderson was not satisfied with some of the answers.

Miss White said that in her opinion the whole thing was a hoax. "He just got paid for a job. He doesn't know a thing about it," she said.

Louisell said his investigation showed Henderson approached Jacobs for information about eight months ago. He also tried to proposition Donald's brother, Gordon Ritchie, and only turned to Donald when he was turned down, Louisell said.

"It is also an odd coincidence that attorney (Donald) Morand, who handled the details of the payoff, is Henderson's brother-in-law," said the lawyer.

71-Year-Old Priest Dies In Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP)—Rev. Matthew Joseph Gorman, 71-year-old priest in the Ottawa archdiocese and former pastor of the Blessed Sacrament parish in Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., died Monday following a lengthy illness.

A native of Buckingham, Que., where he was ordained to the priesthood in September, 1908, he had been parish priest at Farrellton, Que., and pastor at Metcalfe, Ont.

Father Gorman spent three years study in Europe following his ordination, returning in 1911 to teach for six years at his alma mater, Laval University, Quebec, before beginning his parish work.

Survivors include a brother, Rev. A. J. Gorman, parish priest of St. Margaret Mary's, Ottawa.

Prince Of Prosperity Named Champion Bull

PERTH, Scotland (AP)—Robin Murray's Prince of Prosperity was named supreme champion bull of the world-famed aberdeen angus cattle show which opened here Monday.

Prince of Prosperity was sired by a bull for which Murray paid the world record price of 11,000 guineas ($32,340) two years ago.

He was nominated show champion by Tom Alexander Edwards of Arva, Ont., first Canadian ever invited to judge the aberdeen show.

Canadians, Americans, South Americans, South Africans, New Zealanders, Australians and Europeans will be bidding at sales which start Tuesday.

MISTAKE BURNING MATTRESS

An anonymous phone call tipped firemen off at 10.40 p.m. Monday night that Fred Worsencroft's house at 931 Donegal St. was afire. The firemen made a quick run but found that the report was somewhat exaggerated. An old mattress was burning in the backyard and giving off a cloud of smoke.

CCF QUERY LABOR VIEW

The Peterborough CCF Association who are meeting at 8 p.m. Thursday at the Labor Centre, have asked local CIO-CCL unions to give their views on legislation affecting labor. In particular, they want to know what the unions think about the compulsory checkoff.

AVOID SERIOUS FIRE

A short circuit in the wiring at the Grand Hotel, 295 George St., was discovered at the right time Monday night. The short caused the fuse block in the basement to melt and a quantity of smoke was given off. Fire Chief William Sorrie commented that it was a good thing it happened when it did (6:52 p.m.); if it had happened during the night there might have been a serious fire.

FINISH ARBITRATIONS

Evidence is now completed in two lengthy arbitration cases that have taken up the time of the Peterborough county court since Jan. 7. Written arguments by counsel have still to be submitted in the two cases: one, settling the price the city must pay for the Klondike Gold Brown property on the west side of Highway 28; and two, settling the price the city must pay for the house and land expropriated from Miss Marjorie Best at 501 Water St.

STAYS CHEMONG ROAD

As requested by residents along Chemong Road within the city, its name will be retained northerly from Parkhill Road, instead of being changed to Stewart St. That was the recommendation of the finance committee of the council in a motion Monday night by Mayor Graham and Ald. McBride. The original name was Communication Rd., and West Communication Rd. was east of Jackson Park.

A FRIEND IN NEED

The age of brotherhood is not quite extinct. A citizen dashed into a George St restaurant today clutching a pop bottle which looked as if it dated from the time of the Flood and demanded two cents. Then he panted outside, talked a policeman out of ticketing a car parked overtime, put the two cents in the meter and walked on. Said the good Samaritan: "I haven't the foggiest idea whose car it was, but when I saw this moldy pop bottle by the wheel I figured I could do a good turn."

STANLEY G. PAYNE

Stanley G. Payne Re-elected YMCA President

Stanley G. Payne was returned as president of the Peterborough YMCA at a meeting of the Board of Directors at the Y Monday night.

Also returned with Mr. Payne were first vice-president P. M. McCarrell, second vice-president Kenneth N. Kingston and treasurer Hugh M. Niven.

Two new members of the board of directors, elected at the annual meeting January 28, were welcomed to membership. These were Clarence B. Neal and Andrew Purdon. The third new director, Dr. J. H. Whiteside, was unable to be on hand.

The board also extended a welcome to the Y's Men club and Friday Night club representatives on the board of directors. Cookson Munro replaces Y's Men president Don Harwood, while Fred Huffman is the representative of the Friday Night club.

C. B. Neal Resigns Memorial Committee

Resignation of C. B. Neal, president and general manager of Outboard Marine and Manufacturing Co., from the original building committee of the Memorial Community Centre, was received by the finance committee of the council Monday night.

"Other responsibilities have become too heavy for me to assist in doing the Centre job successfully," Mr. Neal wrote.

His letter was referred to the new provisional Centre Committee by Ald. Alene Holt's motion. It was said that appreciation of Mr. Neal's valuable services in the initial financial campaign should be expressed by that committee. He will be informed of the present action.

Condition Still Critical

Three-year-old John Dubeau, badly burned after an explosion-flash fire at his home near Havelock Sunday night, is still in critical condition in St Joseph's hospital. At press time his condition was described as "low" after a "poor" night.

Elected C of C President

CHATHAM (CP)—Mel W. Davidson Monday was elected president of the Chatham Chamber of Commerce.

The chamber was known as the Chatham Board of Trade until Monday night when it officially changed its name. Mr. Davidson succeeds Harry Tennant as president.

Refuse Move To Restrict City Garages

Garage Operators Request Limit To Service Stations

A brief that suggested restricting the number of service stations in the city presented by the Peterborough Garage Operators Association met a mixed reception at a meeting of the city council's finance committee Monday night.

There were other suggestions in the brief. But it was the restrictive clause that met opposition from the aldermen. Because of this clause they decided to take no action on the brief as a whole.

"The committee is on dangerous ground," said City Solicitor W. F. Huycke. "Everyone has a right to engage in whatever business he desires."

City Clerk Outram confirmed a comment that Hamilton has passed a "bylaw to that effect."

"I think the oil companies can pretty well control the number of gasoline establishments if they so wish," said Ald. Wm. J. Beggs.

One of the service station operators himself, Ald. McBride said they felt the area was now being adequately served, that they wished to keep wages at a good level, and maintain accommodation they are providing the public. There are now 58 in the city.

Ald. McBride did not vote in the defeat of a motion by Ald. Burrows and Mayor Graham that the brief be referred to the legal committee.

"I think we would be treading on private rights," said Ald. H. T. Rehill. "Many properties have been improved in value by new service stations erected on them. There is one on Chemong Road that was built on what might be called a bog hole. We would all like to stop the increase of competition, but I don't think it would be justice."

Increased land values, resulting from service stations, meant higher assessed value, Ald. Rehill said.

Ald. Gordon Farquharson remarked that "on the face of it, the brief is discriminatory," but the garage operators might have a better chance to submit their points if they met a smaller committee.

Ald. McBride said another phase of the brief raised a question of what should be done about lunch counters having gasoline stations, selling hot dogs and other food after handling gasoline and oil.

"We can refer that to the health department," Ald. Beggs suggested.

He proposed, seconded by Mayor Graham, that no action be taken "because of complications that might arise in curtailing private enterprise."

In a brief discussion of the motion form, he changed his motion to "no action—period."

Then the question was raised: What are we going to tell the garage operators?

"Well," said Ald. Beggs, "I can't amend my own motion. Probably I shouldn't have cut it off."

An amendment by Aldermen Burrows and Knox carried requesting City Clerk Outram to write the garage operators that the committee was in sympathy with certain points in their brief, but not in its entirety, "and therefore we can take no action on it."

"We want to answer them in courtesy; but tell them that their restrictive proposal is against public policy," Ald. Farquharson said.

Ald. Powell: "We feel that we are not on sound legal ground."

Mr. Huycke: "You can say you disagree with them on a matter of policy."

RENT CONTROL

Mayor Norman Graham has called a special meeting of city council for next Tuesday to consider what action the city should taken when provincial rent controls are relinquished March 2.

Where Is It? What Is It?

At first glance the above objects look like a herd of decapitated sea lions on an ice floe, or a grounded flight of wombats from Mars. They're in Peterborough and, at times, they are dangerous.

An Examiner reporter went prowling around their fenced-in pen the other day. He had no sooner set foot in their snowy compound than someone shouted,

"Hey! don't set off any of those flashbulbs or we'll all blow up."

The reporter was prowling on the property of the Peterborough Utilities propane gas plant and, though the air was clear and snapping cold, there was an odor of sick-sweet gas everywhere which, the man said, was highly inflammable.

The grotesque forms pictured above are empty 500-pound gas tanks There were cylindrical tanks of all shapes standing about with capacities of these whoppers to small 20-pound trailer tanks, all waiting to be filled with liquid propane from the charging shed.

A liquid tank car on the railway siding—three are emptied each week—contained 8,600 gallons of liquid propane that was flowing into two long storage tanks with a total capacity of five tank cars.

From the storage tanks the liquid travels to the small gas plant machines where it is mixed with air and, as gas, stored in the ugly upright storage tank nearby with a 300,000 cubic foot capacity. This is the supply that city housewives draw from for cooking at the rate of two million cubic feet per week.

The bottled gas business is far reaching. A city firm that makes a business of supplying homes in outlying districts with cooking fuel delivers bottles as far north as Haliburton and Bancroft, west to Pontypool and south to Belleville and Prince Edward County. This distribution network has been operating for the past three years.

If you were to ask Peterborough Utilities officials "what cooks?" they might not be able to tell you offhand. But they will tell you what thousands of district women cook with propane gas. When the city switched to the making of propane fuel about three years ago, the bottled gas business was an infant thing. It grew lustily until now it produces a sizeable side revenue for the city plant to the tune of more than $60,000 a year.

Committee Votes Against Grant To Nursing Registry

In a division of 5-4, a motion to grant $1,000 to the Community Nursing Registry was defeated at the meeting of the finance committe of the council Monday night.

It was proposed by Ald. Gordon Powell and seconded by Ald. Stan McBride. Supporting them were: Ald. W. J. Beggs and Ald. A. B. Burrows; and opposing the motion: Aldermen Rehill, Farquharson, Anglesey, Holt and Knox.

Votes are not recorded in committee, and as a matter of fact are rarely registered in council.

Ald. J. A. Dewart was absent, and Mayor Norman Graham was chairman at the request of Ald. P. J. Anglesey during the discussion of this item of the committee's business.

Ald. Rehill moved an amendment that discussion of the suggested grant be left until that section of the budget for 1954 is being considered. He said that apparently some element of urgency about the grant to the Nursing Registry that loomed at a recent meeting had now lifted. Ald. Alene Holt seconded the amendment.

As to urgency, Mayor Graham said there was no "high-pressuring" on his part, and that he had reported the information as it was given to him. This was apparently a reference to a reported time limit for the listing of some doctors' telephone numbers as showing connection with the Registry.

Ald. Farquharson enquired when the appropriations would likely be discussed, in determining the municipal income and expenditure this year, and was told by Ald. Anglesey that it should be some time this month.

IN POOR POSITION

"We've allowed ourselves to get jockeyed into a poor position," Ald. Beggs remarked. He emphasized that the Nursing Registry had not actually applied for a grant, nor had there been an audited statement of their finances last year, conditions fixed by the council years ago as necessary attachments.

Ald. Powell said he deplored the action of one member of the council in choosing the columns of the press to introduce a personal matter in its business, "This is the place where such matters should be discussed, and not in the press."

Ald. Powell said his motive in supporting the aid to the Registry was clear. It was a public service that deserved to be recognized. He said the proposed assistance was justified for various reasons, and particularly because it was a service that was asked for by both of the city's hospitals. It was organized to help people out of a jam.

It was organized to supply nurses in emergency needs any time around the clock. The Registry expenditure was $5,000, and for the continuance of this service they lacked approximately $1,000. If it was discontinued, Ald. Powell said, that service would cost the city an extra $4,000 as indicated to the special committee composed of himself, Aldermen Burrows and Holt. Extra hospital staff would be required, "and you can't get a telephone operator at $1,000 a year."

Ald. Powell said he paid more in personal property tax than most of those who were objecting to the scheme.

He pointed out that local social services received subsidies from the council through such organizations as the welfare department in the amount of $40,000, Civic Hospital at $219,000, also $10,000 to St. Joseph's Hospital, a private institution, and special grants of $7,425. On all these points of usefulness to the community and practice of the council, Ald. Powell contended that the assistance of $1,000 was justified.

MONEY WELL SPENT

Ald. A. B. Burrows said he was just as much interested as Ald. Anglesey in saving $1,000 of city funds. In this service the city would not suffer financially, and the money would be well spent. He said he was still for it, and had no selfish motives.

Ald. Beggs enquired whether the Registry had actually applied for a grant. Ald. Anglesey replied that "they advised us of their financial position," that they would not be able to carry on without some help.

Ald. Holt said the special committee had not completed its investigation. The seeming emergency of listing doctors' telephone numbers with the Registry had arisen at a recent meeting. Her understanding was that the deficit of $1,000 had been incurred by a signed note.

Ald. Farquharson said it seemed strange to him that the Registry "did not send a deputation tonight in view of some confusion that has arisen."

Ald. Powell: "Were they invited?"

"We shouldn't split hairs over some technicality when there is a saving to the city of $4,000 in a good social service," he added.

NOTHING TO GAIN

"The members of the Registry who are responsible for it have nothing to gain from its work," said Ald. McBride. "It is a service that was asked for in the first place by both hospitals."

"We've certainly bogged down in a lot of discussion," Ald. Beggs interjected.

Ald. McBride said he did not lend himself to "any steam-roller tactics, as alleged, because of the fact that Mrs. Eva Breckenridge of the Nursing Registry was his mother-in-law.

"I certainly don't like any aspersions being cast on my decisions," he said. "I was elected by the people, and I am trying to act in their best interests. I think it is poor tactics to bring my name into this in a personal way."

Ald. Anglesey said that as chairman of the finance committee this year it was his duty to see that expenditure was curtailed.

It transpired that listing of doctors in telephone connection with the Registry was still possible up to March 8.

"I am very much in sympathy with the service of the Registry," said Mrs. Holt, "but I am also mindful of the citizens. There seems to be something lacking somewhere."

Ald. Beggs said the Rehill amendment was contrary to the subject matter of the motion. They were virtually two separate motions. The amendment called for reference of the proposed grant to the committee of the whole council when the budget is being prepared. The amendment was withdrawn and Mayor Graham called for the vote on the motion.

This Is White Cane Week

Blind Bowlers Show Spirit, Whip Handicap

There is a big man in Ashburnham who runs a diaper service and bowls.

"So what?" you say.

Well the diaper service, which supplies new mothers with freshly laundered baby garments upon demand, is unique in this city, and he does his bowling with a select group.

His name is Ozzie Meagher and he's blind.

About six years ago, just after the birth of his daughter, Patricia, Ozzie learned that he would soon live in a world of darkness. Things were grim. The future was a dark void of insecurity and Mrs. Meagher was faced with the double responsibility of caring for the baby and providing subsistence for the family.

Upon her suggestion Ozzie began laundering the baby's diapers, and with proficiency came the further idea of selling this service. Inquiries were made into similar services in other cities, details ironed out, and the business put in operation.

And so the first problem, that of employment and security, was solved, but what about recreation? All work and no play doesn't go, and especially so with Ozzie Meagher (near six feet, about 200 pounds of active man.)

Through the Canadian National Institute For the Blind he learned of a local bowling team composed of some nine sightless men and the following Saturday he visited the Knights of Columbus alley to 'see' the boys in action.

With their left hand sliding along a guide rail, these men were slinging balls down the alleys with noisy accuracy, and a sighted gentleman was recording the scores.

Ozzie took a turn and rifled three perfect gutter balls. This was in 1949. Two years later he topped the annual blind bowlers tournament with a three-game 767.

BOWL SATURDAYS

The local team has a workout every Saturday afternoon at the K of C alleys and often they play with teams from the CGE, Dominion Woollens and Knights of Columbus. In the first game of a set of three, the opposition wear blindfolds and the result is comic.

"It's pretty rough on them", says Ozzie. "They usually go so far in the hole on that first game that they can't win playing the remaining two games with their eyes wide open."

This is White Cane Week in Canada. It marks a campaign, not to raise funds, but to create interest in the person who carries the white cane, and to educate others in the meaning of the cane and the prevention of blindness.

The person who carries the white cane has less than 10 per cent vision. He is not dependent on you who have full vision, but he does appreciate your consideration—and direction when the necessity arises.

The blind man is not unhappy with his lot in life; he accepts it and does his best to overcome the handicap gaining satisfaction from achievements which might pass unnoticed had he the use of his eyes.

White Cane Week, which he sponsors, is essentially dedicated to the prevention of blindness, and carelessness is the major foe he is trying to conquer.

Unemployed In District Total 2,500; Highest In Recent Years

January Figure Shows Increase Of 500 Over Month Before And Year Ago
Number Receiving Insurance Down Slightly

More than 2,500 men and women in the Peterborough district were listed as hunting for work by the Peterborough National Employment Office at the end of January. This is the highest total of unemployed in recent years in this district which includes Peterborough city and county, Haliburton county and parts of Victoria, Durham and Northumberland counties. James Sharp, office manager, reported that the unemployed are mostly unskilled workers since the few jobs that are available require skilled workers.

Comparing the number of people job-hunting at the end of December with January's total there was an increase of 500. At the end of December there were 1,966 (1,524 men and 442 women) unemployed as compared with 2,530 at the end of January. At the same time the comparative figure for a year ago January was 2,031.

Although the number of those looking for work increased in January, the number receiving unemployment insurance decreased slightly. The office reported a total of 1,984 on claims in January, 10 less than at the same period in December.

PEAK IN JANUARY

The claim load in January was 64 more than a year ago when 1,916 drew money through the insurance scheme. That January total was the peak for the winter months in 1952-53, the monthly totals gradually decreasing then until September when they again started to increase, reaching the year's peak in December.

About one quarter (514) of the people on claims in January were working a short-time week, that is, a three-or four-day week. A large number of these were Western Clock workers who have been on the short week for the past seven weeks.

These short-time claims will likely increase in February for in the past week the Peterborough Lock Company has gone on short-time, Mr. Sharp said the company is now working only three days every second week. These claims will be included in the February report.

Mr. Sharp said that the heavy claim load "seems to be tapering off. In fact a number are going to work." He added that it "looks as though it's levelling off, but there is no way of telling."

A few construction jobs, such as the Simpson-Sears project on Highway 7A, have been hiring men. At the same time there has been the "odd placement" in local industry.

At the end of January the office had only 30 vacancies, 16 for men and 14 for women. At the same time in 1953 there were 17 jobs available for men and 19 for women. In all these jobs skilled workers were required.

Labor Council Re-elects Alfred Barber

Alfred Barber, veteran CIO-CCL labor leader in Peterborough, on Monday night was re-elected president of the Peterborough and District Labor Council (CCL).

Biggest change in the labor council's list of officers for 1954 is the addition of two women trade unionists.

Yvonne Glen of Local 293, United Packinghouse Workers of America (CIO-CCL), was elected recording secretary, succeeding William Triggs of the same local who moved up to treasurer. And Mrs. Muriel Barnes, of Local 210, UPWA, was elected a trustee for three years.

Mr. Barber has been president of Local 210, bargaining unit for Canada Packers' employees, for nine years. He was president for two years when the present labor council started up; then he was vice-president for two years. Last November the president, Fred Burrett of Local 5009, United Steelworkers of America (CIO-CCL), resigned, and Mr. Barber finished his term of office.

Here is the 1954 slate of officers:

Alfred Barber of Local 210, UPWA, president; Edmund S. Humphrey of Local 434, UPWA, vice-president; William Triggs of Local 293, UPWA, treasurer; Yvonne Glen of Local 293, recording secretary; trustees, Mrs Muriel Barnes of Local 210, UPWA (three-year term), Roy Murphy of Local 371, Brewery Workers' Union (two-year term); and Robert Muirhead of Local 19, NUPSE (one-year term); Edward Silvester of Local 293, UPWA, floor guard; and five members of the labor centre committee—Jack Benstead of Local 570, IUE, Robert Muirhead of Local 19, NUPSE and Cec. Osborne, Gordon Reynolds and Jack Draper of Local 5009, USWA.

Election of other committees, as well as representatives on the film council and United Nations organizations, were laid over until the March meeting of the labor council.

Quell Unrest Simmering In East Germany

By TOM REEDY

BERLIN (AP) — Simmering unrest in the Soviet zone has been thoroughly quelled by action of the Communist secret police, German and Western quarters said Monday.

A series of arrests of upwards of 500 Germans in scattered industrial areas has apparently smashed any budding outbreak of violent resistance before it had a chance to get started.

Western informants said Eastern police have demonstrated what Foreign Minister Molotov quietly forecast in the Big Four parley—that another June 17 revolt is impossible.

UNREST PROVOKED

The unrest reported reliably from Dresden, Gera, Merseburg, Oelsnitz and other communities last week was provoked by the Communists themselves. Their agitators stirred up resentful German workers by trying to force them to sign resolutions favoring the Molotov plan for national unification, a plan that would cement Red rule for all Germany.

As soon as the grumbling broke into the open, police squads struck, hauled off the loudest anti-Reds and effectively squelched any incipient revolt.

Any grumbling still going on is out of the side of the mouth and in whispers. Major industrial plants in the east are honey-combed with police agents and informers.

QUICK RESULTS

Allied officials said the crackdown was so quick and produced such immediate results that it was not even necessary to increase normal guard details at many plants.

Rumors that the Russian army had been called in to brace for an uprising were disproved by all competent sources. Outside of sentries at the Soviet embassy, armed Russian soldiers have not been seen in East Berlin since the Big Four parley started. Reports that Red army tanks had moved toward Berlin brought scoffing from Western military quarters which said the Russians built a big tank shed at Karlshorst in East Berlin last summer and keep a tank reserve there at all times.

A SHARE IN BOYS' WORK was sold on Saturday by Walter Dainard, left, a Peterborough member of the Boys' Work Board and Parliament. His client, Alderman Arthur Burrows, understands the good causes his donation will be applied to; he was chairman of Lakefield District Boys' Parliament some 20 years ago when one of his boys, Norman Lemay, was "Leader of the Opposition." —(Examiner Staff Photo).

Boys' Work Board Selling Shares In Youths' Future

Would you buy shares in a boy's future—with dividends the satisfaction of seeing him grow up a leader of men?

The local Boys' Work Board is sponsoring a bond drive continuing to the end of the month and local executive officials hope to raise $1,000 to continue their program of sport sponsorship and leadership training.

The province-wide organization has set as its goal the sum of $25,000 in the annual drive. Peterborough's share of this is $1,000.

Of the amount sold locally, 65 per cent comes back to local groups selling the bonds and the balance to the board in order that it can assist in the sponsorship of its 300-member hockey league.

LOCAL WORK

Coming under the guidance of the body are the local Trail Rangers, church baseball and hockey, and a leadership course for young people heading church and club groups.

Additionally, 30 to 40 boys are sent from Peterborough each year to Camp Quin-Mo-Lac near Belleville.

Heading the local board executive this year is Garnet Dainard. Assisting him is vice-president T. M. Williamson, Howard R. Rolufs, recording secretary, and H. A. Spence, corresponding secretary.

C. S. Saunders heads the publicity and public relations committee; James Edwards, mid-week committee; Gordon Herzog, leadership; Walter Dainard, finance, Stewart Laing; camp, assisted by Leonard Smith, and Harry Walsh and J. Grierson, athletics.

Will Use Names Identify Boats

OTTAWA (CP) — The navy is going to name its smaller boats in future instead of identify them by numbers.

An announcement from naval headquarters Monday said six Fairmile motor launches on the Great Lakes for training have been christened HMC ships Cougar, Beaver, Moose, Reindeer, Wolf and Raccoon. A seventh at Esquimalt, B.C., has been named HMCS Elk.

The animal names perpetuate the names of large yachts taken over by the navy early in the Second World War and converted into patrol vessels.

The change to names from numbers is being made because it is easier to identify the ships in ordinary usage. Each ship will have her own badge bearing the name.

Joint Winners Of Smith Medal

MONTREAL (CP) — Douglas Stewart Ellis, dean of engineering at Queen's University, Kingston, and Richard E. Chadwick of Montreal, chairman of the board of the Foundation Company of Canada, Monday, were chosen as joint winners of the Julian C. Smith medal for 1953-54.

The medal is presented each year by the Engineering Institute of Canada for "achievement in the development of Canada."

MONTREAL (CP)—First aid authorities reported week-end skiing injuries took heavy toll in Montreal and surrounding mountain districts. More than 59 accidents were reported, 10 described as major.

U.S. Hopes Buttress Iran With Turkey-Pakistan Pact

By WILLIAM CLARK

LONDON (OFNS) — Further news has been received in London about the possibility of a Turko-Pakistan alliance. It is clear that the rumors are not without foundation, and have, in fact, been carefully "leaked" by United States sources. Even though immediate results are not expected, it does appear to many of those in London who are dealing with Middle East affairs that a new pattern is beginning to appear in the area which stretches from Turkey to Burma.

The struggle appears to have been joined between those countries which seek actively to defend themselves by arms against Communist expansion, and those which seek to adopt a neutralist position. The leader of the "activisit" group is Turkey, which is emerging once more as a Power seeking to mould the policies of the Middle East. Most of Turkey's immediate neighbours still regard even the remnants of the old Ottoman Empire with distrust. But Pakistan, which has never suffered from Turkish imperialism, appears to be more accommodating.

CULTIVATED BY U.S.

The very idea of any closer relations between these two countries, a thousand miles apart, would not have flourished, however, if it had not been sedulously cultiavted by the United States. John Foster Dulles has inherited a State Department fear that Russia may try to reach the Indian Ocean through infiltration or attack in Persia. Richard Nixon, the U.S. Vice-President, is said to have returned from his Far Eastern tour with the same apprehension.

Hence, U.S. policy is to try to buttress Persia, strengthening its two neighbors, Turkey and Pakistan, and by giving arms without strings attached to Middle East countries. But it has become clear that direct U.S. aid to Pakistan rouses violent fears in India. For this reason America is trying to foster neighborly alliances between "reliable" countries. If Turkey and Pakistan were to be allied, Paksitan could be attached to the NATO pipelines through the medium of Turkey, which is a NATO member. According to reports received in London, this procedure is being discussed with President Bayar of Turkey during his U.S. visit.

Britain has been kept informed of all these moves, but opinion in the Foreign Office and Commonwealth Relations Office is somewhat divided. It is still official British policy to seek a Middle East alliance based on the Arab States, and centred on the Suez base. Any other policy, it is pointed out, will mean defending an area where the majority of the local population is neutral or hostile.

Also, any attempt to bring Pakistan closer to the western military alliance will divide the Commonwealth because of India's frantic objections. It seems to a large section of British official opinion that it is not worth gaining a promise of Pakistan's military support in a future war if it means alienating India here and now, and making the Arab Asia bloc in the United Nations hopelessly hostile to the west.

But there is also the view that any strong American interest in that area is worthwhile. Some British officials feel the chances of a worthwhile and reliable treaty of alliance with Egypt are almost nil; they therefore favor building defences in that area on whatever comes to hand. Many "old India hands" believe that in world affairs, and particularly in military matters, the Muslim is more reliable than the Hindu, and so prefer to base their alliance on Pakistan to waiting for the day when India's Mr. Nehru will be more amenable.

In fact, if Pakistan emerges as an ally of America, or even of Turkey, its bargaining power with India will be greatly increased; and its prestige in Britain will in no way be decreased.

Omemee WMS Ladies Review Mission Work

OMEMEE (ENS)—Trinity United church WMS held their February meeting in the church basement. The worship theme being "The Church of the open Bible," president Mrs. T. A. McConnell opened with a poem, followed by a hymn and prayer.

The roll call was answered with a scripture verse. Miss C. Connell, Christian stewardship secretary, read an article on three-dimensional stewardship. Mrs. S. Moyer announced that her supply helper Mrs. R. Williamson, was quite ill and wished to be relieved of her duties. Mrs. H. Deyell volunteered to fill the vacancy until the end of this year. The corresponding secretary was asked to write Mrs. Williamson in acknowledgement of her long service and to convey the members good wishes for her improved health.

Mrs. McConnell reminded the society of the annual Presbyterial meeting in Lindsay Queen St. United church, Tuesday, February 9, and requested a good representation.

Mrs. V. Lang's group were in charge of the program. The scripture lesson was read by Mrs. G. Overholt and Mrs. Lang led in a litany of worship based on thankfulness for the blessings of Holy Scripture to seeking souls, followed by prayers of confession and intercession.

The study was a chapter from "Where'er the Sun" which dealt with Protestant missions in Latin America. Mrs. L. Casey presented the situation in Columbia, Mrs. C. G. Shaw in Honduras, and Miss Connell in Brazil.

Iran Enlists Best Brains Bring People, Gov't Closer

TEHERAN (OFNS) — On the instructions of General Zahedi, the Iranian Prime Minister, a Council for National Guidance and Enlightenment has been formed, consisting of the ministers for post and telegraphs, war, national economy and education.

The main purpose of the council is to bring the people and the government closer together, and to enlist the services of the best brains in specific fields. The council will form numerous subcommittees of competent men which will submit proposals and recommendations for the approval of the cabinet.

Urgent attention will be paid by the council to the countering of the cleverly-conducted Communist campaign among sections of the population, including university students. Books and pamphlets exposing the Communist Utopia advocated by the Tudeh party, will at long last inform the Persian public of the other side of the picture.

Radio Teheran will also be equipped and adapted for neutralizing the effect on Persia of broadcasts from Moscow, Baku and clandestine stations.

LABOR CONDITIONS

The council will push ahead with plans for agriculture, education and the betterment of labor conditions. The Zahedi government knows that the Persian people will not be impressed by high-sounding programs if there are no tangible results. The Council of National Guidance and Enlightenment will be a success even if only modest, but solid, results are achieved.

A special oil commission, composed of several ministers and Mohammad Nemazee, a Persian business magnate, is continuing its deliberations pending the arrival of a Mr. Rieber, of the Texas Oil Company, who will act as consultant to the Iran government during the oil talks, and who will ensure a "constructive mind and mood" on the part of the Persian negotiators. Mr. Nemazee has said that members of the oil commission are not disposed to the principle of compensation for the so-called speculative interest of the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company, while fully endorsing the principle of the payment of "fair compensation." Another member of the oil commission has said that the Persian government wished to retain a small percentage of the oil for independent disposal on the basis of barter agreements with interested countries.

SENATE ELECTION

The Senate elections in Teheran are under way. Polling lasts for three days. Unlike Majlis (lower house) elections, only literates can vote, electing seventy-five men who will choose fifteen from among themselves as elected senators for Teheran. The Senate can become a sobering influence on the Majlis—hence ex-Premier Mossadegh's bitter opposition to the previous Senate.

"Our reunion started two years ago!"

"I came out from the old country nearly two years ago, to work in a big aircraft factory. I was making a fresh start in a new country, and, of course, I wanted to bring out my wife and little boy as soon as I could.

"My pay cheque said 'The Dominion Bank', so when I took it to The Dominion Bank branch near my lodgings, I decided to open a savings account there. I found the manager and his staff friendly and eager to help me. Making regular deposits became a pleasure, and I saw my account grow, week by week, until I had enough to bring my wife and son to Canada.

"My family's here now . . . and we're all looking forward to a happy and prosperous future. We have a new objective for our savings account at The Dominion Bank—a home of our own!"

This is typical of the experience of our many depositors. They have found, as you will, that thrift is a pleasure at The Dominion Bank. Remember, every savings account is an important account at The Dominion Bank.

Come in and talk to the manager. He will be happy to tell you about the Bank's many services . . . or offer you financial advice.

A friendly welcome awaits you at The Dominion Bank.

Youth Of Satellite Nations Being Indoctrinated By Reds

J. Armstrong Patterson, an articulate young Irishman educated in Belfast, described some inconsecutive views of life behind the Iron Curtain at Rotary luncheon Monday. Mr. Patterson has recently returned from Bucharest, where he represented Queen's University, Belfast, at the World Federation of Democratic Youth festival in 1953. He also attended the International Union of Students Congress in Warsaw.

The youth of Romania and Hungary are thoroughly indoctrinated in Soviet Communism, says Mr. Patterson. And although they displayed a general attitude of merriment and wellbeing, it was apparent, upon inspection, this attitude was superficial.

Lenin's philosophy must be studied and the Russian language is on most curricula and a requisite in advanced education.

While travelling to their destination by train, the group of western students were met at each station by milling crowds of Communist youth singing and dancing in the station square. Although there was much joviality it was a peculiarly massed effort with individual talent undisplayed.

Mr. Patterson said he met many students of the western world studying in Hungary as well as North and South Koreans. His observation on the latter fact is that South Korea will have little future once these Communist educated youths return.

There were some 30,000 delegates in Bucharest for the festival. Many of them were besieged by autograph hunters from the ranks of Communist youth, or The Youth, as they call themselves. This signature hunting soon stopped when it was learned that the visitors were living under the finest conditions at the expense of the government.

Mr. Patterson learned that the vast quantities of food on hand for the festival had been gleaned from three months' strict rationing previous to the event.

All bridges and factories were heavily guarded; the factories particularly, surrounded by barbed wire fences and patrolled by sentries armed with automatic weapons. The reason: Belief that American paid saboteurs were active in the area.

Political freedom consisted of one state authorized man being placed as a candidate for office. If the majority of the vote was against him, he was "withdrawn" by the state, and another state authorized man nominated.

Churches of various denominations were open to the public, but were only visited by the elder segment of the population. "The Youth" included those from the age of 12 to 54, pointed out Mr. Patterson. Religion is controlled not through the suppression of the people, but the church leaders themselves. One is never certain whether the priest or minister administrating is properly ordained.

The only English newspaper allowed to circulate is the Daily Worker, and it is free.

Mr. Patterson said although he had tried to remain objective, he now "had no time for Communists at all."

"Leave him (Communist) alone, for if you trample him, you make a martyr of him, and if you listen to him, you merely encourage him."

True Bill Returned

KITCHENER (CP) — A grand jury Monday returned a true bill requiring Joseph M. Finnigan of R.R. 7, Guelph, to stand trial for manslaughter in the traffic death Oct. 11 of Mrs. Lena Irene Leader of Guelph. Police said at the time of the accident that an automobile struck from the rear a car in which Mrs. Leader was a passenger.

Beauty Contest Next

DUNDAS (CP)—The 100 delegates to the Ontario Ayrshire Breeders Association Monday picked Favourite Maysie, a 13-year-old cow, as their "woman of the year." In a 12-month period, Favourite Maysie produced 20,153 pounds of milk plus 840 pounds butterfat. She is owned by G. W. Gullet and sons of Welland.

Motorists Warned

TORONTO (CP)—Faced with repeated delays in responding to fires, Fire Chief Joseph Waterman warned Toronto motorists he will ask police to charge them if they impede fire equipment. "Motorists are flagrantly disregarding the Highway Traffic Act," Chief Waterman said. The act states that motorists on hearing the fire siren should immediately pull over to the side of the road and stop.

Huston Hanged For Murder Of 3-Year-Old

NORTH BAY (CP)—James Mervyn Hutson, 29, was hanged early today for murder in the sex-slaying last May of three-year-old Susan Hutchings. Less than an hour later Hutson, once accused of killing his mother with an ax, was buried in the jail courtyard.

Hutson, a former lumber camp cookee, walked the dozen paces from his death cell to the scaffold, erected over a trapdoor in a corridor of the Nipissing district jail, shortly after midnight. At 12:15 the hangman sprang the trap and seven minutes later Dr. E. J. Brennan, jail physician, pronounced Hutson dead.

On hand as witnesses with sheriff J. J. Dennis and jail governor Anthony Celentano were Rev. A.R. Hancock of North Bay Presbyterian church, who spent most of Monday with Hutson, Dr. Brennan and four police officers.

No newspaper men were admitted to the jail. However, at 12:45 a.m. sheriff Dennis posted a notice on the jail door to the effect that the hanging had taken place. The sheriff then talked with reporters and said Hutson faced death bravely.

CURIOUS WATCH

At the time of the hanging, about 25 automobiles carrying curious citizens were parked near the jail on Highway 63 on the northeastern outskirts of the city. The temperature was near zero and an icy wind blew from the northwest.

There were no claimants for the body.

Hutson's father was killed 10 years ago in a hunting mishap which was first described as murder, then declared an accident. Five years ago, Hutson's mother was found beaten to death with an ax in her Timmins home and Hutson was tried for murder in her death and acquitted. Hutson himself was wounded in a hunting accident in 1951.

Jail officials reported he remained stoical throughout the months from his conviction last Nov. 5 to his gallows walk. Until 10 days ago he refused to see a clergyman.

MOTHER SHOPPING

The killing for which Hutson paid with his life occurred last May 20. Susan Hutchins' mother, Mrs. Frank Hutchins, left the child in a downtown store in the care of Hutson, whom she knew as a friend of her husband.

A few hours afterwards, the child's body was found near the city limits—partly stripped, beaten and raped. Hutson was arrested in Cochrane, 260 miles to the north, three days later.

Hutson, a former lumber camp cookee at Englehart who was wounded by mortar fragments while overseas during the Second World War, claimed during his trial that a head injury caused him to "black out" at times. His defence counsel said that during such a blackout Hutson was with Susan Hutchins.

Hutson was convicted and sentenced to death. An appeal for a new trial on grounds of mental unfitness was rejected.

Canadians Urged To Encourage Foreign Tourist Industry

MONTREAL (CP) — Canadians were urged today to get out from under their top-hat restraint and really sell Canada to foreign tourists.

The Royal Bank of Canada says in its current monthly letter that courtesy is as important as scenery if the tourist industry is to be expanded.

"The human factor is the only thing which can destroy what Canada provides for travellers to enjoy," the bank says. "When travellers return home what they say about their reception and treatment will do more to determine how many tourists we get in the next five years than will all the advertising that money can buy."

Above all, Canadians must remember to act like Canadians and not greet tourists with shows of what they expected to leave behind.

"The tourist who has come all the way from his home is not going to be satisfied with a copy, however good it may be (and some are pretty bad) of what he is accustomed to seeing. There is a Canadian way of life, and visitors should be shown it."

MUST DO SOMETHING

"We have the market: Our own 14,812,000 people, and 160,228,000 people in the United States, and travelling people from all other continents," the bank says.

"Canada has the merchandise: It is the second largest country in the world, with 3,845,774 square miles of prairie, mountains, lakes, streams, and forests, as beautiful as can be seen anywhere.

"But we must do something if we are to encourage travel: Make access easy by highway, airway, railway and seaway; get and keep our living facilities for visitors up to date in a superior way; train the personnel of all services in courtesy and efficiency; tell the people in Canada and elsewhere about the superlative attractions we have, and make it easy for people to find them."

Scarlet Fever Scare Closes Public School

STEENBURG (CP)—The public school here was closed Monday for one week as a precaution against an outbreak of scarlet fever.

Six members of one family have all contracted the fever.

Dr. S. E. Beatty of Madoc, medical officer of health, will inoculate all children in the four district schools today. He said the outbreak could not be termed an epidemic.

2 Bells Mounted By Mistake One Comes Down

By joint action of the city and CPR, August 8, 1931, one traffic signal bell was ordered at each of the railway crossings at Aylmer St. and Park St. By "somebody's error" two bells were placed at each crossing.

Finance committee of the council received a letter from the CPR Monday night proposing that the error be corrected, that one bell be removed at each of those two crossings.

Ald. Gordon Powell commented that "the traffic hazard has increased greatly since then."

The committee adopted the motion of Aldermen Burrows and Knox confirming the original agreement. One bell remains at each crossing. The flasher signals also stay in place. Annual cost is jointly paid by the city and the railway.

A note from City Engineer Chalmers endorsed the change.

A letter from the Utilities Commission asked the council to sell $52,000 debentures to cover an accumulated deficit in the gas department. The borrowing was recommended.

COST OF SEWER

A motion by Aldermen Farquharson and Beggs instructed City Engineer Chalmers to prepare a cost report of a storm sewer on Cameron St., between Monaghan Rd. and Erskine Ave., as requested by property owners.

Ald. Stanley McBride was appointed to the Children's Aid Society in place of the former alderman, Sid J. Black.

Ald. Farquharson said he would nominate Ald. (Mrs.) Holt "if she were not already on so many committees."

City Clerk Outram said it was the custom to appoint to the CAS the chairman of the welfare committee, who, this year, is Ald. McBride.

The committee also recommended the issue of $42,022 debentures to pay for water mains laid by the Utilities Commission in the northern section of the city.

An item of $27,500 was passed along to a budget session to provide for the projected work of the Suburban Area Commission.

That sum is equivalent to the county's contribution for road work in the area. The provincial government doubles their total, thereby allotting $110,000 for the commission.

Queen Will Visit Gibraltar—Lloyd

LONDON (AP) — Selwyn Lloyd, minister of state for foreign affairs, told the House of Commons Monday that Queen Elizabeth definitely will visit Gibraltar this spring despite anti-British demonstrations in neighboring Spain.

The Queen's planned call at the Mediterranean colony touched off recent demonstrations at Madrid and other Spanish cities. Spain claims the rock as Spanish territory.

Large Attendance At Funeral Of COL President

KINGSTON (CP) — Representatives of church, state, political parties, civic bodies, business and hundreds of citizens Monday attended the funeral of Lorne McDonell, president of the Central Ontario Liberal Association. He died here Friday.

St. Mary's Roman Catholic cathedral was filled as requiem mass was celebrated. Arrangements were made by police to take care of the heavy traffic around the cathedral and along the route to St. Mary's cemetery where interment took place.

Honorary pall-bearers included Senator W. Rupert Davies of Toronto, Senator W. A. Fraser of Trenton, Transport Minister Chevrier, Cornwall; T. Phillips of Ottawa and James McLaren of Brockville.

Pay Increase Will Cost $2,000,000

TORONTO (CP)—Annual pay increases this year to nearly 17,000 Ontario civil servants are expected to cost the province nearly $2,000,000.

The boosts effective April 1, are annual increments based on length of service and the classification of the civil servant. The bulk of the increases are $100 a year to about 14,000 civil servants.

The total cost will be reduced by retirements and by replacements starting at lower salaries. Turnover of staff this year is expected to be about 2,000.

Retirement pensions will be based on the increased salary.

The scale for the annual raises is: Salaries up to $2,740, $100; up to $2,860, $120; up to $3,000, $140; up to $3,600, $150; up to $5,000, $200; up to $6,000, $250; over 6,000, $300.

Organist Dies

ST. THOMAS (CP)—Walter R. Mason, 60, former organist at St. John's Anglican church here, died Monday night after a long illness. Israeli Minister's Wife Takes State Off Headlines

"I am going to try to take Israel off the headlines" said Mrs. Joan Comay, wife of the Minister from Israel to Canada, as she commenced to speak to a capacity crowd in the Queen Mary auditorium Monday evening. "It exists to you solely as a series of unhappy events and crisis. But, the spaces in between are the most exciting, because we have gone ahead and created a state."

In the following hour Mrs. Comay described the bringing into Israel of 51 different kinds of Jews, increasing the population from 600,000 to 1,700,000 in two years; and the plan of putting these immigrants out on the land, although they tended to live in cities, so that in 1954 there will be for the first time enough fruits and vegetables to take these off the ration list.

She told of her excitement in knowing that a paper factory had opened in Israel on February 1st, which meant that there is now clean white paper in which to wrap foods. As an Israeli housewife she stood in line for every single commodity she purchased—"for there isn't anything you can get without producing points"—and had to invent ways of carrying everything from eggs to live fish to her home. "I was simply frustrated by the paper bags in Ottawa at first, because I couldn't see what people had in them" she laughed.

Emphasis is on the youth, "For we know it is the youth who will create Israel" she said. "Your first feeling on entering the country will be of the dominant position of the young people. They vote at 18 and are taken into the army at 18."

In the army is the educational set-up of the state and through this they become integrated. The boys are trained in agriculture at the same time as they are trained to guard the borders. In the first year they are moved three times so that they know thoroughly the geography of their land. Girls, too, go into the army for two years. Everyone learns to speak Hebrew, the language of Israel. "Thus, 'we' and 'they' become one" said Mrs. Comay. (English is compulsory in the schools and is taken much the same as French in Canada.)

BIBLE GUIDE BOOK

"Best guide book to Israel is still the Bible" the speaker advised. "A traveller can go from north to south and trace the sights from a Bible on his knee." Ruins 2,000 years old have been used in re-building, and cities are given the names mentioned in the Bible.

The Bible is the book that colors and shapes the lives of the young people, for they use it in school for their history, for their geography and for their literature "The young Israeli doesn't know the meaning of anti-semitism" said Mrs. Comay. "My two children were fascinated to discover Christmas here in Canada," she went on, and explained that there is a Christian minority in Israel which is about one-third of the 170,000 Arabs who have chosen to remain there. They get a ration of eight ounces of turkey for Christmas, and are allowed on application to the Israeli government to have a tree.

When the Jewish New Year is celebrated as a Holy Day in September, the whole country is stilled for the day, Mrs. Comay added.

Border strife with the Arabs is accepted as a part of life in Israel. Mrs. Comay traced on a map the rail journey her children had to make from Tel Aviv to Hafia, marking the point at which she would remind them to "duck" so that they could not be seen by snipers. The State of Israel is 280 miles long, and is at one point five miles wide, at another 12, and at its widest 70 miles. The whole is one forty-sixth the size of Ontario, or eight and a half thousand square miles.

Having recently been to Vancouver, Mrs. Comay remarked that Canada needed either to have a greater population or to have some neat tucks taken in it west of Winnipeg.

She compared too the spirit of the people of Israel today with that of the pioneer forefathers of Canadians, only the Israeli is working to create natural resources of his country. Even a peasant class has had to be created. Every man was given five acres of land, a tiny house, a goat, 10 chickens and a cow, and was trained in farming. It was found that if he harvested his first crop he would stay, but if he wandered off before the harvest he was lost. There are 384 new towns in Israel too, she advised, and these are industrialized centres.

SEE DESIGN

Flying over Israel will show the design, which is rather like Moses had it, Mrs. Comay explained. The southern part is a desert and here is the challenge of today, but experts are working on a scheme of irrigation. In Moses' time the whole was cultivated. In the work of re-building, remains of Solomon's palace have been found near the southern tip.

Six months ago in Israel there was great celebrating when a road into the lowest valley in the world, to be used in bringing potash out of the Dead Sea, was opened. Mrs. Comay said "There is nothing that happens in Israel that doesn't affect every one of us, so everyone that could was there to see the ribbon across that road cut." It is the immigrants who have built the roads and the waterways, she explained. The original population could not have done it.

Mrs. Comay said that events before the partition scheme—offered by United Nations on November 29th, 1946, as a peaceful solution—are best forgotten. She and her family arrived in Israel earlier that year and found it an unhappy triangle of British, Arabs and Jews. Authorities told her to go back to South Africa. Then came the war, and out of it the State of Israel, recognized by the United Nations on May 14, 1948.

LAW OF STATE

The law of the state says "Every Jew has the right to come to Israel." So it was that Jews, some of whom the Israeli had never heard of, sent word of their whereabouts. Ways of bringing them in thousands into Israel had to be devised. American transport planes were hired to be "magic carpets." "We cannot say we know what a Jew looks like, for they came from so many places and had lived in such different ways."

"Our basic problem is that the Arabs will not make peace" said Mrs. Comay. (She explained "We are not against the Arabs, but we are against the Arabs being against us.")

"In the days we do not make headlines, we work at creating the State. We complain, yet we live with a surge of excitement as a people determined to create this State."

Mrs. Comay graciously answered fully the questions asked her by the audience at conclusion of the lecture.

She was brought to this city by the University Women's Club of Peterborough and the public was invited to take advantage of the opportunity to hear her. Now in Ottawa with her husband, His Excellency Michael Comay, they have found only one other Israeli in that city—a Christian Arab student who is on a scholarship from the Government of Israel.

Miss Katherine Macdougall introduced her and Dr. Frances Stewart thanked Mrs. Comay for presenting this picture of Israel today.

Sorority News

ALPHA THETA and XI IOTA CHAPTERS

Mrs. Garth Parnell entertained members of the Beta Sigma Phi Sorority Monda yevening at the home of her parents, Col. and Mrs. J. A. Dewart, Weller street.

Mrs. Wm. Gray, XI Iota president, presided for the business meeting. Twenty-five members were present, Alpha Thetat chapter having a full attendance.

Some further plans were made for selling tickets to the concert being held on April 23rd at which the Sorority will present Mario Braggiotti, pianist.

A pot luck supper will be enjoyed next Monday night, at the home of Miss Marilyn Hollingsworth, Chemong Rd.

Members received with much regret the news that Mrs. Edward Cochrane, who has now moved to Toronto, has had to enter St. Joseph's Hospital, Toronto, for further treatment to the leg injury which had also kept her hospitalized for some time while in Peterborough.

It was decided that the Sorority will provide the sandwiches for the Louis Braille Society's annual picnic next summer. A bake sale is being held this coming Saturday morning at the Market Hall with Mrs. Grant Clark in charge.

Miss Mary Clifford was chairman for the program and the topic on which Miss Barbara Nelson spoke was "History of Dress."

EAST TEACHERS FLEE

BERLIN (Reuters)—Half of East Germany's teachers fled to the West between 1945 and 1953, West Berlin refugee officials said today. More than 80,000 had fled, compared with 81,000 teachers left in East Germany, the officials said.

Story Of Woman's Kindness Told In Life Of Two Girls

HALIFAX (CP) — The life of Roberta Wadman and Jean Watts is the story of a woman's kindness.

Roberta and Jean, blind and deaf, have been the constant charges of Louise Feron for 10 years. To them she has given her whole effort, just as she has done with countless others at the School for the Deaf here for more than 40 years.

Hundreds of children have come to Miss Feron to learn to appreciate the richness and wonders of the world despite their handicaps.

KEEN STUDENTS

Miss Feron's story is the story of her students. Roberta and Jean, for instance, were bewildered and frightened when they came to her. At the same time Marjorie Golinsky joined the group through a special arrangement with the Alberta government. Normally the school here takes only children from the Maritimes, but accepted the Alberta girl because it is one of only two schools in Canada that accept students who are both deaf and blind.

The training program is arduous and demands intelligence and patience from both teacher and students. No knowledge can come to the blind and deaf child except by the sense of touch.

Patiently, carefully, Miss Feron applies her knowledge and care. Now the two older girls have a wide range of knowledge, not only from what their braille textbooks contain but also of the everyday things of the city of Halifax. Each girl has a vocabulary as extensive as that of the average high school student.

Some results of her teaching may be seen in an English composition Roberta wrote about a walk through the woods. The girl, through the eyes and ears of Miss Feron, wrote about the "gold and scarlet of the autumn," and the "whispering of the wind in the trees."

In another essay, Roberta gave her definition of light:

"We each carry our own light within us."

Spring Style Battle Ground Developed In Two Necklines

LONDON (CP) — There was "standing room only" when Scots-born Ronald Paterson unveiled his first fashion show as the newest member of London's "top 12" of haute couture.

International fashion press and buying representatives crowded into the L-shaped salon and their interest, jaded by a fierce whirl of new-season activity, perked up as Paterson's Toronto-born wife, Stevie, announced some 50 models.

Last to show in a three-day round of four shows daily, Paterson had to be good to catch the interest of critical women who make fashion their business. But he made it—giving plenty of credit to his wife.

SUCCESSFUL SHOW

"There is no doubt that the collection was a success," said Margaret John in The Evening Star "It was full of grace and lightness crystallizing the moulded line which appeared throughout the collections."

With years as a free lance fashion reporter for Canadian daily newspapers behind her, Mrs. Paterson has a fair idea of what will catch the eye of the press. She has been her husband's administrative officer since he started a couture salon in 1949, a year after their marriage.

Fashion shows now are an old business for this man-and-wife team—but this first appearance as a member of the Incorporated Society of London Fashion designers needed thought and good judgment.

The Paterson showing had elegance, chic simplicity and daring.

Battle ground for spring styles is upwards from the bust and Paterson was in there pitching with two new necklines, the lasso neck and the ravine line.

LATEST NECKLINES

The first of these stands up and away from the throat, the edges forming a perfect lasso loop. The ravine neckline is illustrated most successfully by a short evening dress in a copper and white glazed silk. A simple dress with contrasting cummerbund, it has a wide V-neck starting at the back on the shoulder tips and dipping into the low waistband. The V-front is as wide but not so low.

This bare neckline is carried into classic suits by means of a tucked panel of self material filling the gap and giving an epaulet yoke that dips into a long V to the waist.

Beige in all shades is the foremost neutral in the spring collections. Paterson uses it in tints ranging from golden champagne to mud-pack brown and tobacco. A champagne evening gown is draped surah satin with strapless gathered bodice and fully-gathered skirt is topped by a matching evening coat, patterned in sprays of mayflowers and lined in vermilion.

Collarless, with full puff sleeves forming a bell shape at the elbow and gathered into a low shoulder, the coat has the same fashion points as tweed styles worn over soft wool day dresses. It is wider at hem than the cocoon look featured by several designers.

Paterson used colors everywhere. If clothes were dark or neutral he used contrasts. A flame-red coolie hat, fringed with matching osprey feathers that floated to noselength in front and shoulder length behind, gave a frivolous touch to a charcoal town suit most conventional bosses would approve on a personal secretary.

Extension Society Reports On Work

A meeting of the Women's Auxiliary of the Roman Catholic church Extension Society was held in the social centre, Brock street, Monday evening, Mrs. J. Lane presided and opened with prayer. Mrs. L. Lucas reported a substantial bank balance on hand.

Report of charitable and missionary work was read by Secretary Mrs. D. F. McCarthy. Boxes valued at $15 each were packed with food, socks, etc., for three missionaries on the west coast. Each of these boxes included a subscription to the Catholic Digest. A large carton of clothing, which included socks and mitts knit by members of this pontifical association was sent for distribution among the missions. A cheque for $15 was sent to the Christmas toy shower which is held in Toronto to provide toys for needy children.

A donation of $25 was given to a diocesan mission to improve the surroundings where the holy sacrifice of the mass is offered each Sunday. Miss Teresa McNamara reported on the making of altar linens and Mrs. George Lynch reported on the sewing of vestments. These linens and vestments are also distributed among the missions.

The annual membership drive for this association will begin this month.

Wed At Millbrook

The marriage took place Saturday in St. Andrew's United church parsonage at Millbrook of Luella Florence Margaret, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Kellett, to John Scheuneman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Scheuneman of Eganville. The Rev. A. M. Butler officiated.

The bride wore a gold-coloured street dress in tissue faille with navy hat and accessories and a corsage of talisman roses. Her attendant, Miss Valeeta Embleton of Havelock was dressed in turquoise poplin with navy trim, navy hat and accessories and wore a corsage of pink rosebuds. Joseph Harnden of Havelock was groomsman.

A wedding supper was held for the bridal party and the immediate family at the home of the bride's parents. Leaving afterward for Eaganville the bride added a turquoise wool top coat to her costume. Mr. and Mrs. Scheuneman plan to make their home in Kingston.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

How To Keep Hubby Happy Make Lunch-Pail Appetizing

The factory worker who carries his lunch needs and deserves special attention from his beloved and loving lunch packer, be she mother, wife, sister or daughter.

Remember, at best a carried lunch is cold comfort — even if it does contain a thermos full of hot soup or coffee. The luncher's hunger is satisfied, but he is not with his own loved ones, sitting in his favorite dining chair, at ease and relaxed. So it is the duty and the privilege of the lunch packer to make his lunch a pleasant daily surprise.

I'm strongly against last-minute rush lunch packing. This is not a makeshift meal. If it is impossible to pack the lunch the night before and keep it in the refrigerator, at least have your sandwich fillings planned and ready.

Now the next preachment concerns whole wheat bread. The husband of one of my friends will not eat whole wheat bread. His reason: He's always eaten white. Now this young man is highly intelligent, and if he knew how he could keep his own good health (and even delay baldness which he is threatened with) I know he would switch from white to whole wheat. 100 per cent whole wheat bread contains nutrients that enriched hite bread even does not. Some of these nutrients are only trace minerals, but nevertheless these are indispensable to good health and body function. Wake up, men, and enjoy the blessings of whole wheat bread. If you are seeking good health and flavor, whole wheat bread is your dish.

WORKERS' LUNCH BOXES

(1) In thermos tomato soup; sliced, canned, chilled corned beef with French mustard and lettuce, two 2-slice whole wheat bread sandwiches, 1 new carrot cut into slivers wrapped in wax paper, celery heart, ½ pint milk, banana.

(2) Two 2-slice whole wheat bread sandwiches with chopepd hard-cooked eggs (2) and green relish and mayonnaise, one fresh tomato, one apple, two oat and date squares, coffee in thermos.

(3) Two hard-cooked eggs peeled and wrapped in wax paper (occasionally "devil" these eggs), 2-slice peanut crush sandwiches on whole wheat, ½ head hard lettuce, 6 radishes, 1 large orange, 2 brownies, tea in thermos.

(4) Consomme in thermos, two 2-slice salmon and chopped pickle sandwiches on whole wheat, ½ small cucumber, bunch of grapes, piece of cheddar cheese, 2 slices buttered nut bread, ½ pint milk.

(5) Two fried chicken legs, celery hearts, ½ green pepper cut in strips, sandwich relish and lettuce sandwiches on whole wheat, white cream cheese and apple pie (place this pie on wedge-shaped piece of cardboard to fit bottom crust of pie, then wrap in double wax paper), hot cocoa in thermos.

(6) Liver-spread sandwiches (see recipe), two 2-slice on whole wheat, shredded cabbage and carrot salad in covered salad container, table figs, butter tarts, in thermos cafe au lait.

LIVER SPREAD

When I make liver spread for special occasions I use chicken livers. Calves' liver will do, of course, but is more expensive. Also beef or pork liver, but flavor is not so good. In one cup water simmer ½ lb. fresh chicken livers for 15 minutes. Drain. In two tablespoons butter gently saute 2 tablespoons chopped onion until soft but not brown. Put cooked livers and sauteed onion through finest knife of food chopper twice. Add 2 tablespoons mayonnaise (or a little more, ¼ teaspoon dry mustard, ⅛ teaspoon pepper and ½ teaspoon salt. Other additions might be Worcestershire sauce or crumbled crisp bacon. Work the paste until it is soft and of smooth spreading consistency. Store in covered jar in refrigerator.

REMEMBER to: (1) occasionally add little treats to the lunch box such as nuts or candy in wax paper twists, (2) add surprise soup like clam chowder or thin chili con carne in thermos, (3) substitute meaty baked spareribs for meat in sandwiches occasionally. At such times make cream cheese or peanut butter sandwiches.

DOROTHY DIX

Youth, Overseas, Exacts Promises From Two Girls

DEAR MISS DIX: The boy I love is overseas. Before leaving he asked me to wait for him. Naturally, I said I would, although he will be gone for two years. He wrote once, I answered, and heard nothing further from him. Then I learned that he had asked another girl also to wait for him. I wrote, asking for an explanation, and he replied that he had met her after he exacted my promise, was sure he loved her, but would like to continue being friends with me. From the general tone of the letter, such as the use of particular pet names, etc., I am sure he still loves me. I know the other girl is not being true to him—as I would be. She dates other boys, but knows I won't tell. What should I do?

Phyllis

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: I'm not a soothsayer, but I do believe you have a better-than-even chance of winning the boy back.

You must realize, first, that what he was doing when he asked the other girl to write, and wait for him, was providing two year's security for himself. Try to imagine what it would be like for you to be sent thousands of miles from home, knowing you wouldn't see any of your family or friends, and would be dependent intirely on mail to provide a personal touch. Apparently he wasn't too sure that you would wait for him, so latched onto another girl for assurance. Of course, he should have had more faith in you, but perhaps he has boy friends who were let down by their own girls. Two years is a long time to expect a young girl to go dateless.

TRUE COLORS WILL SHOW

Since the other girl obviously isn't the faithful type, it won't be long before her true colors become apparent. You are right in not tattling: such behavior would lower you in the eyes of the boy instead of lessening his interest in her. Continue writing to him the friendly letters he requested. It won't be easy for you, but getting the man you want isn't always a cinch. It usually takes a lot of forbearance and patience. But it's worth it, isn't it?

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: Our home has been brokekn up three times in 12 years through my husband's drinking. I have gone back each time thinking things would be better. I work and look after our little girl. I have tried every possible way to make our marriage a success, but have received absolutely no co-operation. My family, however, insist I should go back to him. Are they right to interfere in my business?

OLIVE R.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Families may not have the "right" to interfere, but from time immemorial they have tried to, and until the end of time they will continue. Very often their interference is justified, and should be considered, but not in your case. Struggling through life with a confirmed drunkard is not a course to recommend.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: What would you consider the normal length of time for a friendship to lead to a marriage proposal in the case of middle-aged people? I feel I have found the ideal woman for me, though I've only known her three weeks.

JIM D.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Perhaps you already know the lady as well as you might after a three-year acquaintance. The time is short, but since you feel delay might weaken your chances, go ahead and propose.

Canadian Fox Fur Used On British Spring Fashions

By MURIEL NARRAWAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — Silver fox adorned the sleeves of a purple and gold evening outfit by Norman Hartnell. Fox fur fringed a cream linen summer cape by John Cavanagh and decorated a satin stole by Hardy Amies.

Canada's trade department and Canadian silver fox breeders could congratulate themselves on edging fox fur into high fashion.

Five of London's best-known couturiers, royal designers Norman Hartnell and Hardy Amies, Worth, John Cavanagh, and Michael, used Canadian silver fox in their latest spring fashion collections. Most of the "top 12" sported some shade of fox.

Fashion writers not in the know commented on the almost unanimous choice of a moderately-priced fur that had fallen from favor in post-war fashion trends. The answer: Canadian trade offices, on behalf of Canadian fox breeders, disposed of some 400 skins to couture houses in London, Rome and Paris.

BACK AGAIN

"There it is again," Joyce Mather wrote in the Yorkshire Post, "large as life and twice as handsome."

Hartnell used it to cuff a loose, waist-length jacket topping a floor-length clinging dress in mauve and gold and called "grand duchess." The outfit sported most of the 1920 fashion points—deep V neckline back and front, narrow sleeveless armholes and unbroken line.

Silver fox on cream linen was a new treatment by John Cavanagh. A short cape like two huge choirboy collars, tied in front with a huge bow, had fox trimming to the deep collar and a fringe appearing under the bust-high hem.

Perhaps the most capricious style was a roly-poly fox tie with two tails, clipped on one shoulder and wreathing the opposite arm.

Victor Stiebel, designer to Princess Margaret and the Duchess of Kent, gave big cuffs of natural fox to a caramel-colored wool coat with princess bodice and wide skirt. Gleaming satin stoles trimmed with silver fox topped elaborately - embroidered grand occasion gowns and stoles made of the skins were worn with slim-skirted suits.

FAVORED BY QUEENS

Although fox has been out of favor some 10 years, there are two royal ladies who have continued to wear it—the Queen and the Queen Mother. Queen Elizabeth is often seen in a long cape of white fox skins worn over elaborate evening gowns and the Queen Mother favors fox trimmings on many coat styles.

This fur goes well with the gay tropical colors and soft spring pastels that form the basis of many London spring styles. Perhaps the Queen's warm-weather journey has influenced the most colorful display of violent greens, reds, blues and yellows seen in Britain for some time — although the British love of pastels is deep-rooted.

The long-legged look is the chief spring fashion trend. This means an unbroken line from bust to hem. Suit skirts are mostly cigar tight but there are many wide and semi-crinoline dress skirts. To quote Hardy Amies: "The battle ground this season is the bust and above."

The wide-shouldered look introduced last season by Christian Dior is used in many ways. The shortest skirt in the collections is 13 inches from the ground.

The government will pay almost $12,000,000 in per capita grants this year and the metropolitan area will get the lion's share—$4,469,880.

British Ships Seeking Plane Wreck

By JAMES NORRIS

ELBA (Reuters) — Electronic fingers from a fleet of British naval ships are groping over the muddy ocean floor off this Mediterranean island for clues that could affect Britain's future in the air.

Dogged searchers are pressing the latest marvels of modern science into use as they probe the sea bottom for the wreck of one of Britain's proudest airplanes—the trail-blazing Comet jetliner which plummeted into the ocean here Jan. 10.

Criss-crossing the water expanse where 29 passengers and six crew members plunged to their deaths, an armada of salvage ships is slowly dragging up the relics of the disaster—a wing panel, a woman's water-soaked suitcase.

But the chief object of their search still lies submerged and undetected beneath hundreds of feet of water. Divers, sonic detectors and underwater television have been unable to spot the main body section of the ill-fated Comet.

SEEK SABOTAGE EVIDENCE

There have been reports that sabotage may have caused the Elba crash, but only evidence from the wreck itself can answer the question of what caused it.

The search has already taken 18 days and yielded few tangible results, but naval officials say curtly that there is no time limit.

Pope Continues To Improve

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Pius spent a "fairly good" night, and his improvement continued today.

The Vatican press office said the continued improvement of the Roman Catholic spiritual leader is increasing optimism over his eventual full recovery.

It added, however, that the Pontiff's condition still needs attention, largely because of his advanced age. He will be 78 March 2.

Monday he rose from his bed and for the first time since he was stricken Jan. 25 was able to spend considerable time in an armchair.

This morning the Pope heard mass at his private chapel. He is not yet able to resume saying mass himself.

Meteorologists Go On Strike

PARIS (Reuters) — Meteorologists at the two Paris airports of Orly and Le Bourget went out on strike today, but bad flying conditions rather than an absence of weather reports disrupted normal air traffic.

The strike call, to back wage claims, was pressed only by the Communist group.

But the bulk of the rank-and-file followed the Communist lead today, and only a skeleton security service was working.

The strike will not interfere with Prime Minister St. Laurent's departure tomorrow for Bonn, continuing his world tour. The RCAF crew handling his plane has made arrangements to get weather information from London and Dusseldorf.

HAPPY REUNION—Slavoljub Djurovic, 29-year-old Yugoslav seeking asylum in the United States, is the happy object of his sons' affection in New York City after a court ruling barred the mother from taking them to Yugoslavia. The boys, Goran, six, at left, and Srdjan, four, were awarded to Djurovic who intimated that the Tito government was trying to get his wife, Zivka, and the youngsters to return to Yugoslavia to force his own return. The former local manager of a Yugoslavian export-import agency fears reprisals if he returns to his native land.

BONN (AP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent will see Canadian soldiers in the front line of Western defence when he visits West Germany — third stop on his goodwill world tour.

Scheduled to arrive by air at 10:45 a.m. (5:45 a.m. EST) Wednesday, the prime minister will go straight to the residence of President Theodor Heuss beside the Rhine river for a courtesy call and luncheon.

The Canadian leader today was spending his last day in Paris. Monday he held meetings with top government leaders including President Rene Coty and Premier Joseph Laniel.

At Bonn, after a briefing by Canadian ambassador Thomas Clayton Davis on German affairs and the progress of the Berlin Big Four conference, the prime minister will have a talk with Chancellor Adenauer at the chancellery.

A STATE DINNER

Diplomatic sources said that the presence of Canadian forces in Germany and the country's links with Europe through the Atlantic pact give Canada a direct and abiding interest in this part of the world.

In the evening Adenauer is giving a state dinner in honor of the Canadian visitor.

Thursday a special train takes the prime minister to Soest, near the industrial Ruhr, for an inspection of the 1st Canadian Infantry Brigade group.

He will be greeted by Gen. Sir Richard Gale, commander-in-chief of the northern army group, and Brig. W. A. B. Anderson of London, Ont., commanding the brigade. The honor guard will be from the Royal 22nd Regiment, and the Royal Canadian Horse Artillery will fire a 19-gun salute.

After inspecting the new barracks and reviewing 2,000 troops, the Canadian leader returns to Bonn for a dinner given by ambassador Davis, at which Adenauer and cabinet members will be guests.

Friday the party leaves for Rome, calling on the way at the Canadian Sabre jet bases at Zweibruecken, on the Saar-German border, and Gros Tenquin, in France. (see Paris night)

Want Strike Vouchers Signed By CIO-CCL

TIMMINS (CP) — Town council refused Monday night to endorse a resolution of the retail merchants of this community calling on the United Steelworkers of America (CIO-CCL) to cash strike welfare vouchers immediately.

The council said the union should be given the full four weeks within which it has promised to meet all its obligations. Mayor J. W. Spooner said that only two weeks had elapsed since the union's national director, C. H. Millard, had promised payment in a month's time.

The mayor added the strikes had cost the union close to $1,000,000 and that it had looked after the striking miners "very well."

Long, drawn out strikes in the gold mining industry of the area made up to 5,000 miners idle. Three mines employing about 1,000 are still on strike: Preston East Dome, Broulan Reef and Delnite.

Sir Edmund said he plans to tackle other Himalayan peaks later this year and possibly make an expedition into Canada's northland some time in the future.

Military Victory Probable End To War

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defence Secretary Charles Wilson said today he thought a military victory, rather than a negotiated peace, "would be perhaps both possible and probable" in the Indo-China war.

He was asked at a press conference whether he thought Indo-China might become another Korea.

"I see no reason to think it will," Wilson replied. "the war is going along fully as well as we and the French expected it to at this stage."

Wilson said he thought it was not necessary to give U. S. aid at any higher level at this time.

Propose Cadillac For Mayor Of Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — Alderman Howard Phillips said Monday a city the size of Toronto should provide its mayor with a Cadillac.

He made his remark as city council considered recommendations for the purchase of automobiles for the city, including a Buick for Mayor Allan Lamport and a Buick for the four members of the city's board of control. The council approved buying the two Buicks.

A Canadian Press survey showed mayors across Canada ride in these cars: Charlotte Whitton, Ottawa, 1950 Cadillac; Camilien Houde, Montreal, Cadillac and Buick as city cars and a 1952 Jaguar given him by Montreal's Italian colony last year as his personal car; Lloyd Jackson, Hamilton, 1952 Cadillac; William Hawrelak, Edmonton, 1954 DeSoto as official car and 1951 Buck as personal car; Garnet Coulter, Winnipeg, 1951 Buick; Arthur Reaume, Windsor, 1953 Monarch; Allan Rush, London, 1953 Pontiac sedan.

Visitors to the fall match were also impressed by the size and attractiveness of farm homes, the amount of land, by racial tolerance and by the fact that plowmen here are plowing-match conscious, Mr. Carroll said. He was impressed with the feeling of understanding created between competitors.

Premier Pledges Friendship To French Nation

PARIS (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent broadcast to the people of France tonight a message of Canadian friendship and of his belief that association for defence is the natural course toward "spiritual union" between countries "having the same forms of civilization."

The Canadian leader, whose 10-minute address in French was broadcast by La Radio Francaise, said France, with 1,000 years of political experience, knows well the divergences of opinion inevitable between countries otherwise attached to same fundamental ideas.

"These divergences can be as frequent as relations between two partners are close and subjects of discussion consequently more numerous."

HISTORIC EXPERIENCE

The prime minister said parliamentary democracies have historic experience which helps in solution of internal crises and the lessons may serve for solution of collective crises.

He concluded by saying:

"Canada participates historically in the traditions of France and England and geographically in the civilization of the United States; Canada speaks the languages of these three countries; Canada wishes me to tell you it has in this alliance with you and our other (NATO) partners lent its energy and goodwill to the salvation of this civilization."

$10,000 Damage In Office Fire

TORONTO (CP) — Damage was estimated at upwards of $10,000 in a two-alarm fire that broke out Monday night in a century-old fruit produce and office building on Church street in south-central Toronto.

Deputy chief Len Leigh said damage to the three-storey structure, valued at possibly $100,000, probably will not exceed $5,000. In addition, close to 1,000 bushel baskets of apples valued at $4,000 altogether were destroyed along with some interior furnishings.

Firemen said they believe the fire started in the basement of a restaurant operated by Sam Siegel and spread quickly along the floor into adjoining produce storage rooms of Canadian Fruit Produce Co. Ltd. and the Church Produce Company. The upper floors house business offices.

War Veteran To Hang For Murder

CALGARY (CP)—Robert James Sim, 23-year-old Korean war veteran, was found guilty of the murder of Mrs. Gharda Middlestad, 55, last March 17 and was sentenced to be hanged May 11.

Mr. Justice J. Boyd McBride described the sex-slaying as "one of the most horrible" murders in his experience on the bench.

Mrs. Middlestad's beaten, semi-clad body was found on a railway right-of-way March 8 by a train engineer. She had been raped, her face smashed in, and she had been left alive to die six or seven hours later.

Sim's young wife, one of a number of relatives in the courtroom, sobbed as sentence was pronounced.

City Motoring Too Much For Farmers

DUNDAS (CP)—The terrors of motoring and finding parking space in Toronto and Montreal are proving too much for farmer members of the Ontario Ayrshire Club.

The annual meeting here Monday approved a resolution sponsored by Brodie Ness of Kingston requesting the Canadian club, going to Toronto for its annual convention tomorrow, to change the constitution to permit conventions "in smaller cities of Ontario and Quebec."

High metropolitan hotel costs were also listed as a reason for wanting "to go back to the agricultural districts for our conventions." The club "has a revenue of $35,000 and spends about $6,000 setting up conventions in Toronto and Montreal," Mr. Ness said. "This cost could be halved."

Policy of the Ontario club has been to meet in smaller centres, a reason it chose Dundas.

A move to hold May or June annual meets instead of February was blocked by secretary J. H. Knapp of Galt who said "there are too many other activities then. I could be away from the farm every day if I took in all events."

Horse Dealers Sentimental

TORONTO (CP)—L. P. Doherty, Kentucky breeding authority said Monday night that horse breeders all over the world are too prone to deal in emotions and sentiment rather than facts and figures.

Speaking to an audience of breeders from Ontario and Quebec at a dinner honoring Chop Chop, Canadian sire of the year in 1953, Mr. Doherty said he failed to understand how otherwise successful businessmen could invest large sums of money in the horse racing and breeding business on the advice of "an expert wearing a big white hat, a shoe string tie and a drawl."

E. P. Taylor, owner of Chop Chop, received a gold stop watch from L. W. Ruby, publisher of The Thoroughbred of Canada.

Vivien Leigh Ordered To Take Short Holiday

LONDON (AP)—Actress Vivien Leigh was ordered today to take a short holiday from the stage after breaking her wrist during a performance Monday night of her latest London smash hit.

The 40-year-old star slipped and fell five minutes after the curtain went up on "The Sleeping Prince," but played the show through before being taken to a hospital.

Her husband, Sir Laurence Olivier, who co-stars in the play about an American showgirl in London in the early 1900s, was at her bedside for most of the morning.

He said he had been unaware that his wife had injured herself, noticing that something was wrong only when Miss Leigh failed to take off a pair of white gloves as directed in the script.

It was not known how long Miss Leigh will be off the stage. Meantime her understudy will fill in.

Molotov Dominates Big 4 Talks With Soviet View On Germany

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

BERLIN (AP) — Soviet Foreign Minister V. N. Molotov levelled his big guns on the German unification issue today, dominating the 14th session of the Big Four conference.

Reports from inside the parley chamber indicated the Russian led off the day's talks with a resume of the German situation as Moscow views it. With the necessary translations, it exhausted the best part of two hours.

Whether Molotov had anything new to add to the deadlocked situation could not be ascertained at this time.

While the statesmen were gradually burying the German issue in oratory, Austrian Foreign Minister Leopold Figl arrived in Berlin by air to present his country's case for immediate independence. The Big Four may take up the Austrian state treaty Thursday but in any event have decided to tackle the question not later than Friday.

COOL TO WEST

A Western bid for the Soviet Union to prod Red China into an early Korean peace conference, meanwhile, was reported to have received a cool reception from Molotov. Diplomats familiar with Monday's secret session said the Korean proposition was presented to the Soviet Foreign Minister then as a possible step toward ending the Indo-China war.

Molotov, they said, made no promise. Instead, he was reported to have stuck to his demands for a big-power conference with Communist China and for a disarmament conference outside the United Nations. State Secretary Dulles of the United States, Britain's Anthony Eden and France's Georges Bidault turned him down in private as they previously had in public.

The four-hour closed-door session, first of the two-week-old conference, produced a communique stating the four had agreed to take up the long-stalled Austrian independence treaty by Friday at the latest. Reports today were that this was about the only thing accomplished.

Although the Havelock team were on top in the fight they were behind in the tally at the end of that period, by a score of 5-2. Chief Constable R. W. Havelock came out in the third period and played great hockey scoring four goals and blanking Wellington in that period in which there were no penalties.

Mortimer and Wootton played a strong game on defence for the winners with the latter scoring one goal. Defenceman Berardi came in handy for Havelock as two of their defencemen, Hannah and Kelly were away, the former with an injured back. Mason played one of his better games. Here And There In Sports

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

SEIXAS PRAISES AUSSIES

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Vic Seixas, home from Australia after three months of tennis tournaments had praise for the ability of Australian players and said that, right or wrong, Aussie court officials called them as they saw them.

Second ranking player in the U.S., Seixas expressed concern Monday lest Americans get the wrong impression of Australian tennis people. He scoffed at the suggestion that the American Davis Cup squad received a shabby deal.

"Truthfully, the Australians take their tennis more seriously than we do. It's just like a world series game to them. The fans remind you of those one might see at a New York Giants-Brooklyn Dodger baseball game. They're tennis fanatics and want an Australian victory.

"It would be something to wonder about if 17,000 people in that state of mind could keep quiet and clap hands politely when one of their boys does something well. Here in the states, we don't take our tennis that seriously. A crowd watching the Davis Cup matches here comes out primarily to watch good tennis. Down there they come out primarily to see the Aussies win."

VIES FOR SKI HONORS

FALUN, Sweden (AP)—Russia is expected to challenge the three Scandinavian powers — Norway, Sweden and Finland—for top nordic honors in the world skiing championships opening here next Saturday.

The Russians have sent full teams in both men's and women's divisions and are conceded good chances in events which put a premium on raw strength and condition.

The nordic phase of the championships consists of jumping and cross country. After opening ceremonies Saturday, competition will begin with the 30-kilometre cross-country and special jumping Sunday.

The United States is rated an outside in these specialities along with Italy, Austria and France.

The Americans will have their best chances in the Alpine events—downhill and slalom skiing—at Are, Sweden, Feb. 27-March 7. The Russians aren't entered in the Alpine competition.

REDS SIGN MYERS JR.

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati Redlegs' organization Monday signed the son of a Cincinnati baseball hero.

General manager Gabe Paul said Edie Myers, 19-year-old infielder who lives at Wormleysburg, Pa., has been signed with Cincinnati's farm club at Douglas, Ga., of the class D Georgia State League.

Eddie's dad, shortstop Billy Myers, drove in the winning run for Cincinnati in the seventh and deciding game of the 1940 world series. Billy also played on Cincinnati's National League pennant-winning team of 1939.

THE BARBER SIGNS

NEW YORK (AP)—Pitcher Sal Maglie passed some good news to New York Giants Monday along with his signed contract.

The 36-year-old righthander forwarded his contract from Niagara Falls, N.Y., with a note saying "I'm feeling better than I have in two years. I hope to have a good year."

Back trouble plagued Maglie last season when he fell off to an 8-9 won-lost record. In the three years previous he posted marks of 18-4, 23-6 and 18-8.

The Giants didn't mention terms but said "Maglie was satisfied."

NOT TOO CLUMSY NOW

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP)—Lloyd Brown, a senior centre who didn't play high school basketball because—in his own words—he was "too clumsy," poured in 72 points Monday night to lead Aquinas College to a 100-45 victory over winless Cleary College.

Teammates fed the ball steadily to Brown in an effort to break the Grand Rapids scoring record. They succeeded—by 20 points.

Brown, a six-foot-four Negro, made 27 field goals out of 41 attempts and added 18 free throws.

Slalom, downhill and Alpine classes will be run off.

R. W. Gooch, technical chairman of the Ontario division of the Canadian Amateur Ski Association, will be the ski master. More than 120 entries are expected.

Record Entries Start In Sled-Dog Race

By CECIL SMITH

OTTAWA (CP)—The largest entry list in the history of the international sled-dog derby matches speed and stamina today in the first leg of the annual two-day 66-mile classic.

Some 26 drivers will mush their yelping dogs over the marathon course in two daily 33-mile heats for a chance to capture the gold challenge trophy and $1,000 cash prize.

The course starts and finishes on the frozen Rideau canal in the heart of the capital.

Heading this year's entry list is lanky Wilf Lepine of Quebec City, the winner in 1950 and 1952.

He is expected to get stiff competition from big Bill Shearer of East Jaffray, N.H., who captured the prize in 1949, and Emile Martel of Loretteville, Que., winner in 1951.

The international was not run last year because of poor snow conditions.

Youngest musher entered in the race is 17-year-old Sandra Stiles, an Ottawa high school girl, who will line up with two other women to compete with the men drivers.

MAKING THIRD TRY

Sandra, who made her debut in dog racing this year, has taken over from her father, Herbert Stiles, who has been racing and breeding dogs for a number of years.

Mrs. Bunty Dunlop of Burlington, Ont., is making her third appearance while Mrs. Jean Lane of Lunenburg, Mass., is racing for the first time in the international.

Canadien Player Out Of Action

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Canadiens announced Monday night that defenceman Dollard St. Laurent will be out of action indefinitely because of a shoulder injury and will be replaced by Jim MacPherson.

St. Laurent was injured late in Sunday night's National Hockey League game in New York, when Canadiens defeated the Rangers 4-1. Reports reaching here said St. Laurent was boarded by Nick Mickoski and it is feared the Montreal defenceman suffered a chipped bone in his shoulder.

MacPherson was recently sent to Montreal Royals of the Quebec Hockey League subject to immediate recall. He will rejoin the NHL club for Thursday night's game in Chicago.

Fortin Wins Welterweight In Split 12-Round Decision

MONTREAL (CP)—Claude Fortin, a 22-year-old Montrealer with a powder-puff left jab, Monday night won the Canadian welterweight championship from slugger Rocky Brisebois on a split 12-round decision.

Brisebois, who weighed in at 145½, was never hurt by his 144-pound opponent. But he was confused as Fortin back-pedalled and kept his left jabbing in Brisebois' face for a controversial decision.

Fortin, only two years out of junior amateur competition, used the accurate left throughout the televised bout. Brisebois, pressing for a knockout, trekked stolidly after his dancing opponent but never succeeded in landing a payoff punch. He was strongest in the early rounds.

Judge Billy Zed gave Fortin seven rounds, Brisebois three, and had two even. Roch Bouchard saw it 6-2-4 in favor of Fortin. Johnny Gow dissented and gave Brisebois the edge, 6-4-2.

Some 1,000 fans paid $1,400 to watch the bout in the Mont St. Louis auditorium.

The victory was Fortin's second in a row over Brisebois, a stablemate of world lightweight champion Jimmy Carter. Fortin won a non-title decision over the champion in Quebec City in December. The victory brought about the match with the crown at stake.

Brisebois, a 24-year-old Montrealer who fights extensively in the United States, was making his third defence of the title he won in 1952 in an elimination tournament after Johnny Greco, another Montrealer, retired.

Brisebois tried to take advantage of his greater weight and stockier build to bull his rangy opponent into position. He was warned by the referee for butting Fortin. Both fighters were cut over the left eye.

The new champion, a 5-7 underdog in the pre-fight betting, was presented with the championship belt immediately after the bout.

IN DOG DERBY—Sandra Stiles, 17-year-old Ottawa musher, will compete on equal terms with more experienced male drivers in Ottawa's two-day 66-mile International Dog Derby opening Feb. 9. She will be competing in the international derby for the frst time. The derby attracts drivers from Quebec, Ontario and the United States. The race, run in two daily 33-mile heats, starts and finishes on the frozen Rideau canal in downtown Ottawa. Sandra is shown here with her short-haired lead dog. — (CP Photo).

NFL Campaign Will Help Canadian Rugby

TORONTO (CP) — Carl Voyles, coach of Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Big Four football league, said Monday the National Football League's big campaign to sign players will eventually help Canadian football.

In a telephone conversation with The Globe and Mail from his Vero Beach, Fla., home Voyles said:

"The National League is putting on the biggest drive they ever made to sign players early. But it's going to backfire and help Canadian football."

He said each NFL team had drafted 30 players from college teams and apparently intended to sign them all. Voyles said that eventually there will be a lot of boys cut from the rosters.

"It may come too late to help us next year," he aded. "But when they do cut them, it's going to hurt their cause a lot. The boys will realize then that they were sold a bill of goods and those teams will really have to do some talking the following year."

Hope Friendship Will Come From Arab Kings' Meeting

By THOMAS R. LITTLE

CAIRO (OFNS) — The recent meeting between 18-year-old King Hussein of Jordan and King Saud of Saudi Arabia, who is already a veteran in the politics of the Arabian desert, was more than a mere courtesy between neighboring monarchs.

The meeting, which took place on January 23 at the village of Badnah,, on the Jordan-Saudi Arabian frontier, was cordial, and cordiality between these two kings is itself important.

Ibn Saud, the great father of the present King Saud, drove the Hashemite dynasty, to which King Hussein belongs, from the throne of Mecca in 1925. King Abdullah, who founded the Kingdom of Jordan and was the grandfather of the present King Hussein, felt very deeply the loss of Mecca, for his family are in direct line of descent from the Prophet Mohammed. It was always felt in the Arab world that King Abdullah's schemes for a Greater Syria, by which he meant the union of Syria and Jordan under the Hashemite crown, were intended as a stepping stone towards the strengthening of his family so that one day they could reconquer the Arabian peninsula. King Abdullah's feelings were not assuaged by the fact that Saudi Arabia became rich with oil, whereas his own kingdom remained dependent on British exchequer grants and was further impoverished by the influx of nearly half a million Arab refugees from Palestine.

ONE VISIT

It is true that King Abdullah once paid a state visit to King Ibn Saud but those present at the meeting of the two great kings of the Arab world were not convinced that their expressions of amity had any depth. In practice, the suspicion and distrust persisted, splitting the Arab world between the Hashemite kingdoms of Iraq and Jordan and the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia which had, for long, the consistent support of King Farouk of Egypt.

The Arab world therefore watched with interest for evidence of the attitude of the new generation of Hashemites towards this old conflict. Neither King Hussein of Jordan nor his cousin, King Feisal of Iraq, have ever lived in Mecca. Their minds are not colored by the sense of exile, and perhaps the partial sophistication derived from their years at British public schools has modified their ancestral tie with the holy city of Mecca.

But no one can say how strongly is the pride of leadership of the authentic Sherifs, the descendants of the Prophet, or how deeply even these modern descendants feel the right to rule in Mecca. The shrewd King Saud, whose youth was spent with his father in the conquest of Arabia and the subtle tribal politics which surrounded it, must have had in mind that Hussein's cousin, Feisal, is ruler of the oil kingdom of Iraq, which should now make more rapid progress than is possible in desert Arabia. Iraq believes in the federation of Jordan and Iraq, which together might present a challenge much greater than anything the Saud family has had to face from the Hashemites in the past.

SINCERE, ENERGETIC

Those who know the young King Hussein believe he sincerely wishes to heal the breach between his family and the family of Saud so that the weakness of the Arab world can be removed by genuine unity of purpose. He is energetic in travelling about his kingdom and proposes to tour all the Arab capitals. He has all the sensitive sympathy of youth for the Arab refugees who crowd the western frontier area of his kingdom. In Britain he learned something of the democracy of Kingship, which leads him to seek the personal touch with his people. There were fears while he was in London that he was becoming a playboy, with a taste for night clubs and dance bands. But since his return to Jordan his energies seem to have gone into the hard work of ruling his country or, at least, of studying its problem with the fresh insight that residence in the Western world has given him.

Probably it is his Pan-Arabism which is dominant in his character. He has the fervent nationalism of the young Arab and this seems a stronger element in his make-up than the dynastic memories of the kingship of Mecca. At least, that is the impression of observers who were at Badnah. They believe that the cordiality achieved between Hussein and Saud was more real than was ever possible between Ibn Saud and Abdullah.

King Saud has given £50,000 for the defence of the Jordan's frontier with Israel, and is reported to have promised help with manpower if Israeli aggression should occur. That Hussein should have wanted such a promise in itself is a new development, because Abdullah was never happy to think of Saudi tribesmen on his territory. King Saud is now talking of visiting Amman, the Jordan capital. There is no doubt that the Arab world would gain by the friendship of King Saud and King Hussein.

MODEL OF POWER PROJECT — A 35½-mile stretch of the St. Lawrence river in miniature is inspected by newspapermen in Toronto. The model, built by Ontario Hydro to enable engineers to make calculations for building the giant St. Lawrence river power project, is complete even to simulated ice floes. Engineers say the model makes it possible to make big savings in construction costs by putting their calculations to the test in advance of the actual building.—(CP Photo).

Fairy Tales To Politics Run Gamut In Russian Text Books

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MOSCOW (CP) — The English text book studied by Russia's 12- and 13-year-old sixth grade pupils runs the gamut from fairy tales and school-day morality to international politics.

A state publication, the book is called "Stories About School" and is in English except for Russian footnotes and a dictionary appendix.

It tells about pupils reporting to their class on their holidays and on activities of Pioneer groups (the Soviet Version of Boy Scouts and Girl Guides) and reveals how Russian children are encouraged to check one another's conduct.

EXAMINE CONDUCT

Nelly, for instance, criticizes Masha for writing her name and the date on a park statue. Masha tells her to mind her business. Nelly tells the other girls and they discuss Masha's conduct at the next Pioneer meeting.

It is learned that the previous year Nelly refused to help Irene crib in an arithmetic exam. Irene failed but Nelly later helped her study and pass the next one.

The meeting passes two resolutions:

"1. We think Nelly acted right when she told the class about Masha Stepanovna's bad action. It is the duty of a Soviet Pioneer to unmask all unpioneerlike actions. She was also right when she refused to let Irene copy her sum.

"2. We think that to spoil works of art and other kinds of property is a very uncultured action, and we promise to keep our desks and books in good order, and to stop any boy or girl who spoils any kind of school property, or trees and flowers in parks and gardens."

ENGLISH READING

In a story about the school's English reading club the pupils act out sketches based on Robinson Crusoe, Tom Sawyer, Gulliver's Travels and Grimm's "Snowdrop."

One boy tells the club: "I advise you to read Dickens' books. Karl Marx says that he gives a better picture of society than many scientists."

A boy called Youra tells about international politics.

"Youra," says the book, "spoke about the peace-loving nations, such as the Soviet Union, its friends—the democratic countries such as China and Korea."

"We can build wonderful canals to give water to the driest deserts, we can build houses, clubs, schools and hospitals, because our party and our government do not spend the people's money on preparations for a new war. Every worker who works well, every Stakhanovite, every scientist, every good pupil at school, helps to build communism.

"Capitalist countries spend most of their money on the future war. The Soviet Union stands for peace, and the movement for peace shall win."

Another story, about Soviet Army Day, Feb. 23, has a bemedalled Maj. Antonov visiting a class. The boys say: "We all want to become soldiers and heroes and to defend our fatherland."

The major answers: "You can begin to be soldiers and heroes at school. Every great commander can say when he visits his old school: 'This is where I won my first victories.'

But the boys want to hear about war and heroism, not lessons. The major replies:

"So you want to be airmen, gunners, sailors, without knowing mathematics, physics, geography, and other subjects? Impossible!

"A Soviet officer must be a cultured man. He must be stronger in technique than his enemy. He must know literature, history, and especially mathematics, physics and languages. Your first battles are battles with science. Your first victories, boys, are here.

"Your first orders and medals are the 'fours' and 'fives' (in Canada 'A' and 'B' marks) that you get here. Begin early, begin now, and you will become good airmen, soldiers and sailors, when the time comes. Good luck to you boys! Forward—attack the fortress of knowledge—and win!"

Labor Board Rules On Prosecution

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario labor relations board in a decision made public Monday ruled that a random selection of employees cannot be singled out for prosecution for an unlawful strike.

The decision dealt with the application of Hadley-Moulthrop Engineering Company of Chatham to prosecute 12 of its employees for having a "common understanding" when they failed to report for work Oct. 2 to Oct. 9 last year.

The majority report of the board rejected the company's application to prosecute the 12 on the ground it had been admitted that those men represented but half the bargaining unit and had been picked at random from the company's list of employees.

The board ruled, however, that two union stewards cited in the company's application "bear a greater measure of responsibility than the other employees in seeing that the law is observed."

Consent was granted to prosecute the two stewards, James Mullaly and Russell Callow.

Acquitted After Appeal Against Assault Sentence

TORONTO (CP) — Raymond Bowers, 59-year-old proprietor of a service station at Georgetown, Monday won his appeal against a sentence of three months at hard labor on a charge of assaulting a sheriff. The Ontario Court of Appeal acquitted him.

His counsel, Harold H. Siegel, said Bowers pleaded guilty at his trial because he thought that in ejecting sheriff William J. Robertson from his premises he had committed an offence. Mr. Siegel said Bowers did not known he was within his rights.

Evidence was that Bowers pushed the sheriff as the officer was leaving after serving a summons on one of Bowers' employees.

Bowers, who served nine days of the sentence, said at the trial that he spoke to Sheriff Robertson who kept talking and putting his finger right in Bowers' face.

"He said he didn't have to go, that he was the sheriff and he could be there if he liked," Bowers said at the trial. Bowers said he replied:

"Well, you can't,' and I grabbed him by the shoulder and pushed him out of the door."

Chief Justice J. W. Pickup questioned the sheriff's right to enter the place without a warrant.

Mr. Justice J. Keiller Mackay said he found no evidence the sheriff was restrained from going out.

"He could have gone out but he wanted to assert his authority."

REBELS ATTACK—French forces at Hanoi, Indo-China, have disclosed that Viet Minh rebels are attacking in force over a 500-mile front in Laos. In the northern part, the biggest rebel force is within 51 miles of Luang-prabang. In the centre, the rebels attacked a French Union outpost 12 miles north of Vientiane. There is also fighting in the vicinity of Paksane. A Laotian spokesman said the rebels apparently are attempting to capture Pakse, an important port in the south.

Ghost Ship Arrives In N.S. Port

Sails Unmanned Into Glace Bay No Sign of Crew

HALIFAX (CP)— A fishing boat, her three-man crew lost at sea, sailed unmanned into her home port of Glace Bay, N.S., today. The crews of two other vessels turned up after surviving the worst Atlantic storm of the winter.

The battered Liberator followed into port a long trail of broken hatch covers, rigging and lights that were torn from her by 50-mile-an-hour winds and heavy seas. There was no sign of her crew.

The vessel's captain was Tom Barrett, a storm-wise fisherman who was regarded in Glace Bay as one of the best in the business. His crew members were 19-year-old Paul Ford and Jake Burke.

Barrett was the son of Silby Barrett, an executive officer of Local 50 of the United Mine Workers Union in Ontario.

CREW PICKED UP

The 159-ton auxiliary schooner Keith V. Collins out of Lunenburg, N.S., had her seams opened by pounding waves and sank about 60 miles east of Halifax. The trawler Cape Smoky picked up her crew and is bringing them to Halifax.

Off Cape Breton, the Jena H. of Port Morien is missing on snow-blurred seas with three men aboard. A search will be made if weather clears today. The RCAF said it would be useless to send an aircraft out in the snow-filled winds.

The weather office here says that skies will clear today in the western Atlantic provinces. Storm warnings in this area have been replaced with small craft warnings.

Dishwasher Admits Shooting Bodenheim

NEW YORK (AP) — Harold Weinberg, 25-year-old dishwasher, admitted today that he shot exotic writer Max Bodenheim, found slain last Sunday with his wife, police announced.

The announcement came a few minutes after Weinberg, a fugitive since the bodies were found in a squalid east side room, had been hustled into a police station.

The prisoner had not yet been questioned concerning the fatal stabbing of Bodenheim's wife, 35-year-old Ruth Fagan, police said.

Tour Eased For Elizabeth

LISMORE, Australia (AP) — A change in the royal tour program for Thursday, announced today, indicates that Queen Elizabeth may be feeling the strain of travelling.

Premier Joseph J. Cahill of New South Wales announced that the Queen will return the 52 miles from Wollongong to Sydney Thursday by train instead of by car.

Cahill said the royal visit committee felt that after the heavy program, including a drive to Wollongong, it would be imposing too great a strain on the Queen to ask her to return to Sydney by road. They journey is a long, slow drive.

Fifty thousand people stood in rain and steamy heat for several hours to see the Queen. The crowd cheered lustily at the civic welcome outside the council chambers.

NCO's Turning In Uniforms

TORONTO (CP)—The Toronto Telegram said today that "a number" of non-commissioned officers of the reserve army, dissatisfied with the federal government's income taxation policy, turned in their uniforms Tuesday night at the University armouries in Toronto. In a newspage story the paper says that within the last few days taxation notices have been received by many NCOs informing them that a good portion of the money paid them for serving with the reserve forces must be returned. The paper adds that income taxes on army earnings for NCOs average more than 20 per cent.

The Telegram quoted one unidentified sergeant, a veteran of the Second World War, as saying, "It was an unwritten law until now that reserve army earnings would not be taxed.

"Most of us did not declare our earnings because we spent most of the money in the interests of the service. Few of us have any take-home pay."

The Telegram story says NCO's agree there would be no complaints over taxation if they were paid for the number of hours put in. Regardless of time spent in reserve training, reserve NCO's can get paid only for a maximum of 45 full days, equivalent to 90 evenings of training.

Predict Snap Election Will Be Called By Frost

TORONTO (CP)—The 1954 session of the Ontario legislature opens Thursday and some members say they "wouldn't be surprised" if Premier Frost calls a snap election when it is over. The likely issue would be alleged irregularities in the highways department. This is expected to be a major topic of the new session which may last seven weeks. Premier Frost's Progressive Conservative government has been under fire of Liberal and CCF party leaders since disclosure last month of alleged road-contract frauds in the Fort William division of the highways department.

The government, with 80 supporters in the 90-seat House, has two years of its five-year term to run but some opposition members see the highways issue as a first-class reason for Mr. Frost to seek a renewed vote of confidence.

PCs WIN BY-ELECTIONS

The disclosures of alleged irregularities were an issue in Monday's Simcoe East by-election which saw Lloyd Letherby retain the seat for the Progressive Conservatives. It was the second by-election that the government has won since it was returned to power in the landslide victory of 1951.

The standing of the Liberal party in the house was reduced from seven to six when Arthur Jolley won Niagara Falls for the government in a by-election last Oct. 26. With their six members and support from one Liberal-Labor member, the Liberals form the official opposition. The CCF has two members and the Communist Labor-Progressive party one.

The Liberals again will be led by house leader Farquhar Oliver. A party convention will be held in April to name a provincial leader to succeed Walter Thomson who resigned after the 1951 election.

Ax-Victim Tries To Talk

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Mrs. Bruce Beatty, 65, victim of a brutal ax attack a week ago, has been trying to say something today, hospital attendants said Tuesday.

Mrs. Beatty regained consciousness but so far has been unable to speak.

She and her husband Bruce, 68, were beaten with an ax Feb. 3 in a robbery of their small service station at Renton, 55 miles southeast of here. Mr. Beatty died soon after.

Hospital attendants said it may be a day or two before Mrs. Beatty recovers enough to tell the circumstances of the attack. Provincial police officers are standing by to visit her at hospital as soon as she is able to speak.

Police said doctors were unable to make out what she was trying to say today.

Would Impose Controls

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate voted today to impose government controls over speculation and futures trading in coffee. The legislation now goes to the House of Representatives.

76 Per Cent Of Canadian Men Drinkers Survey Shows Women Only 64 Per Cent

TORONTO (CP)—A survey by the Alcoholism Research Foundation of Ontario today provides the figures typifying the Canadian abstainer.

A female, 50 years and over, Protestant, having less than high school education and living in a farm community under poor circumstances.

The survey shows that 36 per cent of Canadian women are abstainers, compared to 24 per cent of Canadian men. The age group in which abstinance is the greatest is 50 years and over—41 per cent as against 28 per cent in the 30-49 year bracket and 25 per cent in the 21-29 group.

By education 35 per cent of those with less than high school education do not drink compared to 27 per cent of those with high school education or better.

Thirty-eight per cent of the farm community population refrain from drinking, as against 33 per cent in communities under 10,000, 28 per cent in communities from 10,000 to 100,000 and 24 per cent in communities with more than 100,000 people.

Find Bodies In Quebec Bush

Helicopter Explodes, 3 Killed

TROIS-PISTOLES, Que. (CP)—Search parties early today found the body of a third victim of Tuesday's mid-air explosion of a huge American helicopter near this south shore St. Lawrence river town.

The remains were found buried in deep snow about 500 feet from the strewn wreckage of the craft.

The body was identified as that of a civilian named William M. Blankin. His home-town was unavailable but Quebec provincial police believe he was employed by Morton Engineering Company of Pennsylvania.

It could not immediately be established why he was aboard the helicopter, believed property of the United States marine corps, but operated by the U. S. Air Force.

START INVESTIGATION

Blankin was identified by two USAF officers who were escorting the 'copter in a twin-engine Grumman aircraft, police said.

The bodies of the 'coper's pilot, Lieut. Everett Ellis, 31, of New York City and Texas, and co-pilot, Capt. Edward P. Dixon, believed from New York, were recovered shortly after the crash.

Provincial police said investigators of the USAF and RCAF are expected here later today to start an official inquiry into the cause of the mishap, which occurred just before noon Tuesday. A coroner's inquest was held last night for identification purposes then was adjourned pending the investigation.

The giant machine was en route from Quebec City to Sept Iles, Que. when it exploded about 150 miles east of Quebec or half way to its destination. From Sept Iles it was scheduled to go on to Goose Bay, Labrador, where the crew was believed stationed.

First on the scene were a group of farmers and bushmen who were working in the woods nearby when they heard the machine flying erratically overhead.

They heard one of the engines turning over irregularly and then two explosions that sent parts of the craft twisting and flaming into fields and the surrounding brush.

Canada Supplies Arctic Stations

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada served further notice Tuesday that it is taking a stronger sovereign grip on its far-north regions.

Transport Minister Chevrier said in the Commons that Canadian ships will supply all Arctic weather stations with the exception of Alert. These posts have been supplied by American ships. Alert, near the northern tip of Ellesmere island and some 300 miles from the north pole, is probably the most northerly community in the world. It will continue to be supplied from American bases in Greenland.

The government's increasing interest in the northland was heralded early in December when the resources department was renamed the department of northern affairs and national resources.

There are five weather stations in this region—Resolute on Cornwallis island, Alert, Eureka on the west coast of Ellesmere, Isachsen on Elles Ringnes island and Mould Bay on Prince Patrick island.

They are manned jointly by Canada and the U.S., with four men from each country at each station.

Extradition Request Sent To Windsor

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—The U. S. request for the extradition of Donald Ritchie, signed by President Eisenhower, was expected to reach Windsor today.

An extradition hearing has been set for next Tuesday.

Ritchie implicated four other men in the 1948 shooting of Walter Reuther, then United Automobile Workers president and now president of the CIO, and was himself charged after fleeing police "protective custody" in Detroit. Ritchie has since denied his statement about the shooting.

Charged with the attempted murder of Reuther, after Ritchie made his statements to Wayne county authorities, were Clarence Jacobs, Ritchie's uncle; Santo (Sam) Perrone of Detroit; Perrone's son-in-law, Carl Renda; and Peter Lombardo, now serving a term in a federal penitentiary in the U. S.

Wants Red Inquiry

OTTAWA (CP) — John Blackmore, the Social Credit party's bitter opponent of communism, today announced he will ask the Commons to set up a royal commission to probe the origin of the "frightful Red menace" in Canada.

The Lethbridge member, who previously requested creation of a parliamentary committee to identify Communists in Canada, charged in a proposed new Commons resolution that the Red menace is basically a "Mongolian-Turkish-Red conspiracy."

Canada Had Prosperous Year In 1953

OTTAWA (CP) — Governor Graham Towers of the Bank of Canada said today that Canada's economic activity soared to a record high in 1953 but showed "levelling-off" signs towards the year-end.

The stockpile of unsold goods in stores and on farms began to climb during 1953. Spending by governments increased slightly, but the rise was a bare fraction of the jump in the previous year. Employment towards the end of the year did not keep pace with the annual increase in the labor force.

In all, however, Canada had a prosperous year, national production showing a 3½-per-cent rise in volume to a peak of $24,200,000,000, Mr. Towers said in a 22-page annual report tabled in the Commons by Finance Minister Abbott.

PEOPLE SPENT MORE

Consumer spending reached a new high of $15,000,000,000, up $700,000,000 from $14,300,000,000 in 1952.

And while consumer prices averaged 99 per cent of the 1952 level, industrial wages rose to a peak $1.40 an hour on Nov. 1, 1953, compared to $1.34 on Dec. 1, 1952, and $1.26 on Dec. 1, 1951.

Capital investment, including an increase in inventories, swelled to $6,200,000,000, a 13-per-cent rise from 1952 and equal to 26 per cent of 1953's national production.

"The large increase in investment was financed in part by increased domestic savings, but in greater part by a large net import of capital from abroad of the order of $450,000,000," Mr. Towers said.

Four Children Die In Flames

BRANDON, Man. (CP) — A railway worker's four children died here Tuesday in a fire which came close to claiming the lives of their mother and a fireman who was attempting a ladder rescue.

The four, all under school age, were the children of Mr. and Mrs. John Pilchar.

The parents suffered "extreme shock" and authorities were not able to learn the names of the children.

Firemen arrived at the height of the blaze and saw Mrs. Pilchar smash a second storey window. Fireman John Stouffer climbed a ladder to the second floor in an attempt to rescue the woman.

Stouffer was overcome by smoke and another fireman, Joe Wayorski, donned a smoke mask and made his way up to the second floor and brought the unconscious pair down via the ladder.

U.S. Senator Charges Violation Of Pledge

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator John C. Stennis (Dem. Miss.) contended today that the Eisenhower administration violated a pledge by sending 200 United States Air Force mechanics into Indo-China before consulting key congressmen.

Stennis, a member of the Senate armed services committee, said in an interview that he favors immediate recall of the U.S. mechanics as a move to avoid possible direct involvement in the long anti-Communist war there.

Declaring that "I'm no isolationist," Stennis said he believes a majority of his Senate committee opposed sending the mechanics into Indo-China. He himself favored increased U.S. aid in money and equipment to the anti-Communist forces.

Senator Harry F. Byrd (Dem. Va.), in a separate interview, called it a "risky step" to send the mechanics. He, too, said members of the committee were not informed in advance, and that they were told the plan by Admiral Arthur W. Radford, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, at a secret session Friday.

Russian Plan Would Annul NATO Treaty

New Security Alliance Would Bind Europe To Peace

BERLIN (AP)—Soviet Russia proposed today a non-aggression pact among all the nations of Europe including both Communist East Germany and the Bonn republic. It would annul the North Atlantic alliance.

Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov laid the plan for "European security" before the Big Four conference. It was his most detailed effort to torpedo the European Defence Community.

The proposed general security treaty would bind all the nations of Europe to "peace." East and West Germany were specifically listed as eligible as individual powers until the country eventually is unified.

WOULD BRING ARMED AID

Molotov said the treaty would be open to all European states and the non-aggression terms would be carried out according to the principles of the United Nations charter.

Any attack against one nation in Europe would be regarded as an attack against the entire treaty bloc. All parties would be bound to go to the rescue of the nation attacked, including the use of armed forces.

The significant anti-European-army clause in the Russian plan read:

"The parties undertake not to enter any coalition or alliance or conclude any agreement, the purpose of which would contradict the purposes of the treaty on collective security in Europe."

POINTING DAGGER

Moscow has maintained that the West, in rearming West Germany through the European Defence Community, is pointing a dagger at Soviet Russia.

Molotov threw in one more effort to win a seat for Red China in United Nations councils.

Cabinet Crisis Ends In Italy

ROME (Reuters)—Italy's Christian-Democrat premier designate, Mario Scelba, today formed a left-of-centre coalition government consisting of Christian Democrats, Social Democrats and Liberals.

Scelba, bitter foe of Communists and neo-Fascists alike, called on the president of the republic tonight to submit his cabinet list.

Scelba's move ends a cabinet crisis which has left Italy leaderless since the short-lived administration of Amintore Fanfani resigned last month.

Fanfani, also a Christian Democrat, failed to get a majority of the House to support him.

Scelba served as minister of the interior in previous Christian Democrat governments.

German Reception For St. Laurent Highly Organized

BONN (CP)—The West German government today put on a precise, highly-organized reception for Prime Minister St. Laurent who resumed his world goodwill tour with a flight from Paris to Bonn. Chancellor Adenauer and most of his cabinet welcomed the prime minister at Wahn airport 15 miles from this Rhine valley town converted into one of the capitals of divided Germany. A crowd of newspaper photographers behind a rope enclosure flashed pictures of the arrival and the warm greeting between the chancellor, Prime Minister St. Laurent and jovial T. C. Davis, Canadian ambassador to Germany.

Chancellor Adenauer, who is his own foreign minister, immediately conducted the prime minister to the offices of President Theodor Heuss. All along the road into Bonn, dark-uniformed German policemen, standing every few hundred yards, saluted.

HAVE STATE LUNCHEON

The call on the president was followed by a state luncheon given by President Heuss at his residence. Later a one-hour visit with the chancellor and a press conference were scheduled as well as a state dinner given by the chancellor tonight.

The prime minister, who looked fit despite his heavy round of talks and visits in Paris, said during the cloudy flight to Germany that cordiality marked his two-day stay in France.

LEARN PROBLEMS

In his talks with German leaders he will learn at first hand the problems surrounding the building of joint European defences with German divisions.

His conferences here follow earlier talks in London and Paris with Prime Minister Churchill and French Premier Laniel.

In the party with the prime minister were his son, Jean-Paul, and his daughter, Mrs. Hugh O'Donnell.

CORDIAL GREETINGS

The prime minister said at the airport that he brought "most cordial and friendly greetings" from the people of Canada.

"We are not forgetful of the past but are looking forward to a future co-operation to bring all our people a better way of living.

"I know that your aim is as our aim—a lasting peace."

Lone Thief Snatches $1,800 Payroll

HAMILTON (CP)—A lone thief snatched an $1,800 Langley cleaners' payroll from a young sales clerk today.

Barbara MacAuley, 22, told detectives she was bringing the payroll from the bank to the company office.

She was walking back with another store employee when the attack was made.

Miss MacAuley said that as she was passing the Zimmerknit plant, a man who had been walking in front of them suddenly stopped, turned, kicked her in the leg and snatched the payroll. He struck her in the face with the parcel, then turned and ran north.

Question Man In Wife's Death At New Year's

STURGEON FALLS (CP) — Inspector Thomas Wright of the Ontario provincial police said today he has questioned Ralph Kelso, 22-year-old service station employee, in connection with the death of his wife New Year's Eve.

Mrs. Jacqueline Kelso, 22, died suddenly after returning home from a theatre. Cause of her death has not yet been determined. Her body has been kept in a vault and further pathological examination is expected. Some published reports mentioned poison as a cause of death.

Inspector Wright, who arrived here Tuesday from the OPP's Toronto headquarters, said there are many other persons to be interviewed.

WIFE SEEMED WELL

Ralph Kelso said his wife seemed "perfectly well" when she visited him at his job on the way home from the theatre.

The death of her daughter-in-law is the second such tragic event within two months for Mrs. Frank Kelso, Ralph's mother. Frank Trottier, a son-in-law, was drowned Nov. 22 on Lake Timiskaming when he fell from a canoe.

Dr. Ward Smith, pathologist at the provincial police crime laboratory in Toronto who analyzed the woman's organs, said no report will be issued from the laboratory while the investigation is going on.

Report Baby's Condition Fair

TORONTO (CP) — An unidentified one-year-old girl, suffering salicylate poisoning brought on by administration of a cold tablet, was reported fair and slightly improved today by doctors at Toronto's Hospital for Sick Children.

She is the fifth such case treated at the hospital since Christmas and doctors described as "frightening" the increased use of cold and headache tablets for infants.

The poisoning is caused by the administration of a common pill sold for headaches and neuralgia. Some infants under three fail to eliminate the salicylates contained in the pills with often serious and occasionally fatal results.

One of the most serious aspects of the poisoning is that the condition closely parallels the symptoms of broncho-pneumonia, but treatment for the latter militates against the survival of the baby in a salicylate poisoning case.

Rebels Reported Six Miles From Capital

By MAX CLOS

SAIGON, Indo - China (AP)— Some 1,500 Vietminh rebels today were reported six to 12 miles from Luangprabang, but the French said they appear only to be lining up supplies for the bulk of the Communist-led forces threatening the royal capital of Laos.

The French maintain that most of the 12,000 rebels who invaded the Indo-Chinese kingdom of Laos last week still are 50 miles north of Luangprabang, resting up in the valley around Nam Bac.

Military observers believe the invaders, after covering 120 miles through mountainous jungle, have stopped to recuperate and replenish their supplies. There was speculation today that any assault on Luangprabang might not come before early next week.

Both in Saigon and Hanoi, the two major French command centres, the belief is flourishing that the Vietminh might not even attack the city of Laos' aged king Sisavang Vong. The rebels last spring marched up almost to the royal doorstep, then withdrew without an assault.

FORCED WITHDRAWAL

But the French concede that even if the Vietminh don't follow through on their current threat, they already have forced the French-Laotian forces to withdraw from the northern part of the kingdom, and have immobilized several battalions in Luangprabang.

The Vietminh advance troops were reported today at Pak Hou, 12 miles north of the capital, and at Pak Suong, six miles northeast.

Meanwhile, the French for the first time today announced that 105 United States Air Force technicians and mechanics arrived a week ago at the north Indo-China port of Haiphong to help maintain U.S.-furnished planes "for civilian cargoes."

These presumably are in addition to 125 USAF technicians previously reported in Indo-China to aid the French.

REDS NEAR LAOTIAN CAPITAL—Some Communist Viet Minh forces have pushed to within about 6 miles of Luangprabang, the capital of Laos. The French position was made desperate when one arm of the three-way attack suddenly swept forward to Pakseng, an important river junction. It was also reported that a relay of some ten Russian submarines, based at strategic Hainan Island, off the Indo-China coast, were shuttling in supplies and men to the Red forces.

Quinn Elected President Of Plowmen

TORONTO (CP)—H. A. Quinn of Peterborough was elected president of the Ontario Plowmen's Association Tuesday. He suceeeds Hubert Avery of Brockville.

Other officers: George Eletcher, Merlin, vice-president; Harvey Hawkey, Kingston, second vice-president; F. A. Lashley, Toronto, secretary - manager; and Clark Young, Unionville, treasurer.

Robert H. Saunders, Ontario hydro commission chairman, told the 350 plowmen that Ontario's rural residents are paying less for power now than they were in the pre-war period.

"I know that you are saying the cost was less in 1938 and that you are the ones who pay the bill, but don't forget that you are using over 12 times as much power as you were then," Mr. Saunders said.

USE ELECTRIC POWER

Mr. Saunders added that 88.1 per cent of the province's farmers now are using electric power.

It was announced that the 1954 international plowing match will be held at Breslau in Waterloo county. The 1955 match will be in Essex county near Leamington.

The 1956 match will be in Ontario county and the 1958 match in the united counties of Glengarry, Stormont and Dundas.

Not Discouraged Yet Tries New Invention

OTTAWA (CP)—Dusan Premovic, 33-year-old Yugoslav immigrant, didn't waste any time while he was spending 10 days in an immigration jail at St. Alban's, Vt.

He thought up another invention and as soon as he was released by American immigration officials, rushed back to Ottawa to outline it to national defence headquarters.

A defence official said the department previously rejected a flock of Premovic inventions because of astronomical development costs. Two others submitted by Premovic before he made his dash to the U.S. are still being considered but probably will be rejected as well. The new one is under consideration.

The inventions apparently concern a new jet engine with double the thrust of current jet engines. Canadian government scientists have been working along this line for some time.

Ask Tariff Protection Against Margarine

SASKATOON (CP). — Tariff protection to cut the present price advantage of margarine was urged Tuesday by J. J. Creighton of Tatamagouche, N.S., president of the National Dairy Council of Canada.

Mr. Creighton told Saskatchewan's 45th annual dairy convention there is only one realistic solution to the threat of an unprecedented surplus of at least 30,000,000 pounds of Canadian butter at the start of a new production year.

That was to expand consumption of domestic butter by reducing the price advantage margarine gained from duty-free entry of vegetable oils and oil-bearing seeds from Asia, Africa and the United States.

High Cost Of Labor Worrying Growers

CHATHAM (CP) — Sugar beet growers from Ontario, Manitoba and Alberta Tuesday commented on the high cost of farm labor and heard a United States expert describe new labor-saving machinery for sugar beet farms.

The occasion was the annual meeting of the Canadian Sugar Beet Producers Association.

David Froebe of Homewood, Man., said labor costs in his province are a "headache." He said it costs $18.50 to thin an acre of beets. One Ontario representative said the cost here is from $14 to $20 an acre.

Howard Quinn Served Long As Plowmen's Executive

The election of Howard Quinn of Douro township to the presidency of the Ontario Plowman's Association is an honor that has come to him at its annual convention in Toronto from many year's of activity in organized plowing affairs in Peterborough, its district and also in the broad provincial field.

Mr. Quinn was president of the Peterborough Plowman's Association seven years, from 1936 to 1942 inclusive. He is the second president of the OPA from this county. Senator J. J. Duffus was head of the provincial association in 1931 when the international match of the Ontario Plowmen's Association was held in Peterborough.

Senator Duffus was also president of the local association at that time.

PRESIDENT IN 1941

Mr. Quinn was president when the second international match returned to this county in 1941. Both of these plowing competitions and machinery demonstrations took place in North Monaghan on farms fronting No. 7 Highway, several miles west of the city. The farm of the late R. Torrance Lillico was the central location of both those matches, and the site of the so-called Tented City of the headquarters. Adjacent farms were used in the distribution of match areas.

Torrence Lillico was president of the Peterborough County Association in 1926, followed by the late Sid Bennett of Otonabee. Senator Duffus succeeded to that office in 1928, and was re-elected annually until 1936.

Meanwhile, Mr. Quinn had moved up through executive positions to first vice-president in 1932, and was promoted to the chair in 1936. He was returned continuously until 1943 when he was succeeded by Walter Thorn of Otonabee.

Howard Quinn has been a director of the OPA through a long service that has brought to him a wide acquaintance throughout Ontario. He has been an active member of the provincial board at October matches, and has also been judge at many of the county competitions.

No Wine Store Says Committee

Peterborough does not want a branch retail store of the Chateau Gai Wine Co., Toronto, as expressed in an objecting motion at the meeting of the finance committee of the council Monday night.

The company wrote that they were considering the possibility of transferring one of their five outlets in Toronto to this city.

"I move that they do not come," said Mayor Norman Graham, and Ald. H. T. Rehill seconded that motion which becomes an opposing recommendation to the city council. President of the company is A. G. Sampson.

City Clerk Outram recalled that there had been a retail wine store on Charlotte St. some years ago.

Members of the council said they had received various protests against a wine store project for Peterborough. On file was a letter from a women's group of George St. United Church urging the council to shut the civic door against the wine shop.

The new provincial CCF leader, Donald MacDonald, has no seat.

The session will open with the speech from the throne read by Lieutenant-Governor Louis Breithaupt outlining the government's legislative program. The speech is expected to disclose officially that the government will introduce an amendment to the Gas Conservation Act, the result of the proposed construction of a gas pipeline from Alberta.

The amendment will be aimed at giving the province power to control sale and transmission of the gas and also to control any gas that may be imported from the United States through Buffalo.

The Child Welfare Act is also slated for consideration. It is a consolidation of three acts—the Children's Protection Act, the Children of Unmarried Parents Act and the Adoptions Act.

Amendments to the Disabled Persons' Allowance Act are expected to be among the other legislation that the government will pass at this session. The federal government announced last November it will share the cost with the provinces on a 50-50 basis.

Premier Frost, also provincial secretary, is reported planning to present the budget some time in March. It is forecast that the budget calls for record spending and now is in almost final form.

During the session reports of at least five committees, including reforms and Indians affairs, are to be presented.

Agriculture Minister Thomas will be absent at the house opening. He has been in ill health for several months.

Russian Plan

Molotov proposes that the governments of the United States and Communist China should send representatives to the "bodies set up under the treaty" as observers.

Proposed duration of the treaty is 50 years.

PROPOSE INTERIM PLAN

At today's session of the foreign ministers conference the Soviet delegation also proposed a resolution suggesting interim measures to be taken in Germany pending the conclusion of a peace treaty and a reunification of the country.

These were:

1. Simultaneous withdrawal of occupation forces within six months with the exception of limited contingents for "protective functions"—their strength to be agreed upon by the four powers.

2. The occupation powers to retain the right to move in their forces in case the security of either part of Germany is threatened — the Soviet Union in regard to East Germany, the Western powers in regard to West Germany.

3. East and West Germany to be allowed police forces for the maintenance of internal order and defence, their strength and armament to be agreed upon by the four occupation powers. Inspection groups of the four powers would be formed in East and West Germany to supervise the execution of this agreement.

These provisions, said the Russian proposal, are intended to "assure the neutralization of Germany and the creation of conditions favorable to the settlement of the German problem."

OPEN TO ALL STATES

The treaty would be open to all states of Europe regardless of "their social systems."

Any attack against one nation in Europe would be regarded as an attack against the entire treaty bloc. All parties would be bound to go to the rescue of the nation attacked, including use of armed forces.

Molotov had promised the west a "concrete" plan for ensuring the safety of Europe at today's session of the talks, the 15th to date.

After the meeting, the three Western statesmen joined the Austrian foreign minister, Leopold Figl, and other members of the six-man Austrian group he brought here Tuesday to appeal for quick conclusion of Austria's long - delayed independence treaty.

SCHEDULED FOR FRIDAY

The Austrian problem now is scheduled to come up Friday, and probably will occupy the Saturday Big Four session as well. Thursday the Big Four hold another closed-door session on Molotov's oft-rejected proposal for talks with Red China and on suggestions for some kind of world disarmament conference.

The schedule is set up so that after today and until next Monday at the earliest the sessions will be free of the German and European security problems.

Wins Separation

NEW YORK (AP) — Jonnie Lee MacFadden, 47, won a separation today from her muscle-building bushand, 85-year-old Bernard MacFadden.

A judge granted the separation, saying that the "great disparity in ages" doomed their marriage in 1948, from the start.

The court also found that MacFadden had baselessly accused his wife of being unfaithful and of trying to poison him.

Owners Of Hogs Killed In Cholera Outbreak Helped

OTTAWA (CP)—Owners of hogs slaughtered during an outbreak of cholera in Ontario last year are expected to receive additional compensation for their lost animals.

Robert McCubbin, parliamentary assistant to Agriculture Minister Gardiner, said Tuesday night that legislation changing the basis of compensation will be made retroactive to May 1 of last year.

Ontario's hog cholera outbreak, in which more than 1,000 hogs were slaughtered to eliminate the disease, began in the middle of May.

Mr. McCubbin spoke during consideration of the resolution preliminary to introduction of the legislation. The resolution later was passed and the bill given first reading.

MARKET PRICE

Under the bill, compensation for hogs and sheep slaughtered because of contagious animal diseases will be paid on the basis of the current market price. At present maximum compensation is $30 for market hogs and $20 for market sheep.

Mr. McCubbin said the present market price of hogs is $50 and more. The government felt that its ceiling of $30 is not enough.

He said that Canada is the only country he knows of which pays compensation for hogs killed because of hog cholera.

John A. Charlton, Brant-Haldimand, Progressive Conservative agricultural critic, approved of the legislation, but said compensation also should be paid for hogs which die before the disease is diagnosed. It was not fair to deny compensation to farmers because diagnosis of a disease came too late.

Paratroopers Work Out In Sub-Arctic

By DON HANRIGHT

SILVER CREEK, Y. T. (CP)—About 125 paratroopers bucked bulky mukluks into snowshoes today to begin a five-day mock assault on an enemy wireless unit high in the mountains that ring Kluane lake in the sub-arctic, about 1,400 miles northwest of Edmonton.

The simulated attack was planned as the clean-up phase of Exercise Hot Dog II, which opened during the first week of January.

Following the first week of indoctrination, the paratroopers have been testing the cold-weather efficiency of Canada's mobile striking force.

The troops which opened Exercise Mule Team today were members of B company of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry.

A company of the PPCLI, including several just back from Korea, left for Calgary Monday.

Members of the defence research board were scheduled to leave today with information obtained from cold-weather tests of weapons, clothing and vehicles.

Exercise Mule Team will be led by Maj. Eric Sharpe of Winnipeg.

TO "ATTACK" INVADERS

The assault company's "dropping point" is about three miles south of the Silver Creek base camp on a narrow prairie that skirts Kluane lake.

The group will carry blank ammunition for 81 m. m. mortars, rifles and machine guns.

About five miles from the dropping point, along the highway bank of frozen Silver creek itself, about 10 men are supposedly operating a navigational centre for enemy planes flying towards central Canada from out of the north.

B company will make a simulated attack on the centre.

The Canadian Rangers will stage surprise patrol actions on B company.

The Rangers, a group of northern residents recruited into reserve armed forces duty, arrived at Silver Creek Monday and were undergoing survival training.

Their status, strength and positions throughout the sub-Arctic and Arctic were withheld for security reasons.

Canada's Caribbean Market Opened To Free Trade

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's $40,000,000 market in the Caribbean has been opened to free trade in a dozen commodities ranging from newsprint to fish.

Trade Minister Howe Tuesday brought this move to the attention of the Commons as he announced continuation in 1954 of the Canada-British West Indies trade liberalization program. He described the lifting of the curbs as "an encouraging sign for the future."

Under the liberalization program Canadian exports are granted quotas for shipping a wide range of goods into the BWI market. Quotas are based on half the average amount sent in the years 1946-48 inclusive in the case of goods considered essential and 40 per cent in the case of less essential items.

These same quotas are being continued in 1954. However, a number of items previously on the restricted list now can be shipped into the BWI market from any part of the world without restriction.

Added to the classification of open general licence are: Newsprint; kraft paper; dried, smoked, pickled and salted fish; onions; potatoes; cheese; powdered and canned milk; split peas, meats; canned fish; and animal feeds in the case of all colonies with the exception of British Guiana.

All these are items which Canada normally sells to BWI. Last year they amounted to about $10,000,000 of the $40,000,000 worth of Canadian goods absorbed by the British Colonies.

Head-on Collision Does $1,700 Damage

ORILLIA (CP) — Two Sault Ste. Marie men and an Orillia motorist were involved in a head-on collision here today which sent one man to the hospital with a possible skull fracture and caused damage estimated at $1,700 to both cars.

Earl Fleming, 48, of Sault Ste. Marie was taken to the hospital. His car was driven by Robert McCormick, also of Sault Ste. Marie. The two men were driving to Toronto.

Driver of the other car was Oliver Kerr of Orillia.

German Reception

In a statement issued earlier on the Canadian leader's departure from France, Premier Laniel said Canada is in the best position to interpret the French position to member countries of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. He said the conversations between the two leaders had dealt mainly with the current Berlin foreign ministers' conference, but also covered France's difficulties in regard to European integration.

THANK CANADA

French diplomats thanked the prime minister for the part Canada had taken in supplying arms to France, and especially for the retention of Canadian troops in Europe.

French conferees also discussed the Far East situation with the prime minister, whose tour will take him to that area.

The prime minister's last day in Paris, he arrived Sunday night, was a busy one. He wound it up with a broadcast to the French people and a dinner for French leaders at the residence of Dana Wilgress, Canada's NATO ambassador.

ADDRESSES NATO HEADS

During the day he visited Allied military headquarters just outside Paris and adressed military representatives of the 14 NATO powers. NATO leaders, including U S. Gen. Alfred Gruenther, supreme commander of Allied powers in Europe, attended the evening dinner.

The prime minister also called on the French parliament, where he was applauded by the Chamber of Deputies. Laniel, in an address of welcome, referred to Canada as "occupying a privileged place" in the heart of France.

The German part of the tour, which lasts until Friday, will include a visit to the Canadian infantry brigade. The prime minister will go back to France to visit the RCAF base at Gros Tenquin before going on to Rome, next capital in his itinerary.

Jolley Moves Reply To Throne Speech

TORONTO (CP)—Arthur Jolley, Progressive Conservative member of the legislature for Niagara Falls, will move the reply to the speech from the throne to be made at Thursday's opening of the Ontario legislature.

His motion will be seconded by William G. Noden (PC Rainy River). Both will speak early next week, launching the throne speech debate.

Mr. Jolley won the Niagara Falls seat from the Liberals in a by-election last Oct. 26.

The speech from the throne will be read by Lieutenant - Governor Louis Breithaupt.

Charges Hearst Sacrificed For Companies

HEARST (CP) — Donald C. MacDonald, Ontario CCF leader, Tuesday accused the Ontario government of sacrificing the welfare of this Northern Ontario community to pulp and paper corporations.

He said in a public address that the government is delivering Northern Ontario communities to "powerful domestic pulp and paper corporations" and that neither the government nor the corporations are carrying out conservation and reforestation programs beyond a token gesture.

Mr. MacDonald said Ontario Mines Minister Kelly, who is member of the legislature for Cochrane North, has sacrificed the interests of the people who elected him to office in favor of "the powerful interests who call the shots behind the scenes in the Conservative party."

A delegation from the Hearst chamber of commerce met Mr. Kelly in Toronto last month to urge an increase in the export quotas on pulpwood. Mr. Kelly announced later that no change was intended on the 1948 government decision that permits export of up to 20,000 cords of pulpwood a year from the Hearst area — pulpwood that is produced only by sawmills as a by-product in their log-cutting in the area

ALTERNATIVES NEEDED

Mr. MacDonald said, "If government policy has destroyed the market, and therefore the livelihood of an area, it becomes the obligation of the government to devise other policies which will provide an alternative market."

He said the CCF party believes the areas which have been handed over to private interests should be reclaimed by the Crown.

"We urge the establishment of a forest resources commission which would be vested with the authority for development, management and exploitation of our forest resources."

"The CCF would establish operating companies to control all cutting in the 12 forest areas of Ontario. . . .

"These companies will necessarily be publicly owned and operated because they will cut wood for all purposes and supply it to both sawmill and the pulp and paper industry in accordance with the purpose for which it is most useful."

Youthful Pair Admit Drove Dangerously

COBOURG (ENS) — Gerald Douglas, age 18 and Phillip Fisher, 17, of Cobourg pleaded guilty to dangerous driving charges laid by Cobourg police and Magistrate R. B. Baxter reserved his decision until next Monday morning.

Constable Bob Caldwell testified that he was on patrol with Constable Lloyd Huskelson in the police cruiser on Jan. 25. He saw the Douglas car turn off King on to Bagot St. at too high a rate of speed and had to make a wide turn to get around the corner.

The police car chased him up Albert St. and on to Ontario St. south, where the car stopped at King St. The car driven by Fisher came up behind Douglas and followed him across King on to Ontario street, north, and passed Douglas at the corner on University.

Douglas then passed Fisher at a speed of around 60 miles an hour. Douglas didn't stop at George street, but Fisher did and went north. The police car followed Douglas on a tear through side streets of the town, several times trying to pull up but being crowded over.

Constable Caldwell said that it was possible that Douglas thought it was Fisher behind him all the time. Finally after a high speed chase through town, the police car was able to halt the course of the Douglas car.

"It is a case of two young fellows failing to appreciate the proper use of a car. Somebody might have been killed. The police should not have to risk their lives in such a manner," said Crown Attorney Harry Deyman.

Douglas told the court that he drove a delivery truck in town for $25 a week and paid $5 a week board. There were ten children in the family.

"I could suspend your licence for a period of one to three years. I will adjourn the matter for a week. I may decide to direct that Fisher drive the car only when his mother or father is with him and I am going to advise Douglas to sell his car," said the magistrate.

Safety Rally Due In Cobourg

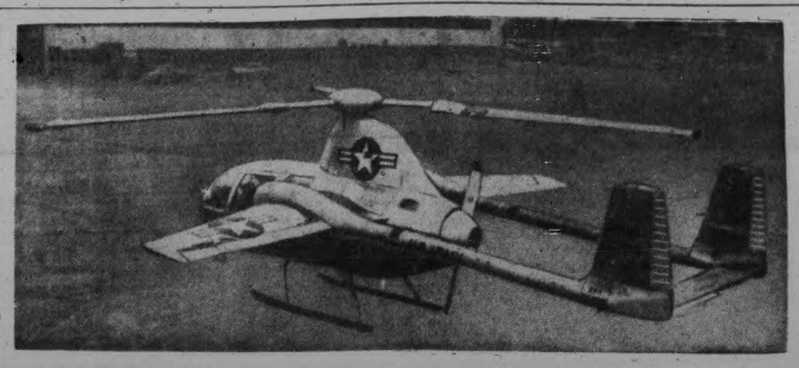
COBOURG (ENS) — A mass safety rally sponsored by the Cobourg-Port Hope section of the Central Ontario Division, Industrial Accident Prevention Association, will be held Wednesday, Feb. 17, at the Cobourg pavilion when some 500 industrial employees from the two towns are expected to gather for the event. First of its kind to be held locally in some years, the rally will include safety demonstrations, displays and entertainment.

Guest speaker for the occasion will be H. A. Mabson, chief inspector of the I.A.P.A., while radio and TV comic, Billy Meek, will headline the entertainment program. The mayors and other civic officials of both communities are expected to attend the function which will witness presentation of safety awards.

St. John Ambulance instructor, S. Bradley, will demonstrate the Hogar-Neilson method of artificial respiration. Chairman will be William Holland, president of the Port Hope—Cobourg section.

Boys Drown In Quarry

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Two four-year-old boys were drowned Tuesday when they fell through the ice in an abandoned quarry. Michael Collins and Michael M...hell had been chasing a golf ball on the thin ice when it broke and they fell into the freezing water. Mrs. Alice Collins and Mrs. Betty Mitchell, their mothers, jumped into the 80-foot-deep quarry and were nearly drowned in the rescue attempt.



CONVERTIPLANE — The U.S. Army and Airforce announced existence of their XV-1 "Convertiplane," first military aircraft ever built to take-off and land like a helicopter yet convert in flight to or from a high-speed plane. The plane has a jet propelled rotor for vertical operations and a pusher-type propellor for forward flight.

Cobourg Tax Roll Accepted $17,943 Owing

COBOURG (ENS)—Tax roll for the coming year was accepted at the regular meeting of town council, as submitted by E. A. Hircock. The tax statement showed that the 1953 roll was $340,837.68 plus a supplementary for that year of $3,536.68, for a total of $344,374.33. Current collections were $328,787.61. Arrears for 1953 amounted to $17,943.83.

Council received a request from the recreational centre board for permission to erect coming events dispays in front of the post office and town hall and granted it. A letter from the recreational centre invited council to attend the formal opening of the new building on Feb. 20; accepted. The Department of Highways sent a statement covering expenditures on roads in Cobourg for 1952, on which subsidy has been received. The grand jury report, sent on to council by Sheriff Fred C. Richardson was tabled, pending a meeting to be held between the town hall committee and the property committee of the counties council. The conference will be to determine what can be done to provide better accommodations for the administration of justice.

Permission was granted the YMCA and YWCA for a tag day on May 1. The organizations also wrote to request a grant to equal the amount paid by the group in taxes. This was referred to the finance commitee. A letter from the union of civic employees (streets department) said that the 1954 contract would be discussed at a meeting with the town council, scheduled for Feb. 10. The volunteer firemen wrote council to request a wage boost from the present annual amount of $255 to $300. This was also referred to the finance committee.

A petition for a sewer on Abbott Boulevard, new housing subdivision, was referred to the town clerk to check the signatures. The sewer would be built under a local improvement bylaw and as such, it was pointed out by the mayor, would not come under the housing bylaw, by which the town was obliged to provide an installation to the edge of the subdivision. Councillor Jeff Rolph told the council that the people in that suvdivision were anxious to have the sewer installed before it was built up, in order to avoid the extra costs entailed in encountering water pipes.

COMPLAINS OF NOISE

Mrs. E. Birks addressed the council to complain about the racket from Richardson Transport Co. at their depot near Division and Queen streets. Councillor Jeff Rolph said he would look into it.

A letter from the Department of Planning and Development asked council if the town of Cobourg and Hamilton township were considering a joint application for defining by the department of the planning area. Mayor Jack Burnett said that he felt that the wiser thing at present would be to confine the area to Cobourg and council decided to apply to the department on behalf of this town only.

Seek Cavan Township Help In Obtaining New Industry

MILLBROOK (ENS) — Cavan township council met in the council chamber with Reeve Lloyd Hooton in the chair. All the councillors were present except John Kinsmen who was absent because of a death in the family.

Alex Gilbert, chairman of the Millbrook and district Chamber of Commerce, addressed council with regard to holding a meeting of Millbrook and Cavan township council with the chamber to see what could be done about an industry to locate in the village.

James McMaster of the chamber of commerce spoke to council about the inconvenience caused the district by the ticket agency having been taken away from the CPR station at Cavan. It was especially inconvenient for those travelling to conventions on reduced rates, who could not purchase such tickets on the train. The clerk was instructed to write a letter for the chamber of commerce to present to the CPR petitioning them to sell tickets at the Cavan station again.

HALL REPAIRS

Reeve G. T. Harrington of Millbrook called Cavan councils' attention to the repairs and decorating which needed to be done to the township hall. Although the hall in Millbrook is owned by the township it is used by the village also, and the two councils share equally the expense for its upkeep. The township council agreed that the work needed to be done and said that the town hall committees should meet later on.

Ivan L. H. Gray, village councillor, addressed the council about annexing certain properties north and west of the village.

If this were done it was thought the reform institution to be built on the outskirts of Millbrook might buy their power from Millbrook. If the amount of power used were sufficient it would lower the rate for hydro power to users in the village.

The council received a delegation consisting of Mrs. Johnston, Mrs. Neil Miller, W. Turner, Mr. Miller and J. Meyers, who again petitioned that something be done about the failed portion of the 13th concession road.

The clerk was instructed to telephone Hon. Major John Toote, MLA, for Durham, requesting him to contact Mr. McGinnis, municipal engineer, and arrange a date for a meeting with Cavan council, the road superintendent, and E. F. Marston, district engineer.

It was decided by the committee of the whole council that $3,500 be used for the repairing of the failed portion of the 13 concession, providing the 80 per cent subsidy was received from the department of highways, and that Mr. Marston gave his approval. It was voted that up to $40,500 should be appropriated on roads.

BUILDING BYLAW

The reeve and the clerk, Mrs. P. I. Bentley, were appointed a committee to meet with Wilfred Elson, assessor, to draft a building bylaw to be presented at the next meeting.

It was decided that, with the approval of Mr. Marston, the township should buy a truck for use on the roads. The clerk was instructed to advertise for tenders for a pickup truck.

The clerk was also instructed to advertise for 6,000 cubic yards or more of crushed gravel for use on roads.

The road superintendent was instructed to order eight tons of calcium chloride at $30 a ton, transportation extra.

The collector of rates, A. V. Thorn, reported that $5,086.79 had been collected on taxes in January. It was decided to extend the roll for another month. Penalties are charged on taxes not paid by December 15, but proceedings will not be started for another month on taxes due more than three years.

Mrs. P. J. Bentley, clerk, was appointed delegate to the Ontario Association of Rural Municipalities convention in Toronto, March 8 and 9th.

Eddie Johnston of the North Cavan area school board wrote asking council to supply road signs at schools and dangerous crossings.

The Salvation Army wrote acknowledging receipt of the council's donation of $15.

End-of-the-year reports from the Peterborough District High School board were read.

Accounts totalling $2,228.78 were ordered paid.

Soviet Boasts Sales

LONDON (AP)—Moscow radio said Tuesday night that residents of the Soviet Union bought 21 per cent more retail goods last year than in 1950. Figures of the amounts sold were not given, but the broadcast heard here said trade developed with marked intensity during the second half of 1953 due to an expansion in the production of consumer goods and a reduction in state retail prices.

Editor Must Pay

VIENNA (Reuters) — A court Tuesday ordered a Vienna newspaper editor to pay 1,000 schillings (about $40) to a railroad man's daughter who, the judge said, was accused in an article of an "adventure" with ex-king Farouk of Egypt. Lydia Wendl, who claimed that her reputation was harmed, had asked for 25,000 schillings damages from the editor of the paper, Welt am Montag.

Railroads Speed Up

MEXICO CITY (AP)—An official government statement today said it is "incredible but true" that all railroads on the Mexican Pacific coast are running on time now. The statement, in the form of a press release, added that for the first time in many years there is not even any delayed freight piled up in railroad yards.

Goodfellow Urges Farmers Stick Together

COBOURG (ENS)—It was in the interests of farmers to be organized and to be loyal to farm commodity groups, the Hon. W. A. Goodfelow told the annual banquet at Baltimore of the Northumberland Vegetable Growers Association.

In a brief address to the gathering, he deplored the inability of world organizations to distribute surplus food and thus cement goodwill with those who are hungry.

James Bird of Codrington spoke on behalf of farm forums of which he is a provincial officer, and urged each community to maintain interest in such gruops. Ed. Ruthven brought greetings from Durham County and Norman Down from Ontario County.

Trip To Holland

KAMLOOPS, B.C. (CP) — The Kamloops high school band will accept an invitation to go to Holland next August for the Kerkrade Music Olympiad. A campaign has started to raise $30,000 for travelling expenses.

Increase in policyholders' dividends lowers cost of life insurance

AN INCREASE IN POLICYHOLDERS' DIVIDENDS for the 5th consecutive year will again reduce the net cost of Sun Life insurance, George W. Bourke, President of the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada, has announced in his Annual Review just released. During 1954, total dividends to be allotted will amount to $24½ million, an increase of $2½ million over last year.

NEW BUSINESS of $576 million was purchased from the Sun Life during 1953. Major increases were shown for Canada, United States and Great Britain, while the expanding business in other territories of the Company's world-wide organization was well maintained.

GROUP INSURANCE, included in New Business above, purchased from the Company by business and industry amounted to $170 million, an increase of $5 million, continuing the sharply rising trends of recent years. Sun Life Group insurance and pension plans today protect 700,000 people in all walks of life. Total Group life insurance in force at the end of 1953 amounted to $1,751,000,000, an increase of 17% during the year.

INSURANCE IN FORCE is now $5,678,000,000, an increase of 9% over 1952 in the total amount of insurance held by Sun Life policyholders for their individual and family security.

BENEFIT PAYMENTS of $125 million were received by Sun Life policyholders and beneficiaries during 1953, the equivalent of almost half a million dollars each working day of the year. Of this amount $87 million was paid to living policyholders, while $38 million went to widows, orphans, and other beneficiaries of deceased policyholders. Total benefits paid since the first Sun Life policy was issued in 1871 have now reached $2,729,000,000.

TOTAL ASSETS of $1,829,000,000 at the end of 1953 were reported, an increase of $87 million during the year. The assets comprise the savings of the holders of two million Sun Life policies which are invested in government, municipal, public utility and other bonds, in public and private enterprises, and in mortgages (including $176 million in 41,700 home mortgages).

SURPLUS AND CONTINGENCY RESERVE is now $119 million, an increase of $5 million over last year, thus continuing, in the best interests of its policyholders, Sun Life's conservative practice in maintaining ample reserves to meet all contingencies.

Ontario Legislature Assembles

Tomorrow the Legislative Assembly of Ontario begins its annual session at Queen's Park. The importance of this Assembly can be overstated; in no phase of government in Canada has parliament assumed a more subsidiary role than in Provincial government. The sessions ordinarily are short—about two months—and the work of the Provincial Parliament is pretty well cut-and-dried by the Cabinet beforehand.

* * *

What is generally true across Canada is especially true in Ontario. Premier Frost, an able administrator, has a strong executive in his Cabinet and hierarchy of experienced senior civil servants. He also has supporting his Government a one-sided House which will give nearly automatic approval to anything the executive has done or proposes to do. As a sample of democratic government Queen's Park (legislature, Cabinet and all) is not a prize specimen. As an example of efficient and on the whole scrupulous government, there are few better anywhere.

* * *

What will happen after the Members of the Legislative Assembly hear the Speech from the Throne tomorrow afternoon is fairly easy to predict. They will be put to the work to which the Government has called them. They will give formal legislative sanction to Orders-in-Council already acted on; they will approve legislative changes now planned by the Cabinet and the senior civil servants; they will pass the Budget, now already prepared for them, and they will go into house committees, already designated. Actually, most work of members of the Legislative Assembly is done in these committees, and the best work has been done in recent years by Select Committees, established to investigate over an extended period, a special area of Ontario concern; such was the Select Committee on Conservation, whose valuable Report was brought in four years ago.

* * *

All in all, a sentence in a Toronto news release yesterday sums up the relation between Ontario Government and Ontario Parliament: "It is the intention of the Government to keep busy as many members as possible and to get them started early so that they will have plenty of time to thoroughly study and digest Government policy." This, mind you, is not a comment on Moscow summoning the members of the Supreme Praesidium to rubber-stamp Kremlin policies.

* * *

There will be some debating in the Assembly, and a lively topic is lying in wait: Department of Highways spending and operation in the Fort William area. The scandal there will undoubtedly lead the few Opposition members to press for a wide inquiry into all Department of Highways spending. Quite properly the Minister of Highways, the Hon. George H. Doucett, will be under fire. The irregularities have occurred in his Department; he is responsible to the Legislature and the people of this Province for them. Careful control and rigorous honesty at the top levels should have prevented corruption at lower levels in the Department. More is needed than a whitewash brush to cover a red face. The investigation promised should be thorough and result in offenders being brought to bay; further, the matter should be adequately aired in the Assembly and not left entirely to bland assurances that independent investigators have it in hand. It is a matter of public concern and public property.

Two Available Buildings

Within twelve months the Post Office building at the corner of Hunter and Water streets and the Customs House at Charlotte and George will become empty; the new Federal Building will take in both these offices. (In fact, it will gather under one roof all the Federal agencies in Peterborough except the militia and the National Employment Office.) What is to become of the two old buildings? Both are solidly built and in sound condition, although the interiors are antiquated. Their disposal is of course in the hands of the Federal Government through its Department of Public Works, but undoubtedly Ottawa would listen carefully to any representations made by official Peterborough groups.

Neither is needed as a branch library, fire station, comfort station or drill hall. Neither would be suitable for a concert hall or community theatre, badly as Peterborough stands in need of both. The Customs Building is admirably situated for Chamber of Commerce quarters, but one questions if the business or role of the Chamber warrants the acquisition of this important site. However, if Canadian development follows American in this matter, Chambers of Commerce in commercial and tourist areas will become increasingly important adjuncts to civic prosperity. (In many American cities, even small ones, the Chamber of Commerce has a central, imposing independent building, and acts as the civic hub for visitors as well as businessmen.)

Disposal of the Post Office seems relatively straightforward; the remaining large Federal agency in Peterborough, the Employment Office, now in rented quarters, should be able to make good use of it. The building is quite large, is central and provides ample ground-floor space. The Customs House raises other questions. It is at the very hub of commercial Peterborough. Is it wise to allow this building to be occupied by an institution, to create thus a blank spot in the business centre? A very good case could be made up for selling the property to the highest commercial bidder who would raze the Customs House, and erect on the site an office building, a bank or a large store, which would stimulate business and give the city's main intersection a handsome commercial aspect on that southeast corner. We would hope that if a new building were to rise on the corner, it would have height. Peterborough's commercial streets are being demeaned into small town stature by too many one- and two-storey structures replacing more lofty buildings.

We Don't Believe It

In a speech which he made in Chicago last Saturday, Brigadier General Louis H. Renfrow said that he thought that the people of the U.S.A. were losing their stamina. Will, muscle, vitality and that indefinable important quality which Yorkshiremen call 'gumption' seem to him to be in decline everywhere in the U.S.A. As he is deputy director of selective service, it is clear that he is in a better position to know what U.S. stamina is like than most people.

Nevertheless, we don't agree with him. A study of history provides countless examples of such fears and such warnings, very few of which have been borne out by later experience. The nations which have suffered decline have rarely been conscious that anything was wrong until it was too late: the nations which have most often declared themselves to be in a dreadful state of exhaustion have usually shown great fortitude when it was needed.

Of course, some strange things happen in the U.S.A. We see that the petty officers in their Navy resent their rank, and complain that the word 'petty' lowers their morale. It never lowered the morale of Nelson's petty officers, or those of Admiral Jellicoe, but never mind that; the feelings of the U.S. petty officers are hurt, and they want a fancier title, though one of less historic importance.

We are amused, too, by the fact that women's styles in the U.S.A. are arranged in sizes which are markedly larger than those used in Canada and Great Britain. The women of the U.S.A. like to think that they are smaller than they are. The ladies and the petty officers are both suffering from an irritable form of vanity, and from where we sit it makes them appear silly, but we would not accuse them of lack of stamina because of it.

The human race is wonderfully adaptable, and brilliantly clever. Though our journey from the cave man to the man of today seems long when measured in terms of human lives, it has actually progressed at breakneck speed when compared with the evolution of other animals and forms of life. Man has gone ahead like a rocket, and shows no sign of slowing up. He may not endure certain forms of hardship as well as his remote ancestors, but he has been clever enough to reduce those hardships. He can live in great luxury and then, when necessity arises, endure long periods of great strain with fortitude. Man is a wonderful creature, in the U.S.A. as well as everywhere else, and we have the utmost admiration for him. Our advice to the Brigadier General is to take a holiday, and stop worrying about the decline of his fellow Americans. To a Canadian eye, that decline seems entirely superficial.

NOTES AND COMMENT

'Give full play to your ability to laugh at the ridiculous', says a psychologist. Yes, and end up divorced, jobless, friendless and stalked by the R.C.M.P.

The cars in Toronto's new subway will carry 62 seated passengers and 200 standing. In this day of luxury and social advance we do not even pretend that most people are going to have a chance to sit down.

A Chicago couple are in the news, because they were divorced and then lived together in sin for six years. For reasons which we will not elaborate this reminds us of some people we know who cannot eat their poached eggs without sugar.

Where 400 Pilgrims Died

By PHILIP DEANE
(in New Delhi)

I WAS the only correspondent, actually among the pilgrims when nearly four hundred people were trampled to death at the world's greatest religious festival, in India's Allahabad, on the morning of February 3.

✧ ✧ ✧

BETWEEN four and five million people tried to crowd on to the seventy-five acres of a triangular beach, enclosed on two sides by the Rivers Ganges and Jumna and on the third side by a tall, slippery bank. The millions surging towards this traditionally sacred spot on February 3 believed that if they bathed there that morning they would be spared any further reincarnations after death, and thus escape the misery of life.

✧ ✧ ✧

OVERWORKED policemen, reeling with fatigue, had been regulating the human flow all night. The problem was to keep the incoming and outgoing pilgrims in separate streams — an almost impossible task, because these simple believers all wished to take the shortest possible cut to the sacred beach. The policemen of the festival, were used to their job which they had been doing since January 14. They had kept order for more than three weeks. Casualties had been few, although a small number of people had been killed now and then, when processions of holy men disrupted the traffic arrangements. But on the morning of February 3 it was different: there were infinitely more pilgrims.

✧ ✧ ✧

ALL went well until about eight-thirty — I am not sure of the time because the crush was so great that I could not raise my arm to look at my watch. But at about that time the Prime Minister, Mr. Pandit Nehru, and the President of India, Dr. Rajendra Prasad, came to bathe with their people. A lane had to be made for the procession of official cars. All the police were mobilised for the occasion. Led by an old, handsome major on a beautiful horse, the exhausted policemen manoeuvred the human sea. Waving their batons but never using them, shouting but never insulting, the policemen stopped the flow of pilgrims and opened up an avenue. Above the enormous hum of the crowd, the cheers for India's leaders were hardly audible.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE officials passed. But to make a lane for them to do so, the police had to use the men who had kept the crowd moving in orderly streams. In a dozen different places, incoming and outgoing streams of pilgrims merged.

✧ ✧ ✧

AT SUCH a place — the worst — on the way to the beach, I found myself near a stout fence which protected the orderly tents of the civil servants who worked at the festival. The two opposing streams of pilgrims pressed against one another, formed swirling eddies of humanity, and kept on pressing.

✧ ✧ ✧

STANDING UP became vital. Breathing was difficult because there was literally no space for expanding one's chest. An old woman's legs gave way and she disappeared. It was soft and yielding underfoot. All one could do was stand and try to breathe — try to fight the panic.

✧ ✧ ✧

MORE and more heads vanished, and were swallowed up in the crowd. They were mostly white heads, wrinkled with resignation. They did not cry out. A family of many women suddenly sat down. One of these women screamed appealingly at a man nearby and handed him her child. He shouted for her to get up. He shouted desparingly, alternately in English and Hindi; then he too was swallowed by the swirling human sea.

✧ ✧ ✧

A FOETID DUST and a giant moan filled the air. It went on and on, while the weak sank and were trampled into the earth only a few yards from the sacred beach where they hoped to gain eternal happiness. Suddenly, as quickly as it had started, the pressure ceased. Boy Scouts, university students, the Army, all those few who had initiative, got the crowd under control.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE ENDLESS flow to the sacred beach began again. The pilgrims marched on. The Boy Scouts and the few who had controlled the crowd picked up the dead. Here a women had been sunk into the mud; beside her lay the crushed remains of her baby. There parents wailed over a small dead body. And now the funeral pyres fill the air with choking fumes, and bodies flow down the sacred Ganges.

Unconsidered Trifles

TOO BAD

A young man had put off visiting his aged uncle until at last he felt he must go. Arriving at the tiny railway station, he found the only person in sight was a hard-bitten old local. "Can you tell me, please, where John Blank lives?" inquired the young man.

"He's dead," answered the local. "Died yesterday afternoon."

"Dead! Why, I've come all the way from London just to spend the weekend with him!"

The rustic's faded eyes took in the nephew's immaculate clothes, his air of self-confidence. "Must 'a been expecting you," he drawled.

Movies in Depth

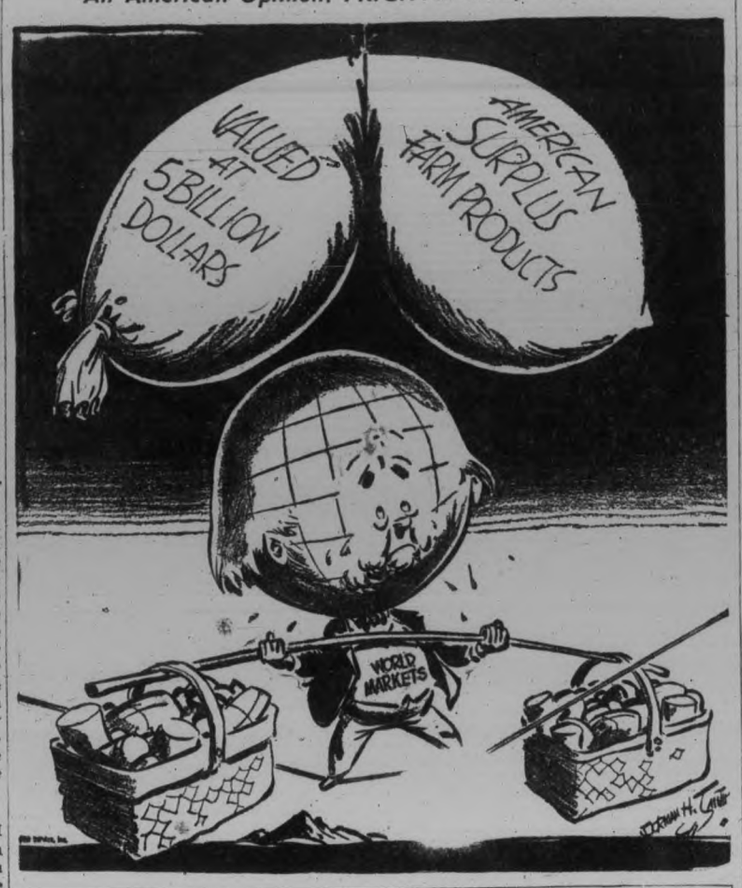
(Christian Science Monitor)

The movie-goer has long been invited to look at life through either rose-coloured or murky-hued glasses. More recently he has been offered 3-D glasses to make his entertainment more "realistic."

But some experts are pointing out that it isn't natural to see everything in three dimensions — that ordinarily we look at the world two-dimensionally except for focusing on the distance between us and the objects we view. Hence the movie-goer finds it a strain to remain c[illegible] of the world-in-depth presented to him, and lapses back much of the time into "normal" 2-D vision despite the glasses he is looking through.

Far be it from us to undervalue the technical experiments and improvements which the moviemakers have laboured so hard to produce. But we welcome the reminder that genuine realism may often require an added mental and moral dimension rather than a physical one. It is useful to recognize that a picture's "depth" may be better gauged by its plunge into the human heart than into background space.

An American Opinion: FRIGHTENING, WHAT?



Letters To The Editor

ADVISES ALDERMAN ANGLESEY

SIR: I would like to ask Alderman Anglesey whether he was writing his letter in the Peterborough Examiner of February 8, as Chairman of the Finance Committee, or as a private citizen boosting the business he owns? If he was writing as an alderman, then I say he should leave his "plugging" to paid advertisements, if as the owner of a business then do not sign the letter as Chairman of the Finance Committee.

Mr. Anglesey does not say that Alderman McBride, when he supported the motion giving a grant to the Community Nursing Registry, acted only as a son-in-law, but he insinuates it and, I think, only for the purpose of discrediting anything further Mr. McBride might say on the subject.

I would like to suggest to Mr. Anglesey that he, as owner of a business competing with a community service, refrain from voting when the matter of a grant is brought to the attention of our council again.

Yours truly,
RAY.

PROPERTY OWNERS BEAR THE BRUNT

SIR: Being a property holder, I take my hat off to Alderman Pat Anglesey for the stand he took with regard to this Nursing Registry which thinks the city taxpayers are paying taxes to hand out to anyone who thinks they are entitled to it. I hope Pat Anglesey will take as bold a stand with regard to a lot more, who, holding their hands out think the council is just waiting for them to call.

We had an election and a lot of the voters thought they were electing people who would try and keep the tax rate down, so as to help the working man have life a little better.

But what do we find after the election is over? We find out that Alderman McBride is catering to his mother-in-law. I would like to ask Alderman McBride how much in taxes does he pay on property he owns, if any, and I would like to go a little further and ask the question, have these non-property-owners the right to vote on money by-laws, who sit on the council when these bylaws are passed?

Citizens, it is the property-owners who have to find the money to carry on, and finance all the needs of the city. Then why not have people on the council who have property in their own right and not people who want to play to the grandstand with other people's money and who have nothing at stake.

Yours sincerely,
FRED TUGGEY.

STRICTLY FOR THE BIRDS

SIR: I spend a tremendous amount of time thinking about the birds. It helps to keep my mind off those nasty old communists. I would give everything I own, and a lot of your stuff too, to know what goes on in the mind of a bird. Are they happy? Do they like summer better than winter? Do they suffer from fits of depression, and contemplate suicide at times. I have heard of birds bashing their heads against windows. People think they can't see; but they may get a little tired of things at times or else they may be trying to come in out of the cold.

I once lived with an uncaged "Budgie" — Just the two of us in the house. I got to be very proud of the fact that we were inseparable. That was the trouble—Pride! I went to open the back door one bright and early morn and that was Budgie's chance. I never saw him again.

I feed the birds every winter morning—but what grieves me is the ungentlemanly conduct of the voracious starlings. Standing in the middle of a slice of bread doesn't give the smaller birds much of a chance. Now I break it up very fine.

How do birds stand the rigours of winter. Take a bird's leg, for instance. It is no thicker than a matchstalk. You'd think it would snap off when the temperature goes below freezing. One legged birds aren't too uncommon, we had a one-legged starling around our house for quite some time and one of the strangest sights I have seen for some time was a pure white sparrow. Its presence was reported to The Examiner by several people living in the Caddy and Armour street neighbourhood

It's in the early hours of the morning that I get to thinking about the birds when I am warm and snug in bed. Ten below — How are they making out? Pathetic little bundles of feathers hanging on desperately to life; then in the early light of a bitter winter morning—on with their never ending quest for food. The smaller birds can't go long without food . . . Neither can they complain but accept their fate soundlessly.

FRED HORN

MOVIES AND SUCKER LISTS

SIR: Patrons of a Peterborough movie house are being used as sucker bait for high pressure salesmen. It is a funny thing that people cannot attend movies for the prime purpose of entertainment without becoming innocent victims to a circle of salesmanship that originates in some of those places. Let me explain:

Last week my wife and I went to a movie. As we stumbled into the half dark of the inner lobby someone thrust two pieces of pasteboard at us. Would we sign them? We would be eligible for a lucky draw. Sure, why not. We did so and dropped the bits into a large slotted carton and found our seats. I gave my wife the stubs to keep and we forgot about them.

A radio broadcast following the night at the movie declared that the lucky-draw contest was over, so, my wife tore up her ticket stubs. That was that, or she thought.

A week later a slick salesman called at our door at lunch time to inform me when I opened the door that my wife had won $50. I invited the salesman to come in and break the good news to my wife. He repeated his glad tidings with the rider that the $50 would be hers if she cared to apply it towards a 100-odd set of kitchenware; he flourishes a come-on sample book.

There was a moment of let-down but no forthcoming stream of sales talk could interest her in buying something she didn't need. Did she have a friend who would like to get in on the "handsome offer?" No, she did not. So the salesman left, left with assurance of two people who would never take his products even if they were given away; left with a very poor feeling for one of their favourite movie houses who were hooked-up to a high pressure racket.

We were not long in seeing that the great carton of addressed draw tickets was a readymade list for a crew of door-to-door salesmen. How many other movie patrons of this house were similar suckers and do they think such rackets should be run out of town? We do, and fast.

"LISTED SUCKERS."

HENRY HOPE PLANT

SIR: I have been very interested in reading your articles on the "Builders of Peterborough" but in Saturday's article on the Outboard Marine, there is a discrepancy which I feel should be brought to your attention for the sake of posterity.

The City of Peterborough never owned the Henry Hope plant. Our (Canadian Raybestos Company Ltd.) late President, Mr. Sumner Simpson, bought this plant with the idea of bringing a new industry to Peterborough. Unfortunately, the depression of 1921 changed the minds of the Directors of the new industry and we owned another plant in Peterborough.

We endeavoured to sell the plant to the Red Arrow Tire Company and I went to Buffalo to close the deal but, as you know, this turned out to be a stock promotion scheme and they didn't want to pay out any money but to gather it in. About the same time, we were able to rent the plant to the Birmingham Motors, but as you know, they folded up also. We also rented this plant to the Quaker Oats Company for the storage of oat hulls for a short time. We later sold the platform scales to the city and it was installed in the market square.

The final point which I want to bring out is that the Johnson Motors, as it was then known, would probably never have come to Peterborough if it had not been for the generosity of our late President, Mr. Sumner Simpson and the astuteness of the late Simon Armstrong. After all the preliminaries had been gone through, it all simmered down to a matter of price. Mr. Armstrong approached me and stated that if we would reduce our asking price by a very considerable amount, he thought that he could persuade the new industry to come here. I told him that if it meant a new industry coming to Peterborough and if we might expect considerable goodwill from the city fathers in the future, I would recommend this for approval by Mr. Simpson.

Here is the main point of this letter; Mr. Simpson was not only a good loser, but always had been a public-spirited man. He never asked for publicity or praise, but in spite of the very considerable loss over the purchase price, if it benefited Peterborough, he was willing to accept Mr. Armstrong's suggested price. With this in view, he sent me to Waukegan to close the deal and the rest is a matter of history.

One thing more, Hugh Campbell asked me if I would help him to pick up a plant superintendent. When I returned to Peterborough, Bill Kay and I went into a huddle and we felt that with Hy Wood's knowledge of labour in Peterborough and also the fact that he had worked in the Henry Hope plant would make him a logical candidate. Hy Wood was then operating a garage-repair shop on Aylmer street and we drove down and told him to make application for the job as fast as possible and that we had recommended him to Hugh Campbell. These are the facts and can be corroborated by the aforementioned gentlemen.

Yours truly,
R. ABBOTT.
President, Canadian Raybestos Co. Ltd.

P.S. It might be of interest also that we only sold the Johnson Outboard Motors the property occupied by the Henry Hope plant from Monaghan Rd. to the CNR tracks. The balance of the property reaching from the CNR tracks to Park street was sold to the Martin-Hewitt Containers Ltd., and they erected their present plant on this property. It therefore could be said that we were instrumental in bringing two industries to Peterborough. R. A.

WOULD RESTRICT EMPLOYMENT

SIR: This unemployment situation remains unsolved as to the ways in which we might cope with it, and as long as the government insists on bringing out the displaced persons to Canada, then it's up to the municipality to do something about it. So I have the following suggestions to offer; there likely will be a big cry from some, but then in fairness to all, we must be prepared to give up something.

1. Any displaced person coming to this city, only the husband and children over eighteen years of age will be permitted to work.
2. Any other couples who have no children, only the husband will be permitted to work.
3. Any other couples whom have children, whose husband's income is over $3,000, the husband only permitted to work.
4. That all employees hired by the city and paid out of the taxpayer's money must reside within the city's limits.

Thanking you,
GEO. LINSDELL.

Man From Everest

(NEW YORK HERALD-TRIBUNE)

THE cliff dwellers of New York are delighted to extend a friendly hi[illegible] greeting to Sir Edmund Percival Hillary, the New Zealander who scaled Mount Everest and who is now visiting the United States to tell how he and his companions accomplished their remarkable feat. Most New Yorkers have had some modest experience themselves in climbing; some have toiled up Bear Mountain or the Palisades, and virtually all make a nightly ascent to their homes, whether by elevator or on foot.

Although one might think that a man who had conquered Everest would be content to let lesser mountains alone, Sir Hillary shows no such tendency. Thousands of unclimbed mountains remain in the world, he points out, and lack of height "does not make a mountain little."

Superficially, this last may seem like a puzzling statement. But it really confirms an observation of many thoughtful men, particularly those who are always being accused of making mountains out of molehills. Seemingly minor accomplishments, it appears, frequently are as difficult as major ones. This is a fact well known to every one who has ever tried to light a cigarete in the wind, or learn to play a piano scale. The world can well take satisfaction in the knowledge that even the man from Everest has a healthy respect for molehills.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Now these be the last words of David. David the son of Jesse said, and the man was raised up on high, the anointed of the God of Jacob, and the sweet psalmist of Israel, said, The Spirit of the Lord spake by me, and his word was in my tongue. The God of Israel said, the Rock of Israel spake to me, He that ruleth over men must be just, ruling in the fear of God. And he shall be as the light of the morning, when the sun riseth, even a morning without clouds; as the tender grass springing out of the earth by clear shining after rain. (II Sam. 23:1-4.)

✧ ✧ ✧

For ever, O Lord, thy word is settled in heaven . . . The entrance of thy words giveth light; it giveth understanding unto the simple . . . Make thy face to shine upon thy servant and teach me thy statutes. (Ps. 119:89, 130, 135.)

✧ ✧ ✧

And after these things I heard a great voice of much people in heaven, saying Alleluia; Salvation, and glory, and honour, and power, unto the Lord our God . . . And I heard as it were the voice of a great multitude, and as the voice of many waters, and as the voice of the mighty thunderings, saying, Alleluia: for the Lord God omnipotent reigneth. (Rev. 19:1, 6.)

✧ ✧ ✧

In God is my salvation and my glory: the rock of my strength, and my refuge is in God . . . God hath spoken once; twice have I heard this; that power belongeth unto God. (Ps. 62:7, 11.)

Famous Athlete To Star In Motion Picture

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Now look who's becoming a movie star—decathalon star Bob Mathias.

The great California athlete is the latest sports figure to submit to the film biography treatment. Or maybe it should be called an autobiography, since he'll play a boy named Bob Mathias.

"Me act?" he laughs. "Not on your life. I'll just be playing myself. The script will be true to life, so I won't have to do any heavy dramatics or anything like that. I think I ought to be able to handle it."

Bob has done most of his performing on playing fields from here to Helsinki. He says he never even appeared in school plays. That's understandable when you consider the amount of time he spent practising the many sports in which he is skilled.

Bob is a handsome giant who talks in assured tones but has remained modest despite his fame. He looks forward to the acting experience as "something new and exciting."

TV SERIES CONSIDERED

"My agent, Jim Fallon, and I have been discussing some kind of picture for some time," he revealed. "At first we thought it might be some kind of adventure series in TV. You know, something like Tom Swift or the Rover Boys or a spaceman idea, with me playing myself. But the series was out because that would take 52 weeks. I don't have that much time."

"So we decided on the story of my life. We'll try to keep it authentic; we've got a lot of real football from football games, plus some terrific shots from the 1952 Olympics in Helsinki. There is 2,000 feet on the decathalon alone. That's the kind of material it would cost millions to reproduce here."

Bob, who is 23 now, said his days as an athlete are just about over. Pro football doesn't interest him, and he said he's not big enough for pro basketball. He's a mere six foot three.

"There's no money in professional track," he observed. "and I think it's unfortunate. Many track athletes don't reach their peak until they're out of college."

Dec. Wheat Sales Decline Considerably

OTTAWA (CP) — Exports of Canadian wheat and wheat flour in terms of wheat during December declined considerably to 17,800,000 bushels from 24,400,000 in November, and six per cent below the 1943-44 and 1952-53 average of 19,000,000 bushels.

This brought the cumulative total for the Aug. 1-Dec. 31 period to 120,600,000 bushels compared with 168,100,000 for the corresponding period of 1952, the bureau of statistics reported today.

Ship's Officers Have It Easy, Learn Job Easy Way Ashore

OTTAWA (CP)—The prospective ship's officer in former days climbed to his position "through the hawser pipe," meaning he wrestled his way to authority in the rough-and-tumble of ship-board life.

Nowadays he goes to a shore-bound nautical school, where professors teach him higher mathematics, engineering and the operation of such modern complexities as radar, direction-finding and the gyro compass.

Or he may spend his off-time in the fo'c'sle sharpening up for promotion through correspondence courses from these schools.

ACROSS CANADA

Across the country from Vancouver to St. John's, Nfld., several hundred are taking various courses in the sciences of deck officerdom—the topside operation of the ship—and in marine engineering.

Some are masters and chief engineers brushing up with refresher courses. Many are qualified officers studying to pass examinations for the next upward rung. Others are seamen looking for a start as officers.

The federal transport department has a hand in most of the schools, but provincial governments join in some. So do such organizations as the Dominion Marine Association, consisting of lake shipping companies.

BUSY PERIOD

Right now, activity in the shore classrooms is highest on the Great Lakes and the St. Lawrence river during the freeze-up period.

In Montreal, about 40 students, most of them already holding marine engineers' certificates, are studying for higher certification in a school organized jointly by the transport department and the Quebec welfare department.

Another 45 are at the Dominion Marine Association's marine engineers' school in Toronto. They are aiming at examinations for competency ranging up to first-class papers in steam or motor operation. Classes are run by a transport department steamship inspector. During the inland navigation season, this school also conducts correspondence classes for men aboard ship.

For marine engineers, the transport department also is organizing schools in St. John's, Nfld., Halifax, Saint John, N.B., and Vancouver.

FOR DECK DUTIES

On the deck side, the Dominion Marine Association runs a nautical school at Toronto, with correspondence courses. About 50 deck officers now are taking courses there, including skippers on refresher studies.

Winter navigational schools on the Great Lakes include establishments at Midland, Owen Sound and Collingwood in Ontario. A nautical school is also operated as a branch of Queen's University, Kingston, Ont.

At the Sailors' Institute in Montreal, instruction is given leading to examinations for all-waters certification of masters and mates. The transport department runs a similar school at Quebec City during the navigation season.

DEEP WATER CERTIFICATES

On the coasts, nautical schools give instruction leading to certificates for coastal and deep-water trade.

At St. John's, the school is associated with Memorial College. Those at Halifax and Saint John have been organized jointly by the provincial governments and the transport department.

At Vancouver, the transport department joins with the local authorities. At Prince Rupert, B.C. the transport department instructs in navigation and seamanship.

Fishermen in the Maritimes are given tuition in these two aspects of their work by their provincial governments.

Gov't Housing Chief Says Need Of 200,000 Homes

OTTAWA (CP) — The government's housing chief today estimated that Canada's backlog of housing needs is between 75,000 and 200,000 new homes, but a Toronto member of Parliament suggested the actual backlog may be more than 400,000.

D. B. Mansur, president of Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, agreed that his estimate is open to argument.

Giving evidence for the third day before the Commons banking committee, the CMHC chief said there are 376,900 more households than occupied dwellings in Canada.

These were the groups doubling up with families that already had homes. But it could not be said that the 376,900 households represented Canada's housing shortage. Many of them doubled up voluntarily.

George Hees (PC — Toronto Broadview) said that on the basis of a government-ordered survey in 1944, Canada's backlog now is probably about 488,000 homes.

The survey was made by Prof. C. E. Curtis, professor of economics at Queen's University. Mr. Hees, a Toronto manufacturer, suggested there should be another Curtis survey to make a careful study of housing requirements.

Mr. Mansur said some of the basic figures used in the Curtis survey proved to be "over-statements." Canada's population was in a state of flux at that time and there was no efficient use of all existing housing.

There had been a steady improvement in housing since the Second World War, he said.

Waterloo Farmers Proud Ploughing Hosts

TORONTO (CP) — Waterloo county farmers take a lot of pride in the knowledge that they are to be hosts at the 1954 international plowing match. They even dress differently from their fellow members of the Ontario Plowmen's Association.

At the association's 44th annual meeting held here Monday, Waterloo members, each wearing a black Kentucky-colonel tie trooped in. It was explained that this would set them apart from the rest of the members.

The match is to be held in Breslau, Oct. 12-15.

U.K. Increases Salmon Order

OTTAWA (CP) — The United Kingdom is increasing its 1954 purchases of Canadian canned salmon, spurred by a dollar-producing "buy British" campaign among British Columbia industrialists.

Fisheries Minister Sinclair announced in the Commons Tuesday the U.K. government has decided to make a bulk purchase "considerably larger" than the 205,000 cases Britain bought last year.

He did not indicate the amount, but he said that in 1953 Britain bought $4,250,000 worth of Canadian salmon. In 1952, it bought none because of shortage of dollars.

British authorities here said the new order is expected to run around $4,900,000. They said Sir Andrew Jones, head of the former British food mission in Ottawa, now is conducting negotiations with B.C. business men.

U.S. Bases Remain In Britain—Churchill

LONDON (Reuters)—Prime Minister Churchill told the House of Commons Tuesday U.S. air force bases would continue in Britain "so long as they are needed in the general interest of world peace and security."

He was answering Labor left-wingers, Tom Driberg, and Emrys Hughes, who claimed these bases were dangerous to Britain's security.

Those in charge of the evening were Mr. and Mrs. Harold Archer and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Robertson.

Church Attendance Discussed By YPU

ROSENEATH (ENS) — "The church, church membership and church attendance" was the topic for discussion at the YPU.

The members divided into three groups for the discussion period. The summary was presented by the Rev. J. R. Wheeler, who urged the members to make a special effort to attend church more regularly.

The meeting was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Waldie with the president, Adele Varcoe, presiding, and Betty Carew as pianist.

The theme of the worship service was, "You must lose your life to find it." Carole McMillan and Mary Halstead were in charge, assisted by Yvonne Adams, Donna Pringle and Bill Murphy.

Following a recreational period, the hostess served refreshments.

Pontiacs Trounce The Petes In 9-1 Senior "B" Fray But Petes Still Tied On Top

ORILLIA (Special)—The Petes, who were tied for first place in the senior "B" big five group, pending the outcome of last night's encounter between Oshawa and Belleville, went down to their worst defeat of the season as Orillia Pontiacs laced them 9-1 last night. Close to 1,500 fans at the Orillia Community Centre arena had plenty to cheer about as the locals piled up the score. Dan McDonald had a virtual field day as he romped for five goals and one assist. John Wood added to his total also by turning in a neat hat trick. Single goals for Orillia were notched by veteran Al Shuchuk and the ever-trying Murray Richardson.

THEIR LONE GOAL

A snap shot by Rod Belisle on a passout from behind the Orillia cage by Doc Prentice at the .43 mark of the first period saved the Petes from a whitewashing. Bob Shropshire held the Petes off the score sheet for the remaining 59 minutes and 17 seconds of the game. Rod Belisle's goal early in the initial period gave the Petes a short-lived 1-0 lead. Goals by Al Shuchuk, Dan McDonald and John Wood gave the home team a 3-1 lead as the period ended. Each team collected four penalties in the period.

Orillia threw the game wide open with four unanswerable goals in the middle session. McDonald, Richardson and Wood were the marksmen. Again the two clubs were even as far as penalties were concerned with two each. Wood and McDonald added to the one-sided score in the final heat as again Bobby Shropshire stayed off the Petes' rushes.

Petes—Goal, Donlevy; defence, Redmond and McMaster; centre, Belisle; wings, Prentice and Peterson; alternates, Munroe, Armstrong, Leonard, Greenlaw, Fryia, Hill, Crowley, and Collins.

Orillia — Goal, Shropshire; defence, Grigg and Desroches; centre, Nelson; wings, Wood and McCrone; alternates, McDonald, Bowen, Richardson, Shewchuk, Pearsall, Payne, Favero, McIvor, and Robertson.

Referees—Allen and Mosher of Toronto.

The summary:

Lindsay Earns A 6-3 Win To End Season

LINDSAY (ENS) — The Lindsay juniors, after their disastrous visit to Peterborough on Monday night, returned to home ice last night for their final game of the Central Ontario junior group, and turned in a winning 6-3 effort over the Collingwood Greenshirts.

The Lindsayites first line of Tom Hutton, Murray Packer and Art Truax, led them to the win with five of the six goals. Jack Graham scored the other.

The visitors grabbed a 1-0 lead in the first period on Rawn's goal while the home club couldn't beat Hudson in the Collingwood nets, though they dominated play.

In the second period, Crew of the visitors was off when Tom Hutton evened the score off a face-off in Collingwood ice. A minute later Truax scored another, when Hudson lost his shot and pulled the puck into the net himself. O'Neill had joined crew in the penalty box at the time. Packer finished the second-period scoring with a short backhander off a fast break.

CAME CLOSER

In the third, the Greenshirts came within goal when Hill scored from Sholtz in the second minute of play. Crew was off for his third sentence of the game when Hutton lengthened the Lindsay lead again on a disputed goal, after he hauled a long shot down with his hand immediately in front of Hudson and banged the puck in.

The visitors argued so strenuously at Referee Herb Payne, he assessed Parkinson a match misconduct and McMaillan a misconduct. Seconds later, Payne called a minor against Collingwood and the rest of the team started another uproar. Graham increased the Lindsay lead in the late stages of the game, but Sholtz came back with a Collingwood goal with a minute remaining to make the score 5-3. In the dying seconds Traux scored his second goal on a play with Crawford to bring the final total to 6-3.

Campbellford Wins

NORWOOD (ENS— Campbellford finished strong here last night to down the Norwood pucksists 9.5 in a fairly rugged encounter. They rapped in five goals in the final frame to wrap up the tilt. Not too many penalties were handed out, though Dooker drew two majors.

Rusaw and Scott scored in the first for a 1-1 count. Rusaw and Ruttan added markers next heat, MacMillan and Smith having an assist each. Campbelford counted three, Garvey getting two and Holmes one, as Gibson earned an assist. Ruttan and MacMillan tallied for Norwood in the third, Patterson aiding in one. Holmes scored three for the C's in the last chukker, and Dooker and Garvey got one each. The latter, Potts and Gibson earned an assist apiece. Teams:

C's—Brown, Scott, Garvey, Dooker, Petherick, Field, Girard, McMillan, Gibson, Potts, Peake, Hagerman, Holmes, Ingram.

Norwood — Ruttan, Chase, Lockheed, MacMillan, Smith, Rusaw, Patterson, Rooney, McArthur, Buchanan, Chamberlain, Hannon.

Colt With Lockjaw May Be Champion

STRATFORD (CP)—Locust Song two-year-old colt stricken with lockjaw last March 23, may be on his way to becoming world champion trotter, owner David Pinkney claims.

The colt has been nursed back to health by veterinarian Dr. J.E. Johnson of Waterloo. "He is the one who saved his life," Mr. Pinkney said.

Locust Song, sired by Victory Song out of Honey Locust, has been in training for two months now. But even though the colt is in robust health, Dave said he'll wait until 1955 before the real test.

"It may take a bit of doing," said Dave, "but I believe the colt has it."

Sell Doug Hardy To Barrie Flyers

TORONTO (CP)—Doug Hardy, a junior B goalkeeper, has been sold to Barrie Flyers for the remainder of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A schedule.

Stafford Smythe, manager of the Junior Toronto Marlboros said Hardy will be sent to the Flyers from Weston Dukes, an affiliate of Marlboros. However, Hardy goes back to Weston after this season. Smythe did not reveal the price.

Hardy replaces Jack Spencer, who suffered a fractured skull when struck on the forehead by a puck during a game last Friday.

ERSKINE GETS PAY BOOST

BROOKLYN (AP)—Carl Erskine who set a record of 14 strikeouts against New York Yankees in the 1953 world series, signed his 1954 Brooklyn baseball contract Tuesday.

Salary terms were not disclosed but the 27-year-old righthander is believed to have received a substantial increase over his reported $18,000 salary of last year. The 1954 figure probably is close to $25,000.

Erskine became the 29th Dodger to come to terms, leaving first baseman Gil Hodges as the only Dodger regular not signed.

The 15th annual tournament of the Ontario Bowling Association of the Deaf will be held here on May 1, and local officials expect 40 deaf teams from various parts of the province. Some 250 persons will dine later at the Kawartha Club. William Mayfield of Peterborough is president of this association, and other officers from here are Joe Meyette, vice-prexy; Charles Meyette, secretary; Frank Meyette, treasurer; and A. Fox on the executive. Other officials hail from Brantford and Toronto. It was mainly through the efforts of these Peterborough chaps that the association for deaf bowlers was organized 15 years ago.

They're making senior lacrosse re-organization noises now in St. Catharines, having held their annual meeting the other night. Ted Graves returned as president of the Athletics, and Doug Cove indicated that he might reconsider retirement plans as club coach. General plans call for St. Kitts to try to get back some of their former players, like the McNultys, Tony Damico, Ken Croft, Stu Scott and Leo Teatro, since Orillia won't operate this year. We imagine they'll also make another effort to get Harry Wipper to forget the Petes and stick to the old home town when college is out. They stated: "The Athletics are definitely dedicated to the task of unseating the three-time Mann Cup champion Peterborough Trailermen." Local club will meet soon and name their manager and coach.

Horses, Horses, Horses

With stabled horses going through a hefty feed bill these weeks, local owners are anxiously awaiting spring and track action once more. Jim Coleman drops us a line from Toronto to say entry blanks have been sent out for 11 harness racing stakes at Woodbine next summer. The nominations for these stakes must be filed by Feb. 15. A new half-mile harness racing strip has been built at Woodbine, as well as a three-furlong training track for trotters and pacers. Also 250 stalls for these entries, which will have the use as well of 550 stalls used exclusively before by the runners. No doubt there'll be meets here again this summer, with betting privileges once more.

Going back many years, Mike Rodden writes of the oldtime famed hockey Renfrew Millionaires. Team included: Bert Lindsay, Hay Millar, Newsy Lalonde, Larry Gilmour, Les and Frank Patrick, Bob Rowe, Cyclone Taylor, Fred Whitcroft, Herb Jordan and Flash Hogan. Says he: "It would be the height of something or other to state than any of these players would not have been a star in this era." Oldsters here may recall when Fred Whitcroft played with Peterborough's 1901 OHA junior champs, along with King, Smith, Armstrong, Brundette, Gilman, Robinson and several more. He also helped Petes win the Ontario intermediate title in 1905, along with Wasson, Glover, Crowley, Morgan, Graham, Cavanah and Moore. An outstanding rover, Whitcroft later shone in various centres ere settling in Western Canada.

Petes' Awful "Off" Night

TPT Petes, who have been riding high in senior "B" circles for weeks now, were bound to come a copper sooner or later — and they sure flopped last e'en up Orillia way, taking the sour side of a 9-1 score. However, they were fortunate inasmuch as Belleville pulled a 5-2 upset on Oshawa the same night, so that leaves Petes and Truckers still tied atop the heap. Orillia pulled up ahead of Kingston, just a game and a half back of the leaders, while Memos kept their faint hopes of making a playoff spot alive. Big game for the Redmond men will be the clash here Friday night between the leading Truckmen and locals. The Toronto refs were 40 minutes late arriving last p.m., and the ice plant went on the blink in the second period. McDonald turned in a great game for O's.

Kenner Lasses Gain Close One Over SPS

Kenner junior colleens captured a 29-28 hoop victory over St. Peter's in a real lively encounter at St. Peter's gym yesterday, Dianne Smith's free throw in the final half-minute of play spelling the difference between the well-matched girls' teams. The count had been tied with two minutes to go.

Kenner outplayed the Saints for three quarters of the tussle, leading 7-0 in the first quarter, 18-8 at the half, and 26-12 going into the windup stanza, when SPS rallied strongly. There were plenty of fouls on both sides, especially in the first half, as the young rivals turned on the heat in lively style.

Dianne Smith led the victors in sniping with 13 points, while Joanne Kearns counted 12, and Mickey McNaughton—who turned in an outstanding show but collapsed toward the end — also notched 12.

SPS lasses start semi-finals against Port Hope at St. Peter's on Thursday evening at seven.

Pirie Throws Bombshell Will Pass Up B.C. Games

LONDON (CP) — Gordon Pirie, the lean young distance runner Britain regards as her athlete of the moment, Tuesday threw another bombshell into the lap of the Amateur Athletic Association when he said that he will pass up the British Empire Games at Vancouver this summer.

The holder of some 35 records made known his decision following his return from a Belgian track meet, where he conferred with his coach, German Waldemar Gerschler.

"I am not unduly perturbed," commented one AAA official. "The games are a long way away yet and Pirie has been known to change his mind."

Jack Crump, England's team manager, was of the same opinion and said he hopes Pirie will change his mind.

Pirie's decision was based on what he called the strain of travelling to Vancouver at a time when he wants to guard his physical development and build for a meeting with Emile Zatopek of Czechoslovakia. It followed by a month or two a national furore caused when Pirie let it be known that he might be going to a United States college.

Shortly after, Pirie gave up his banking job to sell paint at an increased salary. He gained freedom to train during the day plus other improvements.

TeePees Wallop Galt 8-2, Advancing On Memorial Cup

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

St. Catharines TeePees may be on their way to their first Memorial Cup, if they win it they'll have to give a lot of the credit to a brother act from Ottawa.

Brian and Barry Cullen, the latter a rookie, are the two top snipers in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series.

Brian, a veteran in the OHA, leads the league in both goals and assists. His 52 goals and 70 assists give him 122 points, a comfortable cushion over his closest competitors, who have not yet reached the 100-point mark.

Brother Barry, playing his first year in the OHA Junior A series, has the next best goal-scoring mark with 47 counters. He has also chalked up 33 assists for 77 points.

Altogether the Cullen brothers have scored 99 goals for the first-place TeePees, more than one-third of their 244-goal total.

Barry registered three counters Tuesday night as the TeePees increased their first-place margin to four points by walloping Galt Black Hawks 8-2 in St. Catharines.

The second-place Toronto Marlboros helped the TeePee cause by allowing Barrie Flyers to edge them 2-1 in Toronto.

ONTARIO CLUBS WIN

In two other games, both interlocking clashes with Quebec Amateur Hockey Association Junior teams, OHA teams won.

Toronto St. Michael's College Majors drew to within six points of Marlboros by downing Jonquiere Marquis 4-2 in Toronto and Kitchener-Waterloo Greenshirts took a 6-3 home-ice victory from Montreal Royals.

Jack Armstrong added two goals to Barry Cullen's three for the TeePees. Singles went to Nels Bullock, Hugh Barlow and Hank Ciesla. Pete Kowalchuk and Chick Chalmers counted for Galt.

Barrie was never headed. Danny Poliziani gave them a 1-0 lead in the first period and George Ranieiri scored the winner before Mike Nykoluk counted the only Marlboro goal in the second.

Only four minor penalties were called during the dull St. Michael's-Jonquiere contest. Each team took two.

GOALIE HURT

Paul Knox, with his second goal of the night, rounded out the Irish total by scoring into an empty net with five minutes remaining in the game. Jonquiere netminder Andre Bouchard was hurt in the left arm just before the goal and started to leave the ice before the play was stopped.

Defenceman Armando Delbosco finished in goal for the Marquis.

Bill Colvin and Ken Gribbons scored the other St. Michael's goals. Gerry Normand and Jean Rousseau tallied for Jonquiere.

The Greenshirts scored the first five goals before Montreal hit the scoring column in Kitchener.

Bruce Jones clicked twice for the winners with single goals going to Beryl Klinck, Buddy Horne, Graham Joyce and Grieg Hicks.

Stan Maxwell, Alex Viskelis and Scotty Bowman scored for the Royals.

Montreal Royals are at Barrie tonight while Galt Black Hawks go to Hamilton to play the Cubs.

PCVS Midgets Get Win From Saints

PCVS basketball boys pulled out a 38-32 victory over St. Peter's last night on the Collegiate floor to open the City Basketball League midget series, a double schedule between the two schools. They tangle again one week from tonight in St. Peter's High gym.

The keen contest Tuesday evening saw Saints up a point in an 11-10 first quarter. It was tied 17-all at the halfway mark, and still sewn up tightly at 25-25 going into the fourth frame when PCVS pulled gradually away in speedy play by both sides.

Clarke led the winners' attack with 16 points, two more than team-mate Dobbin. Nolan was tops for St. Peter's with 16 points.

PCVS bantams are at Cobourg today, while the PCVS midgets and juniors play at Kenner on Friday. Saturday sees Hamilton Delta Collegiate send up midget, junior and senior boys' teams to play at PCVS, first game going at six p.m.

5 Wests Oppose Lakefield Squad

ORONO (CP) — A 47-year-old father and his five sons will be the starting line-up for Orono Orphans hockey team when it plays Lakefield tonight in Port Hope.

Father Ab West in goal will have a total of seven family members on hand when he steps on the ice with the sons who have helped put the team in first place in the Ontario Hockey Association Intermediate A Lakeshore League.

His wife Edna will act as timekeeper and his daughter Diane as team coach.

Sons Junior, 24, Dean, 22, Keith, 19, Ray, 20, and Ron, 17, will occupy forward and defence spots. Ab and Ron mainly because of age are not regular team members but have signed OHA player certificates and are listed on the team's roster.

TEAM UNIQUE

Dean Found, manager of the team from this village of 700, said he has asked OHA officials if they'd ever heard of so many members of one family on one team.

"They said there's nothing in the hockey records like it," Found said.

In an exhibition game in Whitby Monday night, Dean, Ray and Junior scored to help give the Orphans an 8-7 victory over Markham Millionaires of the OHA Senior B series.

Father Ab used to play centre for Orono teams, but he has been moved back to goal for the Port Hope game. His sons have taken all the other spots.

Junior played the last four years with Peterborough Petes of the OHA Senior B league, but this year decided to return to Orono to play with his brothers.

The Orono team is actually an OHA Intermediate C group. But with few C or B teams in the area, they have been playing in the Lakeshore A group and now lead the five-team league with 29 points.

Watson Afraid 3 Goals For 200-Club May Be Difficult To Get

By JIM BASTABLE, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Any big-league hockey fan can tell there isn't a mean streak in Harry Percival Watson just by looking at him. His coaches could, and they didn't like it at one time. In 10 years in the National Hockey League, Watson has never made headlines for belligerent or fiery antics but Toronto Maple Leafs always looked on him as one of the best leftwingers in the business. "I wan't born to be a tough guy," Watson says. "Everybody tells me I'm too soft."

That's what some coaches said when the Leafs got Watson in a trade that sent Billy Taylor to Detroit Red Wings 11 years ago. They told him to throw his 200-odd pounds around to stay up with the other fellows

But Watson made them like his style of play. It wasn't a bad idea, either. He is nearing the exclusive 200-goal club, one mark of talent in the NHL.

THREE GOALS SHORT

Big Harry—he stands six foot one—is only three goals from joining the 200-goal club. Eleven of the 27 members are playing today.

"Sure, I'd like nothing better than to be No. 28," Harry says. "Who wouldn't? But, I'm jittery. Those goals will probably be three of the toughest of my career."

Watson will have a chance tonight when the third-place Leafs meet the fourth-place Boston Bruins in Toronto. In the only other game, the league-leading Red Wings travel to New York for a game against the fifth-place Rangers.

Watson, a native of Saskatoon, Sask., has scored 19 goals so far this season and at the rate he is going he may get the three goals this week because the Leafs play four games in five nights.

Owen Sound Humbles Niagara 9-3

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Tommy Burlington, veteran with Owen Sound Mercurys, needs only 12 points to shatter the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A scoring record. He has 10 games to do it in.

Burlington, 33-year-old centre with the Mercurys, chalked up his 100th point of the season Tuesday night as Owen Sound defeated Niagara Falls Cataracts 9-3 in Owen Sound. The victory gave the Mercs sole possession of first place in the standings.

Burlington, who is shooting for the 112-point record set by Mickey Roth of Stratford Indians during the 1951-52 season, appears to be a cinch for the league scoring title even if he doesn't break the record.

His one goal and five assists gave him a total of 39 goals and 61 assists for a 25-point lead over Jack Taylor of Hamilton Tigers.

In the only other game last night Windsor Bulldogs defeated Chatham Maroons 6-1 in Chatham.

North Bay Trappers took a 4-2 home-ice decision from Sault Ste. Marie (Mich.) Indians during the only game in the Northern Ontario Hockey Association Senior Southern group game.

MERCS NEVER HEADED

Gerry Reid and Buck Forslund each scored two goals for Owen Sound. Bill McComb, Harry Kazarian, Doug Gillespie and Ralph Hosking, as well as Burlington, notched singles. Owen Sound led all the way.

Eric Unger, Danny Nixon and Bill Hartsburg counted for the last-place Cataracts.

A crowd of 3,800 fans, apparently lured out by the last Windsor-Chatham clash, watched the Bulldogs outscore the Maroons in every period. A minor riot broke out the last time the two teams met here

SPARKED ATTACK

Wally Kullman sparked the Windsor attack with two goals and two assists. Clarence Jaster, Fred Hildebrand, Alec Birukow and Gord Haidy scored one each for the Bulldogs. Bill Lee got the only Chatham goal.

Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen play the Indians in Stratford tonight. The Indians are at Pembroke and Sudbury Wolves meet the Greyhounds in Sault Ste. Marie Ont., in the NOHA.

Say Expulsion Threat Used

TORONTO (CP)—Two Big Four football coaches say they wouldn't be surprised if the National Football League threaten United States college players with permanent expulsion if they sign with Canadian teams.

Coach Frank Clair of Toronto Argonauts said:

"It wouldn't surprise me a bit. I know they're really putting pressure on the kids and most of them are scared to death of Canada."

Carl Voyles, coach of Hamilton Tiger-Cats, said in a telephone interview from Vero Beach, Fla.:

"I don't know whether they threaten to bar the boys now, but I know they have threatened them like that in the past. I know (Bob) Snyder (former Calgary coach in the Western Interprovincial Football Union) has been telling a lot of lies to the boys down there."

Cooke Fails To Sign Satchel Paige

TORONTO (CP) — Jack Kent Cooke, owner of Toronto Maple Leafs of the International Baseball League, said Tuesday that he has failed in his attempts to sign old Satchel Paige, former pitcher with Cleveland Indians and St. Louis Browns of the American League.

Paige hasn't been signed yet but it is rumored he will play for a Pacific Coast League team.

Playoff Dates Extended For ORHA Teams

GALT (CP) — Secretary H. D. Ovenden of the Ontario Rural Hockey Association announced Tuesday that the date for league teams to be ready to enter league playoffs has been extended to Feb. 22. Previously it was Feb. 15.

Teams and leagues affiliated with the ORHA follow:

Senior series:

Cannington, Chippawa, Crowland South A. C., Beaverton, Blythewood, Fenelon Falls, Acton A. C. Peaches, Alliston, Glencoe, Haliburton, Lynden, Markham, Milbrook, Milton, Port Robinson and Sutton.

Intermediate series:

Central Oxford League—Princeton, Hickson, Sweaburg, Embro. Oxford Centre and Wesliners; East Elgin League—Union, Belmont and Straffordville; Erie League — Selkirk, Fisherville, South Cayuga and Garnet; Erin Township League—Erin, Ballinfad, Cedar Valley, Inglewood and Caledon Combine; North Oxford League — Lakeside, Wellburn, Harmony, Brooksdale, Thamesford, Shakespeare and Putnam.

North Wentworth League—Troy, Rockton, Littles Corners, Sheffield Clyde, Kirkwall and Greensville, Oxford Waterloo, Plattsville, Ayr and New Dundee; South Perth Rural League—Kirkton, Monkton, Motherwell, Goulds, Avonton and Cromarty; South Simcoe League—Beeton, Thornton, Stroud and Kleinburg; South Waterloo League—Blair, Breslau, and Soon; Tri-County League — Coboconk, Cambray, Little Britain, Woodville and Keswick. Single entries—Brougham and Newcastle.

LOOK OUT ROCKY—Claude Fortin, left, who won a split decision recently at Mont St. Louis gym in Montreal over Rocky Brisebois for the Canadian welterweight title, is sending a telegram on this punch. Apparently the ex-champ is expecting it, buf seems helpless to stave off the fistic rap.

Russia Wants To Send Team To U.S.

MOSCOW (AP)—Russia is interested in sending a track team to the United States this spring and have U.S. athletes visit the Soviet Union, a government official said Tuesday.

Dmitry Posnikov, deputy minister of health and chief of the central board of physical culture, also announced the Soviet Union would send its champion chess team to New York in June for a match with top U.S. players.

Posnikov added in an interview that the moves are part of an expanded program of international competition arranged for Soviet teams this year.

No specific track plans were announced. The official said he had asked for a schedule of events and these were being studied.

FAVORABLE REACTION

In New York, Dan Ferris, secretary of the Amateur Athletic Union, said he had conferred with a representative of the Russian embassy in Washington over the prospects of a Soviet team visit and had received a favorable reaction.

"It's too late now for our indoor championships but latest word I have from the Russian embassy is that the team might come here for a series of meets in March."

Brunet Carries Slim Margin Into Final Heat

By CECIL SMITH

OTTAWA (CP)—Ernest Brunet, a lean, 33-year-old musher from Gatineau Point, Que., carries a slim 20-second margin into today's second and final heat of the international sled-dog derby.

Racing competitively for only two years, the pint-size postman finished the first 33-mile heat of the annual, 66-mile race Tuesday in three hours and 38 seconds to edge out another Quebec musher, Emile Martel, 48, of Loretteville, winner in 1951. He finished in three hours and 58 seconds.

Starting in eighth position in a field of 22, Brunet drove his six cross-bred hounds past seven other drivers and came home first.

Brunet was hailed by hundreds of spectators who lined the banks of the Rideau canal in downtown Ottawa as his dogs, tongues lolling from their mouths, came down the home stretch.

AMERICAN THIRD

Dr. Charles Belford of Deerfield, Mass., finished third with a time of 3:05.10. Alex Garneau, Quebec City, was fourth in 3:09.45, Don McFaul, Maniwaki, Que., fifth in 3:13.32, and Dr. Roland Lombard, Auburndale, Mass., sixth in 3:17.39.

Mrs. Jean Lane of Lunenburg, Mass., a newcomer here, completed the marathon course in 3:31.02 to place eighth. She had a 19-minute margin over Dr. Lombard's wife, her nearest woman competitor, who finished in 3:50.03.

Sandra Stiles, 17-year-old Ottawa high school girl, was close behind in 14th position with a time of 3:56.08, and Mrs. Bunty Dunlop of Burlington finished in 4:09.29 for 18th position.

Wilf (Pit) Lepine, of Quebec City, champion in 1950 and 1952, dropped out of the race before the half-way mark. Trouble with his dogs is believed to be the reason for his quitting.

Declares Howe Leading Race On Cheap Help

DETROIT (AP)—Is Gordie Howe of Detroit Red Wings leading the National Hockey League in scoring because he gets cheap assists on his home ice in Olympia Stadium?

Yes, says coach Dick Irvin of Montreal Canadiens.

"What do you think?" says the official scorer at Olympia Stadium, Ross Jewell.

"Nothing Mr. Irvin would say, or do, would surprise or disturb me," said Jewell. "I call them the way I see them."

Irvin took a crack at Jewell in New York. He said:

"Howe would never be leading the league if they had an impartial official scorer at Detroit. Every time there's a Wing goal while Howe is on the ice, he almost automatically gets an assist."

PREFERS RICHARD

It's no secret that Irvin idolizes his own high-scoring right winger, Maurice Richard, and would like nothing better than to see the Rocket lead the league in scoring.

At the moment, Howe is on top with 58 points—on 21 goals and 37 assists. Richard is second with 52 points—on 32 goals and 20 assists.

In New York general manager Jack Adams of the Red Wings offered to bet Irvin that the Detroit scorer is "twice as good as the one at Montreal." Adams suggested a $200 wager, to be decided by an impartial judge, with the winner giving the money to his favorite charity.

Optimistic About Coal

LONDON (Reuters)—Sir Hubert Houldsworth, chairman of the national coal board, which governs mines in Britain, said Tuesday that it will be a long time before coal is replaced by atomic energy. "I am not worried about the need for coal during our lifetime or that of our children or grandchildren," he told a luncheon.

80,000 Enthusiastic Curlers In Canada

By JIM BASTABLE

TORONTO (CP) — Whether it's by a knockout or a draw, nearly 80,000 persons between 18 and 80 are getting a kick out of swishing a broom and sliding a 40-pound rock these days. At 10 cents a head they help keep Canadian high school curling on its feet.

From Newfoundland to British Columbia, the rhythmic action of brooms across glassy ice and cries of "sweep" are familiar sounds in hundreds of natural and artificial rinks as Canada's curling season nears the end of another great year.

One of the country's most popular sports, the old Scottish pastime has come a long way since it was first played in Canada in the 18th century—when soldiers fashioned their stones from melted down cannon and played on the St. Charles river in Quebec.

CANADA'S CLAIM

Today, many agree with Canada's claim to the title of the best curler produced in the world and that the Dominion championships produce a world beater. This year curlers will shoot for the title Edmonton March 1-6. The Canadian high school tournament will be held at Hamilton Feb. 22-25.

The game has made its biggest advance in the last five years. In 1948, for instance, there were 62,263 curlers registered with the Dominion Curling Association.

That figure was increased to 70,504 in 1952 and last year there were a record 73,993 registered with 1,231 clubs.

Most of the curlers registered with the Canadian association are assessed 10 cents a year, with the funds earmarked to promote and provide facilities for high school curlers. An association with more than 500 members is assessed $500.

PRACTICE COUNTS

"It's not much but it helps," Ernie McMurtry of Toronto, secretary of the Ontario association, said in an interview. "After all, there is no coaching problem such as you have in hockey, football and other sports. There are no established styles or grips. You just throw the stone and develop through practice."

The increasing popularity of curling in New Brunswick is evident among men, women and boys.

Ten years ago the province had 13 clubs affiliated with the New Brunswick branch of the Royal Caledonian Curling Club. Now there are 21, and the membership if 2,750. Nearly 500 women are in 12 clubs. In 1943 they had only three or four. About 500 high school boys have taken to the sport.

Such growth is not uncommon across the country.

Nova Scotia curlers have doubled their numbers in the last 20 years and more and more clubs have found it necessary to install artificial ice. In 1940 there were not more than half a dozen artificial ice plants in the province. In 1952 there were 19.

The Ottawa district, the last stronghold for iron curling in Canada, is gradually changing to granite play.

TOPS IN WEST

In the more "frigid" provinces, curling has caught like wildfire. The history of the game in Alberta dates back to the mid-1880s, when the game was played on river ice sheets. At the end of 1953 there were 204 clubs with a membership of 14,055.

In the Maritimes, Newfoundland has only two clubs with 248 members, Nova Scotia has 27 clubs and 2,971 members, Prince Edward Island four clubs and 350 members.

One of the largest memberships is in Ontario, with a total of 167 clubs and 16,326 members. Quebec has 21 clubs and 1,858 members.

The largest is in Saskatchewan where 16,587 persons belong to 457 clubs. In British Columbia, where winters usually are mild and short, there are 38 clubs with 3,427 curlers. Manitoba has 281 clubs with 15,507 members. There are seven clubs in the Northwest Territories with a membership of 525.

TOP-NOTCHERS IN WEST

Curling interest may be country-wide but it's the West that breeds the top-notchers. Since the Canadian championships were started in 1937, western Canada teams have won it 18 times. Manitoba won 13 times, including last year when Ab Gowanlock skipped his Dauphin rink to victory.

And many westerners go for the automobile bonspiels, frowned on by the curling associations.

"The automobile bonspiels aren't good for the average players," McMurtry says. "They haven't got a chance. A few hot-shot players get together and that's that. How can the average curler buck competition like that? And the entry fee is very high—more than $100 in some events."

All members of the group are "in the very best condition," said Patricia Ramage, team manager.

Lyndhursts Drop Milan For Easy 9-4 Win

MILAN (CP) — Canada's representatives in the world hockey championships, victims of a horrendous beating in their first exhibition game on European soil, have just about lived it down.

Toronto Lyndhursts, a club regarded with raised eyebrows by some hockey experts who felt their senior B rating made them unworthy representatives in international competition, now boast a five-game winning streak against Swiss and Italian teams.

And if the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association gets around to picking three promised players to reinforce their standard-bearers before the Stockholm tournament opens Feb. 26, they'll be even stronger.

NOT IMPRESSIVE

The Lyndhursts looked anything but impressive in Paris Jan. 30 as they took an 11-2 drubbing from a team of expatriate Canadians who play professional hockey in England.

But since that game, just two days after they disembarked from a rough Atlantic crossing, the tourists have perked up considerably.

They walloped Neuchatel 10-0 and Davos 13-4 in Switzerland in successive days, then whipped Swiss all-star teams 4-2 and 6-5. Switzerland has always rated as one of the toughest contestants in the tournament.

EASY WIN

Carrying their campaign into Italy Tuesday, the Lyndhursts toyed with the Internazionale club of Milan, Italian national champions for the last 15 years, for an easy 9-4 victory.

Top scorers for the Canadians over the six games have been Moe Galand, a 23-year-old right-winger who played junior A hockey for Stratford and Oshawa of the Ontario Hockey Association, and left-winger Earl Clements, 22, who also played for the Stratford club. Both have counted eight goals, including two each at Milan.

Close behind them are centre Normie Gray and left wing John Petro with six markers each, four of Gray's coming in the 10-0 rout at Neuchatel. The 23-year-old-centre missed Tuesday's game because of injuries.

Bob Kennedy, a centre who played his junior hockey at Hamilton, has four goals and left wing Don Couch has three. Right wingers John Scott and Vic Sluce and defenceman Russ Robertson have counted two goals each. Centres George Sayliss and Reg Spragge each have found the range once.

Coach Greg Currie, interviewed before the Lyndhursts left for Bolzano, where the Lyndhursts play their second Italian match tonight, expressed satisfaction with the progress of the tour to date.

"The only thing the boys want is more mail from home," he said.

Test And Orfuns Get YM House Loop Tilts

In YMCA house basketball league fixture last evening, Test turned back Apprentices 43-33, and Orfuns downed Trojans 41-31. It was 23-14 at the half for Test, but Apprentices finished stronger to make it fairly close. Orfuns led Trojans 17-12 halfway through, staved off a third-quarter drive and had a little scoring margin in the fourth.

Haney led Test with 16 points, as Webb clicked for 12, Foster for eight, Spragge five and Keeler two. Best for Apprentices was Trimm with 10, one more than Hempstead, while Legros had five points, Ouellette four, Whitehead and Hurrle two each, and Graham one.

Killen topped Orfuns with 14 points, eight each going to Powers and Fowler, seven to Jamieson, and two apiece to Fell and Walks. For Trojans, Keeting stood out with a 19-point effort, Pearton being good for six, as Marshall and Wood gained three each.

Eight Workmen Die

TOKYO (Reuters)—Eight workmen were killed and four seriously injured when a concrete mixer overturned on the Sakuma dam project in central Japan, police said today. More than 20 men have been killed by accidents since work began on the dam in 1950.

Overcame Physical Deformity To Win Weight-Lifting Title

TORONTO (CP) — Husky Doug Hepburn of Vancouver, who overcame a physical deformity to become the world's heavyweight weight-lifting champion, today was named winner of the Lou Marsh Trophy as Canada's outstanding athlete of 1953.

Previously he won the title in the annual Canadian Press year-end sports poll among the country's sports editors and sportscasters.

Hepburn was the unanimous choice of the five-man board of judges for the award set up in 1936 to honor the memory of Marsh, for many years sports editor and columnist of the Toronto Daily Star who died that year. It is awarded annually.

The judges considered nearly a dozen Canadian men and women athletes, amateurs and professionals, before they chose the 280-pound Hepburn who went unheralded to Europe last summer, won the title at Stockholm Aug. 30 with a total lift of 1,030¼ pounds and returned practically unnoticed to Canada, except in Vancouver where he was given a civic reception.

SECOND WESTERNER

Hepburn's feat at Stockholm brought his home town its first world title since Percy Williams won the 100 and 200-metre sprints at the 1928 Olympic games. Hepburn also is the second athlete from western Canada to win the Marsh Trophy.

George Genereux of Saskatoon, who won a gold medal in trap shooting at the 1952 Olympics, was awarded the trophy in 1952. The 18-year-old sharpshooter vaulted from obscurity to international fame by his championship showing at Helsinki.

Other placings behind Hepburn were not announced but the list included men and women from many sports including golf, riding, paddling, hockey, football, track and field and squash.

High in the judges voting—the system and the points given each were not announced—was Marlene Stewart, the Fonthill, Ont., golfer who won the British women's amateur tournament last June at Porthcawl, Wales, the only Canadian to do it in the 60-year history of the tournament. Miss Stewart was voted the outstanding female athlete of 1953 in CP's year-end poll.

Gordie Howe of Detroit Red Wings and Maurice Richard of Montreal Canadiens, high-scoring right-wingers in the National Hockey League, received consideration for the award. Shirley Thomas, 18-year-old Ottawa resident, who rode to international fame in Canada and the United States, was also mentioned.

WATER SKIER

Others were: Carol Ann Duthie of Toronto, junior world champion water skier; Ernie Howard of Toronto, Canadian squash rackets singles champion in 1953; footballer Bob Cunningham of Ottawa Rough Riders, winner of the Jeff Russel Trophy as the most valuable player in the Big Four last year; Mary MacDonald, Toronto East York sprinter, and paddlers Lloyd Rice of Toronto and Don Stringer of Sudbury, Ont.

Remarries At 91

MIKEVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Booker Wright, 91-year-old veteran of the Spanish-American war who won an uncontested divorce from 64-year-old Martha Bell Wright last Dec. 22, has remarried, the county clerk's office said Tuesday. Records disclosed that Wright and Rebecca Johnson, 47, of Etta, applied for a licence last Friday. The clerk's office said the license had been used, but had no other details.

Transatlantic Chess Match Under Way

TORONTO (CP) — A transatlantic chess match between a 26-year-old University of Toronto student and one of Russia's grand masters got under way Tuesday.

The contestants are Frank R. Anderson, Canadian co-champion with Winnipeg's Abe Yanofsky, and Igor Z. Bondarevsky, said to be one of the world's top 10 players.

The contestants are cabling their moves, using a chess code known as the Oudaman system. Each message takes about 15 minutes.

Anderson said at the end of Tuesday's 3½-hour play that it is "going quite well" though it is too early for anything definite to emerge. Anderson said the match might end Thursday.

Anderson conducted his game before a five-foot-square-board on a wall of the Coliseum building here.

THIS IS WHITE CANE WEEK

9th Nation-Wide Campaign for Courtesy Assistance to the Blind

It's Up to YOU to Help the Blind!

THE WHITE CANE AS A SYMBOL

As the symbol of blindness, the White Cane signifies the desire of blind men and women for independence and social responsibility. On the street, with the White Cane to guide them, they can travel alone. They are free to come and go as they will. This freedom is conditional to some extent upon the courtesy of the sighted public. But it is freedom nonetheless. Which of us has not become confused in a strange district and asked a passerby to set us on the right road? We don't feel inferior in any way, and once we have got our bearing, we can go on our way. The same is true of the blind man.

The men and women who carry the White Cane are not beings set apart. They seek to enter every phase of ordinary life, finding their way with their White Canes, hoping that those who can see will regard them as the normal citizens that they are.

LISTEN FOR THE TAPPING CANE

- Listen for the Tapping Cane which is the blind man's polite request for assistance. Then "do as you would be done by" and lend a helping hand to the less fortunate.
- A little thought on your part will indicate the right course of action. Don't take things for granted. Always ask the blind man what assistance he needs. He is quite capable of telling you and will not be embarrassed by explaining exactly where he wants to go, what bus he wants to get on, etc.
- Go the whole way. If you are letting a blind man out of your car or have given him other assistance, be sure before leaving him that he knows exactly where he is and that he has his bearings so that he can start off on his own again with confidence and safety.
- If you are driving a car, take a little extra time and give that sightless person with a white cane the right-of-way.

Courtesy and Assistance:

The use of the White Cane is a practical method of assisting the blind to greater independence through the intelligent co-operation of the sighted public. If you wish to be courteous to those who are blind, assist them whenever possible. The following are a few suggestions:

DO allow a blind person to follow you when guiding him off or on a bus.

DO assist the blind person to locate entrances to homes, stores, etc.

DO remember that the steady tapping of a White Cane signifies that a blind person wishes your assistance.

DO ask a blind person where he wishes to go and be sure he has his bearings before you leave him.

DO remind the cyclist that his approach is silent and to allow the blind person to pass in front of him.

DO remember never to push or forcibly steer a blind person.

DON'T race your car motor while waiting for a traffic light when a blind person is crossing in front of you; as this may confuse him.

DON'T leave obstacles such as bicycles or children's toys on the sidewalk. They cannot be seen by a blind pedestrian and may cause serious accidents.

DON'T leave your car door open while parked. It may cause a serious accident to a pedestrian, and especially to the blind pedestrian.

DON'T back out of a driveway until you make sure the sidewalk is clear of pedestrians.

DON'T GRASP A BLIND PERSON BY THE ARM BUT ALWAYS ALLOW HIM TO TOUCH OR HOLD YOUR ARM FOR GUIDANCE.

Income Tax Bill Goes To Legislature

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Duplessis' Union Nationale government Tuesday put before the legislature text of a provincial income-tax measure.

The measure, setting basic exemptions of $3,000 for married persons and $1,500 for single persons, will affect 300,000 of the 611,000 persons in Quebec province who now pay income tax to the federal government.

The provincial rate is fixed at 15 per cent of the federal rate.

Taxpayers can claim a $400 exemption for each child under 21 not in receipt of family allowances and $150 for each child receiving the allowances.

Exemptions of $400 are also allowed for children over 21 attending university.

Most of the clauses deal with the manner of computing revenues of persons engaged in business.

Corporations doing business in the province are not affected by the measure.

All exemptions already in effect under the federal income tax act apply in the provincial code.

Announced three weeks ago as a measure to meet increasing costs of education and public health, the bill is read as another move in Quebec's struggle with the federal government over taxation rights.

In the preamble to the act the Quebec government states the Canadian constitution "concedes to the provinces priority in the field of direct taxation."

Premier Duplessis has consistently refused to negotiate a federal-taxation agreement similar to that signed by the other provinces. Quebec taxpayers will be able under federal law to deduct five per cent of the amount payable in income tax to Ottawa and apply it towards the provincial tax.

The tax, retroactive to Jan. 1, 1954, is for three years.

Observers indicate choice of the three-year period leaves the way clear for negotiation of a tax agreement with Ottawa in 1957, the year when current federal - provincial agreements expire.

The provincial tax provides for setting aside $12,500,000 from the consolidated fund for education, public health and social services.

The government is reported to be planning grants to Quebec universities out of the monies to make up for funds lost through the provincial administration's ban on acceptance of federal education grants.

Pope Improved Vatican Reports

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Vatican again today reported improvement in the condition of Pope Pius, confined to his apartment for the last 20 days with a serious stomach ailment.

The Vatican press office said the pontiff now is able to take some "semi-liquid nourishment orally" and also was able to walk about his apartment Tuesday.

Previously the Pope had difficulty retaining even liquids and had been able to sit up only for a short while daily.

THREE WEEKS IN BED

The 77-year-old head of the Roman Catholic Church has spent most of the last three weeks in bed, gravely weakened by a stubborn gastric ailment that was accompanied for much of that time by persistent hiccuping. But during the last three days he has been reported showing definite improvement.

He is still too weak, however, to resume saying his daily mass at his private chapel in his Vatican apartment. Again today he listened as mass was celebrated at his bedside upon a portable altar by the Rev. William Hentrich, a German priest who is one of his private secretaries.

Question Simmons For U.S. Police

SYRACUSE, N. Y. (AP)—Syracuse police said Tuesday night they have asked Ontario provincial police to question Jerry Simmons, held in Simcoe, Ont., on a charge of murder, in connection with two killings in Syracuse in 1948.

Simmons, of Syracuse, is charged with Joe Lotharp of Detroit in the slayings of Bruce Beatty, 68, near Simcoe a week ago.

Deputy chief Harold Kelly said Ontario provincial police have been requested to question Simmons about the ax slaying of Jacob Goldstein, a tailor, April 14, 1948, and the killing of Josh King March 13, 1948. Both slayings occurred in the Syracuse neighborhood where Simmons lived and neither has been solved.

Ontario provincial police in Simcoe and London said they knew nothing of the request.

Ferguson Emerging Top Distance Runner

NEW YORK (CP) — Canada's Rich Ferguson, improving in the steady competition of the current indoor track season, is emerging as one of the top distance runners on the circuit.

The 21-year-old Toronto student, who holds an athletic scholarship at Iowa University, made his best showing of the season in the Millrose Games at New York Saturday when he finished second to the redoubtable Horace Ashenfelter in the two-mile event.

Ferguson, holder of the Canadian records at one, two and three miles and a member of Canada's last two Olympic teams, was 100 yards behind the winner. But his finishing kick carried him past Charles Capozzoli and Curtis Stone, the two men expected to give Ashenfelter the most trouble.

Ask Court Rehear Argument

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States court of appeals was asked Tuesday to rehear arguments that the federal power commission erred in licensing New York state to join with Ontario in the St. Lawrence river power project.

The Central Coal Producers Association has asked a rehearing with consideration by the full court.

The court recently unanimously rejected the petition of the association and two other objectors to the proposed $600,000,000 project. In the original action three justices ruled for the power commission.

If the court refuses the latest petition, the association and the Lake Ontario Shore Owners and Land Protective Association and Public Power and Water Corp., Trenton, N. J., may appeal to the U. S. Supreme Court.

Aussie Employment

CANBERRA (CP)—Harold Holt, Australian labor minister, reported the number being paid unemployment benefits dropped from 42,000 to 13,000 at the end of last year. At the same time 37,000 job vacancies were listed. Development projects suggest a bigger demand for labor this year, he said.

Ministers To Talk On Leadership

Members of Stewart Hall Farm Forum, aided, abetted and generally instigated by Rev. I. G. Pollock of Grace United Church, have an interesting assignment in the leadership program at Knox Church community hall, Thursday.

Their presentation will be entitled: "How NOT to conduct a public meeting".

One of their resolution reads this way: "that all fires in the rural area of Peterborough must be notified to the Peterborough fire department at least one week before they take place".

The Stewart Hall people are capitalizing in exaggeration and ridicule. and for effect, a wide range of errors and fumblings and other indications of lack of knowledge and experience in conducting public meetings. Mr. Pollock and his group are billed for 11.30 a.m., before lunch which is to be served by women of Knox Church.

In the afternoon a Women's Institute from the Lakefield district will put on a counterpart skit im the proprieties of a meeting. The Rev. A. E. Larke of Springville will speak later on parliamentary procedure.

This is just one aspect of leadership to be sketched in the day's program. Ken Best, assistant agriculture representative, will be chairman. At the outset he had thought of holding the sessions in the Department office, but rural response began rolling up in promised volume until he had to look around for more room. He enlisted the help of Rev. Harry Douglas of Knox Church, and it it likely the attendance will be around 100.

The leadership training is just one of the many interests of the Ontario Department of Agriculture through its extension office here.

Winter Visitors

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—A large quantity of small fish coming down the Niagara river in recent months is believed the reason why many birds are still patrolling the river here. Some blue herons were noted along with kingfishers, canvasback ducks and gulls.

HARDY SPARROW

TABER, Alta. (CP) — Mrs. James Dumas heard a rustle inside her kitchen stove, and when she opened the door out flew a sparrow. The bird apparently had got into the chimney during subzero weather and made its way down into the range.

Doesn't Anticipate Renewed Fighting

TOKYO (AP) — Gen. John E. Hull, commander of the United Nations Far East forces, said today just before leaving for Washington that he does not anticipate renewed fighting in Korea.

Hull and John M. Allison, United States ambassador to Japan, left in Hull's private plane for top-level conferences at the U. S. defence and state departments.

West German Accident Rate Rises To Fantastic Level

BONN (OFNS)—Last year 12,000 people, the equivalent of one of Germany's future European Army divisions, were killed on the roads of Western Germany, and some 310,000 injured. This was nearly three times the figure for 1949, when German traffic began to fill the roads again for the first time since the end of the war. German cities, such as Cologne and Munich, have been placed among the European "top ten" for accidents.

The accident rate has risen in the past year to the fantastically high figure of 138 for every 1,000 vehicles, which puts West Germany's road casualty rate well above those of both Britain and the United States.

West German leaders are viewing this development with considerable alarm. A special cabinet meeting was recently called to discuss countermeasures, and the deliberations were carried forward by a conference of all the ministers of the interior, justice and transport of the various federal states together with road security experts in the Federal ministary of transport in Bonn.

BLAME GROWTH

Certain obvious reasons for this sharp upward trend in road casualties stand out; one is the enormous growth of traffic on the roads. In 1949 there were only 1,413,839 cars registered in Western Germany; this has now grown to three and a half million, in itself more than one and a half million over the pre-war total of 1938—plus an additional 2,000,000 motorcycles. As a result of the partition of Germany, German businessmen and officials spend much of their time travelling between cities, so that the average mileage per car per year is now two-and-a-half times as great as in pre-war days.

Meanwhile conditions on the roads have not kept pace. The acceleration of Hitler's war plans left no time to complete even half of the ambitious autobahn network, with the result that less than two per cent of the German roads are two-lane autobahns, and the remainder mostly indifferent narrow and winding roads, slippery and in bad disrepair. With the present cost of 2,000,000 deutschmark for one kilometer of autobahn (£300,000 per mile), the Federal Ministry of Transport estimates it will take over ten years on their current road-building budget to fulfil "minimal requirements". So far the budget has been expended largely on repairs of the vast wartime destruction and running maintenance, with nothing left over for new road projects.

SLOW TRANSPORTS

Another cause of accidents is the great increase of super-heavy transport, moving at slow rates along crowded roads. Under German law, which is not rigidly enforced, truck drivers may do a daily shift of up to nine hours a day, and fifty-four hours a week. Many an accident undoubtedly has been caused by a somnolent driver pulling out to pass another truck on the autobahn without observing a fast car approaching from behind. In the interests of the economic reconstruction plan, heavy transport was greatly assisted by state subsidies, and a monster created that the government is now finding difficult to control. It has already attempted this by forbidding trucks to tow more than one trailer, but proposals to ban carriage by road of certain "mass goods" such as coal, grain and cement, have met with stiff resistance from industry.

Unfortunately, — and Germans are themselves the first to admit it—a big share of the responsibility for the high accident rate lies in the expression on the roads of one of the most inherent national faults. It is revealing that the largest single category of accidents last year (in the third quarter alone it added up to 24,000 cases) was where one party had refused to give "right of way" to another. In Germany, pedestrians have no rights on the roads, and, thus backed by the law, the juristically-minded German driver sees to it that they do not remain on it for long. At "Zebra" pedestrian crossings (marked by painted stripes) which, although recently copied from Britain, still have no legal standing, it usually requires a policeman armed with an illuminated baton to stop traffic for a cripple to cross over. Pedestrians glare at the courteous driver who stops for them with amazement akin to distrust.

NOT ENCOURAGING

The results of the two-day conference between the Laender ministers were not particularly encouraging. Only "resolutions" were passed to adopt certain measures, such as raising the age limit for drivers from 16 to 18, endorsement of licences on conviction for traffic offences, and legal enforcement of the "Zebras". Speed limits, which were abolished all over Western Germany last year, are not yet to be restored.

Meanwhile, control of the roads will presumably continue to vary in the extreme between the states: from Lower Saxony, where enforcement of the law is notably lax, to North-Rhine Westphalia, where recently 11,000 motorists were fined in a space of six hours. Regrettably, the one measure more necessary than all others, the formation of a federal traffic police empowered by federal traffic laws, has been abandoned on the grounds that it would require an amendment to the constitution. Moreover, the federal ministry of transport can only "suggest" measures to the state governments without having any executive powers.

Controversial Postage Bill Passed By MPs

OTTAWA (CP) — The government's controversial bill to increase first-class postage rates by one cent an ounce April 1 has passed the Commons.

Final approval came late Tuesday after recorded votes of 127 to 77 and 125 to 75 and rejection of two amendments to the bill, one proposed by the government. The bill now goes to the Senate.

The legislation was opposed at every stage by the Progressive Conservative, CCF and Social Credit members who joined forces on both votes, first on a Progressive Conservative attempt to kill the bill and later before the bill received third reading.

An opposition amendment to delay third reading until the post office could implement recommendations in the J. D. Woods and Gordon report on post office administration was ruled out of order by Speaker Rene Beaudoin on grounds that it was not relevant to the bill.

W. A. Robinson, deputy-speaker, ruled out the government amendment. It would have allowed periodical newspaper and magazine publishers to post their publications in postal areas other than the one in which the publication office is located.

Mr. Robinson said the amendment was not relevant and did not come within the scope of the bill's principle to increase postal rates. Immigration Minister Harris, government house leader, accepted the decision.

INCREASED RATES

The legislation would increase first-class postage rates on mail going outside a postal district to five cents from four for the first ounce. The rate within postal areas will rise to four from three cents.

Postmaster - General Cote announced during the debate on the measure that the rate on post cards will be increased to four cents from three. It will be established under a clause in the Post Office Act giving the postmaster-general authority to set rates not included in the legislation.

Mr. Cote also said that the rate on first-class mail to Commonwealth countries, the western hemisphere and France will be increased to five cents from four for the first ounce. No increase was planned on the rate for unsealed letters, including Christmas cards. This rate will continue at two cents for the first two ounces and one cent for each additional ounce.

The increase in first-class rates is expected to boost post office revenues by about $14,000,000 a year and the new post card rate will net about $83,000. The revenue will be used to offset higher operating costs and implementation of the five-day 40-hour week.

3 Ottawa Committees Studying Fuel Problems

By JOHN LeBLANC
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Three top-flight government committees are studying Canada's immediate and potential fuel problems.

The studies are being made by the cabinet's defence committee, headed by Prime Minister St. Laurent before he left on his world tour, and by inter-departmental groups of officials of near-cabinet calibre.

The most pressing question is that of a change in the basis of the government's long-standing program of coal subventions, treasury contributions of about $6,000,000 a year to help meet the cost of moving coal to market. This is being handled by a committee from five departments.

The cabinet's defence committee of ministers is looking into the prospects of Canada's fuel setup in the event of war, and it is understood to have received a report from the Dominion coal board expressing concern over Canada's growing dependency on fuel transported here by sea.

LONG-RANGE SURVEY

The third group is making an unofficial and long-range survey of the outlook for all types of fuel in this country. It is trying to forecast the estimated demand for power, and how it will be filled by coal, gas, oil, hydro electricity and atomic power.

One of the matters causing most anxiety, both in reports before the defence committee and in the subvention planning, is that of keeping the coal industry stable in the face of such developments as Canada's increasing oil production and the prospect of Alberta natural gas reaching central Ontario in the next couple of years.

The coal board is proposing a new subvention arrangement with these in mind, its nature undisclosed, and its recommendations are to be laid before the cabinet shortly.

On the defence side, officials say a major recommendation of the coal board is for measures to keep Canada's coal industry healthy and decrease the vulnerability of the country's fuel position in the event a war menaced seaborne supplies from abroad.

MP Pay Increase Bill Safely Through Parliament

OTTAWA (CP) — Government legislation providing a pay increase to members of Parliament is safely through the Commons, but on its way it split both the Progressive Conservative and CCF parties.

A majority of each party voted in the Commons Tuesday against giving third and final reading to a bill doubling the $4,000 yearly indemnity of members of the Commons and Senate.

Four members of each party, however, backed the measure as the House approved it 153 to 46. The bill also was supported by Liberal and Social Credit members.

The pay increase, retroactive to last Nov. 12, the start of the session, now will be studied by the Senate. It is in addition to a $2,000 annual expense allowance, bringing MPs' total yearly pay to $10,000.

CHANGE VIEWS

The vote showed changes within both the Progressive Conservative and CCF parties from their positions last week when the legislation was given second reading—approval in principle. At that time it was opposed by all PC members and by 15 CCF members, while seven CCF members approved the principle of the pay increase.

Four Progressive Conservatives voted their approval: Rodney Adamson (York West), J. H. Ferguson (Simcoe North), Carl Nickle (Calgary South) and R. H. McGregor (York East). Twenty-eight of the 49-member party voted against.

However, only four of the seven CCF members who supported the measure last week voted for third reading. They were Joseph W. Noseworthy (York South), Clarie Gillis (Cape Breton South), Thomas Barnett (Comox-Alberni) and Harold E. Winch (Vancouver East). The three others, including party leader M. J. Coldwell, were among the 18 CCF members voting against third reading.

Describe Mishap Killing Woman

KITCHENER (CP)—The mishap that caused the death of a Guelph woman was described here Tuesday at the manslaughter trial of Joseph M. Finnigan, of R.R. 7, Guelph.

Finnigan was charged as the result of the death Oct. 11 of Mrs. Lena Irene Leader, who was killed in an automobile crash on No. 24 highway.

Rupert A. Wilson of Guelph, driver of the car in which Mrs. Leader was riding, described how his car was struck from behind by another auto.

He told the court he was driving towards Guelph and going down a grade when his auto was hit from the rear. Wilson said he had been travelling 30 to 40 miles an hour.

He testified he was not aware of the car behind and heard nothing before the impact.

Toronto Assessments Total $2,437,271,967 For 1954

TORONTO (CP)—Taxpayers in Metropolitan Toronto will pay 1954 taxes on assessments totalling $2,437,271,967.

The figures, the first since the 13 municipalities came under the metropolitan council this year, were released by Municipal Affairs Minister Dunbar. They are an increase of about $1,600,000,000 over the old assessments.

It is the first time a uniform basis for taxation has been set up for all 13 municipalities to ensure the city and suburbs share equally the cost of the metropolitan administration. Toronto's share is $1,508,721,109, or 61.9 per cent of the total.

All municipalities have increased assessments. However, not all the boosts are due to the equalized assessment, officials said. Some were created while the assessment was being drawn up.

The old assessment in the suburbs was based anywhere from 20 to 50 per cent of the 1940 real estate values. In Toronto, the assessment was made on the basis of about 100 per cent of 1940 real estate values.

Breeders Discuss Jersey Conference

TORONTO (CP)—Members of the Canadian Jersey Cattle Club met here Tuesday for the club's annual meeting.

The greater part of their discussion was about the world jersey conference which will be held in Guelph July 16-24.

The Guelph conference will be attended by delegates from South Africa, New Zealand, Britain, Jersey Islands, South America, United States, France, Denmark and Ireland.

The club said that besides aiming to improve the breed, it will also strive to establish a bureau of records and to undertake world publicity of the breed.

Summer Vacation Costly For Schools

BELLEVILLE (CP) — A. C. Campbell, finance chairman for the Bay of Quinte high school area board, said Tuesday summer vacation and the five-day week are responsible for the high cost of education.

In a report to Belleville city council, Mr. Campbell said that high school buildings are used for high school purposes only 1,000 hours a year.

He suggested that schools be used for 2,000 hours a year. He said it would reduce the cost of education by making fewer schools necessary.

Adjudicators Named

CHATHAM (CP)—John G. Stephen, chairman of the Kiwanis music festival here, announced these four adjudicators for the festival which starts March 1: Guy Johnson and Jan van der Gucht, both of England, Dr. Roy Fenwick, Toronto, and Cyril Hampshire, Hamilton. Mr. Stephen said 910 entries were received for Chatham's ninth annual festival.

Switch Union

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — Employees at Conroy Manufacturing Company here have voted to switch their bargaining agent from the United Steelworkers of America (CIO-CCL) to the National Council of Canadian Labor (Ind.). The steelworkers union represented the 154 employees for two years.

Not Interested In Horse Farming

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Plowmen's Association has been told horse-drawn farm implements are being bought at auction cheaply by New Canadians because "people simply are no longer interested in horse farming."

L. G. Heimpel of Whitby told the association's annual convention Monday that "farm folks today are not interested in any other farm power than that of the tractor, car and truck.

"At today's prices for horse-drawn equipment, a whole line of tillage and harvesting implements to start farming could be bought for not much more than $200."

Urge Reserve Army Pay Exempt From Income Tax

OTTAWA (CP)—The army has before it a recommendation that reserve army pay be exempt from income tax, it was learned.

The recommendation is contained in a report prepared by three officers of the conference of defence associations, which represents all reserve army units in Canada. The report, made on the recommendation of Lt.-Gen. Guy Simonds, chief of the general staff, was submitted to Defence Minister Claxton and Gen. Simonds last month.

However, an army officer pointed out that the national defence department does not set taxation policy.

During the last few years, army reservists have made representations to the revenue department to have their reserve pay exempted from income tax. Taxation officials said, however, there have been no recent protests.

The only regular army troops at present exempt from income tax are those serving in Korea.

Privately, some regular army officers said tax exemption on reserve pay would be a benefit to the reserve. Reserve force pay adds to a reservist's annual income and can boost him into a higher income tax bracket. This created hardship in some cases for men who were voluntarily giving up two nights a week to reserve training.

One indication of January's cold weather was Parks Superintendent Armar Butcher's report that the city's 12 outdoor skating rinks were operated on all but three days last month. All of them were filled to capacity at one time or another.

DEDICATED CROSS

Rt. Rev. Frederick H. Wilkinson, coadjutor bishop of Toronto, on Sunday evening during evensong at the St. Luke's Anglican church dedicated a gold processional cross in memory of the late Dr. G. C. Leach, MD, BA, presented by his wife, Mrs. Alice Leach, 137 Stanley Ave.

MEMORIAL CENTRE

Another formal step towards construction of the city's long-awaited Memorial Centre was taken Tuesday afternoon when city council, in special session, passed a bylaw authorizing a petition to the provincial legislature requesting a special act to enable the city to obtain part of Exhibition Park for the construction of the centre.

1898 CALENDAR

A calendar for the year 1898 was found in the home of the Hounsell estate bought recently by Arthur Gilders of the Chemong road. Mr. Gilders, who had never seen a calender that old before, was taken with the painting of wild roses and buttercups that had faded little through the years. A verse and all the months were printed on the one side of the calendar.

BOOST CAR ALLOWANCE

Board of education employees who now get a car allowance of eight cents a mile are likely to have it boosted to 10 cents. Dr. Donald Whyte, chairman of the board's finance committee, pointed out Tuesday night that other city employees get 10 cents a mile. The committee voted to recommend the two-cent increase at the board meeting Thursday night.

EARLY SPRING?

By all indications is looks as though the groundhog was fooled this year, but he's not alone in his shame. A McGill St. resident spotted a flock of ducks winging northward last week in their particular 'V'-shaped pattern. Unlike the groundhog however, these birds can't hole up and sleep off the embarrassment of miscalculation. They're probably pretty hungry too.

C OF C CHAIRMEN

Quarterly dinners for all members of the Chamber of Commerce will be held this year, it was announced at the board of directors' meeting Tuesday night. The first dinner will be sometime in March. Committee chairmen were appointed Tuesday at the first meeting presided over by the chamber's new president, S. J. Whitehouse. The chairmen: Finance, T. E. McKay; membership, D. J. Fitzgerald; activities, Howard W. Powell.

LESS THAN A YEAR after he was hired as Campbellford's chief of police, Charles H. Lockwood was fired Tuesday night by the town council. No reason was given.

Campbellford Fires Chief Of Police

CAMPELLFORD (ENS) — Charles H. Lockwood was fired as police chief of Campbellford at a closed meeting of the town council Tuesday night.

No reason was given for Mr. Lockwood's dismisal but the view was expressed that council was satisfied with his work but not with Mr. Lockwood personally.

The secret session of council was called to consider a request from Mr. Lockwood for an additional constable to augment the two-man force and for pay increases for Mr. Lockwood and his deputy.

On the motion of councillor George Vice, seconded by Franklin Linton the request for more staff and more money was turned down. It was then decided to ask for Mr. Lockwood's resignation effective immediately.

The former constable, Sam Baird will be acting police chief in Campbellford until a new chief is advertised for. Mr. Lockwood will leave with a month's salary. His annual pay was approximately $2,700.

Mr. Lockwood told the Examiner that he attended only a part of the secret meeting Tuesday. He said that he told council that if his request for a third man on the force and for undetermined pay increases were not met, he might resign his position. Apparently the council beat him to it.

FORMER CHIEF DIES

There are more secure positions than that of police chief in Campbellford. A little over a year ago George H. Hardy who had been chief for 25 years, died. Since then the police situation in Campbellford has been somewhat confused.

Mr. Hardy was succeeded by W. E. Cargin. He was dismissed early last summer because of irregularities in his administration. Mr. Cargin's deputy, Darrel Duncalfe had already resigned after demanding more money from council.

Sam Baird, now acting chief, replaced Duncalfe and then, when Cargin was fired, moved up until Mr. Lockwood was brought in from Belleville. Now Mr. Lockwood is out and Mr. Baird is once again acting chief.

Campbellford's 3,000 citizens are now protected by Mr. Baird and by a two-man Ontario Provincial Police detachment.

Visiting Arctic Owl Shot By Four Youths

An arctic owl reported in the area for the past few weeks met violent death Tuesday when "three or four" young men shot it. Its demise was reported to police by Mrs. J. H. Baldwin of Sunset Blvd.

The youths were warned they couldn't trespass to get at the bird. They scared it away from private property, however, into a field north of Sunset Blvd., then shot it.

Police say the assassins are tentatively identified.

Proprietor To Face Arson Trial

Court Admits Statement Made To Inspector

Gratton Harris, 50, of 239 Princess St., will stand trial in June before Judge John De N. Kennedy on a charge of arson. The proprietor of Lakefield's Coronation Inn is facing the charge as a result of a fire there November 29. He appeared before Magistrate W. R. Philp Monday for preliminary hearing on the count and was committed for trial on $5,000 bail.

Submitted as exhibit one by Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw, QC, was a statement by the accused given to Inspector Ray Simmons of the Ontario Fire Marshal's office. A major part of the hearing was taken up proving the statement was taken without threat, promise or inducement.

Most of the evidence given by Chief Price Morris of Lakefield and Inspector Simmons dealt with the statement. They both described how it was given to the inspector some 24 hours after the fire.

Fire Chief Allan Clark described how the fire was discovered and quickly extinguished. Damage was estimated at from $50 to $75.

After completing investigations, Inspector Simmons said he determined the fire had been caused when matches were placed on the smoke pipe of the downstairs cycle heater.

When the heater switched on automatically the pipe grew hot, ignited the matches which in turn ignited paper. It then caused matches pinned between basement beams to light and the ensuing damage resulted.

Magistrate Philp declined to reveal contents of the Harris statement to the open court.

The accused will stand trial at the next General Sessions of the Peace, in June.

Suggest Fund For Replacing Parks Equipment

The parks committee have asked city council to set up a depreciation fund for the replacement of worn-out equipment.

The committee's proposal is that five per cent of the total value of parks department equipment be written off each year as depreciation. Value of the department's equipment at present is $29,318. This includes vehicles, machinery, tools, park benches and playground equipment.

Meeting Tuesday afternoon, the committee also recommended that the city advertise for tenders on a half-ton pick-up truck and purchase a new grass power mower and hay mower. They also approved Superintendent Armar Butcher's request for permission to build a low swing trailer to transport the mowers from park to park.

Mr. Butcher said the new grass mower, costing $1,430, would save approximately $1,300 in wages each season. With one man operating it would cut a 76-inch swath, whereas it requires two men to operate the present machines, cutting swaths of 28 and 30 inches.

The department's present hay mower is beyond repair. A teamster had to be engaged last year to finish the hay cutting at a cost of approximately $325. The new mower, at a replacement value of about $495 would permit cutting of all the hay and weeds on Civic Hospital grounds, in Ashburnham Park and in Nicholls Oval.

It could also be used to cut grass and weeds on the rougher portions of other parks and playgrounds, eliminating hiring outside help. The department's gang mower would cost $400 for temporary repairs and require an extra man to operate it.

The new pick-up truck will replace the department's present two-ton dump truck, which would be turned in on the lighter model. The other two-ton truck will be used for heavier work. It was pointed out that the dump truck was being used for jobs needing only a light truck, such as moving rink-cleaning equipment and hose.

The superintendent will also make a survey of his car mileage between February 15 and June 30 in order to determine what annual mileage allowance should be paid him.

MORE THAN FACE LIFTING is being done to the century-old Hamilton store which is being renovated to accommodate a new Imperial Bank of Canada branch expected to open early this summer. The top storey will be entirely removed and the second storey ceiling reinforced as a roof. The first floor ceiling will be elevated another six feet to give the ground floor a 20-foot elevation. The face of the new building will be almost entirely of glass, surrounded by a border of marble 18 inches wide on each side and extending from the 20-foot level to the roof.

Few Signs Left Of Old Store, Building Bank

Three twisted chandeliers and a strip of plaster moulding are the only remaining adornments on the 110-year-old Hamilton store building. The rest is a hulk of broken brick and bared beams. Snow is gently falling through a gap where the rear wall stood a month ago.

On the second floor five men are picking and pounding at the stubborn brick and steel which was once the face of the old-time grocery store. The scent of Oriental spices is gone, and stairs that once led to the storage bins now lead nowhere. The front windows, still intact, shield a huge and barren room.

Above the second floor an immense hangar-like tunnel is awaiting destruction, the floor of which will form the roof to the new Imperial Bank of Canada building expected to open next July.

Contractor Arnold Steel began renovation of the building a week before Christmas, but heavy frost and original sturdy construction have made the task a difficult one. According to the architect's plans, the east and west walls will remain but the front and back walls, including footings, must be replaced.

"The back wall was comparatively easy to knock down," said Mr. Steele, "that is until we reached the footings. There was four feet of frozen ground to break up with compression hammers and remove by hand—and then a space had to be cleared for the three concrete vaults to be installed at the rear of the building."

BRICK BY BRICK

The front wall will take much longer to pull down as it faces on the street and will have to be removed "almost brick by brick," as one of the men on the job said today.

The new building will level off approximately where the second floor ceiling is now, but the first floor ceiling will be raised another six feet giving the ground floor an elevation of 20 feet. The face of the bank building will be of glass surrounded by an 18-inch border of marble on either side, up to the first floor ceiling. The remaining area will be of marble.

The dimensions of the completed building will be approximately 30 feet high and 125 feet long, except at the rear portion where a quarter length, storey high addition will be built above the main roof.

John Kitney Elected Head Of Exhibition Board

John Kitney was elected president of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition Board at a meeting of the board of directors in the library Tuesday night. Mr. Kitney succeeds Norman W. McConkey.

Also named to office, in elections chaired by Frank Paterson, were first vice-president Don Milburn and second vice-president Manson Cathcart. Messrs. Kitney, Milburn and Cathcart will also handle the executive, finance and property committees respectively.

The grandstand show at the exhibition, scheduled for August 16-19, will be under the supervision of Richard R. Stewart. Mr. Stewart will be in Toronto this week to make preliminary contacts for a grandstand show with delegates on hand at the conference of Ontario fairs.

"We have to make a tremendous improvement in the grandstand show this year," said Mr. Stewart, in accepting election to head the grandstand committee. "The public expects a better show than has been given in former years."

TO SIGN CONTRACT

The midway part of the exhibition will be handled by the Conklin Canadian Shows. The contract between the Peterborough Exhibition and the Conklin organization will be signed in Toronto this week, with Don McGillis acting on behalf of the board.

There was considerable discussion of the Conklin contract, which gives this group exclusive concession rights at the exhibition, except for two church-sponsored booths. They are also guaranteed 80 per cent of the net take, and the Peterborough Fair must take responsibility for distributing all Conklin advertising in a "painstaking" manner.

Recently the manager of the Conklin Shows indicated that he wanted a firm answer from Peterborough immediately if he were to include this city on his itinerary. In order to consolidate the deal as quickly as possible the board named Mr. McGillis to sign the contract in Toronto this week. General chairman of the midway and concession committee is Manson Cathcart.

The question of policing also came up for considerable discussion after Harold Milne was named chairman. It may be more difficult to get police help this year because the city has decreed that policemen working on outside jobs can claim no accident or other benefits while so employed.

The city will, however, assume a greater responsibility for keeping the exhibition grounds neat this year, said Ald. R. E. Knox. The parks committee will keep the grass cut and will conduct a general clean-up after the exhibition, while the sanitation department will clean up all outside refuse after each day of the fair.

NEED MANAGER

The Peterborough Exhibition should have a salaried manager, vice-president Milburn declared. He said that other cities of comparable size have at least a part-time manager on the payroll, and Peterborough should follow suit. It was left to the executive committee to look into this further and report back to the next meeting of the board.

There are some excellent financial reasons why the fair cannot be too impetuous about hiring a manager, president Kitney observed. Earlier treasurer Earl W. Armstrong pointed out that the Exhibition will be in the red about $2,500 if a provincial grant of $3,000 does not come through.

Members were of the opinion that the Board still has a drawing account in the neighborhood of $4,000 from the Morrow Trust, less the cost of memorial gates installed at the park by the Trust last year. Since no one was exactly sure what the status of the board is vis-a-vis the Morrow Trust, the executive committee was told to look into the matter with T. J. Carley, solicitor for the trust and report back to the board.

Since the exhibition will be in August this year instead of the usual September date, it was decided to merge the education committee with the Children's Day group. Both will be under the chairmanship of Mrs. Floyd Curtis, who has been charged with the responsibility of getting exhibition tickets to rural schools before June 1.

City Catches Up To Demand For Sewers In Building Boom

For the first time since Peterborough's post-war housing-building boom started, the demand for new sewers has come to a stop.

City Engineer A. E. Chalmers announced today that there were only a few days more work to be done on sewers now being laid and there were no petitions for more sewers. This would be a good time for groups of residents who want sewers laid to round up signatures for petitions, he suggested.

Under the Local Improvement Act, the cost of sewers (as well as paved roads, sidewalks and curbs) is shared by the city with property owners whose lands abuts the street along which the sewer is laid. Property owners share the cost on a proportionate basis, depending on the amount of frontage of their property.

MOST NOW SERVICED

The let-up in the demand for sewers was attributed by Mr. Chalmers to the simple fact that most of the built-up areas of the city have now been serviced with sewers. Of the annexed areas, the peak period of servicing is past in the older portions; but the newer ones are apparently not yet sufficiently filled with houses to warrant petitions.

Mr. Chalmers regards the present condition as temporary. He expects the work of sewer building to resume once plans have been completed for servicing the land assembly area in the north end. This project is being studied by a special council committee—a study which is nearly complete.

As for other sewer projects, the engineer said he had received a number of scattered enquiries, particularly from the north end, but no formal petitions had been forthcoming.

Possibly another reason for the let-up is the tendency for people to prepare petitions for local improvements during the warmer weather, Mr. Chalmers suggested. As far as the facilities of his department are concerned, they can lay sewers any time of year, he explained, and probably specific jobs could be undertaken more quickly than if a number of petitions came in at the same time during the summer.

To Meet Simpsons-Sears Officials

S. E. Siscoe, who will be manager of the new Simpsons-Sears department store at Monaghan Rd. and Lansdowne St., will be introduced for the first time to a group of civic officials and other citizens at a luncheon in the Empress hotel Thursday.

Mr. Siscoe will be accompanied from Toronto by Morgan Reid, assistant vice-president of Simpsons-Sears, and H. W. Grisdale, retail operating manager. Cris Deck, the organization's Peterborough agent, and Miss Helen Brooks of the local order office will also attend the luncheon.

Other guests will be Mayor Norman Graham, City Clerk E. A. Outram, Industrial Commissioner William Birnie, Sam Whitehouse, president of the Chamber of Commerce, Earl Armstrong, local manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, H. L. Garner, general manager of The Examiner, G. W. Craw, managing editor of The Examiner, and Don Lawrie, manager of CHEX.

Committee Decides Board Will Need $835,000 From City To Run Schools

1954 Levy 9.57 Per Cent Higher Than '53
Total Expenditure $1,252,090
To Be Raised By Levy, Grants and Fees

Finance committee of the board of education Tuesday night recommended a municipal levy of $835,000 to keep up the city's expanding school system in 1954. This is an increase of $72,190, or 9.57 per cent, which must come out of the ratepayers' pockets. The increase must still be approved by the board as a whole when they meet Thursday night. And, should the levy seem too high, the city council may ask them to scale down the educational budget for the board's primary and secondary schools.

A higher assessment this year, however, will bring down the mill rate. K. S. Wightman, superintendent of schools, gave these approximate figures:

Public school assessment for 1954 taxes—$52,976,775;

Public school operating rate for 1954—11.02 mills, or 3.25 mills less than last year.

Collegiate assessment for 1954 taxes—$59,180,135;

Collegiate operating rate for 1954—4.24 mills, or .97 mills less than last year.

Exact assessment and the subsequent rate will be arrived at later.

BREAK DOWN

The 1954 levy of $835,000 is broken down as follows: $584,000 for public schools, or $44,186 more than 1953; and $251,000 for collegiates, or $28,724 more than 1953.

Most of the money will go toward the upkeep of the public schools. It is estimated that $789,000 will be spent on them; receipts will be $205,000, making a levy of $584,000.

Collegiate academic: disbursements $246,000 and receipts $92,150, making a levy of $153,850.

Collegiate vocational: disbursements $217,090 and receipts $119,940, making a levy of $97,150.

This year the total disbursements are, in round figures, $1,252,090, the third year in a row that they have gone over the million-dollar mark. Receipts are $417,090. The difference between them is the amount that the ratepayers will have to meet.

BIG BUDGET ITEM

Salaries are again the big item in the budget.

In public schools alone the estimate for paying 151 full-time teachers their salaries, plus the $240 cost-of-living bonus is $572,480. (This includes Inspector Percy Windrim's salary, 60 per cent of Mr. Wightman's, 20 per cent of two other teachers who don't fit into another classification and an $8,000 allowance for 10 teachers who will be taken on the staff in September for four months when additional rooms are opened.)

Supply teachers in public schools will require $8,600; retiring allowance $3,500; public schools' share of the office staff's salaries and cost of living $12,440; and pensions $3,600.

These salaries plus benefits come to more than $600,000, almost half the budgeted expenditure.

In the secondary schools the estimate for teachers salaries and their cost-of-living bonuses is $292,200. Other items: supply teachers $1,000, retirement allowance $2,120, miscellaneous wages $3,045, secondary schools share of office staff's wages and cost-of-living bonus $19,720, and pensions $1,200.

These salaries, plus benefits, come to $319,285, about three-quarters of the secondary schools' budgeted expenditure of $463,098.

The expanding school system is credited with being the chief factor in the increased levy for educational purposes this year. During 1953 two new schools were added and more classrooms are planned this year. Salaries for new teachers and caretakers and the greater expense of heating and general upkeep all help boost the cost of education.

Altogether teachers' salaries are up about $70,000 over last year. Most of this is accounted for by the extra staff taken on last September and the extra staff that will be hired during 1954. Each of the teachers receives an annual increment of $200 a year which comes to $43,000 of the total.

Caretakers and maintenance men have also got wage increases, according to schedule.

Following are the estimated disbursements and receipts for the school system:

Public Schools
Expense	$789,000
Revenue	205,000
	$584,000
Collegiate Academic
Expenses	$246,000
Receipts	92,000
	$153,850
Collegiate Vocational
Expenses	217,090
Receipts	119,940
	$ 97,150

Here is a summary of committee estimates for public school, collegiate academic, and collegiate vocational, respectively:

Finance - $613,855, $183,875 and $148,145.
Property - $149,448, $48,479 and $34,369.
Health - $10,360, $50 and $50.
Supervision - $15,345, $13,605 and $5,720.
Advisory Vocational - $28,806 (collegiate vocational only).

Parks Board May Discontinue Running Rinks

The parks committee of city council Tuesday recommended that the recreation commission take over the responsibility of supervising outdoor skating rinks next season with a view to forming groups of residents in the neighborhood of the rinks to undertake the supervision.

At present, the parks department provides supervisors for the rinks from 4 p.m. until midnight each day and from 9 a.m. on Saturdays. If the scheme goes through, these men would be used for trimming trees, a job in which the department is now behind schedule.

Parks Superintendent Armar Butcher said the trouble with the present system was that the supervisor couldn't be both inside and outside the changing rooms all the time to curb rowdyism. If groups living in the area of the rinks took over the supervision, he thought the rowdyism might be controlled.

City Clerk E. A. Outram said the original idea of the recreation commission was to encourage neighborhood groups to take the lead in activities once they had been given a start by the commission. This had succeeded in Brantford but the reverse was happening here and everything was being handed over to the commission.

"I think this plan would be a step in the right direction," Ald. Stan McBride said.

Find Seaweed Substitute For Oats

OTTAWA (CP) — The National Research Council says poultry farmers can substitute cheap seaweed for ground oats in the rations for growing chickens and laying hens.

The council said Tuesday that the Dominion experimental farm at Nappan, N.S., has been experimenting with seaweeds as a substitute for animal feeds and soil fertilizers.

It has been shown at Nappan, said the council, that kelp meal (dehydrated ground rockweed) may be incorporated up to 10 per cent in the feed of growing chicks and laying hens.

This can serve as a substitute for ground oats or as an addition to a balanced ration if soybean meal is also added to provide enough protein.

"No adverse effect was noted on mortality, egg production, strength of shell, hatchability or body weight," the report said.

Similar experiments have been carried out at Nappan on the growth and fattening of bacon hogs. Seaweed meal may form up to six per cent of the ration from a weight of 40 pounds to maturity of the animals.

Florida Vacations Urged For Aged

DETROIT (AP)—Dr. Eugene C. Keyes of Dearborn, a candidate for the Republican nomination as governor, is advocating that Michigan give its indigent aged year-round, cost-free vacations in Florida.

Keyes, a former lieutenant-governor, said Michigan could support its elder citizens, as well as senile inmates of state hospitals, for $2 a day in Florida. Cost of their keep in Michigan institutions, he said, is more than $3 a day.

Keyes holds law, dental and medical degrees.

Considering Inquiry In Cigarette Smoking

OTTAWA (CP)—Federal Health authorities are thinking about investigating the effect of cigarette smoking on lung cancer.

Health Minister Martin made the announcement Tuesday in the Commons in reply to a question from Stanley Knowles (CCF — Winnipeg North Centre).

Mr. Knowles, drawing attention to various statements by medical men as to the relation of smoking to cancer, asked if the minister's department would consider research into the matter.

"That consideration now is under way," Mr. Martin replied.

Rich Surplus

LAHORE, Pakistan (CP)—Reporting a satisfactory rice crop with an estimated yield of 250,000 tons, the Punjab provincial government announced it will be in a position to export 100,000 tons from the new crop.

Rubber Appeal Hearing Starts

TORONTO (CP)—Hearing began Tuesday of an appeal by five rubber companies against an order of Mr. Justice R. W. Treleaven restraining them from continuing or repeating operation of a combine in the mechanical rubber industry.

The companies contend that an amendment to the 1952 Combines Investigation Act, under which the prohibition order was made, has no legal effect.

The five companies appealing the Sept. 24, 1953, ruling are Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company of Canada, Ltd., B. F. Goodrich Rubber Co. of Canada Ltd., Dominion Rubber Co. Ltd., Dunlop Tire and Rubber Goods of Canada Ltd., and Gutta Percha and Rubber Ltd.

The companies pleaded guilty April 8, 1953, to operating a combine in the mechanical rubber industry—which includes manufacture of hoses and rubber belting—and were fined $10,000 each.

Gov't Spending Threatens Every Job, Drew Charges

OTTAWA (CP) — Government spending threatens the job of every Canadian, George Drew said Tuesday night.

The federal opposition leader attacked the government's peacetime record expenditure program for 1954-55 in an address prepared for delivery in the political free time series of the CBC.

He said Finance Minister Abbott's main estimates of $4,491,751,000, tabled in the Commons last Friday, are a reminder that the government has "made no serious effort to carry out its promise to reduce the tax burden."

RELATIVELY SMALL

"They say they are cutting direct defence expenditures, but the proportionate reduction is relatively small compared with that in Britain and the United States, notwithstanding all their responsibilities," Mr. Drew said.

"These estimates are, in effect, a recipe for constantly increasing government expenditure and for a permanent structure of high taxes with no hope of relief.

"They guarantee high costs of production in every line at a time when we are told we must reduce costs if we are going to sell. They threaten the jobs and security of every Canadian."

Quite Prepared For Seaway

OTTAWA (CP)—Transport Minister Chevrier said Tuesday the lack of a big item in the government's 1954-55 estimates for the St. Lawrence seaway does not mean Canada is not ready to go ahead with the project.

In the Commons, he reminded Joseph Noseworthy (CCF — York South) that in 1951 Parliament authorized an expenditure of up to $300,000,000 for Canada's share of the navigation facilities in connection with the seaway.

Mr. Noseworthy had pointed to a newspaper report underlining the fact that the 1954-55 appropriations proposed by the government last week include for the seaway only $820,000 for design and planning.

For the construction job, Mr. Chevrier said, an item in the estimates is not needed.

(The 1951 legislation provided for establishment of a St. Lawrence seaway authority with power to borrow up to $300,000,000 for building the works. This would be done through issuance of bonds.)

Find Canada Jay Very Canny Bird

TORONTO (CP) — The Canada jay is a canny bird, lands and forests officials say. They cited this proof:

At Mobert, 150 miles northwest of Sault Ste. Marie, forest rangers last week saw two Canada jays resting on the edge of a garbage can and leaning against each other. Closer investigation disclosed the birds each had only one leg.

Both birds, handicapped as they were, put on a wonderful show of co-operation, hopping around and leaning against each other when they started to feed. Officials set out plenty of food in hope the birds will become regular visitors.

Daylight Saving Time To Be Shortened

CHATHAM (CP) — Chatham will shorten the period during which daylight saving time will be in effect this year.

Fast time will start April 25 and will end Sept. 5. Should the experiment prove unpopular, residents will be asked to vote in December on whether they want fast time from late April to late September, or just for the summer months of June, July and August.

The shortened daylight saving period is a compromise with some farmers who object to daylight time.

Headache Tablets Bad For Babies

TORONTO (CP)—Doctors at the Hospital for Sick Children say there has been a "frightening" increase in the number of cases of babies being given headache tablets.

Five such cases have been reported here since last Christmas. One unidentified child was in critical condition at the hospital Tuesday night.

One doctor said: "What must be recognized by mothers, as well as many physicians, is that the salicyclic tablets, which are of great value for other purposes, can be dangerous and a fatal factor in treatment of infants."

Innoculate 223 Pupils Against Scarlet Fever

BELLEVILLE (CP)—Dr. S. R. Beatty of Madoc Tuesday inoculated 223 pupils in Ormsby, St. Ola, Greenbush and Gilmour public schools as a precaution against scarlet fever which has affected the wife and five children of Cecil Dafoe of Steenburg.

Dr. Beatty ordered Steenburg school closed for one week but said the outbreak was not severe and the Dafoes are over the worst part of infection.

Boy Frozen In Water Hole

ANGUS (CP)—A five-year-old boy was found dead Tuesday night, frozen to his armpits in a water-filled hole a few hours after he wandered away from home.

Police and searchers found the body of Glenn Sharp in the ice-covered hole behind a garage. He was the only son of L. Cpl. Fred Sharp and was last seen by his mother at noon as he played near his house. The boy was found about 800 yards from the house.

Police believe the child was playing with dogs, fell into the hole and was unable to get out. His head and shoulders were showing above the ice.

Hundreds of citizens from Angus and Barrie helped search farmlands during a heavy snowstorm shortly after dusk. The temperature was 20 above zero.

Acquitted Of Fraud

TORONTO (CP)—Sigmund Jan Norton, 51-year-old Polish-born mechanical engineer, was acquitted by a jury Tuesday of fraud charges in connection with an alleged $28,000 crown land swindle.

Norton had been charged with former department of highways land evaluator James L. Cuttell of defrauding the Ontario government of $28,000 in the purchase of an estate in suburban Etobicoke.

Cuttell now is serving a three year penitentiary term for his part in land swindles.

Research Shows 70% Canadians Drink Alcoholic Beverages

By WALTER GRAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—Seventy per cent of Canada's adult population drinks liquor, beer or wine, the Alcoholism Research Foundation of Ontario reported today.

In a survey on the drinking habits of Canadians first of its kind undertaken in Canada, the foundation found that:

Public taste has switched from spirits to beer;

British Columbia's rate of alcoholism is the highest of any province;

Ontario leads in the per capita consumption of absolute alcohol;

Beer consumption is greatest in Quebec;

Nova Scotians drink the most hard liquor per capita;

Canada ranks sixth among the countries of the world in rate of alcoholism;

A greater percentage of Canadians than Americans drink;

The average consumption of absolute alcohol in 1952 was 1.48 gallons per person.

The survey covers the period from 1871 to 1952 and studies each province and Canada's relationship to the rest of the world.

CONSUMPTION INCREASE

Foundation officials said the survey will supply the basis when considering the problem of alcoholism in Canada.

The survey says consumption of spirits has been on the increase since 1921 when the average was .54 gallons of absolute alcohol per person. The rate of alcoholism in that year was 732 per 100,000 population and the rate of convictions for drunkeness 460 per 100,000.

In the five-year period 1946-50 consumption rose to 1.37 gallons per person and the rate of alcoholism to 1,810 per 100,000. The rate of convictions for drunkeness was 772.

Consumption levelled off in 1951 and 1952 with an average of 1.48 gallons for both years. In 1951 the rate of alcoholism was 1,581 per 100,000 and the rate of convictions for drunkeness 861. In 1952 the alcoholism rate reached 1,629. The figure for convictions was not available.

Canada's position as sixth among world countries in alcoholism is based on 1948 figures when there was an average of 1.804 per 100,000. The United States led with 3.952, followed by France with 2.850, Sweden 2.580, Switzerland 2.385 and Denmark 1.950.

WESTERNERS DRINK MORE

The 1952 figures indicated a greater proportion of drinkers in western Canada than in the east. British Columbia, with 81 per cent of its adult population listed as drinkers, topped the list. The percentage was 72 in the prairie provinces, 71 in Quebec, 69 in Ontario and 59 in the maritimes.

B. C. led in the number of alcoholics with 2,532 per 100,000 population. Figures for other provinces: Quebec 1,813, Ontario 1,687, Nova Scotia 1,286, New Brunswick 1,278, Manitoba 1,173, Saskatchewan 1,167, Alberta 980, Prince Edward Island 675 and Newfoundland 501.

In Quebec, 71 per cent of the alcohol drunk is beer, the highest ratio in the country. In Nova Scotia beer accounts for 50 per cent of alcoholic consumption but the consumption rates for spirits and wine are the highest in the Dominion—39 and 11 per cent, respectively.

Ontario's per capita consumption of absolute alcohol in 1952 was 1.62, the country's highest. The Canadian average was 1.48.

ALCOHOLISM RISKS

The survey shows varying figures in the estimated rate of alcoholism through the years.

In 1901, there were 2,084 male and 425 female alcoholics per 100,000 population. In 1951 they reached 2,627 male nd 525 female.

The survey says 76 per cent of the male population and 64 per cent of the female drink. The greatest incidence of drinking occurs in the 21-29 year age group —75 per cent. Seventy-one per cent of the Roman Catholic population drinks compared to 70 per cent of Protestants.

Among persons with high school or better education 73 per cent drink. The rate is 65 per cent for those with less than high school education.

More prosperous people than poor people drink; the percentage is 76 among the former and 66 among the latter.

Abstinence is greater in the farm community than in the city.

Tries To Prove Deal Cancelled Very Secretly

NEW YORK (AP)—Ex-bootlegger James Rutkin, suing a former partner for $22,500,000 over a deal to buy a Canadian distillery, sought to show in federal court Tuesday that his partner called off the deal secretly—even keeping the secret from the distillery owner.

The suit is against Joseph H. Reinfeld, whom Rutkin accuses of conspiring with Samuel and Allan Bronfman of Montreal, principals in Seagrams, Ltd., to permit Seagrams to buy the distillery and deprive Rutkin of his share of the deal.

A witness for Rutkin, Marco Leon, a former partner in the L. L. and B. distillery in Chatham, testified that he was not told when Reinfeld's lawyer sent mortgage solicitors a telegram saying Reinfeld was "no longer interested" in buying the distillery.

He said it was a month before he learned of that telegram, and in the meantime he had received a telegram from Reinfeld's lawyer telling him to "keep away" from the solicitors.

IDENTIFIES LAWYER

Under cross-examination Leon named a Toronto lawyer, Jimmy Clarke, as the man he gave $5,000 "to get to someone in the excise department of the Canadian government."

At the time, Leon testified, he was trying to get a Canadian licence for Reinfeld's group to operate the distillery.

Leon said he did not identify Clarke at the previous trial of Rutkin's suit, which ended in a mistrial, because he had been trying to preserve the lawyer-client relationship.

ANXIOUS FACES crowd around as a young man who collapsed on George St. at 3 p.m. Tuesday is rushed off to hospital. On the stretcher is Roy Turner, 23, of RR 3, Peterborough. Mr. Turner suffered a weak spell just in front of the Lincoln Shoe Store near Charlotte and George. The inevitable crowd quickly gathered to look on in sympathy while Mr. Turner was bundled into a Nisbett ambulance.

Kitchener Fans Claim Record From Orono

KITCHENER (CP)—Claims of an Oshawa district hockey team to something of a record for having six members of one family on a single team brought some raised sporting eyebrows in Kitchener today.

Old-time Kitchener fans recalled days when Kitchener had three different teams with up to nine brothers on the lineup of each of them.

A report from Orono, 12 miles east of Oshawa, said the village's Ontario Hockey Association intermediate C team will take to the ice in a game in Port Hope tonight with 47-year-old Ab West in goal and his five sons occupying forward and defence positions.

Dean Found, team manager, said OHA officials told him they could find in OHA records no previous instance of similar father-sons combinations.

Kitchener fans recalled the seven Schnarr brothers, who occasionally called on a cousin to make an eighth man; the seven Seibert brothers; and the nine Schell brothers.

The Schnarr club played exhibition games in the United States and Canada. They once played an all-star team that included hockey immortals like Bert McCaffrey, Hooley Smith, and Nels Stewart.

The Schnarrs lost, but only by 6 to 3.

Roger Finnamore Wins YMCA Handicap Swim

Nine year old Roger Finnamore of Sherbrooke St. was the winner of the YMCA Swim Club weekly handicap swim Tuesday night. Finnamore, one of the newest members of the club, finished a touch ahead of Lorne Hale and David Ross to win his first ribbon. Wilton Tanter, the scratch man in the event, turned in his fastest time of 1 minute 3-8/10ths seconds for the 100 yd. event.

Four swimmers showed improvement in their times, Edgar Scrutton, Roger Finnamore, Lorne Hale and Wilton Tranter.

Junior and senior swimmers will be competing against Trinity College Schools at Port Hope on Wednesday Feb. 17th.

John Gordon was the winner of the YMCA Swimming Club Shield for the month of January with a total point score of 27. Bill Bonney was runner-up with 26 points.

Plan To Build 4 Superhighways

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP)—Governor Thomas E. Dewey Tuesday submitted to the legislature for study a long-range program calling for construction of four superhighways in the state. They are:

1. An expressway from Albany north to the Canadian border.
2. A north-south expressway from the Elmira-Binghamton area to the St. Lawrence river.
3. A southern tier expressway linking the state thruway at Harriman with Binghamton and, as traffic warranted, extended to Elmira and points west to Dunkirk.
4. A Long Island expressway from Brooklyn to Riverhead.

In a special message to the legislature, Dewey said that "we should now begin to consider whether it may be possible" to develop these superhighways.

Will Concentrate Assembly At Oakville

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Ford Motor Company of Canada announced today that after March 12 it will concentrate the assembly of all Ford and Meteor passenger cars in its new 32½-acre plant at Oakville and will discontinue the production of these cars at Windsor. Assembly of Mercury and Monarch passenger cars, and Ford and Mercury trucks, will continue at Windsor until later in the year.

Rhys M. Sale, company president, said in a letter to all Windsor employees that the move is being made because the company has to get ahead with conversion of the existing Windsor assembly plant into an engine plant ready for large-scale production of engines by early fall.

The end of assembly of Fords and Meteors at Windsor on March 12 will bring a layoff of 565 employees. Of these, between 275 and 300 were notified when they were temporary, in view of the Oakville move. No man is being laid off who has seniority prior to March 29, 1952.

Believe U.S. Has 1,000 Atomic Bombs

STOCKHOLM (AP)—The Swedish army chief of staff reported today that the United States is believed to have a stock of "considerably more than 1,000 atomic bombs" and the Soviet Union "might have some 100 atomic weapons of both light and heavy types."

The statement by Gen. Richard Akerman, made in a survey of East-West resources in the event of war, was published on the front pages of several Swedish papers.

Gen. Akerman predicted that "small nations" in the near future would become producers of atomic bombs. He warned that developments in the next 10 years would make the "area of disaster" twice as large as that devastated by the A-bomb dropped on Hiroshima.

Arriving home from work the night before Mr. McKinlay parked his car in his garage and heard or saw nothing during the night.

No explanation has yet been found. The car is a total loss.

Trade Talks End In Moscow

MOSCOW (Reuters)—Eight British business men today ended two weeks of trade talks in Moscow with an assurance to the Russians that the British government would welcome Anglo-Soviet trade expansion.

The visit by the group, which came to explore trade possibilities, ended formally with the departure of the eight—six for London and two for Warsaw.

But 19 other business men who came with the group stayed behind for private discussions.

J. B. Scott, leader of the group, told the Soviet foreign trade minister, Ivan Kabanov, at a banquet Tuesday night that the British government welcomed a statement given to the group by Kabanov a week ago in which he listed 61 items he would like to buy from Britain, between 1955 and 1957.

Scott said: "I told them I was authorized to say the British government welcomed the statement and, subject to the issue of export licences, saw no reason why it should not be carried out in the time stated."

Report Reds Test New Freezing Weapon

LONDON (CP) — Intelligence Digest, a privately owned British magazine which claims to have agents in the Soviet orbit, reported today that the Russians have successfully testd a new weapon which freezes all life solid over large areas.

The magazine, which also claims to have been the first to report an atomic explosion in the Soviet Union, said the new weapon, carried in jet planes, was tested in the Lake Balkhash area in central Asia last September.

The magazine said the weapon let loose what appeared to be a spray which caused intense cold, killed all vegetation and destroyed trees, and wiped out animals.

TORONTO (CP) — Mrs. H.E.M. (Mildred) Kensit, active for many years in Toronto, Montreal and Ottawa in social work, died here Tuesday. She was 79.

She received the King George V Silver Jubilee Medal in 1935.

Surviving are a son, Nigel of Sault Ste. Marie, and a daughter, Mrs. B. W. Merrick of Toronto.

Praise Work Of St. Laurent

FRANKFURT (Reuters) — The independent Frankfurther Allgemeine Seitung says editorially today that Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent has a quality one would wish statesmen to possess—"the inborn desire to bridge contradictions."

"The strongest characteristic of his policy is the growing international name which Canada has gained, far exceeding the numerical importance of its population of 14,000,000," the editorial says. "Canada is more and more becoming a link and a factor making for equilibrium between the American and European members of NATO."

The editorial, written to mark St. Laurent's visit to Germany—describes Canada as a "kind of second focal point" of the Commonwealth.

Want Curbs Ended On Use Of Newsprint

LONDON (Reuters)—The Times calls today for an end to the restrictions on the use of newsprint in Britain.

A free press is vital to a free nation and part of that freedom must be the ability to print all the news and comment a newspaper deems necessary, subject only to the restrictions laid down by law, the independent newspaper comments in an editorial.

"Democracy has always realized those restrictions should be as few as possible. They can be justified only by reference to the nation's safety or an extreme emergency."

The Daily Express also complains today about the shortage of newsprint.

Gets Heart Going Doctor Says Routine

SUDBURY (CP) — A Sudbury doctor today termed "just recognized procedure" his quick action in massaging back into action the heart of an eight-year-old boy which had stopped following an operation.

The boy, Hugh Bennett, was reported to be recovering rapidly today in St. Joseph's Hospital. He had "died" while being returned to his bed from the operating room where he underwent an appendicitis operation.

Dr. J. D. McInnes, who had performed the original operation, immediately used emergency surgery to open the boy's chest wall and massaged the heart back to life.

The boy is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Bennett.

United Church Protests Amendment

TORONTO (CP) — The United Church of Canada protested today against a suggested amendment to the Post Office Act, allowing newspapers and perioidicals an extra point of mailing, besides the office of publication.

(In the Commons at Ottawa last night, the amendment was ruled out of order.)

"Such legislation would give special privileges to liquor advertising in provinces where it is forbidden," Rev. W. G. Berry said in a wire to Postmaster General Cote and Finance Minister Abbott.

"It would seem to constitute federal interference in present provincial legislation regarding such advertising, especially in those provinces where the adjoining province allows liquor advertising," the wire said.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—Miss Sara Thomas at Lookout Farm on the Portugal Cove road has an orange tree in her living room, growing fine quality oranges. She imported the tree as a small plant, through a seed catalogue, and says it is grown as easily as a geranium.

Bedspreads Must Be Kept Clean, Fresh

By KAY SHERWOOD
(NEA Staff Writer)

A fresh, pretty bedspread is the decorative backbone of an attractive bedroom. No matter how small the room or how simple the furniture, an immaculate spread that fits properly is proof of the owner's pride.

And a dingy, skimpy spread will make the finest furniture look like a refugee from a summer camp.

But keeping a spread in apple-pie order is a problem in winter. If your bed is a parking space for visitors' wraps, grime rubs off to soil the fabric. Soot and dirt sifting in around the windows leave their unlovely imprint.

Some of my friends shift the decor during cold weather

THIS YOUNG HOMEMAKER cleans her bedspreads in a bathtub, using a plumber's plunger to pull suds by suction through the heavy fabric.

months to darker-colored or plaid spreads which don't show the soil quite so fast. When I'm expecting a sizeable group for a party or a meeting, I toss a clear plastic sheet over the spread to stand off some of the grime.

In a normal busy household, however, you don't have time to fuss too much. That's why I, for one, favor spreads that are easily washed and require little or no ironing.

New ready-made spreads are pre-shrunk so that repeated soap-and-water dunkings won't affect their fit. Cotton chenille, terrycloth, seersucker, corduroy and knitted or crocheted spreads can be sudsed in a machine and need only finger pressing to restore their shape.

If you have a prized quilted coverlet or a hand-knit spread, you may prefer to hand-wash it. Quilted plastic coverlets should be hand-washed too. I think it's easier to hand-wash bulky spreads in a bathtub rather than a laundry tub.

Because the bathtub offers a broader work surface, you have less hoisting and handling of the heavy water-logged fabric. A plumber's plunger is a handy laundry aid. Plunged up and down in the hot soapy water, the suction pulls suds through the fabric.

Avoid setting deep creases in unironed spreads by using a wringer on loose tension or by shortening the spin-dry cycle of the automatic machine.

Restoring the fluff to napped spreads needn't wrinkle your brow, even though you don't own an automatic dryer and the weather rules out out-of-door drying.

Your easiest alternative is to take the wet spread in a plastic-lined clothes basket to the self-service laundry for drying while you market. Our local self-service laundry charges a modest five cents a pound, dry weight, for this.

Or hang the spread indoors until nearly dry, then transfer it outdoors for a breezy fluffing. The spread is less apt to freeze on the line this way.

A third alternative, if you have a tank-type vaccuum cleaner, is to hitch the hose to the blower end and blow warm air through the loops, shaking the spread as you go. You can brush up the pile or corduroy, using brisk strokes in the direction of the ribs.

DOROTHY DIX

Resents Companion Visiting Stepdaughter

DEAR MISS DIX: Two years ago I was left a widow, with three daughters. Recently I met a man I had known before my marriage. He is a widower, with no children of his own, but he has a stepdaughter. The girl is living with her mother's people. Bill and I became quite friendly; he would come around in the evening, or on week-ends, and take us all out for a ride, or do something for me around the house. The girls like him, and so do my sisters. Perhaps I began to take him too much for granted, for soon I expected him every week-end. When he didn't come I was disappointed. He did not tell me what he did with his time until recently, when he said he spent it with his stepdaughter. She is about 11. He had only been married five years when his wife died. I can't understand why he still wants to visit the child, especially so often. Finally, we had an argument over the situation, and he said he loved the girl as if she were his own daughter and that she would always have first place in his life. Am I wrong to feel hurt?

M. G.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: If you could look at your problem objectively, you would see two recently bereaved people trying to establish a new way of life, which still emotionally is held to the past. It may be some time before either of you makes a complete readjustment, and if you value Bill's friendship, you'll help, not hinder, him.

CHILD BEGETS LOVE

Love for a child can't always be uncompromisingly separated as to blood relationship; in fact, the reason why adoption is so generally successful is that this conception can be disregarded. Bill reared the child through her interesting and formative years of five to ten and by that time had come to regard her as his daughter. She is also the one link between him and the wife he loved. You can't expect that his wife's death would sever this strong tie. I notice that whenever he takes you out, your own daughters are included in the excursion.

Bill's friendship apparently means a lot to you; why consider losing it simply because you don't have his company whenever you desire it? You have made a good male friend at a time of your life when meeting men is quite difficult. That fact simply can't be ignored. I assume you're in your middle or late forties, when the proposition of eligible men for you is decreasing.

Be grateful for the companionship you have; show an interest in the little girl, perhaps even express a wish to see her. What

CWAC Believes Navy, RCAF Uniforms Dowdy

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Women's Army Corps doesn't come right out and say so in so many words but it strongly implies that the navy and air force girls are way behind the fashion times.

In fact, some CWACs say they think the Wrens and WDs look like "potato sacks" in those long skirts.

Long, that is, in comparison to CWAC skirts.

The CWAC recently shortened skirts an inch so that they now are 14 to 16 inches from the floor, depending on height of the girl.

LOOK SMARTER

The CWAC said Tuesday it wasn't following any Paris or New York fashion when it upped skirts. It simply prefers shorter skirts for its 1,200 reservists because it thinks they make the uniform look smarter.

The Wrens and WDs say they aren't contemplating any change in the length of skirts. Standard for both services is 11¾ to 14 inches from the floor—in the case of the Wrens, from the deck. There now are 197 full-time Wrens, 628 in the reserve. There are 3,200 regular WDs and 700 reservists.

SHE HAS A GOOD START—Said to be the "fattest girl in the world," Michelina Valente, 8, plays with a collection of her dolls while touring the Italian countryside. Daughter of a Neopolitan couple, Michelina weighs 330 pounds and will soon appear at a Milan fair.

Mrs. E. J. Hobden extended a vote of thanks to all taking part in the program.

KING GEORGE SCHOOL

President Mrs. Hugh Morrison opened King George Home and School Association meeting Tuesday evening wtih prayer and welcomed a good attendance. As Founders' Night was being observed, a song written especially for the Home and School was sung by Mrs. V. Wilkinson, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Max Pomeroy. Two grade 8 pupils, Carole Rogers and Suzanne Shaw played two charming piano duets.

Mr. Gordon Murray, teacher of grades 6 and 7, outlined Social Studies, comparing present day teaching of this subject with former methods.

Panel members were Mrs. Alex Sollitt, home economics teacher at Kenner Collegiate, Miss Aileen Morgan, hospital dietitian, and Mrs. W. B. Gordon, graduate dietitian and housewife and mother.

Also, that it has been proved that a good breakfast, consisting of fruit or juice, whole grain cereal, and milk fortifies the child by making him more attentive, less tired and restless before lunch and with keener power of concentration.

Mrs. H. W. Cawker expressed thanks to the panel members.

Attendance prize was won by Mrs. W. Lawson, Mrs. F. Darwin, Mrs. D. Gardiner, Mrs. H. Merritt, Mrs. R. Howland and Mrs. D. Worbay.

CGIT Doings

LAKEFIELD

LAKEFIELD (ENS) — Lakefield Canadian Girls in Training observed Youth Week, which ended on Sunday, in many ways.

As a beginning they conducted the worship service at the United Church Sunday school and following it attended morning worship service.

During the week they decided, at their meeting, to affiliate with the Women's Missionary Society and worked on their projects from the study book, "Out of This World."

An effective display was placed in one of the windows in the business section of the village, to which each group contributed. It showed a CGIT worship center, towel kits for Korea, stuffed animals for hospitals, coloring books for Sunday school beginners, jingle boxes and samples of mended hymn books, all projects done recently by the girls, and at which they are still working. They are also packing a bale for Korea.

On Saturday they enjoyed a skating party to which their friends were invited.

On Sunday, February 7, the final day of Youth Week, members attended morning worship service at the Lakefield Baptist church.

Leaders of this group of girls are Mrs. Neil C. Wood, Mrs. H. Tretheway, Misses Annie Richardson, Anne Wolfraim, Ann Samis, Margaret Calberry and Mary Jane Foster.

Latin American Christian Life Outlined To Aux.

"The Bible is the greatest single spiritual force in Latin America," stated Miss Cora Bailey in a forceful talk on "The Life and Task of the Christian Church Around the World" at the meeting of Elizabeth Parker Auxiliary in Trinity United church parlor, Monday night.

Miss Bailey used a map of the world to present her topic and dwelt at length on the task in Latin America as an important phase of mission work. She described the difficulties encountered in presenting the Christian way of life to Latin America, a country which for the most part is inaccessible and means of transportation almost nil. She claimed that three-quarters of the people are illiterate, and that opposition forces are trying to discourage and keep Christian missionaries out of the country.

"The radio has proved a forceful and far-reaching medium," she stated, "and has worked wonders in bridging distance barriers as well as educational barriers, because the people can listen when they cannot read, and they can tune in without others knowing to whom or what they are listening." She said that there are over 100 radio stations in Latin America and over 50 hours each week of evangelical messages, including hymns, services, Bible school and correspondence courses, as well as health programs, etc., are being presented.

Miss Bailey went on to tell that one of the newest threats, now creeping into Latin America, is communism. She stated that their leaders are slowly spreading their propaganda, and that they mean ousiness, and to destroy religious truth and human liberty. She quoted an excerpt from a Communist newspaper stating their claim that the Christian gospel is a more powerful weapon for the renewal of society than their Marxist philosophy, and that there are more Christians than Communists, but they went on to claim they would win because they are realists and are determined to achieve their objectives and work hard at it.

Miss Bailey claimed that the only answer or remedy is a Christian zeal and strength to equal or surpass that of the Communists.

Worship period on the theme, "The Church of the Open Book," was shared by Mrs. S. Harrison, Mrs. W. Head, Miss Joyce Harris, Miss Mabel Brown, Mrs. H. Gray and Mrs. Brown. Mrs. C. H. Marrs sang a very fitting solo, "Creation's Lord, We Thank Thee."

Mrs. F. W. Horton presided for the business session, during which she and Miss Jean Armstrong gave reports of the Presbyterial held in January.

A delicious lunch was served by group one, under leadership of Miss Mabel Brown and Miss Cora Bailey.

Educational Spending High In Jeanette Scott Chapter

Mrs. Andy Rutter was unanimously elected for a second term as regent of the Jeanette Scott Chapter, IODE, at the 18th annual meeting Tuesday evening. Mrs. Rutter thanked the executive and members for their co-operation during the past year.

A report sent by Mrs. John Currelly on services at home and abroad showed 337 articles of infants' wear had been handed in. Donations of new clothing had been given to an adotped English family. Donations had also been given to the blind at Christmas and to the Provincial maintenance fund. Nine members attended a first aid course given by the St. John Ambulance Corps. In all, $488.60 had been spent on this work.

Miss Mary Medd as Empire and world affairs convener, reported two papers given during the year were "British Imperialism as seen by a German American" and "Thoughts on Democracy."

Ways and means convener, Mrs. Ken Kingston stated the money was raised by the annual fashion show, a chapter clothing exchange rummage sale and dinner dance.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

What To Have For Lunch At Noon

LETTER: This is my first letter to your column which I read and thoroughly enjoy every day . . . also I clip many recipes,—specially find your cookie recipes good. Your cocoa quickies really went over big and are so simple to make. My problem these days: I seem to be at a complete loss for ideas for my family lunch. I have my husband and children ages four and two. We like and often have soup and sandwiches. I would like some suggestions for hot luncheon ideas . . . would it be possible to mail me a copy of "Julia works Wonders on $15.00 per week" . . . Mrs. M. J. M.

"I had so many requests for copies of the release entitled "Julia Works Wonders for Four on $15.00 per week" that I have to make a new printing and will forward copies to all who asked for it as soon as it is ready.

SIMPLE WEEKDAY LUNCHEON MENUS

No. 1) Clam chowder; individual salads on lettuce (celery hearts, carrot sticks, tomato slices); Brown bread toast, stewed large prunes; milk.

No. 2) Pancakes and maple syrup (if desired serve with bacon or sausage or sliced process cheese); Bananas or sliced oranges; cocoa.

No. 3) Chili con carne (mild for sake of children); cole slaw; applesauce; cookies; milk.

No. 4) Homemade split pea soup; toasted rye bread; celery hearts; fruit cup; milk for children; tea for adults.

No. 5) Hamburg on a bun with sliced tomato and green relish; half grape fruit; cocoa.

No. 6 Scotch Woodcock (cheese and bacon broiled on toast); shredded lettuce and tomatoes; Chocolate blanc mange; milk for all.

No. 7) Homemade vegetable soup; toasted rolls (preferably whole wheat); celery and carrot stick or coleslaw; canned peaches; cookies; milk for children; tea for adults.

✧ ✧ ✧

Ther are so many hot luncheon dishes that I like and that I think are universally popular that I do not have room for them. Don't forget poached eggs on toast with tomato sauce, hard-cooked eggs with curry sauce, cream salmon or tuna on toast; spaghetti in tomato sauce with grated cheese sprinkled on at table; cheese fondue.

I have suggested clam chowder in No. 1 but Canadian housewives do not commonly make this, so since it is full of rich flavor and nourishment and quite economical I will give you the recipe.

CLAM CHOWDER

(Using Canned Clams)

Fine chop 2 ounces fat salt pork or side bacon and slowly saute until fat is rendered out but do not brown this much, then add 1 onion chopped finely and gently saute for 5 minutes. Add 1½ cups raw potatoes cut into very small dice (or same amount of drained kernel corn), ¾ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teasoon pepper, 1 cup hot water. Drain the clams (whole or minced) from one 20-ounce tin clams, cut them up a little and add to pan, cover and simmer gently until potatoes are just tender. Add 2 cups whole milk, 1 tablespoon butter, the liquor from the clams and heat through.

Like almost every Canadian housewife I keep a 1-pound can of salmon on my emergency shelf. When you are completely stuck for ideas and money this is wonderful:

SALMON AU GRATIN

Drain the liquid from a 1-pound can of red salmon. Gently flake the salmon with a fork. Melt 3 tablespoons butter or margarine, stir in 3 tablespoons flour until smooth. Add enough milk to salmon liquor to make it up to 1½ cups and stir this into the butter-flour mix until thick. Add flaked salmon, gently stir, turn into buttered baking dish. Sprinkle top with ½ cup buttered crumbs and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 20 minutes.

Bringing Up Baby

Hints Collected by Mrs. Dan Gerber (Mother of 5)

When baby is completely absorbed in his toys, papers, pots or whatever, try not to interrupt him. A tot who learns to amuse himself at nine or ten months won't demand being entertained by mother every minute later on.

• • •

At this age most tots are sprouting several sparkling teeth. If your baby is going through a troublesome teething period, here's good news. Gerber's Teething Biscuits provide soothing relief for tender little gums. Made of wholesome ingredients, they're smooth-surfaced and extra hard to give baby the biting satisfaction and comfort he needs. Individually wrapped in sanitary cellophane, and so easy to slip into your bag when visiting.

• • •

Safety first. Your little one is likely to put everything and anything into that rose-bud mouth while he's teething. So make sure his toys are the kind that can be washed frequently, have not sharp edges, won't break.

• • •

Appreciation unlimited. Teethers usually show a good measure of pure pleasure when offered Gerber's Junior Vegetables. Not only because they have such appealing true colors and true-to-nature flavors, but because they have the evenly diced, bite-size bits that new little teeth can manage nicely. Processed for high retention of vitamins and minerals, Gerber's Junior Vegetables are good tasting and good for your darling.

• •

Mother, here's a special offer! Send for three of these attractive and oh-so-handy Refrigerator Can Covers, to snap on your opened cans of Gerber's Baby Foods before they're popped in the 'frig. Yours for only 10 cents plus 3 labels from Gerber's Strained Foods or Junior Foods. Send to Mrs. Dan Gerber, Box 17, Toronto 18, Canada.

DEAR MISS DIX: I am employed in an office as a stenographer, and have been there for 20 years. Recently I had a serious illness and, after being home two months had not received a telephone call or card from anyone in the office. Then I called. Is it unbecoming for a boss to call his secretary to inquire about her health, or was it up to mt to call first? T.G.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Your boss, as well as co-workers, must be a bunch of pretty cold people to show so little interest in you. Most emphatically they should have evinced some concern about your illness, and it was not your place to call first. However, when people are made that way, there's little you can do but accept them. The milk of human kindness runs icy in some folks.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: Do you think a mother of seven children should go to work? V.X.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Your question is certainly brief, but with no outline of the circumstances involved it is a difficult question to answer. If there's necessity for a mother of seven children to workk, she has little choice. If, however, dire need doesn't force the issue, she certainly should remain home with her brood.

Atomic Defence

CANBERRA (CP)—Lt.-Gen. Sir Sydney Rowell, chief of the Australian general staff, announced that plans are being made to include basic defence training against possible atomic attack as part of the routine training for Australian troops.

H. and S. News

Mrs. Mae Thompson was guest speaker and gave an inspiring talk on citizenship. She made a plea for understanding for new Canadians, emphasizing their difficulties in understanding our ways, stressing a quotation from Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, "Citizenship depends on what you know."

"Things that impress our new citizens are the privileges we take too much for granted, freedom of speech, worship and press," Mrs. Thompson said. "Those who have been subjected to complete domination for many years realized what it means to be able to own a home, govern one's own business and live happy free lives."

Mrs. Thompson also stressed the many opportunities Canadians have of learning from people coming to this country, their crafts and their arts. "Part of being a good citizen is preserving our freedoms by finding out what is happening around us and after proper preparation, using our right to vote for those best fitted to govern."

She was introduced by Mrs. B. Holloway and thanked by Mrs. R. Packer.

It was announced the meeting on March 9th will be "open house." The fifth annual spring tea will be on April 7th with Mrs. A. Fort convening.

A social period followed with Mrs. B. Goulding and committee serving refreshments.

U.K. Atomic Scientist Leaves For New York

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain's leading atomic scientist, Sir William Penny leaves by air tonight for New York on his way to atomic defence talks at Toronto.

Penny, who conducted recent atomic weapons tests in Australia, was invited to attend the talks by the Canadian defence research board.

Salary Survey For Engineers

A nation-wide survey of salaries in the engineering profession is being launched by the Canadian Federation of Engineers and Scientists.

Results of this survey, and of a simular study in the United States will be published with a view to forcing companies which the Federation thinks underpays its engineers to boost their wage-scales.

In Peterborough, 43 engineers and engineering physicists gathered at the CGE Wednesday to hear J. M. Milne of Toronto, executive secretary of the Federation, explain the salary survey scheme.

Ultimately this survey will cover the whole country and all phases of the engineering profession — aeronautical, electrical, chemical, civil, mining, mechanical, metallurgical. It will also include physicists in the engineering profession.

The first batch of salary curves in Ontario will be available in March. These will show how salaries vary from one plant to another, thus putting the underpaying firms on the spot.

The main purpose of the international study, the comparative survey of salaries here and in the United States, is to discover why so many engineers leave Canada for the United States. This, says Jack Scringeour, secretary of the local federation branch, is "bad for the country and bad for the profession."

President of the Peterborough branch of the Federation, and chairman of Tuesday's meeting, is Gordon Davis. Also on the executive are S. Jennings, and J. Holmes, both delegates from this city to the central body of the Federation.

Club Asks Arena For Better Deal

A request for better service was considered Tuesday night by the Civic arena committee. A delegation from the CGE Social and Athletic club appeared to ask for the same service on Sunday as is supplied throughout the week.

Eric Cotton headed the delegation with the complaint the club feels members are not getting the service they're paying for. In addition to paying an officer to stand duty during the afternoon, the club pays $10 for ice rental per hour and $3 for cleaning.

One complaint was that the ice went soft and wet one afternoon when the club was using it. Cotton blamed inadequate supervision of cooling machinery for the incident.

The committee considered the request, then decided to write the club and tell them the arena intends to continue under the present system.

Recover Wreckage Of Jet Airliner

ROME (Reuters) — Salvage crews have recovered a yard-square piece of wreckage from the British Comet jetliner which crashed in the Mediterranean last month, the senior British naval officer on the Island of Elba reported today.

The wreckage gives searchers the first positive indication of the airliner's position, he added in a report to the British embassy here.

The search for the plane has been going on since it crashed off Elba on Jan. 10, killing 35 persons.

Lawyer Contests Validity Of Parking Bylaw

Another attempt by W. J. Arthur Fair, QC, to test the validity of a parking bylaw was the main item on magistrate's court docket today. Another similar case tried before Christmas resulted in a parking ticket's dismissal but on a minor point.

Following the presentation of prosecution evidence this morning, the case was adjourned for two weeks. City Solicitor W. F. Huycke, QC, will present a written argument in two weeks, Mr Fair, a written argument in four weeks, and Magistrate Philp, a decision in six weeks.

Submitted as evidence this morning were four bylays, a parking lot map, a parking ticket, a photo of the lot and car identification. The bylaws were 4844, dealing with traffic regulation, and 5059 and 5081, amendments thereto, and 5081 which provides for ticketing cars.

Fred LeBarr who ticketed Mr. Fair's car parked in the laneway behind his office October 26, described the circumstances of the ticketing. He also outlined details of the lot which the lane borders.

Athlones Wed For 50 Years

LONDON (Reuters) — Hundreds of telegrams and bouquets poured into Kensington Palace today, congratulating the Earl of Athlone and Princess Alice on their golden wedding anniversary.

It is the first 50th wedding anniversary in the Royal Family for nearly 40 years and one which the Queen has not forgotten. She and the Duke of Edinburgh sent her great-uncle a cable of congratulations from Australia.

The 79-year-old earl, who served as governor-general of both South Africa and Canada, is recovering from influenza, and plans for a golden wedding party had to be cancelled.

He and Princess Alice, 70-year-old granddaughter of Queen Victoria, were to have been guests at a reception at St. James' Palace tonight.

Instead there was a luncheon party for 15 guests—all close members of the family—including the Queen Mother, Princess Margaret, the Duke and Duchess of Gloucester, the Duchess of Kent, Lady Abel Smith (Princess Alice's only daughter) and her grandchildren, Ann, Elizabeth and Richard Abel Smith.

Lay Charges Against Sisters

COCHRANE (CP) — Murder charges have been laid against two sisters, 18 and 20 years old, in connection with the death of a new-born baby last November near Moosonee, assistant crown attorney Wilfred Dupont disclosed today.

Charged are Litti Sutherland, 18, alleged mother of the infant, and her sister, Theresa, 20. The girl's stepfather has been charged with seduction of the younger girl, Mr. Dupont said.

A preliminary hearing into the charges will be held later today.

Mr. Dupont said the case had its beginning last November when an Indian found the body of the child in the bush. He walked the 14 miles into Moosonee and reported his discovery to the RCMP.

An investigation by the RCMP and the provincial police was carried out under cover.

Further investigation was conducted last week and charges laid with the return of the two girls and their stepfather from traplines this week-end.

Religion Root Of Civilization

A small but receptive audience of five heard Mrs. Florence Mayberry of Santa Paula Calif., speak on "the new day of God" at the YWCA.

The speaker used as her premise, that religion, no matter in what age revealed and no matter what specific name it uses, is the root of civilization.

Religion has yielded humanity's basic civil codes, philosophies, cultures, its highest aspirations. In no age of man has civilization preceded religion. Religion always precedes civilization, she said.

Civilization, however, after a full fruiting, has a tendency to "go to seed," to become corrupt and devitalized. It needs a new impetus, a new season of growth. When it does, a new religious revelation is born, which restates the fundamental teachings of the previously revealed religions, but to which it adds teachings and inspirations specifically meant for the new civilization to be born.

Religion, therefore, is one and eternal, appearing in constantly evolving forms. Among these forms are Judaism, Buddhism, Christianity, Islam and the Baha'i faiht. Each of these, and other religious phases were revealed for a specific time and purpose in man's eternal spiritual evolution.

Mrs. Mayberry's talk dealt largely with the history and principles of the Baha'i faith, which she described as the latest of these religious revelations. She correlated its teachings with the need of the present age for world unity and understanding, and showed how it offers the spiritual dynamics for individual and mass development.

Lakefield High To Advertise For 2 Teachers

LAKEFIELD (ENS) — Reeve W. C. Grant, Reeve Tedford. E. P. H. Everett, W. Whetung and H. Allen were appointed a committee to meet with the minister of education and other department officials regarding grants and transportation costs, at the regular meeting of the Lakefield District High School Board.

Following a discussion on the cafeteria, the board decided that $300 would be deposited as a special cafeteria fund, so that an accurate account may be kept of operating costs, thus determining if the operation was being carried out at a profit or at a loss.

The board will advertise for a French teacher immediately and for a home economics instructor in April.

The property committee were authorized to purchase one typewriter with 16-inch carriage, one metronome and a demonstration stand for the commercial department.

The principal, Mr. Stephens, was authorized to order one set of dictionaries for the library at an approximate cost of $15.00 and one set of Encyclopedia Britannica, Junior, for the English department, to cost approximately $156.00.

The principal was also given authority to commence a Christian Education Movement in the school, one day each week.

Transportation costs recommended for payment were, Roy Brown, $438.00; F. S. Coyle, $400.00; Roy Hall, $72.00; S. Pearson, $893.00; M. Reddick, $560.00; G. Young, $114.00; D. McCauley, $30.00; McCormack Motors, $80.34; R. C. Reddick, $8.33; G. Ayotte, $16.66; total, $2,612.33. General accounts authorized for payment totalled $385.51.

A KIND JUDGE—Buce C. Ogilvie, 32-year-old ex-GI of San Francisco, Calif., and his wife hold their children, seven-year-old Douglas, left, and Terry, five, on a pier in New York City following their arrival aboard the liner Queen Mary. Ogilvie, in debt to a London private school in the amount of $105.88, said he was allowed to leave England because the "kind judge gave me until next Augsut to pay." Ogilvie said he would not fall back on his promise to pay the debt. He received his PhD at London University during his stay.

Marmora Audience Sees Movies Of Life In China

MARMORA (ENS)—Sponsored by Marmora Chapter, IODE, an entertaining program was presented at the Town Hall Monday night, highlighted by the delivery of an address and the showing of a colored sound film on china. Guest was Tom O'Connor of Peterborough who has been associated with the china and glassware business in Canada for the past 35 years. Mrs. Rily Walsh presided for the program which opened with "O Canada." Mrs. A. F. Fraser at the projector showed three attractive films.

Two choruses were heard from a group of public school pupils under Miss Olga Wurm, school music teacher, prior to the showing of the china film. With a display of ware, Mr. O'Connor illustrated his remarks and later answered questions.

He was given a vote of thanks on behalf of the audience by Mrs. Rily Walsh. Mrs. J. Aitchison and Mrs. H. Rennie were pianists for the evening.

Serious Recession In Farm Implement Industry

OTTAWA (CP)—Spokesmen for workers in Canada's farm implement industry said today the industry is in a "serious recession" and asked the federal government for broad measures to rehabilitate it.

A joint delegation from the United Automobile Workers (CIO-CCL) and the United Steelworkers (CIO-CCL), Canada's two largest unions, told a cabinet meeting that employment in the industry has been falling steadily.

It proposed action aimed chiefly at increasing farmers' buying power, slackening of which it blamed largely for decline in the implement trade.

Delegates from the Ontario implement centres of Toronto, Hamilton, Brantford, Woodstock and Smiths Falls presented the union views in a brief. The group was led by Canadian directors George Burt of the UAW and Charles H. Millard of the steel union.

The auto-steel brief said that at last October government figures showed 5,500 out of work in the industry, which had a post-war employment peak of around 15,000. It did not indicate how far the figures were above the seasonal normal.

FIVE-POINT PROGRAM

The unions advocated these measures to restore farm buying strength:

1. Protection for farm prices so farmers can plan production ahead, financed from federal funds to hold down consumer prices.

2. Extension of marketing organizations such as the Canadian wheat board, to give farmers greater control over marketing of their products.

3. Stricter action against combines and monopolies, which had "dominated" the processing of farm products.

4. Government purchases of surplus food, which should if necessary be given away to undernourished peoples.

5. Lower interest rates under the Farm Improvement Loans Act, used by farmers to buy machinery.

The unions also suggested abolition of the 10 per cent sales tax, which they said would help enlarge purchasing power of urban and rural dwellers.

GENERAL DANGER

"The recession in the farm implement industry," they said, "cannot be considered apart from the serious danger of a general recession throughout the Canadian economy. In the past, falling farm income has frequently been the forerunner of just such a general recession.

"In the face of a recession, all possible steps should be taken to get added purchasing power into the hands of farmers and industrial workers so as to create better markets for unsold goods."

World markets also must be developed, the unions said, for farm products and farm implements. This would involve Canadian willingness to accept "soft" currencies and, in many cases, long-term loans abroad.

OTHER PROPOSALS

Other proposed steps:

1. An investigation into the business practices of the major implement companies. Appointment of a permanent implement industry committee—representing farmers, labor, industry and government—to check on these practices and make recommendations on other matters.

2. Immediate measures to provide jobs for those out of work, including defence contracts for plants where there now are serious layoffs, and a selective public works program to aid communities where unemployment is heaviest.

3. Larger benefit payments to laid-off workers from the unemployment insurance fund.

Winnipeg Ballet Hit In U.S.

WASHINGTON (CP)—The Royal Winnipeg Ballet is making a hit in the United States capital on its current tour.

Reviewers from the New York Times and Herald Tribune, who came down for Monday night's glittering opening which drew a distinguished audience including members of the diplomatic corps, said today that the dance company captured its Washington audience and drew particular praise for "Shadow on the Prairie" and "The Shooting of Dan McGrew."

The company, American reviewers noted, is the only ballet group in the Commonwealth thus far privileged to use the "royal" title. The Winnipeg dancers performed for the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh during the royal tour of Canada in 1951, and several times for Governor-General Vincent Massey, who is its patron.

Fire Alarm, Phone? For Inverlea

The parks committee will investigate the possibilities of installing either a pay telephone booth or a fire alarm at Inverlea beach.

Although this was advanced as an economy move, it was pointed out that the cost of a fire alarm might be greater than what the present telephone costs. The charges are $8.40 a month during the summer, when the telephone is in use, and $4.20 the rest of the year.

At Tuesday's parks committee meeting, Superintendent Armar Butcher, although he thought Ald. Stan BcBride's suggestion of a fire alarm was worth investigating, questioned the wisdom of replacing the present telephone with a pay 'phone. The telephone is intended to serve in case of a swimming accident.

"How can you be sure anyone is going to have a nickel when somebody is drowning?" he asked.

Ald. Bob Knox, committee chairman, suggested that the lifeguards be required to have a nickel on hand all the time. Ald. Art Burrows added that there were lots of nearby houses where help could be summoned.

Argument Rages Over RCAF New Cap Badge

OTTAWA (CP)—An argument is still raging in the RCAF over adoption of a new cap badge.

No less an authority than the air force's historian, Wing Cmdr. F. H. Hitchins, has come to the defence of "other ranks" who wanted to retain the old badge.

Until several months ago, airmen wore on their caps the large badge with "RCAF" inscribed in the centre. The new badge is a small gold eagle previously worn on officers' wedge caps. Officers and senior warrant officers now wear a small gold crown above the eagle.

The old badge is still worn by only two small groups in the air force—the security police and volunteer bandsmen. This is because they wear bigger hats, something like an officer's, with a black peak. Badges on officers' hats, excluding wedges, are unchanged.

The official explanation for the new airman's badge is that it is neater, "more appropriate" and "lighter in appearance."

SAID BADGE HEAVY

The directorate of personnel administration decreed that the large "RCAF badge was "too heavy and cumbersome," arguing that the word "Canada" is worn on shoulder patches and that tunic buttons bear the letters "RCAF."

Wing Cmdr. Hitchins stands stoutly on the side of tradition and, writing in the current issue of The Roundel, official RCAF publication issued on authority of the chief of air staff, attacks the official explanation for adoption of the new badge.

He says the old badge was worn for more than 25 years by the RCAF and in the RAF an identical badge, without the "C", has been in use for 35 years.

As to the old badge being "too heavy and cumbersome," he said, the new one weighs four grams less.

Of the badges being "more suitable for women personnel," he wrote: "More evidence that this is a women's world. . . May we anticipate now a pattern for airmen's tunics minus belt and with a pinched-in waist?"

He concludes: "Change merely for the sake of change is not necessarily progress."

Elected Group Head

CHATHAM (CP)—Eugene King of nearby Dover township Tuesday was elected chairman of the Canadian Sugar Beet Growers. He succeeds Philip Baker of Lethbridge, Alta.

Lakefield Auxiliary Plans Valentine Party

LAKEFIELD (ENS) — Plans were made for a Valentine party at which cribbage and euchre will be played, when the Ladies Auxiliary to the Canadian Leigon met. The president, Mrs. M. Calberry, presided and the standard was brought forward by Mrs. E. Frost. The date set for the party is February 11.

The members will hold a quilting for the Red Cross in the Legion hall on February 24 and the ladies of the Catholic Women's League will quilt there also.

Two ladies, Mrs. Arnold Miller and Mrs. Charles Shewen were proposed for membership.

The auxiliary members sold candy at the minstrel show recently sponsored by the Canadian Legion, Branch No. 77, and served refreshments to the cast.

Will Consider Export Of Gas

EDMONTON (CP)—Gas export and labor legislation are expected to highlight the session of the Alberta legislature opening Feb. 18, the second sitting since the 1952 general election.

Since the last session the government indicated it will approve the export of natural gas to eastern Canada. It does not need to seek authorizing legislation, but the opposition most certainly will ask for a complete report from Premier Manning, who is also minister of mines.

The opposition will suggest that the government set aside certain gas fields for exclusive use by Alberta consumers.

As it has almost continuously since the first Social Credit government was elected in 1935, the government will enjoy a commanding majority in the 61-seat house.

The standing: Social Credit 51; Liberal 4; Progressive Conservative 2; CCF 2; independent Social Credit 1; and one vacancy.

Eager Musicians

REGINA (CP)—To enlist youngsters who were not interested in the strenuous boxing and wrestling program, the Regina Police Athletic Association started a boys' band. Now it has 55 boys enrolled in two bands, and owns $5,000 worth of instruments.

LOL Euchre Party

FRASERVILLE (ENS). — The LOL 46 held their weekly progressive euchre in the Orange Hall with five tables being played and prizes going to Mrs. G. McGaphy, Mrs. W. G. Waterman, Mrs. Edgerton and Mr. Wihte. A siimlar event is planned for the following week.

Building Bridge At Halifax But Nobody Knows Who's Paying

HALIFAX (CP) — A mile-long suspension bridge is being built over Halifax harbor, but nobody knows exactly where all the money is coming from.

The bridge is costing a lot more than the estimated $8,000,000. By the time the toll wickets are clicking late this year it may be at least $3,500,000 more.

Halifax and the town of Dartmouth said they would each guarantee a quarter of the cost four years ago, and the province of Nova Scotia the remainder.

But steel and labor costs have risen since then and the bridge commission has asked Halifax to guarantee 25 per cent of an additional $3,500,000 bond issue.

On top of that, the city is also being asked to guarantee 25 per cent of any loss the toll bridge may have after Dec. 21 this year.

The city discovered last month that actually it has never entered into any formal agreement about helping guarantee the $8,000,000 borrowing, passed by the legislature two years after the city agreed to guarantee 25 per cent of $7,000,000.

BRIDGE MIX-UP

As a result, the three parties are in a mix-up. They've got a bridge that's costing more money than they figured, and they don't know who's going to guarantee the cost.

Mayor Richard A. Donahoe has asked the Halifax - Dartmouth bridge commission to clarify what the city is supposed to do. For instance, will it be necessary for the city to issue its own bonds in order to live up to the guarantee?

If there were a deficit, which is believed unlikely, the city would pay 25 per cent of it, and would be paid back when the bridge had a surplus.

The province would reimburse the city and later take control of the bridge.

THOROLD, Ont. (CP) — William Mousey of Port Dalhousie, an accountant, was sentenced Tuesday to two years less a day on a charge of embezzling $15,000 from his employer, Mark Kriluck of Interlake Fuel Company.

ONTARIO PLANS QUICK POWER ACTION

HIT BY A 10-TON TRANSPORT, Ronald White, six, of 48 Lansdowne St., was rushed by police cruiser to Civic Hospital early today with a badly mangled right arm, a dislocated elbow, a nearly severed ear and a bdly cut face. Wallace Roote, the truck driver (above), tells Constable Don Mackay how the little boy ran out, was hit and then dragged 70 feet by the transport's dolly wheels. The boy's coat lies on the ground under the trailer. He was returning from a nearby service station with a package of cigarettes when hit. —(Examiner Staff Photo)

Arrest Four In Big Arson Plot

Report Enough TNT To Blow Up Toronto Building

TORONTO —(CP)— Nitroglycerine, gasoline and dynamite was discovered spread around a four-storey downtown building on Wednesday night and four men have been charged with conspiracy to commit arson in what police describe as a plot to blow up the big structure.

"There's no doubt they intended to blow up the building," police inspector J. Semple said today.

Two suspects were picked up in a lane and two in the building by police who said they have been patrolling the area for some days after getting anonymous tips that "something was going to happen."

Charged with conspiracy to commit arson, attempt to commit arson and possession of explosives are Harry Chernick, 36, Victor Chernick, 28, and Cecil Chernick, 30, all brothers, and George Davison, 24. All are from Toronto.

District fire chief William Reid said the explosives were the most dangerous he had seen in any arson attempt in the last 35 years.

The big building on College street houses 12 businesses, eight of them clothing firms.

At 9 p.m. Wednesday, detectives Alvin Sproule and Victor Pope saw two men "acting suspiciously" in a lane beside the building. They took the pair into custody and phoned for reinforcements when they found a heavy rope hanging from a fourth-floor window.

Police surrounded the building and went to the fourth floor, where they found six ounces of nitroglycerine, four gallons of gasoline and four detonator caps spread around the premises of Superior Pant Company.

In the washroom from which the rope was hanging, two men were found and arrested.

Police said they believe the men planned to escape down the rope after setting a fire. They belive the fire was to have been set within 15 minutes.

Throne Speech Confirms Seat Redistribution; New Provincial Park Policy

TORONTO (CP)—Ontario plans early action to prepare for development of St. Lawrence river power and a natural gas pipeline from Alberta, it was disclosed today in the speech from the throne read to the Ontario legislature by Lieutenant-Governor Louis Breithaupt. The 1,300-word speech, opening a session expected to last seven weeks, confirmed speculation that the government plans the first redistribution of House seats since 1933, when the number was cut from 112 to 90. It also hinted at important plans for agriculture, a new policy on provincially-owned parks and a busy program of legislation on public works, health and welfare.

Seeds of a full-dress debate on the thorny problem of municipal annexation were contained in one sentence: "Part one of the Municipal Act will be revised." That part of the act deals with annexation, subject of hot controversy in many parts of Ontario were growing cities are trying to annex space from adjoining townships.

"The impending construction of the St. Lawrence river power project, the last obstacles to which we are quite sure will shortly be cleared, will require legislation to give effect to plans now being prepared," the speech said. "The low-cost hydro-electric power which can be developed from this project will greatly augment our power resources and facilitiate our economic expansion."

PIPELINE PROGRESSING

The speech reported "great progress" towards construction of the pipeline. Legislation was planned to enable the province to deal with new problems arising from the importation.

"The development of the St. Lawrence and the gas resources of the Canadian West will create new employment opportunities and fortify our long-term economic development."

The redistribution plan in the House would be submitted as the result of increased and shifts in population.

Last year's expanded capital construction program would be continued in many phases—highways, public buildings, hospitals, including a new $9,500,000 cancer institute in Toronto, and conservation projects.

Approval of a legislative and financial program "for the social

U.S. Closing Entry Offices In Canada

TORONTO (CP)—The United States immigration service's facilities here, except for those at suburban Malton airport, are to be closed Feb. 26.

At the Toronto office in the U.S. consulate, persons planning to enter the U.S. have been able for 35 years to check on their admissibility, obtain information and receive clearance and entry permits.

Under the new ruling, all such services will be available only at border crossing points.

It is reported similar offices in Montreal, Winnipeg, Vancouver, Halifax and other major cities also will be closed as an economy move.

NO MORE TROUBLE

The new system should not increase misunderstandings and other incidents at the border it was said. However, many of the minor details and mixups which have been previously cleared up at the pre-examination centres will have to be handled at the border points.

Officers have been assigned to Malton Airport, and likely to other Canadian air centres, to furnish information and provide final inspection for air passengers only.

J. S. Kersher, officer in charge of the Department of Justice pre-examination office since it was opened here in April. 1946, is being transferred to head the department's office in Cleveland.

The announcement emphasized that the change in the system

Ex-Tenant Held For Murder Of Landlady

OTTAWA (CP) — Hugh Conrad Hayes, 33-year-old unemployed father of two children, was arraigned today on a charge of murder in the fatal shooting of the landlady who evicted him last Saturday.

Blond, blue-eyed Hayes showed no emotion while the charge of slaying Grace Currie, 61, was read to him in magistrate's court.

Magistrate Glenn Strike remanded Hayes, native of Toronto, a week to fix date of a preliminary hearing.

Crown prosecutor Raoul Mercier asked Magistrate Strike to order a mental examination of Hayes. The examination probably will be completed before preliminary hearing.

Hayes, who was evicted for nonpayment of rent from the two-room apartment in which the crown alleges the shooting occurred, was not asked to enter a plea.

ARRESTED IN HOUR

Hayes was taken into custody about an hour after Wednesday's mid-afternoon shooting in the Sandy Hill apartment block owned by Miss Currie. She was not a resident of the block.

An unemployed radio technician, he was arrested at the home of friends. Police found a Luger pistol in the pocket of a coat believed to belong to Hayes. They said the pistol had been fired.

Miss Currie was found lying face upward, her hand outstretched toward the telephone in the vacant apartment she owned. She is be-

Berlin Meet Ends In Week

BERLIN (AP)—The French delegation here is thinking in terms of a breakup of the Berlin conference in a week, it was learned today. Western ministers in the Big Four meeting have said that the subject of German unification and European security has been exhaustively discussed. The general assumption is that Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov's proposal Wednesday for an all-European security treaty, to split Western Europe from the United States, is his last major pronouncement on the issue, regardless of how much more talking is done? The West rejected the Molotov plan.

The Big Four met in secret session today on the possibility of Asian settlements and on disarmament conference proposals. Friday the ministers will tackle conclusion of an Austrian independence treaty with Austrian Foreign Minister Leopold Figl invited to sit in.

NEED ABOUT 4 DAYS

Western delegates estimate that three or four days of discussion should be enough to wind up talk, and any action which may be possible, on the Austrian issue. Thus there is wide speculation here on a break-up sometime next week. French officials believe it will come by Thursday the 18th.

Molotov's proposed security pact, although spurned by the Western foreign ministers, appears to have considerable popular appeal for the West European people, particularly for the French.

French observers say Wednesday's Russian proposal's clause calling for the neutralization of Germany will mean fresh trouble for Foreign Minister Bidault in his fight to get the Europen Defence Community treaty ratified by France's balking parliament.

The Soviet foreign minister's avowed aim is to do away with both that treaty, which would arm West Germans along with France, Italy, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg under unified command, and the 14 - country North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

The Soviet proposal for a Big Four meeting with Communist China, and rival Soviet and French proposals for a world disarmament conference, were up for renewed discussion today at the second closed session of the Big Four foreign ministers' conference here.

Mother Sees Youngster Hit By Transport

While his mother watched him from a kitchen window, six-year-old Ronald White of 48 Lansdowne St. was hit by a 10-ton transport truck as he ran across Lansdowne St. E., at 9:30 a.m.

He was dragged 70 feet along snow-covered street by the dolly wheels of the trailer and was found bruised and bleeding under the vehicle.

The boy has a fractured skull, a badly-mangled right arm, dislocated right elbow, a nearly-severed right ear and a badly cut-face. He is dangerously ill but at 2 p.m. his condition was described as "as satisfactory as can be expected."

The driver of the transport, Wallace Roote, 41, of 776 Duffus St., said later that he knew the heavy eastbound transport would hit the boy but he couldn't avoid it. He applied the brakes hard and the transport jack-knifed, the tractor wedging up against a hydro pole on the south side of the street.

"He ran out from behind a parked car, right in front of his home, and darted across the road," said Mr. Roote. "I knew I was going to hit him because he was looking in the other direction (east). My front wheels missed him, but I don't know whether it was the dual wheels on the back of the tractor or the dolly wheels on the trailer.

"I hit the brakes hard and the truck jack-knifed. When I jumped out of the cab and went around to the side I could see him lying underneath the trailer (behind the dual tractor wheels). It didn't look as though he was breathing."

GAINED CONSCIOUSNESS

Mr. Roote ran to the Sunoco service station, near Sherbourne St. to phone. When he returned

Step Up Program To Sell Canada To More Canadians

OTTAWA (CP)—Completion of the trans-Canada highway is expected to give new impetus to interprovincial and international tourist traffic. That is the view of the Canadian Tourist Association, Ralph Moore, CTA president, Wednesday told the Senate tourist traffic committee which is making its annual inquiry into the tourist industry.

The highway, now under construction, is going to be a tremendous factor in keeping Canadians at home during their holidays, he said in reply to questions from Senator J. H. King (L—British Columbia).

The CTA, faced with increasing competition from European countries for visitors from the United States, has stepped up its program of selling Canada to Canadians.

Mr. Moore, deputy minister of economic affairs in Alberta, said this campaign was launched last year and there are indications that interprovincial travel increased. The CTA recognized that only through greater promotion of Canada's tourist assets at home and abroad could the industry maintain the gains in tourist trade which have followed the Second World War.

SUGGESTIONS OFFERED

Several suggestions were offered by members of the committee for improving tourist facilities. Senator T. A. Crerar (L—Manitoba) said washrooms in many service stations "are an outrage."

These and some eating places might be brought under a system of licensing by provincial governments with gradings such as are used in some European countries to classify accommodation.

Masked Bandits Hold Up Bank

KING CITY, Ont. (CP)—Three bandits, two of them masked and armed, got between $2,000 and $3,000 today in a daylight robbery of a Canadian Bank of Commerce branch in this community 15 miles north of Toronto.

Ontario provincial police immediately broadcast a police radio alarm for the trio who fled in a car.

The bandits entered the bank and forced four staff members and two customers to lie on the floor. One man cleaned out the teller's cage.

Branch manager N. H. Bell said the leader of the gunmen ordered one companion to watch the door and the other to get the cash.

Hit By Flying Puck Loses Sight Of Eye

TORONTO (CP)—Hit by a flying puck while watching the Boston-Toronto hockey game at Maple Leaf Gardens Mrs. Clara Parker lost the sight of one eye Wednesday night.

The puck flew over the boards and shattered Mrs. Parker's glasses, sending some of the glass into her eye.

St. Laurent Suggests Broader Union Than NATO For All Western Powers

BONN (CP) — Prime Minister St. Laurent, in the major address of his West German visit, Wednesday night suggested a concept of integration of the Western powers much broader than the North Atlantic Treaty Organization or the European Defence Community.

In a dinner speech, while a guest of Chancellor Konrad Adenauer, before members of the West German cabinet, the Canadian leader put forward the idea of a political, economic and defence system of countries situated around the "great basin of the Atlantic."

The 25-minute speech at the Palais Schaumburg suggested that European unity may not be the answer to western European problems.

Newspaper men were not present, and the text was issued today by the prime minister's staff at Soest, where he went to visit the Canadian infantry brigade in Germany.

LARGER FRAMEWORK

"Perhaps the time has come now to consider whether some steps towards closer integration . . . should be taken within the larger framework of the North Atlantic community," the speech said.

"I suggest we should perhaps be seeking solutions to the problems continuing to face you of achieving greater unity in Europe in a wider context and possibly in pursuit of Article Two of the North Atlantic treaty."

(Article Two provides for cooperation in the non-military field of the member powers of the Atlantic pact.).

"It has become increasingly clear, I think, to all members of NATO and to those many countries associated with us throughout the world that our very survival and our continued development in freedom and peace depends upon our ability to look beyond national barriers and to make them somewhat less artificial and more satisfactory."

CLOSER INTEGRATION

"We believe the proper solution to the economic, cultural and spiritual betterment of all free peoples is to be found in an even closer integration of their activities and in a greater sharing of their endeavors.

"More particularly, many of us believe the peoples living about the great basin of the Atlantic ocean might well seek the solution of their problems of economic betterment, political stability and self-defence in this closer integration of their national resources and machinery of government."

The speech was released to reporters on the special train which took the prime minister's party through the Ruhr to inspect the brigade at Soest, near the industrial city of Dortmund.

The troops, most of them veterans of Korea, put on a sparkling display to honor their prime minister. The Royal Canadian Artillery fired a 19-gun salute.

Gen. Sir Richard Gale was on the platform to greet him, along with the Canadian brigadier, W. A. B. Anderson.

RETURNS FOR DINNER

After watching a parade of 1,800 men, the prime minister came back to this capital, where he met Chancellor Konrad Adenauer at a dinner given by Canadian Ambassador T. C. Davis.

The prime minister will visit other Canadian forces Saturday when he leaves West Germany for Rome. He will stop off at the RCAF base at Gros Tenquin, in eastern France.

On the eve of his visit to the Canadian Army, the prime minister indicated that Canada will soon free the last two German war criminals in her custody, both of them serving terms for their parts in the shooting of Canadian prisoners during the Second World War.

The two, former Maj.-Gen. Kurt Meyer, and Johann Neitz, now are serving 14-year terms in the British war-crimes jail at Werl.

Asked Wednesday about their fate, the prime minister replied: "I understand that very shortly now they will have served their sentences."

ST. LAURENT IN GERMANY—Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent chats with West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer and President Theodor Heuss upon the Canadian visitor's arrival in Bonn on his world goodwill tour. The Canadian Prime Minister called on President Heuss at his official residence at Bonn and has suggested a broader integration of the Western powers than the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. —(CP from AP)

Wouldn't Pay Union Dues

Niagara Man Fired; On Hydro Job 38 Yrs.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—Ernest Stewart, 63, of nearby Stamford, due to retire in June, 1955, from the Ontario hydro-electric power commission has been fired because he refused to pay $1.05 monthly dues to the HEPC Employees Association.

The association and company signed an agreement in 1953 under which all employees covered by the agreement would pay dues to the association. Mr. Stewart refused.

"I felt it was not necessary," he said. "I worked for 38 years without paying for my job. I have nothing against organized labor but in this case I couldn't see joining."

CLASSIFICATION DENIED

Mr. Stewart said he was classed as a B electrician until 194[illegible] jobs were reclassified and grouped as a C mechanic. He said the association failed in a number of attempts to have him boosted to his former classification.

"My shop stewards said I was able to do the higher class of work" he said, "but Mr. Robertson (A. S. Robertson, manager of the Niagara area) refused to allow it and when any mention of my case was brought up it was closed out quick."

He said the fact he was unable to read or write was one of the reasons given that he could not be placed in the higher category. Mr. Stewart said his brother, also unable to read or write, recently retired as a class A rigger.

On Jan. 22, Mr. Stewart received notification he was fired as of Feb. 1. He was given a separation allowance of $306.74, vacation pay of $206.21, and a refund of pension payments and interest totalling $3,951.10.

1 Dead, 4 Injured In Hotel Blaze

STE. MARIE DE BEAUCE, Que. (CP)—One person was burned to death and four others suffered injuries early today when fire destroyed a three-storey wooden hotel in this town, 30 miles south of Quebec.

Dead is Mrs. Armand Poulin, 38, owner of the hotel which housed 21 persons.

Injured were Geraldine Hains, who escaped by leaping from a window; W. Rogers, a construction employee; Rejean Plourde, employed by the Shawinigan Water and Power Company, and Raymond Bourre, a salesman.

Two of the injured were reported in serious condition.

Manager Julien Poulin placed damage at more than $50,000.

Canada Plans Give UN Program $700,000 Boost

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada plans to give the United Nations technical assistance program a $700,000 boost.

External Affairs Minister Pearson announced in the Commons Wednesday that Canada's contribution to the program, which is aimed at helping poorer countries to improve their lot, will be increased to $1,500,000 this year from $800,000.

Canada had promised the increase last fall, provided other countries increased their support and a practical, sustained program was assured.

He said it is clear that those conditions have been met, Canada's promise had played a part in bringing that about. More than $24,000,000 had been firmly pledged so far, compared with $22,000,00 contributed last year.

"We have often been told at the UN that Asia and Africa are on the march and will not be stopped. That is true, and there is no reason we should want to stop that march."

AID PEACE

But history proved that hungry nations caused trouble and technical assistance would help direct their march toward peace and cooperation.

Mr. Pearson's announcement came during debate on a resolution by Angus MacInnis (CCF—Vancouver Kingsway) urging a substantial increase in Canada's contribution for UN technical assistance.

The resolution was supported by all parties during a debate which took up the full half-day sitting.

Mr. MacInnis, a parliamentary observer at the 1949 UN General Assembly, said Canada should support the technical assistance program "to the limit of our ability."

"These expenditures should not be considered as a charitable handout. They should be considered as an important part of our defence program."

Technical assistance helped underdeveloped countries through research and education, better farming methods, public health and rural public works.

Milk Consumer Tastes Changing

TORONTO (CP)—R. H. Rumler of Brattleboro, Vt., secretary of the Holstein Friesian Association of America, told Canadian holstein breeders Wednesday that consumers' tastes in milk products are changing.

Mr. Rumler, speaking to the Holstein Friesian Association of Canada, said consumers are changing to higher protein diets and are avoiding fats and carbohydrates.

He said that as a result there has been a drop in consumption of milk fats and an increase in the consumption of non-fat solids. Butter consumption is decreasing, he said, while consumption of whole milk, cheese, dry milk, ice cream and cottage cheese is on the way up.

Q. D. Whale, Alma, G.H. Walker, Port Perry, Elgin A. Laidlaw, Aylmer, Cecil J. Packham, Mitchell, and Elva Vina of Listowel were among those presented with master breeder awards.

Western oils were up.

Seaway To Start In Summer—Howe

OTTAWA (CP)—Acting Prime Minister Howe said Wednesday it is "almost certain" the St. Lawrence seaway will be started next summer.

He did not elaborate on the statement, in talking to a union delegation asking for federal measures to stem unemployment. He made the remark in connection with a request that federal public works be stepped up.

Seaway legislation now is pending before the United States Congress. Also, opponents of the power aspect of the development are expected to ask the U.S. Supreme Court to reject the proposal. A court decision may be obtained by early summer.

Suspend Worker On Highway

TORONTO (CP) — Highways Minister Doucett said Wednesday night D. Dubeau, a patrolman on the Rockland area of the trans-Canada highway has been suspended for irregularities discovered by a divisional engineer.

Mr. Doucett commented on an Ottawa newspaper story about an investigation in the division with headquarters at Rockland, 25 miles east of Ottawa. Rockland is on the Ottawa-Montreal stretch of the trans-Canada highway now under construction.

Department material and labor valued at between $1,800 and $1,900 is said to have been used in the construction of two houses. Mr. Doucett said he is confident the department will recover all of its loss.

Department officials said the alleged irregularities were found through the routine checking system of the department, carried out by travelling auditors inspecting all highway districts, and not as a result of an investigation now being conducted into reports of irregularities in highway contracts in the Fort William division and other regions.

McCurdy Trophy Offered Engineer

MONTREAL (CP) — The Institute of Aircraft Technicians of Montreal announced today plans have been completed for annual recognition of the most significant contribution made to aviation in Canada by persons in the technical fields of engineering, construction and maintenance.

F. M. Moore, president of the institute, said a trophy will be donated to perpetuate the name of J. A. D. McCurdy "who made the first flight in the British Empire and whose association with Canadian aviation goes back further than any other living Canadian and whose contributions to the industry have been consistently outstanding."

Senator Gordon B. Isnor (L—Nova Scotia) suggested that U.S. currency be accepted at par rather than deducting the exchange rate of about three cents on the dollar. Mr. Moore said the CTA has tried to get tourist operators to do this but has no "official" campaign to promote the idea.

Senator W. Rupert Davies (L—Ontario) suggested that the CTA make greater efforts to publicize such events as the Stratford Shakespearean Festival.

He also expressed opposition to relaxing liquor laws in Canada as a tourist attraction.

Mr. Moore said in reply to Senator Davies that the CTA has received complaints from Americans at being unable to obtain liquor with meals or in bars in some provinces.

CHANGE LABOR DAY

Leo Dolan, director of the Canadian government travel bureau, said that the tourist industry loses between $20,000,000 and $30,000,000 in years when Labor day falls on the first or second of September.

Efforts had been made both in Canada and the United States to extend the tourist season by putting Labor day back to the third Monday in September. With the schools opening the day after Labor day, this plan would add about three weeks to the tourist season in a month which generally had good weather.

Labor unions were strongly opposed to such a change, Mr. Dolan said. Education authorities also did not seem eager to change their school year, even by making up the additional weeks of summer holiday by shorter breaks at Christmas and Easter.

AMONG RECOMMENDATIONS

Among the recommendations in a brief from the CTA were:

1. Establishment of a committee to eliminate differences in firearms, hunting and fishing regulations and irritating customs regulations.

2. Establishment of a Canadian government travel bureau at San Francisco similar to the one in New York, enlargement of the Chicago bureau and establishment of one later at Minneapolis.

3. Encouragement of a policy of preserving historical relics, publications and other such material in museums.

Union, Mine Officials Hold Surprise Meet

NORANDA, Que. (CP)—Officials of the United Steelworkers of America (CIO-CCL) and Noranda Mines met today in a surprise meeting that may set a pattern for settlement of strikes in the area involving over 3000 miners.

A telegram was forwarded to the company Wednesday by Eamon Park, the union's national representative, requesting a meeting today.

It is believed the union will accept the company offer of a 7½ per cent increase.

Over 1,500 employees at Noranda Mines walked out Aug. 22 seeking higher wages, shorter work week, pension and welfare, and union security. They were followed by workers at Waite-Amulet Mines, Quemont Mines, and Normetal Mines, 75 miles north of here.

WON'T GO FURTHER

The company has consistently said a 7½-per-cent increase was as far as it would go. The offer was made last December and was to be effective only when the plant reopened.

Union strategy committee talks were held Wednesday night and more union meets are scheduled today and Friday. A union official said that if the terms are accepted they could not be disclosed until submitted to the membership for approval.

Has Society To Stop Gabbling Of Prayer

MONTREAL (CP)—The Rt. Rev. George N. Luxton of London, Ont., Anglican Bishop of Huron, has formed a new organization—"The Society for the Prevention of Gabbling of the Lord's Prayer."

Bishop Luxton, addressing the annual meeting of the women's auxiliary of the missionary society, Church of England in Canada, defined "gabble" as: "To rattle off without meaning."

"The time has come for us to do something about it," he said. "Whatever you've done in the past you are going to say the Lord's Prayer with new urgency, new emphasis and recovered meaning.

"The prayer is so familiar to us that most of the time we do not find it difficult to say it without letting it disturb our line of thought."

Churchill Refuses To Invite Naguib

LONDON (Reuters) — Prime Minister Churchill today turned down a suggestion in the House of Commons that he should invite President Mohammed Naguib of Egypt to London.

When Labor members asked "Why?" the prime minister said: "I cannot tell you—I would have to tell the whole story from beginning to end."

MORE ABOUT—

Berlin Meet

Tonight the Westerners entertain Molotov's delegation at a cocktail reception. Friday the ministers start discussing the long-delayed Austrian independence treaty.

50-YEAR PACT

In Wednesday's regular meeting at West Berlin's old Allied control authority building, Molotov offered Europe a 50-year collective security pact in return for expelling United States armed forces from the continent and breaking up the Western alliance.

He sought to promote a European security conference at some time in the future. This proposal is certain to invite hesitant French parliamentarians, pegging their opposition to traditional French fears of a revival of German militarism, to delay more on EDC. And in such an interval a rising impatience could be expected in the U.S. Congress, which votes the funds that have been the backbone of western Europe's defence.

Molotov got his answer from Britain and France in perhaps the most dramatic hour of the Big Four conference. Indirectly, it was an answer also to warnings by State Secretary Dulles that the U.S. would get out of European affairs if Europe so desired.

Bidault and Foreign Secretary Eden, facing Molotov across the conference table, called on the U.S. to stay in Europe. They said Britain and France choose to remain in NATO, of which the U.S. was the chief proposer.

WILL NOT INTRUDE

Dulles remarked that NATO is a defence organization directed at no one, adding: "The United States, I think, has never intruded itself as an unwanted participant in European affairs and we do not have any intentions of doing so in the future."

Communist morning newspapers in Paris and Rome lauded Molotov's proposals, while comment in other publications was scant.

East Germany's Soviet-controlled news agency, ADN, got into the propaganda act with a series of "urgent bulletins" reporting dissension among the western Big Three leaders.

It said Prime Minister Churchill was feuding with President Eisenhower, protesting against "rude and stubborn tactics" of Dulles in Berlin, and that Bidault, worried over his future political career, had asked German officials to soft-pedal German newspaper praise of his speeches in the conference.

British and U. S. diplomatic sources described ADN's story as obvious propaganda that did not merit a denial.

Price Of New Home May Go Up Now

OTTAWA (CP) — The price of new homes may rise under the government's housing legislation, the Commons banking committee was told today.

D. B. Mansur, president of Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, said the legislation is intended to increase the number of prospective home owners.

Any such increase "is likely to bring automatic upward pressure on the price level," he said in reply to a question by Donald Fleming (PC—Toronto Eglinton).

However, he hoped this rise may be stemmed by a "combination of factors," including CMHC's continued control over the sales price of new homes built under maximum mortgage loans.

Sale Of Trucks Showing Decline

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadians last year bought more new cars than ever before but the smallest number of new trucks since 1949.

The bureau of Statistics today reported that sales of all new motor vehicles in 1953 reached 461,887—15 per cent above the 400,777 sold in 1952 and more than four times the 114,747 sold in 1939.

The previous peak was 429,695 vehicles in 1950.

lieved to have died from a single bullet that pierced her wrist when she apparently raised her arm in an attempt to protect herself and then passed through the lower part of her neck. A bullet was found embedded in the wall just above the body.

The slaying was reported by Archibald Grace, tenant of an apartment next door. He told police Hayes tried to enter his apartment Wednesday seeking a "favor."

"I slammed the door and then there was a shot. The bullet tore through the door and ripped my pant leg. It grazed the bone of my left leg."

CALLED POLICE

A few moments later, he said, he heard a shot in the next-door apartment and called police. They found Miss Currie's body.

Hayes' wife later told a reporter her husband had been employed at a dime store, but was discharged some weeks ago.

"We came to Ottawa about three years ago and have lived in several places since our arrival," she said.

Miss Currie, a nurse at the Royal Ottawa Sanatorium, ordered the eviction of Hayes and his family last week.

Delays Judgment In $35,000 Suit

KINGSTON (CP)—Judgment has been reserved in a suit for $35,000 damages brought against the crown by Lawrence Bracken of Montreal, a former inmate of Collins Bay Penitentiary here.

Bracken lost the fingers and thumb of his left hand while operating a machine in the penitentiary.

A Montreal physician testified Bracken had the ability to use his left arm reduced by 75 to 80 per cent. The Ontario workmen's compensation board claimed his ability was reduced by one third.

Mr. Justice J. C. A. Cameron of the Exchequer Court of Canada reserved judgment Wednesday after hearing testimony for a day and a half.

and economic betterment of the people" will be sought.

ACTS CONSOLIDATED

New proposals were planned for amending the province's welfare legislation. A bill consolidating into one act the Children's Protection Act, the Adoption Act and the Children of Unmarried Parents Act "will bring Ontario's child welfare legislation into conformity with the best in modern practice."

The new policy on provincial parks "will assure that the people of Ontario, through a public parks system, will have reserved for them now and in the future the means of enjoying the beauties of our countryside."

An increased health program, particularly in the fight against cancer and poliomyelities, was planned. Steps would be taken towards the eradication of noxious weeks in Ontario. New rehabilitation measures assisting the physically handicapped would be recommended.

ACT TO AID FARMERS

"Very important matters will be submitted to the committee on agriculture for its consideration," the speech said. "Among these will be an act for the stabilization of the dairy industry," embodying features of the Milk Control Act, the Dairy Products Act, the Milk and Cream Act and sections of the Farm Products Marketing Act.

"Provisions will also be submitted for the over-all management and co-ordination of all activities relating to dairy producers. As these proposals involve major changes in present legislation, they will be submitted to the committee on agriculture for the most thorough consideration."

FURTHER EXPANSION

Further expansion of the rural electrification system and establishment of an Ontario telephone authority was planned.

The white paper on forestry "represents the long-range thinking of recognized authorities on this important subject and will be referred to the committee on lands and forests for study."

TIMBER ACT CHANGES

Amendments to the Crown Timber Act of 1952, designed to effect the regeneration of suitable species on cut-over areas of crown lands, would be introduced.

Reports of five select committees established at the last session would be received. They deal with the Companies Act, election laws, Indian affairs, the Cemeteries Act, boundary lake and water levels and reform institutions.

Consolidation into three acts of 11 acts relating to education is planned and amendments to several acts covering a wide field of subjects would be introduced.

One amendment would be in the Labor Relations Act. This was forecast last Monday in a radio address by Labor Minister Daley who said a change in conciliation procedure was needed.

The speech said further assistance was planned for hospitals but gave no details.

young Ronald was conscious and able to talk.

City police were quickly on the scene. They didn't wait for an ambulance but rushed him away to Civic Hospital in a cruiser as he was bleeding badly.

As Constable Don Erskine picked him up Ronald said that he wanted to be a policeman some day. His right ear was nearly off and his right arm was almost severed but he remained conscious and was able to chat. Sgt. Claire McGillen made the trip to hospital in record time.

Ronald, a pupil at King Edward school, was crossing Lansdowne St. to get his mother, Mrs. Russell White, a package of cigarettes at the Sunoco service station. Mrs. White was watching him from her kitchen window.

"I saw his start across the road and then I saw him get hit by the truck," she said. "I screamed and then I don't remember too well what I did."

Mrs. White dashed outside in her housecoat and narrowly missed being hit herself in the heavy traffic on the highway.

The boy's father, Russell White, is a craftsman with the RCEME in Barriefield.

Constable Don Mackay investigated the accident.

Keep 88 PoWs Near New Dehli

NEW DELHI (AP) — India announced today that the 88 Korean prisoners-of-war who want to go to neutral countries will be kept under military "protection" at an army cantonment near New Delhi.

A foreign ministry spokesman said the men, who refused repatriation, are "simply being given protection until their future is settled."

"We do not consider them prisoners any longer," he declared.

The contingent—74 North Koreans, 12 Chinese and two South Koreans—sailed Tuesday from Inchon, Korea, with 1,600 of the 6,000 Indian troops who guarded the more than 20,000 unrepatriated PoWs in the Korean demilitarized zone. They are due in Madras Feb. 20.

Quebec Antagonism Found Still Strong

KINGTON (CP) — One of Canada's top educational authorities, Jean Bruchesi, under-secretary of education for the province of Quebec, told the staff and cadets of the Royal Military College Wednesday night that the puzzle of French-and English-Canadian antagonism is a long way from solution.

"In the words of an English-Canadian historian, the battle of the Plains of Abraham is still being fought," he said.

"Quebec, unlike the other nine provinces," the speaker said, "does not refuse [illegible] taxation powers in return for a ripe subsidy because of dollars and cents but because it is afraid it will compromise the survival of the French element in Canada."

$100,000 Project To Build 12 Apartments

LINDSAY (ENS) — A $100,000 apartment project which involves twelve family units in three separate buildings has been planned for Lindsay and one of the four unit buildings will be ready for occupancy by April of this year, it was announced here this week.

The project, which is being built according to plans and recommendations of the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, will place three four-unit apartment buildings on a lot in the north portion of the town in the near future. Approval of the last two buildings in the scheme is pending from the town planning board.

Local agent and manager of the plan is Lloyd Found, Lindsay realtor, who stated that the apartments, which will have four rooms and bath, and be decorated and fitted in the latest manner, will rent for some $80 per month. Options will include connection with a community television aerial on each building and garage space, also being provided in the plan. Each apartment will be approximately 28 by 28 feet, with separate entrances.

According to the manager, the project is the first of its kind, for the building of apartments, as such, in Lindsay.

Rail Hearing Been Adjourned

MONTREAL (CP)—A conciliation board hearing into a dispute involving the two major railways and 150,000 non-operating employees has been adjourned until March 1.

No explanation was given for the adjournment Wednesday but it was believed the board wishes to study proposals made by both sides.

The 17 unions representing the men are asking for fringe benefits including double pay for statutory holidays and revision of clauses covering overtime pay. The railways say the demands would cost them $60,000,000 a year.

The conciliation board is headed by Mr. Justice R. L. Kellock of the Supreme Court of Canada.

Hold Young Woman Smuggling Diamonds

NEW YORK (AP) — Customs men said today they had seized a young woman and about $125,000 worth of diamonds she was attempting to smuggle into the United States.

The woman identified herself as Mrs. Esther Katz of Israel. She was arrested shortly after she arrived in Idlewild airport Wednesday by plane from London.

James Page, supervising customs agent in New York, said she had hidden 1,000 carats of "good quality" diamonds in four packages under her clothing.

Acting on an advance tip, two customs agents and an inspector were waiting for her when she landed.

Sentenced For Embezzlement Prisoner Turns Out Woman

COLUMBUS, O. (AP)—The case of a woman masquerading as a man exploded in criminal court Wednesday after a judge had sentenced her to Ohio Penitentiary for embezzlement.

Vernon N. Bradshaw, 35, of Kenova, W. Va., was arrested last summer on a charge of embezzling more than $2,000.

Bradshaw was held three days in county jail and released under $1,500 bond.

Then he was brought to trial Wednesday and sentenced to the penitentiary.

At that point, a man among the spectators in the courtroom waved frantically.

"My name is Patrick Bradshaw and I'm the defendant's brother," he said. "You've made a terrible mistake. Vernon is really Violet Marie and she is a woman."

The prisoner was ordered examined. Matron Elsie Taylor and Dr. Nicholas Michael confirmed that the prisoner was a woman.

"This is the most amazing case I've ever heard of in my years on the bench," said Judge D. F. Reynolds.

He ordered the woman brought back and then sentenced her to the Marysville Reformatory for Women.

"MARRIED" TO WOMAN

At county jail Violet talked to reporters.

"I was not masquerading. I always have considered myself a man," Violet said. "I have dressed, acted and worked like a man ever since I can remember."

She told reporters calmly that she was married to a woman, Vera P. Bradshaw of Columbus, mother of a 12-year-old boy and an eight-year old girl by previous marriage.

She explained she had been living with the "wife" and the court had threatened to take the children away from the mother on non-support charges. "She didn't know I was a woman and she begged me to marry so she could keep her children and I did," Violet said.

"When did your wife learn you were not a man," she was asked.

"In the courtroom this morning," was the reply.

Sheriff Ralph Paul was asked by Judge Reynolds why the prisoner was not searched and her sex determined at the time she was taken to jail. Sheriff Paul said: "It's a matter of not having enough room in the jail; we cannot look after everything."

Counter Proposals Made To Union

COBOURG (ENS) Representatives of the National Union of Public Service employees met with town council Wednesday afternoon and the utilities commission Wednesday night, to discuss a new 1954 wage contract.

Members of the union are employed on the streets department of the town and by the electric and water departments of the utilities commission. Both sections of the union are seeking an across-the-board wage increase of 25 cents an hour, plus modifications in the 1953 contract.

Council and the utilities commission made counter proposals Wednesday. These will be taken up by the union membership and another meeting will be held later on.

The public utilities commission this morning revealed that it had offered the union a 3 cents per hour across-the-board increase and a slightly revised but essentially the same contract as 1953. The town council offered the union a 2 cents an hour increase and practically the same contract as 1953.

Plan Build-up In South Korea

SEOUL (AP)—Informed sources today said Admiral Arthur Radford, chairman of the United States joint chiefs of staff, has tentatively approved a defence build-up plan for South Korea.

The South Korean sources said Radford informed the republic of his general agreement, although there are disagreements to be ironed out in meetings soon between American and South Korean military officers.

The defence plan is understood to include some increase in South Korea's army and more equipment for its navy and air force.

The plan was discussed last week in a top-secret meeting between President Syngman Rhee and the United Nations Far East commander, Gen. John E. Hull, who has gone to Washington.

Meanwhile, at Panmunjom, the neutral armistice supervisory commission today declined to investigate UN charges that the Communists are smuggling planes into North Korea in violation of truce terms. No reason was given for the refusal.

Had 3 Medical Offices But No Licence

NEW YORK (CP)—A man who operated three medical offices in New York City was arrested Wednesday on charges of practising medicine without a licence.

State attorney-general Nathaniel Golstein said Maurice L. Weintraub claimed to be a specialist in gynaecology and obstetrics although he had spent only three weeks in a medical school in 1932.

He was held in $1,000 bond for a hearing March 5.

Goldstein said Weintraub maintained an office in the Bronx, two in Manhattan, and told his patients he was physician to Radio City Music Hall, the Capitol theatre and the Lexington School for the Deaf.

STOCKHOLM (CP)—A government committee now is studying whether traffic in Sweden should be switched to the righthand side of the road, as in Canada. A poll of 4,000 citizens showed a small margin in favor of the change-over.

Seaway To Bring Golden Era

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS). — Jack Both, mayor of Belleville, addressed the Rotary club at a meeting here this week and made some predictions of the effect of the St. Lawrence seaway, on the economy of this section of the country.

Mayor Both believes the seaway will bring unprecedentel prosperity to Eastern Canada. He likened it to the Trent Canal, but on a much larger scale.

Better facilities for transportation and power will attract new industries and will be a boon to many existing industries, he said.

Iron ore will be transported directly from Quebec and Labrador to the mills and ocean transport will be extended to the centre of the continent. Cheaper transportation made possible through the waterway will lead to greater export and import trade.

"A golden era of economic prosperity and expansion" summed up the Belleville mayor's opinion on the seaway.

Mr. Both was introduced by Mayor R. J. Locke and thanked by Bill Holmes.

Key Fishing Spots Revealed To Club

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS) — Kinsman Forrest Dennis addressed the Kinsmen club at the Trent House here this week, speaking on "Fishing."

Mr. Dennis told his audience of the various types of fish to be caught in the Trent river and described many of the better trout fishing locations within a short drive from the town. He also explained some of the reasons for some of the fish and game regulations, saying they were for the protection of the game as well as the sportsman.

It was announced that milk was being supplied to the lower grades in both the public and separate schools and that each of the two local dairies were supplying an equal share.

The Bantam hockey team sponsored by the club has entered the playdowns, and apparently stands a good chance in the league.

An invitation was received from the local branch of the Canadian Legion to attend a social evening at the armouries on February 12. Several members expressed their appreciation to the legion for their leadership in promoting fellowship among the various organizations in the town.

One Of Twin Boys Dies In Simcoe

SIMCOE (CP)—One of two twin boys born 13 miles apart to Mrs. Gordon Fugard Tuesday night died today. The other is in fair condition in hospital here.

The first baby was born at Mrs. Fugard's home at nearby Delhi. Then the mother was brought to hospital here by ambulance, where the second child was born.

There are four other children in the family.

VARIOUS PHASES OF LEADERSHIP were discussed and illustrated by skits today at a leadership training course, sponsored by the Peterborough office of the Department of Agriculture. More than 100 people from county organizations attended the course at Knox United Church. Mrs. Joseph Moore, of Lakefield (top left photo, left), chairman of the Peterborough district WI, discusses a skit with Mrs. Clarence Foster, of Lakefield, Mrs. Clarence Ferguson, of Coldsprings, and Mrs. Archie Ackison, of Lily Lake. The junior farmers' part is discussed by Jack Matchett (centre, top right), president, with Allen Drummond, past president, and Frank Paterson, agricultural representative. The Federation of Agriculture had its part and (left to right, middle) Bert Armstrong, director, Burritt Jopling, second vice-president, Fred Crowe, director, and Dick Stewart, vice-president, run through their lines. Radio farm forums played their part through Wellington Sutton (centre, lower photo), chairman of the Ontario farm radio forums, Mrs. David McIntyre, and the Rev. A. E. 10,000 Of Rebel Invaders Closing On Laos Capital

By OLEN CLEMENTS

SAIGON, Indo-China (AP)—Ten thousand Vietminh invaders of Laos advanced today to a point on the Hou river only 37 miles northeast of Luangprabang, the royal capital that the French and ailing old king Sisavang Vong have vowed to defend.

A vanguard of 1,500 troops is within nine miles or less of the town, screening the advance of the rebel regulars of Vietminh division 308, but so far have not opened an attack.

The main force of the division, diverted last week from the siege of Dien Bien Phu for the thrust into Laos from north Viet Nam, advanced 19 miles in the last 24 hours. At that pace, it now is only two days' march from Luangprabang.

The garrison of Luangprabang has been reinforced in the last few days. Military observers speculate that any assault might not come before early next week.

FRAIL BUILDINGS

Aside from the palaces of the king and crown prince Savang, the town is a collection of frail wooden buildings and huts on the Mekong river. The Hou, on which the rebel division is massed, flows into the Mekong north of the town. A jungle path leads 135 miles southward to Vientiane, the administrative capital of Laos.

Luangprabang has little strategic value, but the Reds could make much propaganda in southeast Asia if they could seize it and capture the king or his son.

In southeast Viet Nam, where French Union troops landed last month to regain a rich strip of coastal rice country from the rebels, army headquarters announced that 35,000 inhabitants have returned to their homes.

Top Art Authority Will Visit London

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Edgar Preston Richardson, director of the Detroit Institute of Arts, which occupies a prime position among United States galleries, will come to London Saturday, Feb. 20, to speak for the first time in this city.

Mr. Richardson is recognized as a top authority on this continent of Dutch painting, particularly in the age of Rembrandt and Frans Hals, and for this reason he has been invited to open the $1,000,000 exhibit at the McIntosh memorial building. The exhibition will be on view to the public from Feb. 22 to March 20.

BLOEMFONTEIN, South Africa (CP)—An Afrikander cow of the sturdy South African cattle breed gave birth to five calves in one day. The cow, owned by L. C. J. Swart of Kroonstad, bore four heifers and a bull.

South Korea Offers Division

WASHINGTON (AP) — South Korea has offered to send at least one and possibly two army divisions to Indo-China to help battle Communist-led rebels.

Informed diplomatic officials said today South Korean President Syngman Rhee personally made the offer to Gen. John E. Hull, American Far East commander, who arrived here today for conferences at the Pentagon.

The French embassy said it knows "absolutely nothing whatever about any such offer."

An embassy spokesman indicated France probably would reject any South Korean bid for fear of causing Communist China to intervene openly in the war.

The state department declined to comment. It is felt unlikely that top American officials would favor sending South Korean troops into the Indo-China war.

Hunary Baboons

HEIDELBERG, South Africa (CP)—Baboons raiding farms in this Cape Province area have become a menace since the fruits of the wild prickly pear were reduced by a plant pest. The baboons have been destroying corn fields, ripping open bags of wheat and even taking milk direct from the cows.

Unemployment Here And Elsewhere

There is not now full employment in Peterborough. How much unemployment there is cannot easily be determined. The National Employment Office here puts out figures. So do labour organizations, different and larger figures. Further, some plants and departments of factories are working a short week, and there is much talk of this. The condition in Peterborough is similar to the situation in many other parts of Ontario, but considering many facts and figures we cannot believe that unemployment in Peterborough and the Province generally is critical or becoming chronic.

* * *

Because of its system of reporting, the National Employment Office figures may vary from others, but they are not likely to be wider of the mark this year than last. Last year at this time nobody talked of a serious amount of unemployment. Yet the Employment Office figures of twelve months ago were only twenty per cent. lower than the present figures. At the end of January, 1953, 2,031 persons in the four counties covered by the Peterborough office were jobhunting. This January the figure rose to 2,530. Without seeking to minimize this number, we remark that it is an increase of only 499 persons, not large, considering that there are more workers in the area (a larger employable group) than last year. The statistics seem to indicate a seasonal lack of work for unskilled labourers rather than a permanent shortage of jobs, and a temporary slackness in some industries.

* * *

The Ontario Bureau of Statistics says that "the current unemployment situation in Ontario appears to be chiefly the result of seasonal factors combined with marketing difficulties in the textile and heavy iron and steel industries". Because of these latter, some cities, Hamilton and Brantford for instance, have a degree of unemployment deeper than that in Peterborough.

* * *

Marketing conditions and other signs indicate that the amount of unemployment in Ontario is beginning to lessen from the high points of December and January. General Canadian figures have shown a considerable degree of unemployment, but across the country there is now renewed confidence that Ottawa was right in saying that the situation was temporary, due chiefly to winter months. Conditions in the United States are of course reflected in Canada, so it is important to notice that across the border there is confidence, too, that the decline in economic activity which has occurred there in the past six months has been a minor dip in the level of prosperity, and temporary.

* * *

Speaking last Saturday to the Canadian Managing Editors' conference, Mr. E. C. Row, president and general manager of the Chrysler Corporation of Canada said:

"We in the automotive industry have been asked with increasing frequency where we think the country is headed; are we going to have a depression, a recession, some kind of readjustment, or something else that, no matter how you say it, adds up to calamity? Perhaps our own thinking can best be exemplified by what we are doing. In Windsor we are doubling the size of our passenger car and our engine plants at a cost of more than 41 million dollars. Our competitors are expanding at a cost of many millions. Would we be doing these things if we had the slightest doubt as to our ability to sell the products that these enlarged facilities will produce. An exhaustive survey has shown us that Canada's present prosperity is no accident, a flash in the pan".

That is one answer to recession fears in Canada, and, we think, a reasonable one.

How Helpful Are We To The Blind?

There are sixty blind people in Peterborough. In the five counties served by the Peterborough office of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind there are nearly 300 blind persons.

Earlier this week a blind visitor to the city who travels far and often, told us that the people on Peterborough streets are the least helpful he has encountered anywhere in Canada. This shocked us.

We believe that the help organizations give the blind in Peterborough is willing and not ungenerous. The blind visitor was referring to citizens generally, and the way they ignore the white cane carriers. We suggest that this is not a calculated indifference but is due to ignorance of how help can be given without its being officious. Our citizens are kind-hearted and, we are sure, would wish to give whatever casual assistance the blind might like to have. Yet many do not know how or when to help, and feel awkward or embarrassed in offering assistance without being asked. They do not wish to interfere with the independence of the blind, or in any way to hurt their feelings.

The full-page advertisement in yesterday's Examiner tells how help can be given, and how to do it with courtesy and ease. Tips like this: don't grab a blind person's arm; let him touch yours for guidance. And if you hear a white cane tapping steadily, the blind holder of it is asking for assistance perhaps in crossing a street, or to know when the traffic light changes, or he may need to be set in the right direction.

Various organized groups in the city have projects to help and entertain the blind, and the blind appreciate what these groups do. Much more is possible, as Hamilton and Vancouver show by their organized reading groups and home-help schemes. A blind lady, long resident in Peterborough, mentioned to us that most blind women are able to do their own laundry, but buttons and hooks come off in the washing. They are not able to sew them on. In Hamilton, a group has organized rotation visits to the rooms and apartments of the blind. One such visit takes place on Tuesday, after Monday's laundry has been done. A lady visits each house for a short while to do the small mending. A little thing, but wonderfully helpful.

Senator Roebuck On Capital Punishment

Nine senators are to serve on the parliamentary committee which will investigate and report on capital punishment, as well as a number of other related matters. In the debate preceding these appointments, Senator Arthur Roebuck was vehement in condemning capital punishment, and he is to serve on the committee. It has been said that the Senator should not have delivered a preliminary judgement on a matter which he was to investigate later.

Though we think that Senator Roebuck might have been wiser to hold his fire, we do not see that any great harm has been done. Few people likely to be appointed to such a committee will be entirely without personal opinions on it at the time of their appointment; they will set to work with a certain amount of prejudice. But we do not think that any of them are so impervious to reason that they will not suffer many alterations of opinion before they reach their decision. Some of them may change their opinions entirely.

There is a good case for capital punishment, and a strong humanitarian case against it. Many times we have questioned in these columns the mercy shown in putting a man in prison for life; to men of a certain temperament, such punishment is the equivalent of death, drawn out for thirty years or more. We have wondered whether it might not be possible to put the question to a condemned man—will he be hanged or will he go to prison for life, without hope of release? We think that some men would certainly choose hanging.

Society nowadays suffers from a very guilty conscience about many forms of legal punishment, and we foresee that within the next century great changes will be made in our system of dealing with criminals who are not simply wrongdoers, but proven menaces to society. There is nothing edifying about a hanging, but we suggest that there is nothing edifying about large, costly prisons, filled with men who may be in good physical health but who are, in every sense that makes life glorious, already dead.

Fast Cabinet Meeting

Prime Minister St. Laurent is far away in Europe on the first leg of his round-the-world flight. (Can one talk of the limb of a flight? Science and engineering are not only adding new words to the language; they are reducing old metaphors to pulp.) Anyway, Mr. St. Laurent is off in the air, leaving earthy matters to his cabinet colleagues and the prime ministerial duties in the extremely active hands of the Rt. Hon. C. D. Howe, a man who moves fast towards decisions. Mr. Howe as Acting P.M. held his first cabinet meeting last Thursday after Mr. St. Laurent took off. The meeting began at 5 p.m. It ended, all business attended to, at 5:04 p.m. We venture to suggest that perhaps some business was delegated to a committee of the Cabinet, as select committee, consisting of the Rt. Hon. C. D. Howe. This committee of one probably held a long session sometime during the next seven hours.

NOTES AND COMMENT

In spite of the extra work involved, it is good character training for parents to insist that their children help with some chores around the home.

The editor of the Meaford Express says that he has driven without an accident since 1921, and that he blows his horn about once every 500 miles. This in contrast with those drivers who seem to think that a horn can move mountains, and change the light from red to green.

Hi-Fi In The Home

By KENNETH BIRD

A SYMPTOM of this age is the growing addiction to noisy hobbies. At one time fretwork was the noisiest pastime known to man; to-day it is the gramophone, but not the modest gramophone of our youth. Now it is monstrous hybrid, a thing of valves and wires capable of thundering cataracts of sound and demanding from its devotees a knowledge of electronics and a language of hieroglyphics and symbols.

The modern "high fidelity" re-producer is more closely related to the wireless of Signor Marconi than to the phonograph of Mr. Edison. Circuits and high-flux density loudspeakers have ousted the simple old soundbox in the quest for lifelike results. And in Britain as in Canada today there are thousands of gramophone addicts who pursue this quest.

✧ ✧ ✧

THEY are the descendants of those who before and after the First World War listened to the voice of Caruso emerging from a convoluted horn. True, his voice sounded feminine, the orchestra was contracted to a concertina, and the needle hiss gave the impression that he was singing through a waterfall; but it was still Caruso. There was no mistaking Pagliacci's sob.

Since the last war, two factors have swelled the ranks of the gramophile: the arrival of long-playing records and the development of what is popularly called "hi-fi." The growing thirst for faithful reproduction was met by the development of amplifiers, pre-amplifiers, scratch filters and other aids to undistorted music. They were accompanied by loudspeakers shaped like the hulls of ships and cement. The sounds they emitted were guaranteed to be free from woof or whistle and covered an auditory range far beyond that of the human ear.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE enthusiast will tell you that dogs will wince and whine at sounds which human beings cannot even hear. That is why they have to be shut in other rooms when the "hi-fi" starts. Science has made it possible for the gramophile to detect studio doors closing, the pages of a score being turned. Indeed, so searching are these instruments that a messenger tiptoeing across the studio in his stockinged feet, during a recording session, is in danger of sounding as if he were on roller skates. It all depends on the number of valves and the size of the transformers.

Wives and next-door neighbours are notoriously averse to high-fidelity. A friend of mine, who has become a willing victim of the craze, is hardly on speaking terms with his wife; and the neighbours have twice written to the police complaining that sounds undetectable to the human ear penetrate their walls and drive their dogs to hysteria. They also complain that those sounds which are audible have shouted their own modest radiogram into silence.

✧ ✧ ✧

HIS WIFE'S principal concern is the appearance of the drawing-room. It is now dominated by what appears to be a concrete oven with a grille at the top. Three men were needed to lift this loudspeaker off the lorry, for the back is filled with sand to give solidity and realism to the bass notes. Facing it across the room is a cabinet, the front of which looks like the instrument panel of an airliner. The cluster of knobs and dials enables the treble, middle and bass to be cut or boosted as required and the needle scratch to be eliminated. So complicated are manipulations that the record is nearly at an end before perfect concert-hall balance is achieved. A mere detail that, for my friend is more interested in quality than in the music itself.

✧ ✧ ✧

TO PROVE that his amplifier is capable of filling a cathedral he will gladly turn up the volume. There is something terrifying about hearing a symphony orchestra larger than life. One visualises fiddles the size of double-basses, and French horns like gargantuan sousaphones played by giants in boiled shirts. The music hurls itself at you like a boxer and hammers at your eardrums. Next door the dog is going mad.

A twist of a knob and the music is cut to a whisper. Quaint and restful is the Lilliputian orchestra, with matchstick oboes and a diminutive Gieseking playing on a doll's-house piano.

✧ ✧ ✧

IT WAS EASY to believe his haggard wife when she said that music had become her enemy since the concrete oven arrived. When the gramophone is playing, a Niagara of undistorted sound penetrates every nook and cranny in the house. She has tried shutting herself in the linen cupboard, but Beethoven stalks her there to bawl his Seventh Symphony in her ear.

Even so, this "hi-fi" is catching. Its message of perfection seizes you the moment you put a record on your own pre-war radiogram. Where is the piccolo that came from the oven like a javelin? And the triangle and the bass drum and the music-stand that collapsed at bar fifty?

That is why, a few weeks later, three men stagger up your garden path carrying something which is to bring revelations in sound to you, your wife and your next-door neighbour.

Unconsidered Trifles

"Of course," said Briggs, as he tackled his portion of chicken, "I may be wrong, but it strikes me that this chicken—".

"Well," snapped the landlady, "and what's the matter with the chicken?"

Briggs shrugged his shoulders. "Oh, nothing—nothing," he said, off-handedly. "I was going to say it is quite evident that the bird was the offspring of a hard-boiled egg."

"Darling," he asked, as he drew his beloved closer to him, "am I the only man you have ever loved?"

"William," she replied, somewhat testily, "before we go any further, I would like to ask you a few questions. You are aware that my father is a millionaire, aren't you?"

"Y-yes."

"You understand, no doubt, that when he dies his vast fortune will be left to me?"

"Y-yes."

"You know that I own half-a-million dollars worth of property?"

"Y-yes."

"That my diamonds are insured for two hundred thousand dollars?"

"Y-yes."

"Then, for goodness sake talk sense! What difference would it make if I had been kissed by a thousand men before I met you?"

Letters To The Editor

SPRING POET

SIR: I was advised by a friend, to send you this small thought. My favourite pastime is writing poetry and in one of my day dreams, I thought of "Butterfly."

Oh you dainty little thing
With delicate patterns on your wing,
As a buttercup you tease
Gently dancing in the breeze.

Continue on your happy flight,
Flutt'ring in the strong sunlight;
Climb the roses o'er the way
And then come back again today.

Sincerely,
A GRADE ELEVEN STUDENT.

NURSE APPRECIATES REGISTRY

SIR: To correct a growing misconception on the part of the general public as to the necessity of a Registry as far as private duty nurses are concerned, may I, as an active member of this organization state that I (and I am sure I echo the views of the majority) find it vital and of prime necessity to the smooth functioning of this branch of nursing. If any nurse has said that she can do without the Registry, I am sure that what she meant was that if the Registry ceased to function, she would not be forced to go out on the street corner with a tin can and beg for a living. Work would doubtlessly still be plentiful but I think after a month of contradictory, variable phone calls and the unsurety of any days off, most private nurses would find their diplomacy taxed to such an extent that they would be happily seeking factory or some such employment. Oh the bliss of a steady 8 to 5 job, ensured salary, weekends and statutory holidays off!

I think it's about time the general public had a broader view, a wider appreciation of the merits of the nursing profession. It would be a pity (and a blessing in disguise) if the nursing body lost their self-subjugation, their selfless devotion to duty long enough to make the public sharply conscious of their indispensibility, and their effort on each and every individual. Perhaps then they would not be taken so much for granted as the daily newspaper and the successive seasons of the year.

Suitable appreciations can be willingly made to any department, but when its a question of a grant to a nursing organization — oh the poor overburdened taxpayer!

Sincerely,
"JUST A NURSE."

MONDAY STORE CLOSING CONSIDERATE

SIR: At intervals I have read articles about "Store Closing" but not once have I read where those involved considered the farmer, country resident or the tourist. And are not these groups of people, to be deeply considered when all of you must admit that their business is greatly missed when weather, etc. keeps them away from the city? Such circumstances were so destructive toward the Christmas spirit and buying by the public this past season that according to the business talks of many, and newspaper articles in various papers, one would feel that Christmas to the multitudes in business was for commercialization alone. Profits and not the thoughts of blessings dominated.

I think that those who have asked for and upheld the Monday closing have come forth with the most sensible, considerate and profitable request for a closing day because it will give advantages acceptable to all concerned. The human body has not the endurance of mechanical devise; therefore it is up to the individual to protect himself since we do not seem to have any organization to protect the human individuals, as we do have the active Humane Society to take care of the dumb animals. By this, I mean, many employers do not consider that the employees like, need and deserve to have certain hours for rest, pleasure and to do with as they desire. So why try to force them into night work by keeping stores open to catch the business that does not show up? Why should any business such as banks, newspapers, stores and other types of business close part or all day on Saturdays and Wednesdays when those are very important days for everybody to replenish their supplies for the time? Saturday is the day when most convenient for the farmer to attend or be a market dealer. When the farmer cannot in most cases afford the time or money to go to the city twice or more times, he does want to attend to all his business on Saturdays. Banks remaining open at night and closing Saturdays forces all links of business to hold over their banking and thus expose them to unwanted and unexpected dangers. As for the marketers, Saturday is the ideal day for them to dispose of their produce, to supply others with edibles for the incoming tourists along with our regular Saturday buying. In the case of the farmer, Saturday is the ideal day for taking his children out for the weekly supplies rather than keeping them out of school. Many features, especially for children, are given on Saturdays by various organizations, so why deprive the country child of the city advantages by closing places of business on Saturday and compelling the country people to make trips two days to the city, when one day would be better for all concerned?

Monday closing would cause a much less annoying hazard for parking on any other day because the city and country shopping times would be more evenly divided. A good example for this is plainly shown in the grocery stores on Friday. That is a day when so many receive their pay cheques and make that day their closing day of the week to shop. Go to the chain stores on that day to shop, and near closing time, you feel guilty for taking that day for shopping and causing a greater rush for those using pay day as their shopping day, when other days would be just as suitable for your purpose.

As for the stores, they have a great rush for buying on Friday and Saturday for week-end supplies and their store supplies are depleted by Saturday night. If they close on Monday, they do not need fresh supplies until Tuesday but if they close on Wednesday afternoon as in the past, much perishable food is held over for a loss. More power and profit for those who are considerate of the rights of all.

MRS. MAUDE (Joseph) HAMILTON.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Why art thou cast down, O my soul? and why art thou disquieted within me? hope in God: for I shall yet praise him, who is the health of my countenance, and my God (Ps. 42.11.)

✧ ✧ ✧

And Jacob was left alone; and there wrestled a man with him until the breaking of the day. And when he saw that he prevailed not against him, he touched the hollow of his thigh; and the hollow of Jacob's thigh was out of joint as he wrestled with him. And he said, Let me go, for the day breaketh. And he said, I will not let thee go, except thou bless me.

And he said unto him, What is thy name? And he said, Jacob. And he said, Thy name shall be called no more Jacob, but Israel: for as a prince has thou power with God and with men, and hast prevailed.

And Jacob asked him, and said, Tell me, I pray thee, thy name. And he said, Wherefore is it that thou dost ask after my name? And he blessed him there. And Jacob called the name of the place Peniel: for I have seen God face to face, and my life is preserved. (Gen. 32:24-30.)

Maclean's Misunderstanding

(New Westminster British Columbian)

We wonder what possessed Maclean's (December 15) to use their Christmas issue for a National Report on Christianity by a Mr. Fred Bodsworth, and indeed to emphasize the importance of the article by giving it an editorial leader. Our problem is that the Editor and the Author do not seem to have planned the approach. Both begin with two controversial propositions namely (1) that Christianity is primarily 'good works' according to the ethical teaching of a Jewish Mystic — Jesus Christ — and, (2) Christianity is essentially non-dogmatic, except for Roman Catholicism; Protestantism may be considered as lumped-together since dogmatic differences are now obsolete, and there is agreement on ethical principles. These views went out with the Economic Depression of the 30's. We wonder why Mr. Bodsworth introduced the Eastern Orthodox Churches. Orthodoxy does not fit in the Roman Catholic vs. Protestant view of Christianity which permeates the whole article. We thought the Orthodox remarks were the most sensible and penetrating of the clerical utterances. The remarks about the Church were confined to the (now weakened) union talks between Anglicans and Uniteds. Mr. Bodsworth has never heard of the Catholic Revival in the Anglican Communion nor its healthy list of good works, the revival of the Religious Life and the new reality in religion and worship. These omissions give a distorted picture of the Anglican Church. Perhaps these omissions or misunderstandings are the reason why Roman and Orthodox Clerics are called 'priests,' while Anglican clerics are classed with Non-Episcopal Ministries and are referred to as 'Ministers' and not 'priests.'

Adjourn Hearing On Ritchie Till Monday

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Hearing on a motion made Wednesday by Bernard Cohn, counsel for Donald Ritchie, that all statements made by Ritchie to Detroit authorities concerning the attempted murder of Walter Reuther be made available to him was adjourned until Monday.

Ritchie is the man who named four men, including his uncle, Clarence Jacobs of Windsor, as involved in the attempted murder of the CIO and United Automobile Workers' union president.

Crown Attorney Bruce Macdonald said in court he had received the official request from the United States for the extradition of Ritchie. The extradition hearing is set for Monday with a hearing for Jacobs set for Tuesday.

PROMISES HAVE PAPERS

Mr. Macdonald promised he would produce the papers by Friday and the motion was adjourned to Monday on agreement of both parties.

Besides Jacobs, who Ritchie named as trigger man, the men accused are Carl Renda, awaiting another hearing in Detroit, Santo (Sam) Perrone of Detroit, still at large, and Pete Lombardo, serving a U. S. prison term. All, including Ritchie, face charges of attempted murder in Michigan.

Find Unemployment Up Third In Kingston

KINGSTON (CP) — Figures released by the Kingston office of the National Employment Service show an increase of unemployment here of more than a third over one year ago.

Records show a total of 1,895 unemployed people in the city, as compared with 1,205 in February of 1953. Of the present figure, 1,523 are men, 50 per cent of whom are in the 20-45 year age group.

The commission is paying $4,000 a day unemployment insurance in the Kingston area, said W. W. Farrell, manager of the NES office here.

French Priest's Appeal Saves Many Lives

By JOSEPH E. DYNAN

PARIS (AP)—A one-man "insurrection of goodness" by a Roman Catholic priest is awakening hitherto heedless Frenchmen to the plight of France's big army of homeless poor people.

The campaign to bring better housing, warmth and clothing to the thousands who huddle in doorways, in makeshift shanties and in the crannies along the Seine is sparked by the Rev. Henri Groues.

Many in the wartime underground knew him as Abbe Pierre. The 41-year-old Jesuit father has caught the attention of the government and the people to the long-standing need for low-cost housing as no other person or organization has been able to do.

Last week's sudden, severe cold wave brought Abbe Pierre—looking like a zealous young St. Francis with his deep-set eyes and black beard—to the French national radio with the plea:

"Parisians! Help! Help! This morning at 3 o'clock, in her pitiful shack a mother was frozen to death. This need not happen. This must not happen."

The results astounded even Abbe Pierre.

Bankers and ambassadors stood in line with cooks and clerks at the priest's headquarters in an obscure hotel to donate blankets, overcoats, tents, heaters and money. Offices took up collections. The city opened heated shelters and the police were instructed to take vagrants in for the night with no questions asked.

To top if off, Abbe Pierre saw the French cabinet take firm action on the project for which he had fought for years: Allocating 10 billion francs (nearly $3,000,000) for the immediate construction of 12,000 low-cost housing units in Paris for occupancy before next winter.

The night after Abbe Pierre's radio appeal, police noted a strange thing. The places under the bridges of the Seine, and in the other places where the homeless usually seek shelter, were vacant. Nearly all the city's destitute were sleeping in the heated emergency centres.

Abbe Pierre had asked only for 4,000 blankets. In five days, contributions were $360,000 in cash, 15,000 blankets, 6,000 overcoats and thousands of other items.

The priest was born in Lyon of well-to-do parents. He gave up his inheritance to charity and joined the priesthood before he was 20. During the Second World War he was active in the French underground, helping many refugees—particularly Jews—to flee across the border to Switzerland.

After the liberation Abbe Pierre was elected to the first legislature as a member of the largely Catholic Mouvement Republicain Populaire. Before the last election in June, 1951, he broke with the MRP because he did not approve of the party's joining with other centre groups. He was defeated as an independent.

Rhee Quite Determined To Re-Open Korean War

Note: Relman Pat Morin, Associated Press special correspondent, interviewed President Syngman Rhee of South Korea today at the president's home in Seoul. Morin, who won the Pulitzer prize for war reporting in 1950, has been in the Far East three weeks visiting leaders in Japan and Korea. Before the Second World War, Morin was AP chief of bureau in Tokyo. Since the war he headed AP staffs in Paris and Washington before being appointed to his roving assignment.

By RELMAN MORIN

SEOUL (AP) — President Syngman Rhee warned today that he is determined to reopen the war against the Chinese Reds occupying North Korea, and that if necessary he will go ahead without U.S. support.

"I am not bluffing," he said.

The president of the Republic of Korea made the statement in an interview with this correspondent.

Except in general terms, he did not specify when he will order his armies to attack but he said: "Time is rapidly running out. We shall have to act soon or perish."

In both manner and speech, Rhee gave every evidence that he means what he says. He repeated several times: "I am not bluffing. I can't bluff now."

He criticized U.S. policy as "mistaken" in discussing peace with the Chinese and said: "Unification through a political conference is ridiculous."

TO BEAT CHINESE

He gave these reasons for the position he is taking:

Firstly, he is convinced the Chinese themselves will reopen the war whenever they are ready.

"They have not given up their ambition for the whole of Korea. They will attack again."

Secondly, he believes the present armistice, like the talks in 1951, is merely to gain time for the military build-up.

Thirdly, the build-up is in progress: "This Communist army has new weapons from the Soviets, including a strong air arm and many giant tanks."

Fourthly, even assuming the Chinese do not attack in the near future, which he does not assume, a vivisected Korea could not live. Korean attack on the Chinese might touch off a third world war?

WHY START IT NOW?

"If Soviet Russia was not ready to start the third world war when we went to the Yalu river in 1950, why should it start now?"

The president conceded that from a standpoint of supplies and materials the South Korean armies have "a hard time." He hoped that the least he could expect was support in the form of ammunition, gasoline and the like.

Most competent U. S. military observers in Korea do not believe the South Koreans could press an offensive for long without both supplies and air cover from the United States.

Senators Study Death Penalty

OTTAWA (CP) — The Senate Wednesday approved the appointment of 10 senators to a joint committee of Parliament to study the death penalty, whipping and lotteries.

During debate on the government's proposal to establish the committee, Senator Cyrille Vaillancourt (L—Quebec) said that earlier Senator A. W. Roebuck (L—Ontario) listed countries and states which abolished the death penalty but he did not list those which reimposed it.

He said Senator Roebuck also said the per capita murder rate in the United States is five times that of Canada. However, it should be recalled that 13 states have abolished the death penalty and the comparison with Canada which retains hanging should never have been made.

The Senators named to the committee are: W. M. Aseltine (PC—Saskatchewan), Elie Beauregard (L—Quebec), P. H. Bouffard (L—Quebec), Farris, Muriel McQueen Fergusson (L—New Brunswick), Salter Hayden (L—Ontario), Nancy Hodges (L — British Columbia), John A. Macdonald (L — Nova Scotia), Senator Roebuck and C.J. Veniot (L—New Brunswick).

Duseks Thought They Won Main Pro Grapple Bout Wrong Shoulders On Floor

Hombre Montana and Whipper Bill Watson retained their Canadian tag team title in pro wrestling here last night against the Dusek brothers, Ernie and Emil, but it was a close one. Ernie thought he had Hombre pinned for the deciding fall but Montana slid his rival on down till he wound up in a shoulder stand for the fall in six minutes. The indignant Duseks and many of the joyous fans were rather confused at the windup, but Referee Bunny Dunlop counted Ernie out.

Hombre went to ram Ernie into the corner, when the latter kicked the rope strands to throw Montana off-balance and back, falling backward on top of him, apparently to pin him. But Hombre hoisted one shoulder in time and also slid Ernie down over him so that his shoulders were square on the mat in time for the count. The crowd cheered the finish.

PLENTY MEAN

Hombre bumped the beam at 325 massive pounds, and his partner, Whip, scaled 238. Ernie Dusek weighed 246 for the match, and brother Emil toted up 230. The latter pair were mean ones all the way and they got away with a lot as Referee Bunny Dunlop missed plenty, and kept stopping the popular due from changing in their corner frequently.

Emil won the opening fall in 23 minutes over Watson with the unconscious neck "cobra" hold, and Whipper had his neck hurt in the process. He took quite a beating early in the round and again near the finish as the Duseks worked in fast, rough relays near their corner. Montana threw them around when he had the chance but he didn't see too much action at this time. They were in and out of the ring the early part of the session, and four were battling in the ring at one time before Dunlop got them straightened out again. The fans liked the hot action but booed the inconsistent rulings of the ref.

MONTANA STARTS

Watson didn't return for a time for the second round, nursing a sore neck, but Montana started off to take both Dusesk on. He did well, too, bashing each in turn around with mighty muscle smashes and almost having Ernie out with his shoulder back-breaker before Emil interfered. The Whip arrived by that time to cuff Emil lose, and then Montana softened up the chunkier Dusek brother and gave Whip—on a relay—sweet revenge, Watson coming in and slamming Emil out in five minutes with two ring-shaking whip grips and body slams. Most of the corner skull-duggery was done in the first round by the Duseks, neither team had a chance for this in the middle session, but Whip and Hombre clicked better in their corner in the final round.

THREW BOTH OUT

Dunlop gave Ilio DiPaolo, 246, the semi-final in 17 minutes over the 251-pound Fred Atkins, when the latter threw Ilio out of the ring first and then followed up by slugging Dunlop and tossing him out. The hot-headed Australian was burned up at being pushed back by Bunny, who was trying to keep Atkins from keeping DiPaolo outside. Whenever Ilio tried to climb back into the ring, rugged Fred rushed at him and clubbed him out again. After the third or fourth push back by Dunlop, the powerful Australian clipped Bunny and tossed him out, where Bunny promptly lifted Ilio's hand in victory as the fans cheered. Ilio was fast and full of fight, while Atkins played it rough from the start in a lively bout. Dunlop, a former heavyweight wrestler himself, found Atkins not the type to take much pushing around by an official.

Blond Jack Bence, 226, and newcomer Ray Cernandos, a tough 250-pounder from South America, battled to a prelim draw in 30 minutes. They mixed it plenty with Ray using the meaner mat tactics in a fast go. Plenty of body slams, flying tackles, bulldozer drives and knee-breakers marked this tussle, and Bence pulled a neat flying leglock once. Thrown out of the ring, Bence slid under and around to come up behind Ray and bash him. He later had his heavier opponent in trouble before the gong ended their mad scramble.

Making Plans For Playoffs In W. Canada

VANCOUVER (CP)—Director of the seven-team Western Hockey League set plans Wednesday for their league playoffs and a post-season championship between East and West.

The final series, a best-of-nine clash between the champions of the Quebec Hockey League and the WHL will be the first of its kind in 28 years.

The QHL champions will travel west for this series, which isn't expected to get under way until late April. Financing will be undertaken by the WHL and the winning team will share a $10,000 prize and the losers $7,500.

Location of the games will depend largely on the availability of rinks, league president Al Leader said.

IT ALL DEPENDS

If one of the four coast teams wins the WHL championship, two of the East-West games would likely be played in Calgary and Edmonton. However, if a Prairie team is in the final, it is doubtful that any games would be played on the coast.

The WHL has guaranteed travelling expenses for 20 players on the QHL champion squad and the teams will get a share of any profits.

League directors said the Quebec League has agreed to taking over the series on a similar basis next season.

Regents, Collis Beat RCAF In Cage Frays

Peterborough intermediate basketball teams, the YMCA Regents and Collis, walked into exhibition games in their own class Wednesday night. They soon stopped walking and easily ran to victories over their opposition from the Trenton RCAF station. The Doug MacPherson-coached Regents romped to a 77-49 win over the Trenton RCAF Flyers while Buz Manbeck's Collis girls buzzed Trenton Jets, grounding them with a 47-30 victory.

Both Peterborough squads indicated superiority of form as they handed the Trenton rivals second defeats. A week ago the Regents and Collis recorded wins on the RCAF field.

For the first time in several weeks the Regents were at full strength and this allowed Coach MacPherson to switch often and quickly, keeping the players fresh throughout. The Regents responded better; every player counted on the score sheet.

Lanky Ed Nicholls, who hit his stride with the Marines several years ago when they went to the all-Ontario intermediate finals, once again began to hit the basket regularly. With each game this season he has improved, adding a few more of his tricky shots each time. Wednesday night they paid off with 15 points.

ALSO 15 POINTS

Nicholls' 15 points was equalled by teammate Dan Griffin and by Flyers' Campbell, Griffin spark-plugged Regent's attack in the second and fourth quarters. Meanwhile Campbell was the only scoring punch for the Flyers who total of 14 points, along with Bill missed last week's star, O'Hara.

Bob Smith, who had a game Edgar, started Regents off with a wide 20-13 margin in the first quarter. Flyers Woods keeping the Trenton quintet within distance. But in the second quarter Nicholls and Griffin began to find the mark and added to Regent's margin. The half score was 38-25 for Regents.

Abbie Stewart joined the scoring parade in the third quarter as Regents for the third time easily held a wide margin on play for a three-quarter 55-36 score.

In the fourth the Regents didn't give the flyers an opportunity to re-group for a rally as a week ago. Nicholls, amassing 10 points, along with Griffin led Regents to a 22-point quarter score for the 77-49 win.

SMART SHOWING

Bus Manbeck's Collis lasses followed much the same winning pattern as they did a week ago when crushing the Jets in Trenton. With Joan Dunk, running, shooting, receiving passes from teammates, and Pauline Stewart being reliable, Collis didn't have any trouble once again with the Jets.

With Dunk and Stewart proving the scoring aces and the others throwing up a stiff defence, Collis took a large 14-4 score in the first quarter. The stiff defence continued to play havoc with Jets' offence in the second and Collis still hit the basket for a 23-12 half-time score.

The Jets rallied momentarily in the third quarter and therefore outscored Collis, McMillen and Babchuk provided Jets with the scoring power as they held a slim 10-8 edge. But Collis still led 31-22.

In the fourth Collis ran away with the game. Led by Pauline Stewart, the Collis quintette easily lengthened their winning margin, outscoring the Jets.

Dunk led the scoring with 19 points while teammate Stewart had 14.

PCVS Bantams Earn A Hoop Playoff Spot

PCVS bantams defeated Cobourg Collegiate boys 33-15 in Cobourg last evening to capture their district school bantam basketball group, qualifying them for COSSA district playoffs with Kenner Collegiate, probably in about a week's time. Kenner had taken their group over St. Peter's and Lakefield bantams, and the Wednesday win for PCVS clinched leadership in the lakeshore setup.

Coach Bev Goulding's Peterborough squad rolled early and had a 22-3 lead racked up by half-time, Cobourg battling back to make it closer in the last half of a fair hoop fixture. The young fellows of both teams hustled all the way and showed some good grounding in basketball for bantam play.

Norm Tetlock led the Peterborough Collegiate crew with eight points, one more than Ross Dobbin, while Bill Sorrie also was effective for the winners with five points. Best for Cobourg was Fisher with six.
